32 But of that day, and that hour, knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father.

33 Take ye heed, watch and pray: for ye know not when the time is.

34 For the Son of man is as a man taking a far journey, who left his houſe, and gave authority to his ſervants, and to every man his work, and commanded the porter to watch.

35 Watch ye therefore; for ye know not when the maſter of the houſe cometh, at even or at midnight, or at the cock-crowing, or in the morning;

36 Leſt, coming ſuddenly, he find you ſleeping.

37 And what I ſay unto you, I ſay unto all, Watch.

CHAP. XIV.

1 A conſpiracy againſt Chriſt. 3 A woman poureth ointment on his head. 10 Judas ſelleth, 43 and betrayeth him. 66 Peter thrice denieth him.

AFTER two days was the feaſt of the paſſover, and of unleavened bread: and the chief prieſts and the ſcribes, ſought how they might take him by craft, and put him to death.

2 But they ſaid, Not on the feaſt-day, leſt there be an uproar of the people.

3 ¶ And being in Bethany, in the houſe of Simon the leper, as he ſat at meat, there came a woman, having an alabaſter-box of ointment of ſpikenard, very precious; and ſhe brake the box, and poured it on his head.

4 And there were ſome that had indignation within themſelves, and ſaid, Why was this waſte of the ointment made?

5 For it might have been ſold for more than three hundred pence, and have been given to the poor. And they murmured againſt her.

6 And Jeſus ſaid, Let her alone; Why trouble ye her? ſhe hath wrought a good work on me.

7 For ye have the poor with you always, and whenſoever ye will ye may do them good: but me ye have not always.

8 She hath done what ſhe could: ſhe is come aforehand to anoint my body to the burying.

9 Verily I ſay unto you, Whereſoever this goſpel ſhall be preached throughout the whole world, this alſo that ſhe hath done ſhall be ſpoken of for a memorial of her.

10 ¶ And Judas Iſcariot, one of the twelve, went unto the chief prieſts, to betray him unto them.

11 And when they heard it they were glad, and promiſed to give him money. And he ſought how he might conveniently betray him.

12 And the firſt day of unleavened bread, when they killed the paſſover, his diſciples ſaid unto him, Where wilt thou that we go and prepare, that thou mayeſt eat the paſſover?

13 And he ſendeth forth two of his diſciples, and ſaith unto them, Go ye into the city, and there ſhall meet you a man bearing a pitcher of water; follow him.

14 And whereſoever he ſhall go in, ſay ye to the good man of the houſe, The Maſter ſaith, Where is the gueſt-chamber, where I ſhall eat the paſſover with my diſciples?

15 And he will ſhew you a large upper-room furniſhed and prepared: there make ready for us.

16 And his diſciples went forth, and came into the city, and found as he had ſaid unto them: and they made ready the paſſover.

17 And in the evening he cometh with the twelve.

18 And as they ſat and did eat, Jeſus ſaid, Verily I

33 Take ye heed, watch and pray, &c.) Our Saviour takes occaſion, from the foregoing doctrine of the certainty and ſuddenneſs of his coming to judgment, to enforce the duty of diligent and induſtrious watchfulneſs upon all his diſciples and followers; that is, to be upon their guard againſt all ſin, and to be in an actual readineſs for his appearance and approach. It is the indiſpenſible duty, and ought to be the indefatigable endeavour of every Chriſtian, to ſtand upon his guard, in a prepared readineſs for Chriſt's appearance, both for his coming to them, and their going to him.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIV.

3 And being in Bethany, in the houſe of Simon the leper.) It is uncertain whether he were ſtyled the leper on account of his having deſcended from a leprous family, or been himſelf formerly leprous and healed by Jeſus.

12 And the firſt day of unleavened bread, when they killed the paſſover, &c.) They called the day on which the paſſover was killed one of the days of unleavened bread, and the firſt day thereof becauſe it was preparatory to that feaſt; though, properly ſpeaking, the firſt day began with the paſſover ſupper. This appears alſo from Joſephus, who, making uſe of the vulgar computation, tells us, that the feaſt of unleavened bread laſted eight days, whereas, in the law it is ordered to be kept only ſeven days. Seven days ſhall there be no leaven found in your houſes, Exod. xii. 19.

14 Where is the gueſt chamber?) There is a tradition among the Jews, that no houſes were ever let to hire in Jeruſalem. As the people came thither from all parts three times a year to celebrate the feſtivals appointed by the law, the houſes were open to ſtrangers: they choſe for themſelves of ſuch as they found empty, according to their liking, and the inhabitants furniſhed them with beds. This ſeems to explain our Saviour's ſending to a man to prepare for his eating the paſſover, who, by the relation, appears to have been a ſtranger to him.

ſay unto you, One of you that eateth with me ſhall betray me.

19 And they began to be ſorrowful, and to ſay unto him one by one, Is it I? and another ſaid, Is it I?

20 And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, It is one of the twelve that dippeth with me in the diſh.

21 The Son of man indeed goeth, as it is written of him: but woe to that man by whom the Son of man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had never been born.

22 And as they did eat, Jeſus took bread, and bleſſed, and brake it, and gave to them, and ſaid, Take eat: this is my body.

23 And he took the cup, and, when he had given thanks, he gave it to them: and they all drank of it.

24 And he ſaid unto them, This is my blood of the new teſtament, which is ſhed for many.

25 Verily I ſay unto you, I will drink no more of the fruit of the vine, until that day that I drink it new in the kingdom of God.

26 And when they had ſung an hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives.

27 And Jeſus ſaith unto them, All ye ſhall be offended becauſe of me this night: for it is written, I will ſmite the Shepherd, and the ſheep ſhall be ſcattered.

28 But after that I am riſen, I will go before you into Galilee.

29 But Peter ſaid unto him, Although all ſhall be offended, yet will not I.

30 And Jeſus ſaith unto him, Verily I ſay unto thee, That this day, even in this night, before the cock crow twice, thou ſhalt deny me thrice.

31 But he ſpake the more vehemently, If I ſhould die with thee, I will not deny thee in any wiſe. Likewiſe alſo ſaid they all.

32 And they came to a place which was named Gethſemene: and he ſaith to his diſciples, Sit ye here, while I ſhall pray.

33 And he taketh with him Peter, and James, and John, and began to be ſore amazed, and to be very heavy;

34 And ſaith unto them, My ſoul is exceeding ſorrowful unto death, tarry ye here, and watch.

35 And he went forward a little, and fell on the ground, and prayed that if it were poſſible, the hour might paſs from him.

36 And he ſaid, Abba, Father, All things are poſſible unto thee: Take away this cup from me: nevertheleſs, not what I will, but what thou wilt.

37 And he cometh, and findeth them ſleeping, and ſaith unto Peter, Simon, ſleepeſt thou? couldeſt not thou watch one hour?

38 Watch ye and pray leſt ye enter into temptation. The ſpirit truly is ready, but the fleſh is weak.

39 And again he went away, and prayed, and ſpake the ſame words.

40 And when he returned, he found them aſleep again; for their eyes were heavy: neither wiſt they what to anſwer him.

41 And he cometh the third time, and ſaith unto them, Sleep on now, and take your reſt: it is enough, the hour is come; behold, the Son of man is betrayed into the hands of ſinners.

42 Riſe up, let us go; lo, he that betrayeth me is at hand.

43 ¶ And immediately, while he yet ſpake, cometh Judas, one of the twelve, and with him a great multitude, with ſwords and ſtaves, from the chief prieſts, and the ſcribes, and the elders.

44 And he that betrayed him had given them a token, ſaying, Whomſoever I ſhall kiſs, that ſame is he; take him, and lead him away ſafely.

45 And as ſoon as he was come, he goeth ſtraightway to him and ſaith, Maſter, Maſter; and kiſſed him.

46 And they laid their hands on him, and took him.

47 And one of them that ſtood by drew a ſword, and ſmote a ſervant of the high prieſt, and cut off his ear.

48 And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, Are ye come out as againſt a thief with ſwords and with ſtaves to take me?

49 I was daily with you in the temple teaching, and ye took me not: but the ſcriptures muſt be fulfilled.

50 And they all forſook him, and fled.

51 And there followed him a certain young man, having a linen cloth caſt about his naked body; and the young men laid hold on him.

52 And he left the linen cloth, and fled from them naked.

53 And they led Jeſus away to the high prieſt: and with him were aſſembled all the chief prieſts, and the elders, and the ſcribes.

54 And Peter followed him afar off, even into the palace of the high prieſt; and he ſat with the ſervants, and warmed himſelf at the fire.

55 And the chief prieſts and all the council ſought for witneſs againſt Jeſus to put him to death; and found none.

56 For many bare falſe witneſs againſt him, but their witneſs agreed not together.

57 And there aroſe certain, and bare falſe witneſs againſt him, ſaying,

58 We heard him ſay, I will deſtroy this temple that is made with hands, and within three days I will build another made without hands.

59 But neither ſo did their witneſs agree together.

60 And the high prieſt ſtood up in the midſt, and aſked Jeſus, ſaying, Anſwereſt thou nothing? what is it which theſe witneſs againſt thee?

61 But he held his peace, and anſwered nothing. Again the high prieſt aſked him, and ſaid unto him, Art thou the Chriſt, the ſon of the bleſſed?

62 And Jeſus ſaid, I am: and ye ſhall ſee the ſon of man ſitting on the right hand of power, and coming in the clouds of heaven.

63 Then the high prieſt rent his clothes, and ſaith, What need we any further witneſſes?

64 Ye have heard the blaſphemy; what think ye? and they all condemned him to be guilty of death.

65 And ſome began to ſpit on him, and to cover his face, and to buffet him, and to ſay unto him, Propheſy.

29 Although all ſhall be offended, yet will not I.) It ſeems that by this time Judas had ſlipped away from the diſciples, to anſwer his vile contract with the ſanhedrim; and Peter miſſing him, vaunted, that though all his fellow-apoſtles ſhould follow Judas' example, he would ſtand by his Lord.

65 And ſome began to ſpit on him, &c.) By comparing the two evangeliſts, St. Matthew and St. Mark together, it appears, that the bleſſed Jeſus was ſmitten, blindfolded, and buffeted, even by ſome of the council, who, to ridicule him for having pretended to be the great prophet, bade him exerciſe his prophetical gift, in gueſſing who the perſon was that ſtruck him. And ſurely it was hardly poſſible for thoſe miſcreants, thoſe monſters in the human ſhape, to invent any thing more expreſſive of the contempt, in which they held our Lord's pretenſions of being the Meſſiah. Thus was the judge of the world placed at the bar of his own creatures, falſly accuſed by the witneſſes, unjuſtly condemned by his judges, and barbarouſly inſulted by all. Yet becauſe it was agreeable to the end of his coming, he patiently ſubmitted, though he could, with a frown, have made his judges, his accuſers, and thoſe who had him in cuſtody, to drop dead from their ſeats, or ſhrink into nothing.

And the ſervants did ſtrike him with the palms of their hands.

66 ¶ And as Peter was beneath in the palace, there cometh one of the maids of the high prieſt:

67 And when ſhe ſaw Peter warming himſelf, ſhe looked upon him, and ſaid, And thou alſo waſt with Jeſus of Nazareth.

68 But he denied, ſaying, I know not, neither underſtand I what thou ſayeſt. And he went out into the porch; and the cock crew.

69 And a maid ſaw him again, and began to ſay to them that ſtood by, This is one of them.

70 And he denied it again. And a little after, they that ſtood by ſaid again to Peter, Surely thou art one of them: for thou art a Galilean, and thy ſpeech agreeth thereto.

71 But he began to curſe and to ſwear, ſaying, I know not this man of whom ye ſpeak.

72 And the ſecond time the cock crew. And Peter called to mind the word that Jeſus ſaid unto him, Before the cock crow twice, thou ſhalt deny me thrice. And when he thought thereon he wept

CHAP. XV.

1 Jeſus, brought bound and accuſed before Pilate, 15 is delivered to be crucified: 17 he is crowned with thorns, 27 hangeth between two thieves, 43 and is honourably buried.

AND ſtraightway in the morning the chief prieſts held a conſultation with the elders and ſcribes, and the whole council, and bound Jeſus and carried him away, and delivered him to Pilate.

2 And Pilate aſked him, Art thou the king of the Jews? And he, anſwering, ſaid unto him, Thou ſayeſt it.

3 And the chief prieſts accuſed him of many things; but he anſwered nothing.

4 ¶ And Pilate aſked him again, ſaying, Anſwereſt thou nothing? behold how many things they witneſs againſt thee.

5 But Jeſus yet anſwered nothing; ſo that Pilate marvelled.

6 Now at that feaſt he releaſed unto them one priſoner, whomſoever they deſired.

7 And there was one, named Barabbas, which lay bound with them that had made inſurrection with him, who had committed murder in the inſurrection.

8 And the multitude crying aloud, began to deſire him to do as he had ever done unto them.

9 But Pilate anſwered them, ſaying, Will ye that I releaſe unto you the King of the Jews?

10 For he knew that the chief prieſts had delivered him for envy.

11 But the chief prieſts moved the people, that he ſhould rather releaſe Barabbas unto them.

12 And Pilate anſwered and ſaid again unto them, What will ye then that I ſhall do unto him whom ye call the King of the Jews?

13 And they cried out again, Crucify him.

14 Then Pilate ſaid unto them, Why? what evil hath he done? And they cried out the more exceedingly, Crucify him.

15 ¶ And ſo Pilate willing to content the people, releaſed Barabbas unto them, and delivered Jeſus when he had ſcourged him, to be crucified.

16 And the ſoldiers led him away into the hall called Pretorium; and they call together the whole band.

17 ¶ And they clothed him with purple, and platted a crown of thorns, and put it about his head.

18 And began to ſalute him, Hail, King of the Jews!

19 And they ſmote him on the head with a reed, and did ſpit upon him, and bowing their knees worſhipped him.

20 And when they had mocked him, they took off the purple from him, and put his own clothes on him, and led him out to crucify him.

21 And they compel one Simon a Cyrenian, who paſſed by, coming out of the country, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to bear his croſs.

22 And they bring him unto the place Golgotha, which is, being interpreted, The place of a ſcull.

23 And they gave him to drink wine mingled with myrrh, but he received it not.

24 And when they had crucified him, they parted his garments, caſting lots upon them, what every man ſhould take.

25 And it was the third hour; and they crucified him.

26 And the ſuperſcription of his accuſation was written over, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

27 ¶ And with him they crucify two thieves; the one on his right hand and the other on his left.

28 And the ſcripture was fulfilled, which ſaith, And he was numbered with the tranſgreſſors.

29 And they that paſſed by railed on him, wagging their heads, and ſaying, Ah, thou that deſtroyeſt the temple, and buildeſt it in three days,

30 Save thyſelf, and come down from the croſs.

31 Likewiſe alſo the chief prieſts mocking, ſaid among themſelves, with the ſcribes, He ſaved others; himſelf he cannot ſave.

32 Let Chriſt the King of Iſrael deſcend now from the croſs, that we may ſee and believe: and they that were crucified with him reviled him.

33 And when the ſixth hour was come, there was darkneſs over the whole land, until the ninth hour:

34 And at the ninth hour Jeſus cried with a loud voice, ſaying, Eloi, Eloi, lama ſabachthani? which is, being interpreted, My God, my God, why haſt thou forſaken me?

35 And ſome of them that ſtood by, when they heard it, ſaid, Behold, he calleth Elias.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XV.

18 And began to ſalute him, Hail, King of the Jews!) The next part of our Saviour's ſufferings conſiſted of cruel mockings; he had owned himſelf to be the king of the Jews; that is, a ſpiritual King in and over his church; but the Jews expecting that the Meſſiah ſhould have appeared in the pomp of an earthly prince, and finding themſelves diſappointed of their expectation in our Saviour, they look upon him as a deceiver and impoſtor, and accordingly treat him as ſuch, with all the marks of deriſion and ſcorn; for firſt they put a crown upon his head, but a very ignominious and cruel one, a crown of thorns; they place a ſceptre in his hand, but that of a reed; a robe of ſcarlet or purple upon his body, and then bowed their knees before him, as they were wont to do before their princes, crying, Hail, King. Thus were all the marks of ſcorn imaginable put upon our dear Redeemer; yet what they did in jeſt, God permitted to be done in earneſt; for all theſe things were ſigns and marks of ſovereignty; and Almighty God cauſed the regal dignity of his Son, to ſhine forth, even in the midſt of his greateſt abaſement; whence was all this jeering and ſport but to ſhout majeſty? And why did Chriſt undergo all this ignominy, diſgrace, and ſhame, but to ſhew what was due unto us for our ſins? As alſo to give us an example to bear all the ſcorn, reproach, and ſhame imaginable for his ſake, who, for the joy that was ſet before him, deſpiſed the ſhame, as well as endured the croſs.

25 And it was the third hour, &c.) The third hour is to be underſtood, according to the Jewiſh computation, for our nine o'clock, and onwards to twelve; but the ſixth hour, at which it is ſaid (John xix. 14.) Pilate paſſed ſentence againſt Chriſt, is to be taken, according to the Roman way of reckoning, for our ſix o'clock in the morning, that goſpel being written after the deſtruction of Jeruſalem. And ſo there is an exact agreement between theſe two accounts of Chriſt's condemnation and crucifixion.

36 And one ran, and filled a sponge full of vinegar, and put it on a reed, and gave him to drink, saying, Let alone; let us see whether Elias will come to take him down.

37 And Jesus cried with a loud voice, and gave up the ghost.

38 And the vail of the temple was rent in twain from the top to the bottom.

39 And when the centurion, which stood over against him, saw that he so cried out, and gave up the ghost, he said, Truly this man was the Son of God.

40 There were also women looking on afar off; among whom was Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the less, and of Joses, and Salome;

41 (Who also, when he was in Galilee, followed him, and ministered unto him;) and many other women which came up with him unto Jerusalem.

42 And now, when the even was come, (because it was the preparation, that is, the day before the sabbath,)

43 ¶ Joseph of Arimathea, an honourable counsellor, which also waited for the kingdom of God, came, and went in boldly unto Pilate, and craved the body of Jesus.

44 And Pilate marvelled if he were already dead: and, calling unto him the centurion, he asked him whether he had been any while dead.

45 And when he knew it of the centurion, he gave the body to Joseph.

46 And he bought fine linen, and took him down, and wrapped him in the linen, and laid him in a sepulchre which was hewn out of a rock, and rolled a stone unto the door of the sepulchre.

47 And Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of Joses, beheld where he was laid.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Christ's resurrection. 9 Appeareth to Mary Magdalene, 15 sendeth forth the apostles, 19 ascendeth into heaven.

AND when the sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him.

2 And very early in the morning, the first day of the week, they came unto the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

3 And they said among themselves, Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre.

4 And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

5 And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted.

6 And he saith unto them, Be not affrighted. Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified: he is risen; he is not here: behold the place where they laid him.

7 But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: there shall ye see him, as he said unto you.

8 And they went out quickly, and fled from the sepulchre; for they trembled and were amazed: neither said they any thing to any man; for they were afraid.

9 ¶ Now when Jesus was risen early the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, out of whom he had cast seven devils.

10 And she went and told them that had been with him, as they mourned and wept.

11 And they, when they had heard that he was alive, and had been seen of her, believed not.

12 After that he appeared in another form unto two of them, as they walked, and went into the country.

13 And they went and told it unto the residue: neither believed they them.

14 Afterward he appeared unto the eleven as they sat at meat, and upbraided them with their unbelief and hardness of heart, because they believed not them which had seen him after he was risen.

15 And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.

16 He that believeth, and is baptized, shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned.

17 And these signs shall follow them that believe; In my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues;

18 They shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover.

19 ¶ So then, after the Lord had spoken unto them, he was received up into heaven, and sat on the right hand of God.

20 And they went forth, and preached every where, the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following. Amen.

39, 40, 41 Truly this man was the Son of God, &c.) The Heathen soldiers are sooner convinced of the divinity of our Saviour, than the unbelieving Jewish doctors. Obstinacy and unbelief filled their minds with an invincible prejudice against Christ; so that neither the miracles wrought by him in his life or at his death, could convince them that Christ was any thing better than an impostor and deceiver. None are so blind as those who through malicious obstinacy and inveterate prejudice will not see. Christ's friends, and witnesses of his death were the women that followed him, and ministered unto him; not one of his dear disciples came near him, except St. John, who stood by the cross with the virgin Mary. O what a shame was this, for apostles to be absent from a spectacle upon which the salvation of the world did depend! And what an honour was this to the female sex in general, and to these holy women in particular, that they had the courage to follow Christ to his cross, when all his disciples forsook him and fled! God can make timorous and fearful women bold and courageous confessors of his truth, and fortify them against the fears of suffering, contrary to the natural timorousness of their temper; these women wait upon Christ's cross, when his apostles fly, and durst not come nigh it.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVI.

13 And they went and told it unto the residue, &c.) In Luke xxiv. 34. it is said, that, at the return of the two disciples, they heard the eleven saying, The Lord has risen indeed, and has appeared to Simon; yet that may be understood rather of their declaring what Peter had said, than of their own firmly believing it; for when Jesus himself afterwards appeared to them, doubtful thoughts arose in their hearts, and they, at first, believed not, Luke xxiv. 38, 41.

19 He was received up into heaven, &c.) Here we have that grand article of our Christian faith asserted, namely our Saviour's ascension into heaven, together with his exaltation there, expressed by his sitting at God's right hand; he ascended now to heaven in his human nature, for in his divine nature he was there already; as it was necessary that he should thus ascend, in order to his own personal exaltation and glorification. When he was on earth, his humility, patience, and self-denial, were exercised by undergoing God's wrath, the devil's rage and man's cruelty; now he goes to heaven, that they might be rewarded; he that is a patient sufferer upon earth, shall be a triumphant conqueror in heaven; also with respect to his church on earth, it was needful and necessary that our Lord should ascend up into heaven, namely, to send down the Holy Spirit upon his apostles, which he did at the feast of Pentecost. If I go not away, says Christ, the Comforter will not come: but if I depart I will send him to you. And likewise to be a powerful advocate and intercessor with his Father in heaven, on the behalf of his church and children here upon earth, Heb. ix. 24. Finally, Christ ascended into heaven, to give us an assurance, that in due time we should ascend after him, John xiv. 2. Hence the apostle calls our Saviour, our forerunner, Heb. vi. 19. Now if Christ in the ascension was a forerunner, then there are some to follow after. To the same purpose is that expression of the apostle, Eph. ii. 6. He hath made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ; that is, we are already sat down in him, and ere long shall sit down by him; we are already sat down in him as our head, and shall hereafter sit down by him as his members.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO

THE ARGUMENT.

It is generally ſuppoſed that St. Matthew and St. Mark wrote their goſpels before St. Luke wrote his. But the preface the latter has prefixed to his work ſerves to prove that his was the firſt goſpel that appeared. At firſt ſight, indeed, we may be apt to think that Luke ſpeaks of the other goſpels and their authors. But the characters he gives of the writers he had in view, renders it evident that they were hiſtorians of a different kind from the evangeliſts properly ſo called: for they wrote according to the information they had received from the eye-witneſſes and miniſters of the word: whereas the evangeliſts, being eye-witneſſes themſelves, wrote from their own perſonal knowledge, improved by inſpiration.

FORASMUCH as many have taken in hand to ſet forth in order a declaration of thoſe things which are moſt ſurely believed among us,

7 And they had no child, becauſe that Eliſabeth was barren; and they both were now well ſtricken in years.

8 And it came to paſs, that while he executed the prieſt's office before God in the order of his courſe,

9 According to the cuſtom of the prieſt's office, his lot was to burn incenſe when he went into the temple of the Lord.

10 And the whole multitude of the people were praying without, at the time of incenſe.

11 And there appeared unto him an angel of the Lord, ſtanding on the right ſide of the altar of incenſe.

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

3 Moſt excellent Theophilus.) Theophilus ſignifies a lover of God: and that this was not a term, importing merely any of that character, but that it was the real name of a certain perſon to whom the evangeliſt wrote, appears from its being uſed in the ſingular number here and in Acts i. 1. and that with the title of moſt noble, or moſt excellent, juſt in the ſame manner as it is applied to Felix and Feſtus, Acts xxiv. 3. and xxvi. 25.

5 Herod the king of Judea, &c.) This is the perſon commonly known by the name of Herod the great, a cruel ambitious man, who, without any title, obtained the crown of Judea from the Roman ſenate, to whom he was recommended by Mark Anthony. The Jews were very uneaſy under his government, becauſe he was a foreigner. But the Roman generals in thoſe parts, having given him poſſeſſion of the throne, he, by his own prudence and addreſs, kept poſſeſſion of it for the ſpace of forty years. His reign, though celebrated on many accounts, was principally remarkable for the births both of the Meſſiah and his forerunner.

13 Thou ſhalt call his name John.) John ſignifies the grace or gift of God. And as ſignificative names were uſually given to children, the angel's ordering this to be put upon the child might intimate that he was given as a gracious anſwer of prayer, and that his character ſhould correſpond to his name, as he ſhould be highly in favour with God, and endued with an abundance of grace, and as he ſhould open the way to the moſt glorious diſpenſation of grace in the Meſſiah's kingdom: and ſo Zacharias' former prayers for a child, and the prayer which he, as the repreſentative of the people, was probably putting up at this very time in the temple for the appearing of the Meſſiah, would be remarkably anſwered in this birth of his forerunner.

power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the diſobedient to the wiſdom of the juſt, to make ready a people prepared for the Lord.

18 And Zacharias ſaid unto the angel, Whereby ſhall I know this? for I am an old man, and my wife well ſtricken in years.

19 And the angel anſwering, ſaid unto him, I am Gabriel, that ſtand in the preſence of God; and am ſent to ſpeak unto thee, and to ſhew thee theſe glad tidings.

20 And behold, thou ſhalt be dumb, and not able to ſpeak, until the day that theſe things ſhall be performed, becauſe thou believeſt not my words, which ſhall be fulfilled in their ſeaſon.

21 And the people waited for Zacharias, and marvelled that he tarried ſo long in the temple.

22 And when he came out he could not ſpeak unto them; and they perceived that he had ſeen a viſion in the temple; for he beckoned unto them, and remained ſpeechleſs.

23 And it came to paſs, that as ſoon as the days of his miniſtration were accompliſhed, he departed to his own houſe.

24 ¶ And after thoſe days his wife Eliſabeth conceived, and hid herſelf five months, ſaying, 25 Thus hath the Lord dealt with me, in the days wherein he looked on me, to take away my reproach among men.

26 ¶ And in the ſixth month the angel Gabriel was ſent from God unto a city of Galilee named Nazareth, 27 To a virgin eſpouſed to a man, whoſe name was Joſeph, of the houſe of David; and the virgin's name was Mary.

28 And the angel came in unto her, and ſaid, Hail, thou that art highly favoured, the Lord is with thee: bleſſed art thou among women.

29 And when ſhe ſaw him ſhe was troubled at his ſaying, and caſt in her mind what manner of ſalutation this ſhould be.

30 And the angel ſaid unto her, Fear not Mary: for thou haſt found favour with God.

31 And, behold, thou ſhalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a ſon, and ſhalt call his name JESUS.

32 He ſhall be great, and ſhall be called The Son of the Higheſt: and the Lord God ſhall give unto him the throne of his father David:

33 And he ſhall reign over the houſe of Jacob for ever; and of his kingdom there ſhall be no end.

34 Then ſaid Mary unto the angel, How ſhall this be, ſeeing I know not a man?

35 And the angel anſwered and ſaid unto her, The Holy Ghoſt ſhall come upon thee, and the power of the Higheſt ſhall overſhadow thee; therefore alſo that holy thing, which ſhall be born of thee, ſhall be called The Son of God.

36 And, behold, thy couſin Eliſabeth, ſhe hath alſo conceived a ſon in her old age: and this is the ſixth month with her who was called barren.

37 For with God nothing ſhall be impoſſible.

38 And Mary ſaid, Behold the handmaid of the Lord; be it unto me according to thy word. And the angel departed from her.

39 And Mary aroſe in thoſe days, and went into the hill-country with haſte, into a city of Juda, 40 And entered into the houſe of Zacharias, and ſaluted Eliſabeth.

41 And it came to paſs that, when Eliſabeth heard the ſalutation of Mary, the babe leaped in her womb; and Eliſabeth was filled with the Holy Ghoſt:

42 And ſhe ſpake out with a loud voice, and ſaid, Bleſſed art thou among women, and bleſſed is the fruit of thy womb.

43 And whence is this to me, that the mother of my Lord ſhould come to me?

44 For, lo, as ſoon as the voice of thy ſalutation ſounded in mine ears, the babe leaped in my womb for joy.

45 And bleſſed is ſhe that believed: for there ſhall be a performance of thoſe things which were told her from the Lord.

46 And Mary ſaid, My ſoul doth magnify the Lord,

47 And my ſpirit hath rejoiced in God my Saviour:

48 For he hath regarded the low eſtate of his handmaiden: for, behold, from henceforth all generations ſhall call me bleſſed.

49 For he that is mighty hath done to me great things; and holy is his name.

50 And his mercy is on them that fear him, from generation to generation.

51 He hath ſhewed ſtrength with his arm: he hath ſcattered the proud in the imagination of their hearts.

52 He hath put down the mighty from their ſeats, and exalted them of low degree.

53 He hath filled the hungry with good things; and the rich he hath ſent empty away.

18—22 And Zacharias ſaid unto the angel, Whereby ſhall I know this? &c.) Zacharias, being ſlow to believe ſo ſtrange a meſſage, aſks the angel by what ſign he ſhould know that this thing, ſo far above the ordinary courſe of nature, ſhould come to paſs? The angel anſwers, That he was diſpatched by God as a meſſenger extraordinary, to declare this good news to him: and ſeeing he was ſo hard to believe it, and required a ſign, he ſhould have it, but ſuch a one as ſhould be a puniſhment of his unbelief, as well as a ſign to confirm his faith, namely, he ſhould from thenceforward, to the birth of the child, be dumb and deaf; as the original word ſignifies, becauſe he had not hearkened to the angel's ſpeech, he was ſtruck deaf; and becauſe he had gainſaid it, he was made dumb. The word of God, in the mouth of his meſſengers, is God's own word, and as ſuch ought to be received and believed. Not believing their word is a ſin which God will ſeverely puniſh; it is all one not to believe God, and not to believe the meſſengers of God ſpeaking from him. Some expoſitors will have this dumbneſs of Zacharias to be prefigurative. The prieſt, at the diſmiſſion of the people, when the ſervice of the temple was finiſhed, was to pronounce the bleſſing, recorded Numb. vi. 24, 25. which when Zacharias was about to do, he is ſtruck dumb, and cannot perform it; ſignifying thereby, that the ſilencing the Levitical prieſthood was now at hand; that they muſt expect another kind of worſhip, and that he who was able to bleſs indeed, namely, the Meſſias, was near at hand.

27 To a virgin eſpouſed to a man whoſe name was Joſeph, &c.) It was cuſtomary among the Jews, for perſons that married, to enter into mutual contract in the preſence of witneſſes, ſome time before they came together; and as Chriſt was to be born of a pure virgin, ſo the wiſdom of God ordered it to be of one eſpouſed, that, for the honour of marriage, and preventing reproach he might have a legal, though not a natural father, according to the fleſh.

32 He ſhall be great, &c.) Great, in reſpect of his perſon; great in reſpect of his offices; great, in reſpect of his kingdom: for God would ſettle upon him a ſpiritual kingdom, of which David's earthly one was a type, which ſhall never be aboliſhed; though the adminiſtration of it by the word and ſacraments ſhall ceaſe at the day of judgment, when he ſhall deliver up the kingdom, in that reſpect, to his Father. All other kingdoms have had, or ſhall have, their periods, but the goſpel-church, which is Chriſt's kingdom, ſhall continue 'till his kingdom of glory be revealed.

36 Couſin Eliſabeth.) Though Eliſabeth was of the houſe of Aaron, and Mary of the houſe of David, by their fathers' ſide, they might be related by their mothers; for the law (Numb. xxxvi. 8, 9.) only forbad heireſſes marrying into another tribe; and as the families of David and Levi often intermarried, Providence ordered that the mother of our Lord ſhould be a-kin to Aaron's family, that royalty and prieſthood might unite in him.

38 Be it unto me according to thy word.) It ſeems by no means improbable but that this time of the virgin's humble faith, conſent, approbation, and expectation, might be the very time of the Holy Ghoſt's coming upon her, and of her conceiving by his power.

39 Into the hill-country—into a city of Juda.) It is very likely that this was Hebron, becauſe that city was ſituated in the hill-country of Judea, and was given to the houſe of Aaron for an inheritance. Joſh. xxi. 10, 11.

54 He hath holpen his ſervant Iſrael, in remembrance of his mercy;

55 As he ſpake to our fathers, to Abraham, and to his ſeed for ever.

56 And Mary abode with her about three months, and returned to her own houſe.

57 Now Eliſabeth's full time came that ſhe ſhould be delivered; and ſhe brought forth a ſon.

58 And her neighbours and her couſins heard how the Lord had ſhewed great mercy upon her; and they rejoiced with her.

59 And it came to paſs, that on the eighth day they came to circumciſe the child: and they called him Zacharias, after the name of his father.

60 And his mother anſwered and ſaid, Not ſo; but he ſhall be called John.

61 And they ſaid unto her, There is none of thy kindred that is called by this name.

62 And they made ſigns to his father, how he would have him called.

63 And he aſked for a writing-table, and wrote, ſaying, His name is John. And they marvelled all.

64 And his mouth was opened immediately, and his tongue looſed, and he ſpake, and praiſed God.

65 And fear came on all that dwelt round about them: and all theſe ſayings were noiſed abroad thro'-out all the hill-country of Judea.

66 And all they that had heard them laid them up in their hearts, ſaying, What manner of child ſhall this be! And the hand of the Lord was with him.

67 And his father Zacharias was filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and propheſied, ſaying,

68 Bleſſed be the Lord God of Iſrael; for he hath viſited and redeemed his people,

69 And hath raiſed up an horn of ſalvation for us in the houſe of his ſervant David;

70 As he ſpake by the mouth of his holy prophets, which have been ſince the world began;

71 That we ſhould be ſaved from our enemies, and from the hand of all that hate us;

72 To perform the mercy promiſed to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant,

73 The oath which he ſware to our father Abraham,

74 That he would grant unto us, that we, being delivered out of the hand of our enemies, might ſerve him without fear,

75 In holineſs and righteouſneſs before him all the days of our life.

76 And thou, child, ſhalt be called The Prophet of the Higheſt: for thou ſhalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways;

77 To give knowledge of ſalvation unto his people, by the remiſſion of their ſins,

78 Through the tender mercy of our God; whereby the day-ſpring from on high hath viſited us,

79 To give light to them that ſit in darkneſs, and in the ſhadow of death, to guide our feet into the way of peace.

80 And the child grew, and waxed ſtrong in ſpirit, and was in the deſerts till the day of his ſhewing unto Iſrael.

CHAP. II.

1 Auguſtus taxeth all the Roman empire. 6 Chriſt's nativity: 21 his circumciſion. 25 Simeon and Anna propheſy of Chriſt.

AND it came to paſs in thoſe days, that there went out a decree from Ceſar Auguſtus, that all the world ſhould be taxed.

2 (And this taxing was firſt made when Cyrenius was governor of Syria.)

3 And all went to be taxed, every one into his own city.

4 And Joſeph alſo went up from Galilee, out of the city of Nazareth, into Judea, unto the city of David, which is called Beth-lehem, (becauſe he was of the houſe and lineage of David,)

5 To be taxed with Mary his eſpouſed wife, being great with child.

6 ¶ And ſo it was, that while they were there, the days were accompliſhed that ſhe ſhould be delivered.

7 And ſhe brought forth her firſt-born ſon, and wrapped him in ſwaddling-clothes, and laid him in a manger; becauſe there was no room for them in the inn.

8 And there were in the ſame country ſhepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night.

9 And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord ſhone round about them; and they were ſore afraid.

10 And the angel ſaid unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which ſhall be to all people.

11 For unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Saviour, which is Chriſt the Lord.

12 And this ſhall be a ſign unto you; Ye ſhall find the babe wrapped in ſwaddling-clothes lying in a manger.

13 And ſuddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly hoſt praiſing God, and ſaying, 14 Glory to God in the higheſt, and on earth peace, good will towards men.

15 And it came to paſs, as the angels were gone away from them into heaven, the ſhepherds ſaid one to another, Let us now go even unto Beth-lehem, and ſee this thing which is come to paſs, which the Lord hath made known unto us.

16 And they came with haſte, and found Mary and Joſeph, and the babe lying in a manger.

17 And when they had ſeen it, they made known abroad the ſaying which was told them concerning this child.

76 Thou child ſhalt be called The Prophet of the Higheſt, &c.) The ſpirit of prophecy had departed from Iſrael about three hundred years; but now began to return: Zacharias (as well as Simeon, Anna, and others) was actuated by it, being filled with the Holy Ghoſt, ver. 67. and, under his inſpiration, he foretold concerning his ſon John, that he ſhould be a prophet, and ſhould be generally eſteemed to be ſo, as he really was by the common people. And though a prophet ſometimes ſignifies in ſcripture only one who delivers the mind and will of God to others; yet John was, ſtrictly ſpeaking, a prophet, who foretold what Chriſt would do, as well as pointed him out to the people as already come among them, Mat. iii. 11, 12. and John i. 23, 27.

Commentary on Chap. II.

1 All the world ſhould be taxed.) This affair of the taxing is mentioned by St. Luke, not ſo much to mark the time of Chriſt's birth as to prove two things, namely, that he was born in Bethlehem, and that his parents were at that time univerſally known to be branches of the royal family of David. The importance of aſcertaining theſe two points aroſe from hence, that they were fixed by the prophets as expreſs characters of the Meſſiah, John vii. 42. By the particular deſtination of Providence therefore, while Joſeph and Mary were attending the enrollment at Bethlehem, Mary brought forth her ſon, and laid him in a manger, not being able to procure a better accommodation at a time when the town was ſo exceedingly crouded.

9 And lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, &c.) Theſe ſhepherds ſeem to have been religious men that feared the Lord; for it is to ſuch that God reveals his ſecrets, Pſal. xxv. 14.

14 Glory to God, &c.) Theſe words are a rejoicing acclamation, which ſtrongly repreſents the piety and benevolence of theſe heavenly ſpirits, and their affectionate good wiſhes for the proſperity of the Meſſiah's kingdom.

18 And all they that heard it wondered at thoſe things which were told them by the ſhepherds.

19 But Mary kept all theſe things, and pondered them in her heart.

20 And the ſhepherds returned, glorifying and praiſing God for all the things that they had heard and ſeen, as it was told unto them.

21 ¶ And when eight days were accompliſhed for the circumciſing of the child, his name was called JESUS, which was ſo named of the angel before he was conceived in the womb.

22 And when the days of her purification, according to the law of Moſes, were accompliſhed, they brought him to Jeruſalem, to preſent him to the Lord;

23 (As it is written in the law of the Lord, Every male that openeth the womb ſhall be called holy to the Lord;)

24 And to offer a ſacrifice, according to that which is ſaid in the law of the Lord, A pair of turtle- doves, or two young pigeons.

25 ¶ And behold, there was a man in Jeruſalem, whoſe name was Simeon; and the ſame man was juſt and devout, waiting for the conſolation of Iſrael: and the Holy Ghoſt was upon him.

26 And it was revealed unto him by the Holy Ghoſt, that he ſhould not ſee death before he had ſeen the Lord's Chriſt.

27 And he came by the Spirit into the temple: and when the parents brought in the child Jeſus, to do for him after the cuſtom of the law,

28 Then took he him up in his arms, and bleſſed God, and ſaid,

29 Lord, now letteſt thou thy ſervant depart in peace, according to thy word:

30 For mine eyes have ſeen thy ſalvation,

31 Which thou haſt prepared before the face of all people;

32 A light to lighten the Gentiles, and the glory of thy people Iſrael.

33 And Joſeph and his mother marvelled at thoſe things which were ſpoken of him.

34 And Simeon bleſſed them, and ſaid unto Mary his mother, Behold, this child is ſet for the fall and riſing again of many in Iſrael; and for a ſign which ſhall be ſpoken againſt;

35 (Yea, a ſword ſhall pierce through thy own ſoul alſo;) that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.

36 And there was one Anna a propheteſs, the daughter of Phanuel, of the tribe of Aſer; ſhe was of a great age, and had lived with an huſband ſeven years from her virginity:

37 And ſhe was a widow of about fourſcore and four years, which departed not from the temple, but ſerved God with faſtings and prayers night and day.

38 And ſhe, coming in that inſtant, gave thanks likewiſe unto the Lord, and ſpake of him to all them that looked for redemption in Jeruſalem.

39 And when they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned into Galilee, to their own city Nazareth.

40 And the child grew, and waxed ſtrong in ſpirit, filled with wiſdom; and the grace of God was upon him.

41 Now his parents went to Jeruſalem every year at the feaſt of the paſſover.

42 And when he was twelve years old they went up to Jeruſalem, after the cuſtom of the feaſt.

43 And when they had fulfilled the days, as they returned, the child Jeſus tarried behind in Jeruſalem; and Joſeph and his mother knew not of it.

44 But they, ſuppoſing him to have been in the company, went a day's journey; and they ſought him among their kinſfolk and acquaintance.

45 And when they found him not they turned back again to Jeruſalem, ſeeking him.

46 And it came to paſs, that after three days they found him in the temple, ſitting in the midſt of the doctors, both hearing them, and aſking them queſtions.

47 And all that heard him were aſtoniſhed at his underſtanding and anſwers.

48 And when they ſaw him they were amazed: and his mother ſaid unto him, Son, why haſt thou thus dealt with us? behold, thy father and I have ſought thee ſorrowing.

49 And he ſaid unto them, How is it that ye ſought me? wiſt ye not that I muſt be about my Father's buſineſs?

50 And they underſtood not the ſaying which he ſpake unto them.

51 And he went down with them, and came to Nazareth, and was ſubject unto them: but his mother kept all theſe ſayings in her heart.

52 And Jeſus increaſed in wiſdom and ſtature, and in favour with God and man.

CHAP. III.

1 John's preaching and baptiſm: 16 his teſtimony of Chriſt. 20 Herod impriſoneth John. 21 Chriſt is baptized: 23 his genealogy.

NOW in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Ceſar, Pontius Pilate being governor of Judea, and Herod being tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip tetrarch of Iturea, and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lyſanias the tetrarch of Abilene,

2 Annas and Caiaphas being the high prieſts, the word of God came unto John, the ſon of Zacharias, in the wilderneſs.

3 And he came into all the country about Jordan, preaching the baptiſm of repentance for the remiſſion of ſins.

4 As it is written in the book of the words of Eſaias the prophet, ſaying, The voice of one crying in the wilderneſs, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make his paths ſtraight.

5 Every valley ſhall be filled, and every mountain and hill ſhall be brought low; and the crooked ſhall be made ſtraight, and the rough ways ſhall be made ſmooth;

23 Every male that openeth the womb, &c.) Chriſt's birth being expreſſed by his opening the womb, ſhews that he was born of the virgin in the uſual way of women's bringing forth children, whatſoever ſome of the ancients vainly imagined to the contrary.

40 And the child grew, and waxed ſtrong in ſpirit, &c.) His waxing ſtrong in ſpirit, ſeems to relate to the natural improvements of his human ſoul: and the following expreſſions more immediately reſpect his extraordinary ſpiritual endowments, which ſeem to proceed rather from the power of the in-dwelling Godhead, which was perſonally united with the Man Jeſus, than from the gifts of the Holy Ghoſt; becauſe it is never ſaid of him, as of John the Baptiſt, (chap. i. 15.) that he ſhould be filled with the Holy Ghoſt, even from his mother's womb; nor is any mention made of Chriſt's being filled with the Holy Ghoſt, 'till his baptiſm, when he entered upon the public diſcharge of the office for which his Father ſent him.

48 Behold, thy father and I have ſought thee ſorrowing.) Without doubt it was impoſſible to expreſs the ſorrow of the holy Virgin's ſoul, when all the ſearch of three days could bring them no tidings of their holy child. How did ſhe blame her eyes for once looking off this object of her love, and ſpend both days and nights in a paſſionate bemoaning of her loſs! O bleſſed Saviour! who can miſs thee, and not mourn for thee? Never any ſoul conceived thee by faith, but was apprehenſive of thy worth, and ſenſible of thy want: What comforts are we capable of, while we want thee? And what reliſh can we taſte in an earthly delight without thee!

6 And all fleſh ſhall ſee the ſalvation of God.

7 Then ſaid he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, O generation of vipers! who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?

8 Bring forth, therefore, fruits worthy of repentance; and begin not to ſay within yourſelves, We have Abraham to our father: for I ſay unto you, that God is able of theſe ſtones to raiſe up children unto Abraham.

9 And now alſo the axe is laid unto the root of the trees: every tree, therefore, which bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and caſt into the fire.

10 And the people aſked him, ſaying, What ſhall we do then?

11 He anſwereth, and ſaith unto them, He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none; and he that hath meat, let him do likewiſe.

12 Then came alſo publicans to be baptized, and ſaid unto him, Maſter what ſhall we do?

13 And he ſaid unto them, Exact no more than that which is appointed you.

14 And the ſoldiers likewiſe demanded of him, ſaying, And what ſhall we do? And he ſaid unto them, Do violence to no man, neither accuſe any falſely; and be content with your wages.

15 And as the people were in expectation, and all men muſed in their hearts of John, whether he were the Chriſt or not;

16 ¶ John anſwered, ſaying unto them all, I indeed baptize you with water; but one mightier than I cometh, the latchet of whoſe ſhoes I am not worthy to unlooſe: he ſhall baptize you with the Holy Ghoſt, and with fire:

17 Whoſe fan is in his hand, and he will thoroughly purge his floor, and will gather the wheat into his garner; but the chaff he will burn with fire unquenchable.

18 And many other things, in his exhortation, preached he unto the people.

19 But Herod the tetrarch, being reproved by him for Herodias his brother Philip's wife, and for all the evils which Herod had done, 20 ¶ Added yet this above all, that he ſhut up John in priſon.

21 Now, when all the people were baptized, it came to paſs, that Jeſus alſo being baptized, and praying, the heaven was opened,

22 And the Holy Ghoſt deſcended in a bodily ſhape, like a dove upon him, and a voice came from heaven, which ſaid, Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleaſed.

23 And Jeſus himſelf began to be about thirty years of age, being (as was ſuppoſed) the ſon of Joſeph, which was the ſon of Heli,

24 Which was the ſon of Matthat, which was the ſon of Levi, which was the ſon of Melchi, which was the ſon of Janna, which was the ſon of Joſeph,

25 Which was the ſon of Mattathias, which was the ſon of Amos, which was the ſon of Naum, which was the ſon of Eſli, which was the ſon of Nagge,

26 Which was the ſon of Maath, which was the ſon of Mattathias, which was the ſon of Semei, which was the ſon of Joſeph, which was the ſon of Juda,

27 Which was the ſon of Joanna, which was the ſon of Rheſa, which was the ſon of Zorobabel, which was the ſon of Salathiel, which was the ſon of Neri,

28 Which was the ſon of Melchi, which was the ſon of Addi, which was the ſon of Coſam, which was the ſon of Elmodam, which was the ſon of Er,

29 Which was the ſon of Joſe, which was the ſon of Eliezer, which was the ſon of Jorim, which was the ſon of Matthat, which was the ſon of Levi,

30 Which was the ſon of Simeon, which was the ſon of Juda, which was the ſon of Joſeph, which was the ſon of Jonan, which was the ſon of Eliakim,

31 Which was the ſon of Melea, which was the ſon of Menan, which was the ſon of Mattatha, which was the ſon of Nathan, which was the ſon of David,

32 Which was the ſon of Jeſſe, which was the ſon of Obed, which was the ſon of Booz, which was the ſon of Salmon, which was the ſon of Naaſſon,

33 Which was the ſon of Aminadab, which was the ſon of Aram, which was the ſon of Eſrom, which was the ſon of Phares, which was the ſon of Juda,

34 Which was the ſon of Jacob, which was the ſon of Iſaac, which was the ſon of Abraham, which was the ſon of Thara, which was the ſon of Nachor,

35 Which was the ſon of Saruch, which was the ſon of Ragau, which was the ſon of Phalec, which was the ſon of Heber, which was the ſon of Sala,

36 Which was the ſon of Cainan, which was the ſon of Arphaxad, which was the ſon of Sem, which was the ſon of Noe, which was the ſon of Lamech,

37 Which was the ſon of Mathuſala, which was the ſon of Enoch, which was the ſon of Jared, which was the ſon of Maleleel, which was the ſon of Cainan, 38 Which was the ſon of Enos, which was the ſon of Seth, which was the ſon of Adam, which was the ſon of God.

11 He that hath two coats, let him impart to him that hath none, &c.) The Baptiſt having preſt his hearers to bring fruits meet for repentance, here they enquire of him what fruits they ſhould bring forth? he tells them, firſt, the fruits of charity and mercy; He that hath two coats, let him give to him that hath none. This is not to be underſtood ſtrictly, as if the command required us to give the clothes off our back to every one that wanted them; but it directs thoſe that have the things of this life in abundance, to diſtribute and communicate to thoſe that are in want.

16 He ſhall baptize you with the Holy Ghoſt, and with fire.) It is not the common Chriſtian baptiſm, but Chriſt's own baptizing with the Holy Ghoſt and with fire, that John here oppoſes to his own baptiſm: for John's, and the Chriſtian baptiſm, abating the different forms of expreſſion uſed in them ſeverally, were for ſubſtance the ſame, both in the element, and in the ſignification of the ordinance; only one was baptizing them into the faith of him who was to come, and the other into the faith of him who is come. And thoſe apoſtles whom Chriſt called during John's miniſtry, had no other baptiſm with water than that of John; ſince Chriſt himſelf adminiſtred water-baptiſm to none, John iv. 2. and there is no appearance of their baptizing one another.

22 And the Holy Ghoſt deſcended in a bodily ſhape, &c.) The ſolemn inveſting of Chriſt into his office, as Mediator, is attended with a threefold miracle, namely, the opening of the heavens, the deſcending of the Holy Ghoſt, and God the Father's voice concerning his Son. The heavens were opened, to ſhew that heaven, which was cloſed and ſhut againſt us for our ſins, is now opened to us, by Chriſt's undertaking for us. The Holy Ghoſt deſcends like a dove upon our Saviour: here we have a proof and evidence of the bleſſed Trinity; the Father ſpeaks from heaven, the Son comes out of the water, and the Holy Ghoſt deſcends after the manner of a dove, hovering and overſhadowing him. But why did the Holy Ghoſt now deſcend upon Chriſt? Firſt, For the deſignation of his perſon, to ſhew that he was the perſon ſet apart for the work and office of Mediator. Secondly, For the unction and ſanctification of his perſon, for the performance of that office: now was he anointed to be King, Prieſt, and Prophet of his church. Laſtly, We have here the voice of God the Father, pronouncing the nearneſs of Chriſt's relation, This is my Son: the endearedneſs of his perſon, This is my beloved Son: and the fruit and benefit of this near relation unto us, In thee I am well pleaſed. Hence we may learn, that there is no poſſibility for any perſons to pleaſe God out of Chriſt; neither our perſons nor our performances can find acceptance with God, but only in and through him, and for his ſake: and that the Lord Jeſus Chriſt is the ground and cauſe of all that love and good will which God the Father ſheweth to the ſons of men. In Chriſt God is well pleaſed with us as a reconciled Father, out of him a conſuming fire.

CHAP. IV.

1 Chriſt's temptation and victory. 14 He beginneth to preach. 16 They at Nazareth admire him. 33 He cureth divers ſick.

AND Jeſus being full of the Holy Ghoſt, returned from Jordan, and was led by the ſpirit into the wilderneſs,

2 Being forty days tempted of the devil. And in thoſe days he did eat nothing: and when they were ended, he afterward hungered.

3 And the devil ſaid unto him, If thou be the Son of God, command this ſtone that it be made bread.

4 And Jeſus anſwered him, ſaying, It is written, That man ſhall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.

5 And the devil, taking him up into an high mountain, ſhewed unto him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time.

6 And the devil ſaid unto him, All this power will I give thee, and the glory of them: for that is delivered unto me; and to whomſoever I will I give it.

7 If thou, therefore, wilt worſhip me, all ſhall be thine.

8 And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Get thee behind me, Satan: for it is written, Thou ſhalt worſhip the Lord thy God, and him only ſhalt thou ſerve.

9 And he brought him to Jeruſalem, and ſet him on a pinnacle of the temple, and ſaid unto him, If thou be the Son of God, caſt thyſelf down from hence:

10 For it is written, He ſhall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee:

11 And in their hands they ſhall bear thee up, leſt at any time thou daſh thy foot againſt a ſtone.

12 And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto him, It is ſaid, Thou ſhalt not tempt the Lord thy God.

13 And when the devil had ended all the temptation, he departed from him for a ſeaſon.

14 ¶ And Jeſus returned in the power of the Spirit into Galilee: and there went out a fame of him through all the region round about.

15 And he taught in their ſynagogues, being glorified of all.

16 ¶ And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up: and, as his cuſtom was, he went into the ſynagogue on the ſabbath-day, and ſtood up for to read.

17 And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Eſaias: and, when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written,

18 The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, becauſe he hath anointed me to preach the goſpel to the poor: he hath ſent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of ſight to the blind, to ſet at liberty them that are bruiſed:

19 To preach the acceptable year of the Lord.

20 And he cloſed the book, and he gave it again to the miniſter, and ſat down. And the eyes of all them that were in the ſynagogue were faſtened on him.

21 And he began to ſay unto them, This day is this ſcripture fulfilled in your ears.

22 And all bare him witneſs, and wondered at the gracious words which proceeded out of his mouth. And they ſaid, Is not this Joſeph's ſon?

23 And he ſaid unto them, Ye will ſurely ſay unto me this proverb, Phyſician, heal thyſelf: whatſoever we have heard done in Capernaum, do alſo here in thy country.

24 And he ſaid, Verily I ſay unto you, No prophet is accepted in his own country.

25 But I tell you of a truth, Many widows were in Iſrael in the days of Elias, when the heaven was ſhut up three years and ſix months, when great famine was throughout all the land;

26 But unto none of them was Elias ſent, ſave unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, unto a woman that was a widow.

27 And many lepers were in Iſrael in the time of Eliſeus the prophet: and none of them was cleanſed, ſaving Naaman the Syrian.

28 And all they in the ſynagogue, when they heard theſe things, were filled with wrath,

29 And roſe up, and thruſt him out of the city, and led him unto the brow of the hill, whereon their city was built, that they might caſt him down headlong.

30 But he, paſſing through the midſt of them, went his way,

31 And came down to Capernaum, a city of Galilee, and taught them on the ſabbath-days.

32 And they were aſtoniſhed at his doctrine: for his word was with power.

33 ¶ And in the ſynagogue there was a man which had a ſpirit of an unclean devil, and cried out with a loud voice,

34 Saying, Let us alone; what have we to do with thee, thou Jeſus of Nazareth? art thou come to deſtroy us? I know thee who thou art, the holy One of God.

35 And Jeſus rebuked him, ſaying, Hold thy peace, and come out of him. And when the devil had thrown him in the midſt, he came out of him, and hurt him not.

36 And they were all amazed, and ſpake among themſelves, ſaying, What a word is this! for with authority and power he commandeth the unclean ſpirits, and they come out.

37 And the fame of him went out into every place of the country round about.

38 And he aroſe out of the ſynagogue, and entered into Simon's houſe: and Simon's wife's mother was taken with a great fever; and they beſought him for her.

39 And he ſtood over her, and rebuked the fever; and it left her. And immediately ſhe aroſe, and miniſtered unto them.

40 Now when the ſun was ſetting, all they that had

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

16 He went into the ſynagogue on the ſabbath-day, and ſtood up for to read.) It does not appear that Chriſt ever read the ſcripture in any other ſynagogue but this at Nazareth; the reaſon of which ſeems to be, becauſe he was not a member of thoſe congregations, but only of this: and the Jewiſh writers tell us, that none but a member of the ſynagogue might read there. But his great reputation as a prophet, and the various miracles he wrought to confirm it, procured him admiſſion to preach in any ſynagogue wherever he went.

26 But unto none of them was Elias ſent, ſave unto Sarepta, a city of Sidon, &c.) Sidon was a Gentile city, out of the borders of the land of Iſrael. God ſent Elijah thither, who, in the Greek, is called Elias, and ſo made him a prophet of the Gentiles, the firſt that ever went among them: and when our Lord himſelf went among the Gentiles, it was into the coaſts of Tyre and Sidon, (Mat. xv. 21.) to ſhew mercy unto a poor woman, as Elijah had done before to a poor widow, herein giving a ſpecimen of the mercy deſigned for the Gentiles.

30 But he, paſſing through the midſt of them, went his way.) How our bleſſed Saviour eſcaped from them is uncertain, nor does it concern us to be curious in enquiring. We well know, that as he was God as well as man, it was eaſy for him to eſcape from any mortal enemies, either by rendering himſelf inviſible, or changing entirely their tempers. But which ever way he choſe, it was doubtleſs miraculous, and therefore deprived the Nazarenes of the liberty of complaining that he had wrought no miracle among them.

34 I know thee who thou art, the holy One of God.) This confeſſion of Chriſt was extorted from the devil by the terror he was in, or elſe he made it with a deſign of paying ſuch a compliment to Chriſt as might render his character ſuſpected among the Jews; and it is probable that the Phariſees took occaſion, from the devil's owning him, to reproach him as if he caſt out devils by Beelzebub the prince of devils, Matt. xii. 24.

any ſick with divers diſeaſes, brought them unto him; and he laid his hands on every one of them, and healed them.

41 And devils alſo came out of many, crying out, and ſaying, Thou art Chriſt the Son of God. And he, rebuking them, ſuffered them not to ſpeak: for they knew that he was Chriſt.

42 And when it was day he departed, and went into a deſert place; and the people ſought him, and came unto him, and ſtayed him, that he ſhould not depart from them.

43 And he ſaid unto them, I muſt preach the kingdom of God to other cities alſo; for therefore am I ſent.

44 And he preached in the ſynagogues of Galilee.

CHAP. V.

1 Chriſt teacheth out of Peter's ſhip. 4 A miraculous draught of fiſhes. 12 The leper cleanſed. 18 The palſy healed. 27 Matthew called.

AND it came to paſs, that, as the people preſſed upon him to hear the word of God, he ſtood by the lake of Genneſaret,

2 And ſaw two ſhips ſtanding by the lake: but the fiſhermen were gone out of them, and were waſhing their nets.

3 And he entered into one of the ſhips, which was Simon's, and prayed him that he would thruſt out a little from the land. And he ſat down and taught the people out of the ſhip.

4 ¶ Now, when he had left ſpeaking, he ſaid unto Simon, Launch out into the deep, and let down your nets for a draught.

5 And Simon anſwering, ſaid unto him, Maſter, we have toiled all the night, and have taken nothing; nevertheleſs at thy word I will let down the net.

6 And when they had this done, they incloſed a great multitude of fiſhes; and their net brake.

7 And they beckoned unto their partners, which were in the other ſhip, that they ſhould come and help them. And they came, and filled both the ſhips, ſo that they began to ſink.

8 When Simon Peter ſaw it, he fell down at Jeſus' knees, ſaying, Depart from me, for I am a ſinful man, O Lord.

9 For he was aſtoniſhed, and all that were with him, at the draught of the fiſhes which they had taken:

10 And ſo was alſo James and John, the ſons of Zebedee, which were partners with Simon. And Jeſus ſaid unto Simon, Fear not; from henceforth thou ſhalt catch men.

11 And when they had brought their ſhips to land, they forſook all and followed him.

12 ¶ And it came to paſs, when he was in a certain city, behold a man full of leproſy; who, ſeeing Jeſus, fell on his face, and beſought him, ſaying, Lord, if thou wilt, thou canſt make me clean.

13 And he put forth his hand, and touched him, ſaying, I will; be thou clean. And immediately the leproſy departed from him.

14 And he charged him to tell no man: but go and ſhew thyſelf to the prieſt, and offer for thy cleanſing according as Moſes commanded, for a teſtimony unto them.

15 But ſo much the more went there a fame abroad of him; and great multitudes came together to hear, and to be healed by him of their infirmities.

16 And he withdrew himſelf into the wilderneſs, and prayed.

17 And it came to paſs on a certain day, as he was teaching, that there were Phariſees and doctors of the law ſitting by, which were come out of every town of Galilee, and Judea, and Jeruſalem; and the power of the Lord was preſent to heal them.

18 And, behold, men brought in a bed, a man which was taken with a palſy: and they ſought means to bring him in, and to lay him before him.

19 And when they could not find by what way they might bring him in becauſe of the multitude, they went upon the houſe-top, and let him down through the tiling, with his couch, into the midſt before Jeſus.

20 And when he ſaw their faith, he ſaid unto him, Man, thy ſins are forgiven thee.

21 And the ſcribes and the Phariſees began to reaſon, ſaying, Who is this which ſpeaketh blaſphemies? who can forgive ſins but God alone?

22 But when Jeſus perceived their thoughts, he, anſwering, ſaid unto them, What reaſon ye in your hearts?

23 Whether is eaſier to ſay, Thy ſins be forgiven thee? or to ſay, Riſe up, and walk?

24 But that ye may know that the Son of man hath power upon earth to forgive ſins, (he ſaid unto the ſick of the palſy) I ſay unto thee, Ariſe, and take up thy couch, and go unto thine houſe.

25 And immediately he roſe up before them, and took up that whereon he lay, and departed to his own houſe, glorifying God.

26 And they were all amazed, and they glorified God, and were filled with fear, ſaying, We have ſeen ſtrange things to-day.

27 ¶ And after theſe things he went forth, and ſaw a publican, named Levi, ſitting at the receipt of cuſtom: and he ſaid unto him, Follow me.

28 And he left all, roſe up, and followed him.

29 And Levi made him a great feaſt in his own houſe: and there was a great company of publicans, and of others, that ſat down with them.

30 But their ſcribes and Phariſees murmured againſt his diſciples, ſaying, Why do ye eat and drink with publicans and ſinners?

31 And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, They that are whole need not a phyſician; but they that are ſick.

32 I came not to call the righteous, but ſinners, to repentance.

33 And they ſaid unto him, Why do the diſciples

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

1 Lake of Genneſaret.) This is likewiſe called the ſea of Galilee, and the ſea of Tiberias.

6 They incloſed a great multitude of fiſhes, &c.) Our Saviour, having delivered his doctrine to the people, confirms his doctrine with a miracle, and with ſuch a miracle as did at once inſtruct and encourage his apoſtles; the miraculous number of fiſh which they caught did preſage and preſigure their miraculous ſucceſs in preaching, planting, and propagating the goſpel.

17 The power of the Lord was preſent to heal them.) Not the Phariſees and doctors of the law, but in general thoſe who had need of healing, and faith to be healed.

27 He went forth, and ſaw a publican named Levi—and he ſaid unto him, Follow me.) The number of our Lord's apoſtles not being filled up, we may obſerve what a free and gracious, what an unexpected and undeſerved choice Chriſt makes. Levi, that is, Matthew, (for he had both names) a grinding publican, who gathered the tax for the Roman emperor, and was probably guilty, as others were, of the ſins of covetouſneſs and extortion, yet is he called to follow Chriſt, as a ſpecial diſciple. Such is the freeneſs of divine grace, that it ſometimes calls and converts ſinners unto Chriſt, when they think not of him, nor ſeek unto him. Little did Levi think of a Saviour, much leſs ſeek after him, yet is he here called by him, and that with an efficacious call. Matthew, a publican; Zaccheus, an extortioner; Saul, a perſecutor: all theſe are effectually called by Chriſt, as inſtances and evidences of the mighty power of converting grace.

of John fast often, and make prayers, and likewise the disciples of the Pharisees; but thine eat and drink?

34 And he said unto them, Can ye make the children of the bride-chamber fast while the bridegroom is with them?

35 But the days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken away from them, and then shall they fast in those days.

36 And he spake also a parable unto them; No man putteth a piece of a new garment upon an old; if otherwise, then both the new maketh a rent, and the piece that was taken out of the new agreeth not with the old.

37 And no man putteth new wine into old bottles; else the new wine will burst the bottles, and be spilled, and the bottles shall perish.

38 But new wine must be put into new bottles; and both are preserved.

39 No man also, having drunk old wine, straightway desireth new; for he saith, The old is better.

CHAP. VI.

1 Touching the ears of corn that were plucked by the disciples on the sabbath. 12 Christ chooseth the twelve, 17 healeth, 20 and preacheth.

AND it came to pass, on the second sabbath after the first, that he went through the corn-fields; and his disciples plucked the ears of corn, and did eat, rubbing them in their hands.

2 And certain of the Pharisees said unto them, Why do ye that which is not lawful to do on the sabbath-days?

3 And Jesus answering them, said, Have ye not read so much as this, what David did, when himself was an hungered, and they which were with him;

4 How he went into the house of God, and did take and eat the shew-bread, and gave also to them that were with him; which is not lawful to eat but for the priests alone?

5 And he said unto them, That the Son of man is Lord also of the sabbath.

6 And it came to pass also, on another sabbath, that he entered into the synagogue and taught: and there was a man whose right hand was withered.

7 And the scribes and Pharisees watched him, whether he would heal on the sabbath-day; that they might find an accusation against him.

8 But he knew their thoughts, and said to the man which had the withered hand, Rise up, and stand forth in the midst. And he arose and stood forth.

9 Then said Jesus unto them, I will ask you one thing; Is it lawful on the sabbath-days to do good, or to do evil? to save life, or to destroy it?

10 And looking round about upon them all, he said unto the man, Stretch forth thy hand. And he did so: and his hand was restored whole as the other.

11 And they were filled with madness; and communed one with another what they might do to Jesus.

12 ¶ And it came to pass in those days, that he went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God.

13 And when it was day he called unto him his disciples: and of them he chose twelve, whom also he named apostles;

14 Simon, (whom he also named Peter,) and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew,

15 Matthew and Thomas, James the son of Alpheus, and Simon called Zelotes,

16 And Judas the brother of James, and Judas Iscariot, which also was the traitor.

17 ¶ And he came down with them, and stood in the plain, and the company of his disciples, and a great multitude of people out of all Judea and Jerusalem, and from the sea-coast of Tyre and Sidon, which came to hear him, and to be healed of their diseases,

18 And they that were vexed with unclean spirits: and they were healed.

19 And the whole multitude sought to touch him: for there went virtue out of him, and healed them all.

20 ¶ And he lifted up his eyes on his disciples, and said, Blessed be ye poor: for your's is the kingdom of God.

21 Blessed are ye that hunger now: for ye shall be filled. Blessed are ye that weep now: for ye shall laugh.

22 Blessed are ye when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of man's sake.

23 Rejoice ye in that day, and leap for joy; for, behold, your reward is great in heaven: for in the like manner did their fathers unto the prophets.

24 But woe unto you that are rich! for ye have received your consolation.

25 Woe unto you that are full! for ye shall hunger. Woe unto you that laugh now! for ye shall mourn and weep.

26 Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you! for so did their fathers to the false prophets.

27 But I say unto you which hear, Love your enemies, do good to them which hate you;

28 Bless them that curse you, and pray for them which despitefully use you.

29 And unto him that smiteth thee on the one cheek, offer also the other; and him that taketh away thy cloak, forbid not to take thy coat also.

30 Give to every man that asketh of thee; and of him that taketh away thy goods, ask them not again.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

1 a 17 And he came down with them, &c.] The great zeal and forwardness of the people, in attending upon our Saviour's ministry, is worthy our imitation. He had newly begun to preach in this place, and the people flock after him from all parts, from Judea, from Jerusalem, from Tyre and Sidon, to hear his doctrine and see his miracles. When our Saviour first began to preach, the people came unto him from every quarter. His ministers find it thus: At our first coming among a people, our labours are most acceptable, and they do most good; our people's affections are then warmest, and perhaps our own too. The people who attended thus zealously on our Saviour's ministry were the common and ordinary sort: the poor received the gospel; the learned scribes, the knowing Pharisees, those wise men after the flesh, the mighty, the noble, the great and honourable, these despised our Saviour's person, slighted his ministry, yea, sought to take away his life. Thus from the first plantation of the gospel to this day, the poorer and meaner sort of people have entertained the glad tidings of salvation. It is a sad but a certain truth, that heaven is a place where few, comparatively but very few, of the great men of the world are likely to come; their temptations are many, their corruptions strong, and their great estates, through their own abuse, become fuel to their lusts.

26 Woe unto you when all men shall speak well of you, &c.] Our Saviour's design in these words is not to condemn any of his disciples or ministers, who have, by doing their duty, gained a fair reputation amongst the men of the world, but to let us understand how rarely and seldom it is attained; for usually the best of men are the worst spoken of: neither the prophets of the Old Testament, nor John Baptist, the prophet of the New, nor Christ himself, nor his apostles, did ever gain either the good-will or the good word of the men of that generation in which they lived. The applause of the multitude, that contingent judge of good and evil, rather attends the vain than the virtuous. None have ever been so much reproached by men as the faithful ministers of God, who have learned to take pleasure in reproaches: for though grace does not bid us invite reproaches, yet it teaches us to bid them welcome. The world has all along taken effectual care, by their cruel mockings, bitter reproaches, sharp invectives, to free the ministers of God in all ages from the danger of our Saviour's woe here denounced.

31 And as ye would that men ſhould do to you, do ye alſo unto them likewiſe.

32 For if ye love them which love you, what thank have ye? for ſinners alſo love thoſe that love them.

33 And if ye do good to them which do good to you, what thank have ye? for ſinners alſo do even the ſame.

34 And if ye lend to them of whom ye hope to receive, what thank have ye? for ſinners alſo lend to ſinners, to receive as much again.

35 But love ye your enemies, and do good and lend, hoping for nothing again; and your reward ſhall be great, and ye ſhall be the children of the Higheſt: for he is kind unto the unthankful, and to the evil.

36 Be ye, therefore, merciful, as your Father alſo is merciful.

37 Judge not, and ye ſhall not be judged: condemn not, and ye ſhall not be condemned; forgive, and ye ſhall be forgiven:

38 Give, and it ſhall be given unto you; good meaſure, preſſed down, and ſhaken together, and running over, ſhall men give into your boſom: for with the ſame meaſure that ye mete withal, it ſhall be meaſured to you again.

39 And he ſpake a parable unto them, Can the blind lead the blind? ſhall they not both fall into the ditch?

40 The diſciple is not above his maſter: but every one that is perfect ſhall be as his maſter.

41 And why beholdeſt thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but perceiveſt not the beam that is in thine own eye?

42 Either how canſt thou ſay to thy brother, Brother, let me pull out the mote that is in thine eye when thou thyſelf beholdeſt not the beam that is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, caſt out firſt the beam out of thine own eye, and then ſhalt thou ſee clearly to pull out the mote that is in thy brother's eye.

43 For a good tree bringeth not forth corrupt fruit; neither doth a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit.

44 For every tree is known by his own fruit: for of thorns men do not gather figs, nor of a bramble-buſh gather they grapes.

45 A good man out of the good treaſure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is good; and an evil man, out of the evil treaſure of his heart, bringeth forth that which is evil: for of the abundance of the heart his mouth ſpeaketh.

46 And why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I ſay?

47 Whoſoever cometh to me, and heareth my ſayings, and doeth them, I will ſhew you to whom he is like:

48 He is like a man which built an houſe, and digged deep, and laid the foundation on a rock; and, when the flood aroſe, the ſtream beat vehemently upon that houſe, and could not ſhake it: for it was founded upon a rock.

49 But he that heareth and doeth not, is like a man that, without a foundation, built an houſe upon the earth; againſt which the ſtream did beat vehemently, and immediately it fell, and the ruin of that houſe was great.

CHAP. VII.

1 The centurion's faith. 11 Chriſt raiſeth the widow's ſon, 18 anſwereth John's meſſengers, 24 and giveth teſtimony of him. 36 Mary Magdalene anointeth Chriſt's feet.

NOW, when he had ended all his ſayings in the audience of the people, he entered into Capernaum.

2 And a certain centurion's ſervant, who was dear unto him, was ſick, and ready to die.

3 And when he heard of Jeſus, he ſent unto him the elders of the Jews, beſeeching him that he would come and heal his ſervant.

4 And when they came to Jeſus, they beſought him inſtantly, ſaying, That he was worthy for whom he ſhould do this:

5 For he loveth our nation, and he hath built us a ſynagogue.

6 Then Jeſus went with them. And when he was now not far from the houſe, the centurion ſent friends to him, ſaying unto him, Lord trouble not thyſelf; for I am not worthy that thou ſhouldeſt enter under my roof:

7 Wherefore neither thought I myſelf worthy to come unto thee: but ſay in a word, and my ſervant ſhall be healed.

8 For I alſo am a man ſet under authority, having under me ſoldiers; and I ſay unto one Go, and he goeth; and to another, Come, and he cometh; and to my ſervant, Do this, and he doeth it.

9 When Jeſus heard theſe things, he marvelled at him, and turned him about, and ſaid unto the people that followed him, I ſay unto you, I have not found ſo great faith, no, not in Iſrael.

10 And they that were ſent, returning to the houſe, found the ſervant whole that had been ſick.

11 ¶ And it came to paſs the day after, that he went into a city called Nain; and many of his diſciples went with him, and much people.

12 Now, when he came nigh to the gate of the city, behold, there was a dead man carried out, the only ſon of his mother, and ſhe was a widow: and much people of the city was with her.

13 And when the Lord ſaw her, he had compaſſion on her, and ſaid unto her, Weep not.

14 And he came and touched the bier: and they that bare him ſtood ſtill. And he ſaid, Young man, I ſay unto thee, Ariſe.

15 And he that was dead ſat up, and began to ſpeak. And he delivered him to his mother.

16 And there came a fear on all: and they glorified God, ſaying, That a great prophet is riſen up among us; and, That God hath viſited his people.

17 And this rumour of him went forth throughout all Judea, and throughout all the region round about.

18 ¶ And the diſciples of John ſhewed him of all theſe things.

19 And John calling unto him two of his diſciples, ſent them to Jeſus, ſaying, Art thou he that ſhould come? or look we for another?

39 He ſpake a parable unto them, &c.) As parables were ſuited to prevent prejudices againſt the truths intended by them, and to ſtir up inquiries after them; ſo Chriſt ſometimes ſpake by them for gracious information to his own diſciples, and for righteous concealment from others who wilfully ſhut their eyes againſt clearer light, Mat. xiii. 10, 11, 12. And at other times he uſed them, when he knew that plain and open declarations would too much provoke the paſſions of his hearers, and that they could not be borne, Mark iv. 33. It is for this reaſon that he ſeems to uſe the parable of the blind leading the blind.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VII.

19 Art thou he that ſhould come? &c.) About the time of our Saviour's appearing in the world, there was a general expectation of a great prince that ſhould come out of Judea, and govern all nations: this prince the Jews called the Meſſias, or the Anointed, and waited for his appearance. Accordingly, when John the Baptiſt appeared in the quality of an extraordinary prophet, the Jews ſent to know of him, whether he was the Meſſias or not, John i. 19. He anſwered that he was not, but only the harbinger and forerunner of the 20 When the men were come unto him, they ſaid, John Baptiſt hath ſent us unto thee, ſaying, Art thou he that ſhould come? or look we for another?

21 And in that ſame hour he cured many of their infirmities and plagues, and of evil ſpirits; and unto many that were blind he gave ſight.

22 Then Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, Go your way, and tell John what things ye have ſeen and heard; how that the blind ſee, the lame walk, the lepers are cleanſed, the deaf hear, the dead are raiſed, to the poor the goſpel is preached.

23 And bleſſed is he, whoſoever ſhall not be offended in me.

24 ¶ And when the meſſengers of John were departed, he began to ſpeak unto the people concerning John, What went ye out into the wilderneſs for to ſee? A reed ſhaken with the wind?

25 But what went ye out for to ſee? A man clothed in ſoft raiment? Behold, they which are gorgeouſly apparelled, and live delicately, are in king's courts.

26 But what went ye out for to ſee? A prophet? Yea, I ſay unto you, and much more than a prophet.

27 This is he of whom it is written, Behold, I ſend my meſſenger before thy face, which ſhall prepare thy way before thee.

28 For I ſay unto you, Among thoſe that are born of women, there is not a greater prophet than John the Baptiſt: but he that is leaſt in the kingdom of God is greater than he.

29 And all the people that heard him, and the publicans, juſtified God, being baptized with the baptiſm of John.

30 But the Phariſees and lawyers rejected the counſel of God againſt themſelves, being not baptized of him.

31 And the Lord ſaid, Whereunto then ſhall I liken the men of this generation? and to what are they like?

32 They are like unto children ſitting in the market-place, and calling one to another, and ſaying, We have piped unto you, and ye have not danced; we have mourned to you, and ye have not wept.

33 For John the Baptiſt came neither eating bread nor drinking wine; and ye ſay, He hath a devil.

34 The Son of man is come eating and drinking; and ye ſay, Behold, a gluttonous man, and a wine-bibber, a friend of publicans and ſinners!

35 But wiſdom is juſtified of all her children.

36 ¶ And one of the Phariſees deſired him that he would eat with him. And he went into the Phariſee's houſe, and ſat down to meat.

37 And, behold, a woman in the city, which was a ſinner, when ſhe knew that Jeſus ſat at meat in the Phariſee's houſe, brought an alabaſter-box of ointment,

38 And ſtood at his feet behind him weeping, and began to waſh his feet with tears, and did wipe them with the hairs of her head, and kiſſed his feet, and anointed them with the ointment.

39 Now when the Phariſee, which had bidden him, ſaw it, he ſpake within himſelf, ſaying, This man, if he were a prophet, would have known who and what manner of woman this is that toucheth him; for ſhe is a ſinner.

40 And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto him, Simon, I have ſomewhat to ſay unto thee. And he ſaith, Maſter, ſay on.

41 There was a certain creditor which had two debtors; the one owed five hundred pence, and the other fifty.

42 And when they had nothing to pay, he frankly forgave them both. Tell me, therefore, which of them will love him moſt?

43 Simon anſwered and ſaid, I ſuppoſe that he to whom he forgave moſt. And he ſaid unto him, Thou haſt rightly judged.

44 And he turned to the woman, and ſaid unto Simon, Seeſt thou this woman? I entered into thine houſe, thou gaveſt me no water for my feet: but ſhe hath waſhed my feet with tears, and wiped them with the hairs of her head.

45 Thou gaveſt me no kiſs: but this woman, ſince the time I came in, hath not ceaſed to kiſs my feet.

46 Mine head with oil thou didſt not anoint: but this woman hath anointed my feet with ointment.

47 Wherefore, I ſay unto thee, Her ſins, which are many, are forgiven; for ſhe loved much: but to whom little is forgiven, the ſame loveth little.

48 And he ſaid unto her, Thy ſins are forgiven.

49 And they that ſat at meat with him began to ſay within themſelves, Who is this that forgiveth ſins alſo?

50 And he ſaid to the woman, Thy faith hath ſaved thee; go in peace.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Women miniſter unto Chriſt. 4 The parable of the ſower, 16 and of the candle.

AND it came to paſs afterward, that he went throughout every city and village, preaching, and ſhewing the glad tidings of the kingdom of God; and the twelve were with him,

2 And certain women which had been healed of evil ſpirits and infirmities, Mary called Magdalene, out of whom went ſeven devils,

3 And Joanna the wife of Chuza, Herod's ſteward, and Suſanna, and many others, which miniſtered unto him of their ſubſtance.

4 ¶ And when much people were gathered together, and were come to him out of every city, he ſpake by a parable:

5 A ſower went out to ſow his ſeed; and, as he ſowed, ſome fell by the way-ſide, and it was trodden down, and the fowls of the air devoured it:

6 And ſome fell upon a rock; and, as ſoon as it was ſprung up, it withered away, becauſe it lacked moiſture.

7 And ſome fell among thorns; and the thorns ſprang up with it, and choked it:

Meſſias: ſo that it was very evident that it was not for John's own information that he ſent two of his diſciples to Chriſt, to know whether he was the Meſſias or not; for John was aſſured of it himſelf by a voice from heaven at our Saviour's baptiſm, Mat. iii. But it was for his diſciples' ſatisfaction that he ſent them to Jeſus; becauſe John's diſciples were unwilling to acknowledge Chriſt to be the Meſſias, out of a great zeal for the honour of him their maſter; they were not willing to own any perſon greater than John their maſter, leſt ſuch an acknowledgment ſhould eclipſe and cloud him.

41, 42 There was a certain creditor which had two debtors, &c.) From this parable we gather theſe leſſons of inſtruction:—1. That great is the debt which all mankind have contracted, and lie under to the juſtice of God: 'tis here expreſſed by five hundred pence. Our debt is infinite, and had not miraculous mercy interpoſed, divine juſtice could never have been ſatisfied, but by undergoing an infinite puniſhment. 2. That yet all ſinners ſtand not alike indebted to the juſtice of God; ſome owe more, and others leſs; all are guilty, but not all alike; ſome owe five hundred talents, others fifty pence. 3. That be men's debts greater or leſs, their ſins more or fewer, 'tis utterly impoſſible for any perſon of himſelf to clear his debt, and make ſatisfaction; but they that owe leaſt ſtand in need of mercy and forgiveneſs. 4. That the forgiveneſs that is in God is a free, gratuitous and gracious forgiveneſs.

45 Thou gaveſt me no kiſs, &c.) This intimates that it was cuſtomary with the Jews to ſhew reſpect and kindneſs to their welcome gueſts, by ſaluting them with a kiſs, by waſhing and wiping their feet, and anointing their heads with oil or ſome fine ointment.

47 Her ſins—are forgiven; for ſhe loved much, &c.) The parable, of which this is the application, plainly ſhews that her loving much is mentioned, not as the cauſe or reaſon, but as the effect and evidence, of her being forgiven, and of her apprehenſions about it. And in this manner the particle for is often uſed, as in Hoſ. ix. 15.

8 And other fell on good ground, and ſprang up, and bare fruit an hundred-fold. And when he had ſaid theſe things he cried, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

9 And his diſciples aſked him, ſaying, What might this parable be?

10 And he ſaid, Unto you it is given to know the myſteries of the kingdom of God: but to others in parables; that ſeeing they might not ſee, and hearing they might not underſtand.

11 Now the parable is this; The ſeed is the word of God.

12 Thoſe by the way-ſide are they that hear; then cometh the devil, and taketh away the word out of their hearts, leſt they ſhould believe and be ſaved.

13 They on the rock are they, which, when they hear, receive the word with joy; and theſe have no root, which for a while believe, and in time of temptation fall away.

14 And that which fell among thorns are they, which, when they have heard, go forth, and are choked with cares, and riches, and pleaſures of this life, and bring no fruit to perfection.

15 But that on the good ground, are they, which, in an honeſt and good heart, having heard the word, keep it, and bring forth fruit with patience.

16 ¶ No man, when he hath lighted a candle, covereth it with a veſſel, or putteth it under a bed; but ſetteth it on a candleſtick, that they which enter in may ſee the light.

17 For nothing is ſecret, that ſhall not not be made manifeſt; neither any thing hid, that ſhall not be known, and come abroad.

18 Take heed, therefore, how ye hear: for whoſoever hath, to him ſhall be given; and whoſoever hath not, from him ſhall be taken, even that which he ſeemeth to have.

19 Then came to him his mother and his brethren, and could not come at him for the preſs.

20 And it was told him by certain, which ſaid, Thy mother and thy brethren ſtand without, deſiring to ſee thee.

21 And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, My mother and my brethren are theſe which hear the word of God, and do it.

22 Now it came to paſs on a certain day, that he went into a ſhip with his diſciples: and he ſaid unto them, Let us go over unto the other ſide of the lake. And they launched forth.

23 But as they ſailed he fell aſleep: and there came down a ſtorm of wind on the lake; and they were filled with water, and were in jeopardy.

24 And they came to him, and awoke him, ſaying, Maſter, Maſter, we periſh. Then he aroſe, and rebuked the wind, and the raging of the water: and they ceaſed, and there was a calm.

25 And he ſaid unto them, Where is your faith? And they, being afraid, wondered, ſaying one to another, What manner of man is this? for he commandeth even the winds and water, and they obey him.

26 And they arrived at the country of the Gadarenes, which is over againſt Galilee.

27 And when he went forth to land, there met him out of the city a certain man which had devils long time, and ware no clothes, neither abode in any houſe, but in the tombs.

28 When he ſaw Jeſus he cried out, and fell down before him, and with a loud voice ſaid, What have I to do with thee, Jeſus, thou Son of God moſt high? I beſeech thee torment me not?

29 (For he had commanded the unclean ſpirit to come out of the man. For oftentimes it had caught him; and he was kept bound with chains, and in fetters; and he brake the bands, and was driven of the devil into the wilderneſs.)

30 And Jeſus aſked him, ſaying, What is thy name? And he ſaid, Legion: becauſe many devils were entered into him.

31 And they beſought him that he would not command them to go out into the deep.

32 And there was there an herd of many ſwine feeding on the mountain: and they beſought him that he would ſuffer them to enter into them. And he ſuffered them.

33 Then went the devils out of the man, and entered into the ſwine; and the herd ran violently down a ſteep place into the lake, and were choked.

34 When they that fed them ſaw what was done, they fled, and went and told it in the city, and in the country.

35 Then they went out to ſee what was done; and came to Jeſus, and found the man, out of whom the devils were departed, ſitting at the feet of Jeſus, clothed, and in his right mind: and they were afraid.

36 They alſo which ſaw it told them by what means he that was poſſeſſed of the devils was healed.

37 Then the whole multitude of the country of the Gadarenes round about beſought him to depart from them: for they were taken with great fear. And he went up into the ſhip, and returned back again.

38 Now the man, out of whom the devils were departed, beſought him that he might be with him: but Jeſus ſent him away, ſaying,

39 Return to thine own houſe, and ſhew how great things God hath done unto thee. And he went his

COMMENTARY on Chap. VIII.

10 And he ſaid, Unto you it is given to know the myſteries of the kingdom of God, &c.) Our Lord here tells them, That God, in his diſtinguiſhing favour, had given them an heart to deſire, ſeek after, and underſtand, the great things of the goſpel-kingdom, pertaining to his glory and their own ſalvation, which were all entire ſecrets 'till he came to reveal them, and are ſtill ſtrange things to carnal and unbelieving hearts that are prejudiced againſt them, and cannot ſee their true excellence and glory, and which continue to be incomprehenſible in ſome reſpects, even to thoſe who are enlightened by his ſpirit as well as by his word: But, ſaid he, I repreſented theſe things to others only in a ſimilitude, without explaining it, that as, through wilful perverſeneſs and obſtinacy, they ſhut their eyes and harden their hearts againſt my plainer inſtructions, they may be righteouſly left under the power of their choſen ſtupidity and blindneſs; and ſo the awful prophecy (Iſa. lxix. 9.) may be fulfilled in them, as a people that ſee and hear the moſt important truths in the miniſtry of the word, and yet do not truly diſcern them nor deſire to be acquainted with them.

26 They arrived at the country of the Gadarenes, &c.) In Matt. viii. 28. it is called the country of the Gergeſenes, whoſe inhabitants (ſome ſuppoſe) were the ancient Girgaſhites, mentioned Deut. vii. 1. This country of the Gergeſenes included that of the Gadarenes; and ſo it appears that the place where Chriſt landed was in that part which was called the country of the Gadarenes.

29 For he had commanded the unclean ſpirit to come out of the man.) As our Lord's caſting out devils is often diſtinguiſhed from his healing diſeaſes; ſo there are ſeveral things mentioned in the ſtory of this man, that cannot be accounted for by any mere diſtemper whatſoever, nor made common ſenſe of, without ſuppoſing him to be poſſeſſed of the devil; as particularly, when he ſays his name is Legion, and expoſtulates with Chriſt for coming to torment them before their time; and when they intreated that they might not be ſent out of the country, and aſked his leave to enter into the ſwine, and, upon permiſſion obtained, actually entered into them; nor can we reaſonably ſuppoſe that any diſeaſe could add ſuch ſtrength to this man, that no chains or fetters could bind him.

39 Return to thine own houſe, and ſhew how great things God hath done unto thee, &c.) When our Lord wrought wonderful works in Judea, he uſually ordered that they ſhould not be divulged, becauſe he would not needleſsly provoke the ſcribes and Phariſees, nor ſeem to ſeek his own glory; but having wrought one among the heathens, he ordered it to be publiſhed, as the means of bringing others to believe in him.

way, and publiſhed throughout the whole city how great things Jeſus had done unto him.

40 And it came to paſs, that when Jeſus was returned, the people gladly received him: for they were all waiting for him.

41 And, behold, there came a man named Jairus, and he was a ruler of the ſynagogue: and he fell down at Jeſus' feet, and beſought him that he would come into his houſe:

42 For he had one only daughter, about twelve years of age, and ſhe lay a dying. (But as he went the people thronged him:

43 And a woman, having an iſſue of blood twelve years, which had ſpent all her living upon phyſicians, neither could be healed of any,

44 Came behind him, and touched the border of his garment: and immediately her iſſue of blood ſtaunched.

45 And Jeſus ſaid, Who touched me? When all denied, Peter, and they that were with him, ſaid, Maſter, the multitude throng thee, and preſs thee, and ſayeſt thou, Who touched me?

46 And Jeſus ſaid, Somebody hath touched me: for I perceive that virtue is gone out of me.

47 And when the woman ſaw that ſhe was not hid, ſhe came trembling, and, falling down before him, ſhe declared unto him, before all the people, for what cauſe ſhe had touched him, and how ſhe was healed immediately.

48 And he ſaid unto her, Daughter, be of good comfort: thy faith hath made thee whole; go in peace.)

49 While he yet ſpake, there cometh one from the ruler of the ſynagogue's houſe, ſaying to him, Thy daughter is dead; trouble not the Maſter.

50 But when Jeſus heard it, he anſwered him, ſaying, Fear not: believe only, and ſhe ſhall be made whole.

51 And when he came into the houſe, he ſuffered no man to go in, ſave Peter, and James, and John, and the father and the mother of the maiden.

52 And all wept, and bewailed her, but he ſaid, Weep not; ſhe is not dead, but ſleepeth.

53 And they laughed him to ſcorn, knowing that ſhe was dead.

54 And he put them all out, and took her by the hand, and called, ſaying, Maid, ariſe.

55 And her ſpirit came again, and ſhe aroſe ſtraightway: and he commanded to give her meat.

56 And her parents were aſtoniſhed: but he charged them that they ſhould tell no man what was done.

CHAP. IX.

1 Chriſt ſendeth out his apoſtles. 7 Herod is deſirous to ſee him. 28 His tranſfiguration. 37 He healeth a lunatic.

THEN he called his twelve diſciples together, and gave them power and authority over all devils, and to cure diſeaſes.

2 And he ſent them to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the ſick.

3 And he ſaid unto them, Take nothing for your journey, neither ſtaves, nor ſcrip, neither bread, neither money; neither have two coats apiece.

4 And whatſoever houſe ye enter into, there abide, and thence depart.

5 And whoſoever will not receive you, when ye go out of that city, ſhake off the very duſt from your feet for a teſtimony againſt them.

6 And they departed, and went through the towns, preaching the goſpel, and healing every where.

7 ¶ Now Herod the tetrarch heard of all that was done by him: and he was perplexed, becauſe that it was ſaid of ſome, that John was riſen from the dead;

8 And of ſome that Elias had appeared; and of others, that one of the old prophets was riſen again.

9 And Herod ſaid, John have I beheaded: but who is this of whom I hear ſuch things? And he deſired to ſee him.

10 And the apoſtles, when they were returned, told him all that they had done. And he took them, and went aſide privately into a deſert place belonging to the city, called Bethſaida.

11 And the people, when they knew it, followed him: and he received them, and ſpake unto them of the kingdom of God, and healed them that had need of healing.

12 And when the day began to wear away, then came the twelve, and ſaid unto him, Send the multitude away, that they may go into the towns and country round about, and lodge, and get victuals: for we are here in a deſert place.

13 But he ſaid unto them, Give ye them to eat. And they ſaid, We have no more but five loaves and two fiſhes, except we ſhould go and buy meat for all this people:

14 (For they were about five thouſand men.) And he ſaid to his diſciples, Make them ſit down by fifties in a company.

15 And they did ſo, and made them all ſit down.

16 Then he took the five loaves, and the two fiſhes; and, looking up to heaven, he bleſſed them, and brake, and gave to the diſciples to ſet before the multitude.

17 And they did eat, and were all filled: and there was taken up of fragments that remained to them, twelve baſkets.

18 And it came to paſs, as he was alone praying, his diſciples were with him: and he aſked them, ſaying, Whom ſay the people that I am?

19 They anſwering, ſaid, John the Baptiſt: but ſome ſay, Elias; and others ſay, That one of the old prophets is riſen again.

20 He ſaid unto them, But whom ſay ye that I am? Peter anſwering, ſaid, The Chriſt of God.

21 And he ſtraitly charged them, and commanded them to tell no man that thing,

22 Saying, The Son of man muſt ſuffer many things, and be rejected of the elders, and chief prieſts, and ſcribes, and be ſlain, and be raiſed the third day.

23 And he ſaid to them all, If any man will come after me, let him deny himſelf, and take up his croſs daily, and follow me.

24 For whoſoever will ſave his life, ſhall loſe it: but whoſoever will loſe his life for my ſake, the ſame ſhall ſave it.

25 For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and loſe himſelf, or be caſt away?

COMMENTARY on Chap. IX.

7 Now Herod—was perplexed, becauſe that it was ſaid of ſome, that John was riſen from the dead.) The hiſtory of the holy Baptiſt's beheading by Herod, is briefly here hinted at by St. Luke, but not ſo largely ſet forth by him, as we find it by St. Matthew, chap. xiv. and St. Mark, chap. vi. That which St. Luke takes particular notice of, is, that great perplexity of mind which Herod's guilty conſcience did occaſion; he had murdered John, and now is afraid his ghoſt haunted him. Guilt is naturally troubleſome and uneaſy: it diſturbs the peace and ſerenity of the mind, and fills the ſoul with ſtorms and thunder. Guilt is always full of fear; every thing affrights the guilty: a bad man is a terror to himſelf, and needs no farther diſquietment, than what his own guilty conſcience doth occaſion him.

26 For whosoever shall be ashamed of me, and of my words, of him shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he shall come in his own glory, and in his Father's, and of the holy angels.

27 But I tell you of a truth, There be some standing here which shall not taste of death till they see the kingdom of God.

28 ¶ And it came to pass, about an eight days after these sayings, he took Peter, and John and James, and went up into a mountain to pray.

29 And as he prayed the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment was white and glistering.

30 And, behold, there talked with him two men, which were Moses and Elias:

31 Who appeared in glory, and spake of his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem.

32 But Peter, and they that were with him, were heavy with sleep: and when they were awake they saw his glory, and the two men that stood with him.

33 And it came to pass, as they departed from him, Peter said unto Jesus, Master, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elias; not knowing what he said.

34 While he thus spake, there came a cloud, and overshadowed them: and they feared as they entered into the cloud.

35 And there came a voice out of the cloud, saying, This is my beloved Son; hear him.

36 And when the voice was past, Jesus was found alone. And they kept it close, and told no man in those days any of those things which they had seen.

37 ¶ And it came to pass, that, on the next day, when they were come down from the hill, much people met him.

38 And, behold, a man of the company cried out, saying, Master, I beseech thee, look upon my son; for he is mine only child.

39 And, lo, a spirit taketh him, and he suddenly crieth out; and it teareth him that he foameth again, and, bruising him, hardly departeth from him.

40 And I besought thy disciples to cast him out; and they could not.

41 And Jesus answering, said, O faithless and perverse generation! how long shall I be with you, and suffer you? Bring thy son hither.

42 And as he was yet a coming, the devil threw him down, and tare him: and Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and healed the child, and delivered him again to his father.

43 And they were all amazed at the mighty power of God. But while they wondered every one at all things which Jesus did, he said unto his disciples, 44 Let these sayings sink down into your ears: for the Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men.

45 But they understood not this saying, and it was hid from them, that they perceived it not: and they feared to ask him of that saying.

46 Then there arose a reasoning among them, which of them should be greatest.

47 And Jesus, perceiving the thought of their heart, took a child, and set him by him,

48 And said unto them, Whosoever shall receive this child in my name, receiveth me; and whosoever shall receive me, receiveth him that sent me: for he that is least among you all, the same shall be great.

49 And John answered and said, Master, we saw one casting out devils in thy name; and we forbade him, because he followeth not with us.

50 And Jesus said unto him, Forbid him not: for he that is not against us is for us.

51 ¶ And it came to pass, when the time was come that he should be received up, he stedfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem, 52 And sent messengers before his face: and they went and entered into a village of the Samaritans, to make ready for him.

53 And they did not receive him, because his face was as though he would go to Jerusalem.

54 And when his disciples, James and John, saw this, they said, Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them, even as Elias did?

55 But he turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of.

56 For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them. And they went to another village.

57 And it came to pass, that as they went in the way, a certain man said unto him, Lord, I will follow thee whithersoever thou goest.

58 And Jesus said unto him, Foxes have holes, and birds of the air have nests; but the Son of man hath not where to lay his head.

59 And he said unto another, Follow me. But he said, Lord, suffer me first to go and bury my father.

60 Jesus said unto him, Let the dead bury their dead: but go thou and preach the kingdom of God.

61 And another also said, Lord, I will follow thee; but let me first go bid them farewell which are at home at my house.

62 And Jesus said unto him, No man, having put his hand to the plough, and looking back, is fit for the kingdom of God.

CHAP. X.

1 The seventy disciples admonished to be humble. 41 Martha reproached.

AFTER these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before

26 For whosoever shall be ashamed of me, &c.] For whoever is afraid or ashamed to own me and my gospel now, in the presence of men, lest they should persecute or reproach him, or laugh at him for it, him will the Messiah publicly refuse to own, and upon him will he pour the greatest contempt at the great day, when he shall appear in his own personal and mediatorial glory, as the eternal Son of God, and Judge of all, and in the glory of his heavenly Father, whose divine perfections, majesty, and authority, will then display themselves in him; and when he shall be attended with a pompous retinue of holy angels, to execute his commands and celebrate his praise.

28 And it came to pass, about an eight days after these sayings, &c.] In Matt. xvii. 1. and Mark ix. 2. this is said to be six days after the foregoing discourse, meaning only the days that passed between that and the day of Christ's transfiguration; but here this is said to be about eight days after it, inclusive both of the day of Christ's saying these things, and the day of his going up to the mount, which, together with the six intermediate days, made up about eight days, though not eight complete.

42 And as he was yet a coming, &c.] And as the youth was coming, the devil, who knew Christ's power better than the scribes did, was enraged at the thoughts that he must now be cast out; and to vent his furious indignation for having all the mischief he could, he threw the poor young creature down with great violence, and tore him, as if he would have torn him to pieces; but Jesus spoke with sovereign power and authority to the evil spirit to depart, and immediately restored the child to perfect health, and delivered him back to his father safe and sound.

53 And they did not receive him, &c.] As the fame of Jesus was spread among the Samaritans, on account of what he had formerly done in that country (John iv.) and he was looked upon as at least an eminent prophet, they were provoked to think that he should go to Jerusalem at this time, which seems to have been the feast of tabernacles (John vii. 2.) and should thereby determine directly against them, that got mount Gerizim, but Jerusalem, was the place where God should be worshipped; and therefore, full of all resentment, they would by no means entertain him.

his face into every city and place whither he himſelf would come.

2 Therefore ſaid he unto them, The harveſt truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye, therefore, the Lord of the harveſt, that he would ſend forth labourers into his harveſt.

3 Go your ways: behold, I ſend you forth as lambs among wolves.

4 Carry neither purſe, nor ſcrip, nor ſhoes; and ſalute no man by the way.

5 And into whatſoever houſe ye enter, firſt ſay, Peace be to this houſe.

6 And if the ſon of peace be there, your peace ſhall reſt upon it: if not, it ſhall turn to you again.

7 And in the ſame houſe remain, eating and drinking ſuch things as they give: for the labourer is worthy of his hire. Go not from houſe to houſe.

8 And into whatſoever city ye enter, and they receive you, eat ſuch things as are ſet before you;

9 And heal the ſick that are therein; and ſay unto them, The kingdom of God is come nigh unto you.

10 But into whatſoever city ye enter, and they receive you not, go your ways out into the ſtreets of the ſame, and ſay,

11 Even the very duſt of your city, which cleaveth on us, we wipe off againſt you: notwithſtanding, be ye ſure of this, that the kingdm of God is come nigh unto you.

12 But I ſay unto you, That it ſhall be more tolerable in that day for Sodom, than for that city.

13 Woe unto thee, Chorazin! woe unto thee, Bethſaida! for if the mighty works had been done in Tyre and Sidon which have been done in you, they had a great while ago repented, ſitting in ſackcloth and aſhes.

14 But it ſhall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon at the judgment than for you.

15 And thou, Capernaum, which art exalted to heaven, ſhalt be thruſt down to hell.

16 He that heareth you, heareth me; and he that deſpiſeth you, deſpiſeth me; and he that deſpiſeth me, deſpiſeth him that ſent me.

17 And the ſeventy returned again with joy, ſaying, Lord, even the devils are ſubject unto us thro' thy name.

18 And he ſaid unto them, I beheld Satan as lightning fall from heaven.

19 Behold, I give unto you power to tread on ſerpents and ſcorpions, and over all the power of the enemy; and nothing ſhall by any means hurt you.

20 Notwithſtanding, in this rejoice not that the ſpirits are ſubject unto you; but rather rejoice, becauſe your names are written in heaven.

21 In that hour Jeſus rejoiced in ſpirit, and ſaid, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou haſt hid theſe things from the wiſe and prudent, and haſt revealed them unto babes: even ſo, Father; for ſo it ſeemed good in thy ſight.

22 All things are delivered to me of my Father: and no man knoweth who the Son is, but the Father; and who the Father is, but the Son, and he to whom the the Son will reveal him.

23 And he turned him unto his diſciples, and ſaid privately, Bleſſed are the eyes which ſee the things that ye ſee:

24 For I tell you, that many prophets and kings have deſired to ſee thoſe things which ye ſee, and have not ſeen them; and to hear thoſe things which ye hear, and have not heard them.

25 And behold, a certain lawyer ſtood up, and tempted him, ſaying, Maſter, what ſhall I do to inherit eternal life?

26 He ſaid unto him, What is written in the law? how readeſt thou?

27 And he anſwering, ſaid, Thou ſhalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy ſoul, and with all thy ſtrength, and with all thy mind; and thy neighbour as thyſelf.

28 And he ſaid unto him, Thou haſt anſwered right: this do, and thou ſhalt live.

29 But he, willing to juſtify himſelf, ſaid unto Jeſus, And who is my neighbour?

30 And Jeſus, anſwering, ſaid, A certain man went down from Jeruſalem to Jericho, and fell among thieves, which ſtripped him of his raiment, and wounded him, and departed, leaving him half dead.

31 And by chance there came down a certain prieſt that way; and when he ſaw him, he paſſed by on the other ſide.

32 And likewiſe a Levite, when he was at the place, came and looked on him, and paſſed by on the other ſide.

33 But a certain Samaritan, as he journeyed, came where he was: and, when he ſaw him, he had compaſſion on him,

34 And went to him, and bound up his wounds, pouring in oil and wine, and ſet him on his own beaſt, and brought him to an inn, and took care of him.

35 And on the morrow, when he departed, he took out two-pence, and gave them to the hoſt, and ſaid unto him,

Commentary on Chap. X.

1 The Lord appointed other ſeventy, &c.) Luke is the only evangeliſt who has given this account; and it is the leſs to be wondered at that he ſhould do it ſo particularly, if the ancient tradition be true, that he was himſelf one of the ſeventy.

4 Salute no man by the way, &c.) Our Saviour did not forbid common civilities, but that chiefly they ſhould be intent and earneſt to diſpatch their important buſineſs.

19 Behold I give unto you power to tread on ſerpents, &c.) Here ſeems to be an alluſion to Pſal. xci. 13. and this was literally fulfilled, Acts xxviii. 3, 5. And the power Chriſt here gave to the ſeventy againſt Satan and all his inſtruments, was a remarkable inſtance of God's fulfilling the firſt promiſe, Gen. iii. 15. that the ſeed of the woman ſhould bruiſe the ſerpent's head.

30 A certain man went down from Jeruſalem to Jericho and fell among thieves, &c.) Pious men have conſidered this parable as a fit repreſentation of the miſerable ſtate of mankind by nature. Sin and Satan have wounded us to death, and we are utterly unable to help ourſelves. The law, like the prieſt and Levite, the miniſters of it, ſhews no compaſſion to us, nor is it in its nature to help us; it curſes us as tranſgreſſors, but cannot bleſs us, or afford any relief in our deplorable periſhing circumſtances. But our Lord Jeſus, like the good Samaritan, has had compaſſion upon us. Though we have been enemies to him, have diſhonoured and provoked him, and never can make him amends for any favour he ſhews us; yet, of his own infinite love, his eye has pitied us, and he takes care of us at the expence of his own precious blood. He binds up our wounded ſpirits; heals the broken in heart, and pours into them the virtue of his blood, and the conſolations of his Spirit, which are infinitely better than oil and wine. But how apt and beautiful ſoever the ſimilitude may be to illuſtrate the endearing love and compaſſion of Chriſt to poor, wounded, and periſhing ſouls; yet the immediate view of our Lord in this parable is for inſtruction in important points of another kind, as appears by his own application of it in the following verſes.

Jericho was in the tribe of Benjamin, about eighteen or nineteen miles eaſterly from Jeruſalem; and Jewiſh writers tell us, that about twelve thouſand ſtationary prieſts and Levites dwelt there, who uſed to attend the ſervice of the temple. The road therefore between thoſe two cities, which lay thro' deſart and rocky places, was frequented by prieſts and Levites, and infeſted with thieves.

32 And likewiſe a Levite, &c.) By Levites were principally meant ſuch deſcendants of Levi as were employed in the lower offices of the temple, in ſubordination to the prieſts, who likewiſe, being of the family of Aaron, deſcended from Levi by Kohath.

35 He took out two-pence, &c.) Two Roman pence amounted to about fifteen pence of our money, which, according to the rate of proviſions in that country, might anſwer the charge of a night's lodging, and of the little food that the poor man might be ſuppoſed to have eat: but ſome think that this is to be underſtood of money left in hand for future charges, with a promiſe of paying whatſoever they might amount to more: and others ſuppoſe, that here is a reference to the half ſhekel, which was to be paid for the ranſom of a man's ſoul or life, Exod. xxx. 12, 13, two-pence making that ſum.

him, Take care of him: and whatſoever thou ſpendeſt more, when I come again I will repay thee.

36 Which now of theſe three, thinkeſt thou, was neighbour unto him that fell among the thieves?

37 And he ſaid, He that ſhewed mercy on him. Then ſaid Jeſus unto him, Go, and do thou likewiſe.

38 Now it came to paſs, as they went, that he entered into a certain village: and a certain woman, named Martha, received him into her houſe.

39 And ſhe had a ſiſter called Mary, which alſo ſat at Jeſus' feet, and heard his word.

40 But Martha was cumbered about much ſerving, and came to him, and ſaid, Lord, doſt thou not care that my ſiſter hath left me to ſerve alone? bid her, therefore, that ſhe help me.

41 ¶ And Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto her, Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things;

42 But one thing is needful: and Mary hath choſen that good part, which ſhall not be taken away from her.

CHAP. XI.

1 Chriſt teacheth to pray, and that inſtantly. 14 He caſteth out a dumb devil.

AND it came to paſs, that as he was praying in a certain place, when he ceaſed, one of his diſciples ſaid unto him, Lord, teach us to pray, as John alſo taught his diſciples.

2 And he ſaid unto them, When ye pray, ſay, Our Father which art in heaven; Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, ſo in earth.

3 Give us day by day our daily bread.

4 And forgive us our ſins: for we alſo forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.

5 And he ſaid unto them, Which of you ſhall have a friend, and ſhall go unto him at midnight, and ſay unto him, Friend, lend me three loaves;

6 For a friend of mine in his journey is come to me, and I have nothing to ſet before him?

7 And he from within ſhall anſwer and ſay, Trouble me not: the door is now ſhut, and my children are with me in bed; I cannot riſe and give thee.

8 I ſay unto you, Though he will not riſe and give him, becauſe he is his friend; yet, becauſe of his importunity, he will riſe and give him as many as he needeth.

9 And I ſay unto you, Aſk, and it ſhall be given you; ſeek, and ye ſhall find; knock, and it ſhall be opened unto you.

10 For every one that aſketh, receiveth; and he that ſeeketh findeth; and to him that knocketh, it ſhall be opened.

11 If a ſon ſhall aſk bread of any of you that is a father, will he give him a ſtone? or, if he aſk a fiſh, will he for a fiſh give him a ſerpent?

12 Or, if he ſhall aſk an egg, will he offer him a ſcorpion?

13 If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children; how much more ſhall your heavenly Father give the holy Spirit to them that aſk him?

14 ¶ And he was caſting out a devil, and it was dumb. And it came to paſs, when the devil was gone out the dumb ſpake; and the people wondered.

15 But ſome of them ſaid, He caſteth out devils through Beelzebub, the chief of the devils.

16 And others, tempting him, ſought of him a ſign from heaven.

17 But he, knowing their thoughts, ſaid unto them, Every kingdom divided againſt itſelf is brought to deſolation; and a houſe divided againſt a houſe falleth.

18 If Satan alſo be divided againſt himſelf, how ſhall his kingdom ſtand? becauſe ye ſay that I caſt out devils through Beelzebub.

19 And if I by Beelzebub caſt out devils, by whom do your ſons caſt them out? therefore ſhall they be your judges.

20 But if I with the finger of God caſt out devils, no doubt the kingdom of God is come upon you.

21 When a ſtrong man armed keepeth his palace, his goods are in peace:

22 But when a ſtronger than he ſhall come upon him, and overcome him, he taketh from him all his armour wherein he truſted, and divideth his ſpoils.

23 He that is not with me is againſt me; and he that gathereth not with me ſcattereth.

24 When the unclean ſpirit is gone out of a man, he walketh through dry places, ſeeking reſt: and finding none, he ſaith, I will return unto my houſe whence I came out.

25 And when he cometh, he findeth it ſwept and garniſhed.

26 Then goeth he, and taketh to him ſeven other ſpirits more wicked than himſelf; and they enter in, and dwell there; and the laſt ſtate of that man is worſe than the firſt.

27 And it came to paſs, as he ſpake theſe things, a certain woman of the company lifted up her voice, and ſaid unto him, Bleſſed is the womb that bare thee, and the paps which thou haſt ſucked.

28 But he ſaid, Yea rather, bleſſed are they that hear the word of God and keep it.

29 ¶ And when the people were gathered thick together, he began to ſay, This is an evil generation: they ſeek a ſign: and there ſhall no ſign be given it, but the ſign of Jonas the prophet.

Commentary on Chap. XI.

1 Lord teach us to pray, as John alſo taught his diſciples.) How John the Baptiſt taught his diſciples to pray, cannot be determined with certainty, either by ſcripture or any remains of antiquity: but it ſeems, that, as the Jews went chiefly into thankſgivings and doxologies in their prayers, ſo John gave his diſciples a ſummary of petitions, which ſhould go into theirs, ſuitable to the nature of the diſpenſation they were then under. Accordingly one of Chriſt's diſciples, probably one of the ſeventy, who was not preſent at his ſermon on the mount, (Matt. vi.) aſked him to tell them, What requeſts they ſhould make, ſuitable to the diſpenſation which was now further advanced under him? and he, leaving out the doxology, reminded them of thoſe which, in that ſermon ſome time before, he had taught them to offer, (Matt. vi. 9.) and then added further inſtructions concerning the manner in which they ſhould perform that duty.

12 Will he offer him a ſcorpion?) A ſcorpion is a ſmall blackiſh creature of the ſerpent kind, and is exceeding venomous and miſchievous.

15 Beelzebub the chief of devils.) The name Beelzebub ſignifies the god of flies, and was given to the heathen Jupiter, whom his worſhippers accounted the chief of their gods, but whom they meanly repreſented as employed in driving away flies from their temples and ſacrifices. The Philiſtines worſhipped a deity under this title, as the god of Ekron, (2 Kings i. 6.) From hence it is probable that the Jews took the name, and applied it to the chief or prince of the devils, who was ſuppoſed to have ſome rule and dominion over the reſt of the kingdom of darkneſs.

29 They ſeek a ſign, and there ſhall no ſign be given it, &c.) The time was not yet come to give them a ſign from heaven: this was not to be 'till after Chriſt's aſcenſion; firſt at the overthrow of Jeruſalem, which would be the deſtruction of the then preſent generation, and afterwards at Chriſt's ſecond glorious appearing to judge the world: and therefore he would not ſo far humour their unreaſonable obſtinacy and unbelief, as to give them ſuch ſigns as they inſiſted upon then. (See Matt. xxvi. 64.)

30 For as Jonas was a ſign unto the Ninevites, ſo ſhall alſo the Son of man be to this generation.

31 The queen of the ſouth ſhall riſe up in the judgment with the men of this generation, and condemn them: for ſhe came from the utmoſt parts of the earth to hear the wiſdom of Solomon; and behold, a greater than Solomon is here.

32 The men of Nineve ſhall riſe up in the judgment with this generation, and ſhall condemn it: for they repented at the preaching of Jonas; and behold, a greater than Jonas is here.

33 No man, when he hath lighted a candle, putteth it in a ſecret place, neither under a buſhel, but on a candleſtick, that they which come in may ſee the light.

34 The light of the body is the eye: therefore when thine eye is ſingle, thy whole body alſo is full of light; but when thine eye is evil, thy body alſo is full of darkneſs.

35 Take heed, therefore, that the light which is in thee be not darkneſs.

36 If thy whole body, therefore, be full of light, having no part dark, the whole ſhall be full of light, as when the bright ſhining of a candle doth give thee light.

37 ¶ And as he ſpake, a certain Phariſee beſought him to dine with him: and he went in, and ſat down to meat.

38 And when the Phariſee ſaw it, he marvelled that he had not firſt waſhed before dinner.

39 And the Lord ſaid unto him, Now do ye Phariſees make clean the outſide of the cup and the platter; but your inward part is full of ravining and wickedneſs.

40 Ye fools, did not he that made that which is without, make that which is within alſo?

41 But rather give alms of ſuch things as ye have; and behold, all things are clean unto you.

42 But woe unto you, Phariſees! for ye tithe mint and rue, and all manner of herbs, and paſs over judgment and the love of God: theſe ought ye to have done, and not to leave the other undone.

43 Woe unto you, Phariſees! for ye love the uppermoſt ſeats in the ſynagogues, and greetings in the markets.

44 Woe unto you, ſcribes and Phariſees, hypocrites! for ye are as graves which appear not, and the men that walk over them are not aware of them.

45 Then anſwered one of the lawyers, and ſaid unto him, Maſter, thus ſaying thou reproacheſt us alſo.

46 And he ſaid, Woe unto you alſo, ye lawyers! for ye lade men with burdens grievous to be borne, and ye yourſelves touch not the burdens with one of your fingers.

47 Woe unto you! for ye build the ſepulchres of the prophets, and your fathers killed them.

48 Truly ye bear witneſs that ye allow the deeds of your fathers; for they indeed killed them, and ye build their ſepulchres.

49 Therefore alſo ſaid the wiſdom of God, I will ſend them prophets and apoſtles, and ſome of them they ſhall ſlay and perſecute;

50 That the blood of all the prophets, which was ſhed from the foundation of the world, may be required of this generation;

51 From the blood of Abel unto the blood of Zacharias, which periſhed between the altar and the temple: verily I ſay unto you, it ſhall be required of this generation.

52 Woe unto you, lawyers! for ye have taken away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourſelves, and them that were entering in ye hindered.

53 And as he ſaid theſe things unto them, the ſcribes and the Phariſees began to urge him vehemently, and to provoke him to ſpeak of many things;

54 Laying wait for him, and ſeeking to catch ſomething out of his mouth, that they might accuſe him.

CHAP. XII.

1 To avoid hypocriſy. 13 To beware of covetouſneſs. 42 The faithful and wiſe ſteward.

IN the mean time, when there were gathered together an innumerable multitude of people, inſomuch that they trode one upon another, he began to ſay unto his diſciples firſt of all, Beware ye of the leaven of the Phariſees, which is hypocriſy.

2 For there is nothing covered, that ſhall not be revealed; neither hid, that ſhall not be known.

3 Therefore whatſoever ye have ſpoken in darkneſs, ſhall be heard in the light; and that which ye have ſpoken in the ear in cloſets, ſhall be proclaimed upon the houſe-tops.

4 And I ſay unto you, my friends, Be not afraid of them that kill the body, and after that have no more that they can do:

5 But I will forewarn you whom ye ſhall fear: Fear him, which, after he hath killed, hath power to caſt into hell; yea, I ſay unto you, Fear him.

6 Are not five ſparrows ſold for two farthings? and not one of them is forgotten before God.

7 But even the very hairs of your head are all numbered. Fear not, therefore; ye are of more value than many ſparrows.

8 Alſo I ſay unto you, Whoſoever ſhall confeſs me before men, him ſhall the Son of man alſo confeſs before the angels of God:

9 But he that denieth me before men, ſhall be denied before the angels of God.

10 And whoſoever ſhall ſpeak a word againſt the Son of man, it ſhall be forgiven him: but unto him that

44 Ye are as graves which appear not, &c.) Some graves or ſepulchres were whited with chalk or lime, that people might know and avoid them, to prevent being defiled by them. Theſe are mentioned (Matt. xxiii. 27.) as full of all loathſomeneſs within, notwithſtanding the beauty of their outward appearance. But others were overgrown with herbs or graſs, which hindered their being known to be graves. Theſe are referred to here, to repreſent the danger of perſons being unawares defiled by them, becauſe they could not be diſtinguiſhed. And in both theſe conſiderations our Lord might ſpeak of them as fit emblems of the ſcribes and Phariſees, in different diſcourſes, as theſe were; for this was in the houſe of a Phariſee, (ver. 37.) but the other was ſome time after, in the temple, in the hearing of the diſciples and multitude.

46 Woe unto you, alſo ye lawyers, &c.) The former woes were denounced by our Saviour againſt the Phariſees, who had their names from an Hebrew word, which ſignifies to ſeparate, becauſe they were perſons ſeparated and ſet apart for ſtudying the law of God, and teaching it to others. The next woe is here denounced againſt the lawyers, that is, the ſcribes of the law; of which there were two ſorts, the civil ſcribe and the eccleſiaſtical ſcribe. The civil ſcribe was a public notary, or a regiſter of the ſynagogue, employed in writing bills of divorce, and ſentences in the phylacteries. The eccleſiaſtical ſcribe, was an expounder of the ſcripture, an interpreter of the law; men of great learning and knowledge, whoſe decrees and interpretations the Phariſees ſtrictly obſerved. This lawyer here inſolently calls our Saviour's reproof a reproach: however, our Saviour, who never feared the face, or regarded the perſon, of any man, gives them their portion, and lets them know wherein they were faulty as well as the Phariſees; and accordingly pronounces a woe upon them alſo, for their laying heavy burdens upon others ſhoulders, which they would not touch with one of their fingers. Theſe burdens, in general, were a rigid exaction of obedience in the whole ceremonial law; and, in particular, the burden of traditions, certain auſterities and ſeverities, which they impoſed upon the people, but would not undergo any part of them themſelves.

blaſphemeth againſt the Holy Ghoſt, it ſhall not be forgiven.

11 And when they bring you unto the ſynagogues, and unto magiſtrates and powers, take ye no thought how or what thing ye ſhall anſwer, or what ye ſhall ſay:

12 For the Holy Ghoſt ſhall teach you in the ſame hour what ye ought to ſay.

13 ¶ And one of the company ſaid unto him, Maſter, ſpeak to my brother, that he divide the inheritance with me.

14 And he ſaid unto him, Man, who made me a judge, or a divider over you?

15 And he ſaid unto them, Take heed, and beware of covetouſneſs: for a man's life conſiſteth not in the abundance of the things which he poſſeſſeth.

16 And he ſpake a parable unto them, ſaying, The ground of a certain rich man brought forth plentifully.

17 And he thought within himſelf, ſaying, What ſhall I do, becauſe I have no room where to beſtow my fruits?

18 And he ſaid, This will I do: I will pull down my barns, and build greater; and there will I beſtow all my fruits and my goods.

19 And I will ſay to my ſoul, Soul, thou haſt much goods laid up for many years; take thine eaſe, eat, drink, and be merry.

20 But God ſaid unto him, Thou fool, this night thy ſoul ſhall be required of thee: then whoſe ſhall theſe things be which thou haſt provided?

21 So is he that layeth up treaſure for himſelf, and is not rich toward God.

22 And he ſaid unto his diſciples, Therefore I ſay unto you, Take no thought for your life, what ye ſhall eat; neither for the body, what ye ſhall put on.

23 The life is more than meat, and the body is more than raiment.

24 Conſider the ravens: for they neither ſow nor reap; which neither have ſtore-houſe nor barn; and God feedeth them. How much more are ye better than the fowls?

25 And which of you, with taking thought, can add to his ſtature one cubit?

26 If ye then be not able to do that thing which is leaſt, why take ye thought for the reſt?

27 Conſider the lilies how they grow: they toil not, they ſpin not; and yet I ſay unto you, that Solomon, in all his glory, was not arrayed like one of theſe.

28 If then God ſo clothe the graſs, which is to-day in the field, and to-morrow is caſt into the oven; how much more will he clothe you, O ye of little faith?

29 And ſeek not ye what ye ſhall eat, or what ye ſhall drink, neither be ye of doubtful mind.

30 For all theſe things do the nations of the world ſeek after: and your Father knoweth that ye have need of theſe things.

31 But rather ſeek ye the kingdom of God: and all theſe things ſhall be added unto you.

32 Fear not, little flock: for it is your Father's good pleaſure to give you the kingdom.

33 Sell that ye have, and give alms; provide yourſelves bags which wax not old, a treaſure in the heavens that faileth not, where no thief approacheth, neither moth corrupteth.

34 For where your treaſure is, there will your heart be alſo.

35 Let your loins be girded about, and your lights burning;

36 And ye yourſelves like unto men that wait for their lord, when he will return from the wedding; that when he cometh and knocketh, they may open unto him immediately.

37 Bleſſed are thoſe ſervants whom the lord, when he cometh, ſhall find watching: verily I ſay unto you, That he ſhall gird himſelf, and make them to ſit down to meat, and will come forth and ſerve them.

38 And if he ſhall come in the ſecond watch, or come in the third watch, and find them ſo, bleſſed are thoſe ſervants.

39 And this know, that if the good-man of the houſe had known what hour the thief would come, he would have watched, and not have ſuffered his houſe to be broken through.

40 Be ye, therefore, ready alſo: for the Son of man cometh at an hour when ye think not.

41 Then Peter ſaid unto him, Lord, ſpeakeſt thou this parable unto us, or even to all.

42 ¶ And the Lord ſaid, Who then is that faithful and wiſe ſteward, whom his Lord ſhall make ruler over his houſehold, to give them their portion of meat in due ſeaſon?

43 Bleſſed is that ſervant, whom his lord, when he cometh, ſhall find ſo doing.

44 Of a truth I ſay unto you, that he will make him ruler over all that he hath.

45 But and if that ſervant ſay in his heart, My lord delayeth his coming; and ſhall begin to beat the men-ſervants and maidens, and to eat and drink, and to be drunken.

46 The lord of that ſervant will come in a day when he looketh not for him, and at an hour when he is not aware, and will cut him in ſunder, and will appoint him his portion with the unbelievers.

47 And that ſervant which knew his lord's will, and prepared not himſelf, neither did according to his will, ſhall be beaten with many ſtripes.

48 But he that knew not, and did commit things worthy of ſtripes, ſhall be beaten with few ſtripes. For unto whomſoever much is given, of him ſhall be much required; and to whom men have committed much, of him they will aſk the more.

Commentary on Chap. XII.

24 Conſider the ravens: for they neither ſow nor reap, &c.) Conſider the other creatures of God: the birds, beaſts, and plants, things far inferior to you, and of much leſs value in the ſight of God. Conſider how God, without their being able to provide for themſelves before hand, or ſo much as to foreſee their own wants, preſerves and nouriſhes even theſe meaner creatures, and wonderfully furniſhes things neceſſary for their ſubſiſtence in their ſeveral ſeaſons. How much more then will his all-wiſe providence provide for you, whom he hath created with ſo much greater excellencies, and ſo much nobler ends!

31 Rather ſeek ye the kingdom of God, &c.) Let your principal care, deſires, and purſuits, be after the more important, ſpiritual, and eternal bleſſings that belong to the kingdom of grace and glory; ſeek theſe, rather than even the neceſſaries of the preſent life; ſeek them firſt and principally, before and above all things elſe; and if ye are but partakers of theſe, ye may be ſure that he who has given the greater, will not with hold the leſs, but will add ſuch temporal things as he knows are fitteſt for you.

35 Let your loins be girded about, &c.) Here is a manifeſt alluſion to the long garments that uſed to be worn by the eaſtern nations down to their feet, and to be girded about the loins when any ſervice was to be attended to; as alſo to the lights that ſervants were wont to carry at weddings, which were uſually in the night.

37 He ſhall gird himſelf, &c.) We are not to ſuppoſe that this is to be underſtood literally, as if our Lord, at his ſecond glorious appearing, will put himſelf into ſuch an abject form, and miniſter to his ſaints in ſuch an humble manner, as he did when he girded himſelf and waſhed his diſciples' feet on earth: but theſe expreſſions are to be taken in a figurative ſenſe, alluding to the practice at ſome feaſts among the ancients, and particularly among the Romans at their Saturnalia, or feaſts dedicated to Saturn; where ſervants had the honour of ſitting at table, and their maſters waited upon them to ſerve them; as it is cuſtomary among ſome of our nation, in the preſent age, for the bridegroom to wait at table, like a ſervant, on his wedding-day.

49 I am come to ſend fire on the earth; and what will I if it be already kindled?

50 But I have a baptiſm to be baptized with; and how am I ſtraitened till it be accompliſhed!

51 Suppoſe ye that I am come to give peace on earth? I tell you, Nay: but rather diviſion:

52 For from henceforth there ſhall be five in one houſe divided, three againſt two, and two againſt three.

53 The father ſhall be divided againſt the ſon, and the ſon againſt the father: the mother againſt the daughter, and the daughter againſt the mother: the mother-in-law againſt her daughter-in-law, and the daughter-in-law againſt her mother-in-law.

54 And he ſaid alſo to the people, When ye ſee a cloud riſe out of the weſt, ſtraightway ye ſay, There cometh a ſhower; and ſo it is.

55 And when ye ſee the ſouth wind blow, ye ſay, There will be heat; and it cometh to paſs.

56 Ye hypocrites, ye can diſcern the face of the ſky, and of the earth; but how is it that ye do not diſcern this time?

57 Yea, and why even of yourſelves judge ye not what is right?

58 When thou goeſt with thine adverſary to the magiſtrate, as thou art in the way, give diligence that thou mayeſt be delivered from him; leſt he hale thee to the judge, and the judge deliver thee to the officer, and the officer caſt thee into priſon.

59 I tell thee, thou ſhalt not depart thence, till thou haſt paid the very laſt mite.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Chriſt preacheth repentance upon the puniſhment of the Galileans, and others. 23 The ſtrait gate.

THERE were preſent at that ſeaſon ſome that told him of the Galileans, whoſe blood Pilate had mingled with their ſacrifices.

2 And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid unto them, Suppoſe ye that theſe Galileans were ſinners above all the Galileans, becauſe they ſuffered ſuch things?

3 I tell you, Nay: but except ye repent, ye ſhall all likewiſe periſh.

4 Or thoſe eighteen upon whom the tower on Siloam fell, and ſlew them, think ye that they were ſinners above all men that dwelt in Jeruſalem?

5 I tell you, Nay: but except ye repent, ye ſhall all likewiſe periſh.

6 He ſpake alſo this parable: A certain man had a fig-tree planted in his vineyard; and he came and ſought fruit thereon, and found none.

7 Then ſaid he unto the dreſſer of his vineyard, Behold, theſe three years I come ſeeking fruit on this fig-tree, and find none: cut it down; why cumbereth it the ground?

8 And he anſwering, ſaid unto him, Lord, let it alone this year alſo, till I ſhall dig about it, and dung it:

9 And if it bear fruit, well; and if not, then after that thou ſhalt cut it down.

10 And he was teaching in one of the ſynagogues on the ſabbath,

11 And behold, there was a woman which had a ſpirit of infirmity eighteen years, and was bowed together, and could in no wiſe lift up herſelf.

12 And when Jeſus ſaw her, he called her to him, and ſaid unto her, Woman, thou art looſed from thine infirmity.

13 And he laid his hands on her; and immediately ſhe was made ſtraight, and glorified God.

14 And the ruler of the ſynagogue anſwered with indignation, becauſe that Jeſus had healed on the ſabbath-day, and ſaid unto the people, There are ſix days in which men ought to work: in them, therefore, come and be healed, and not on the ſabbath-day.

15 The Lord then anſwered him, and ſaid, Thou hypocrite, doth not each one of you on the ſabbath looſe his ox or his aſs from the ſtall, and lead him away to watering?

16 And ought not this woman, being a daughter of Abraham, whom Satan hath bound, lo, theſe eighteen years, be looſed from this bond on the ſabbath-day?

17 And when he had ſaid theſe things, all his adverſaries were aſhamed: and all the people rejoiced for all the glorious things that were done by him.

18 Then ſaid he, Unto what is the kingdom of God like? and whereunto ſhall I reſemble it?

19 It is like a grain of muſtard-ſeed, which a man took, and caſt into his garden: and it grew, and waxed a great tree; and the fowls of the air lodged in the branches of it.

20 And again he ſaid, Whereunto ſhall I liken the kingdom of God?

21 It is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three meaſures of meal, till the whole was leavened.

22 And he went through the cities and villages teaching, and journeying toward Jeruſalem.

23 ¶ Then ſaid one unto him, Lord, are there few that be ſaved? And he ſaid unto them, 24 Strive to enter in at the ſtrait gate: for many, I ſay unto you, will ſeek to enter in, and ſhall not be able.

25 When once the Maſter of the houſe is riſen up, and hath ſhut to the door, and ye begin to ſtand without, and to knock at the door, ſaying, Lord, Lord, open unto us; and he ſhall anſwer and ſay unto you, I know you not whence ye are:

26 Then ſhall ye begin to ſay, We have eaten and drunk in thy preſence, and thou haſt taught in our ſtreets.

27 But he ſhall ſay, I tell you, I know you not whence ye are: depart from me, all ye workers of iniquity.

28 There ſhall be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth, when ye ſhall ſee Abraham, and Iſaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourſelves thruſt out.

29 And they ſhall come from the eaſt, and from the weſt, and from the north, and from the ſouth, and ſhall ſit down in the kingdom of God.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIII.

3 Except ye repent, ye ſhall all likewiſe periſh.) This was literally fulfilled, according to Joſephus' account, that many thouſands of the Jews were ſlaughtered in the temple, and round about it, at the feaſt of the paſſover, becauſe of their oppoſition to the Roman yoke: and ſo their blood was mingled with their ſacrifices by the Roman ſword, and that for the ſame cauſe, as the blood of theſe Galileans had been by Pilate.

4 Or thoſe eighteen upon whom the tower on Siloam fell, &c.) Some authors ſuppoſe that this was a tower of Siloam, which was the ſame with, or at leaſt communicated its water to, the pool of Bethſda: that it belonged to one of the porches where the impotent people lay watching for the moving of the waters; and that ſome of them, or ſome others, who came thither to purify themſelves for the temple-ſervice, were killed by the ſudden fall of that tower. But when or how this tower fell, or where it ſtood, is uncertain, there being no other account of it, either in ſacred or civil hiſtory, than what is here ſaid about it, where our Lord ſpeaks of its fall as a remarkable well-known fact in thoſe days.

25 When once the maſter of the houſe is riſen up, &c.) It is now the time of mercy, and God now graciouſly offers you the means of reconciliation, and invites you to mercy and eternal life; but if ye neglect the preſent means of grace, or, inſtead of heartily obeying God's commands, ye content yourſelves with a bare outward and formal profeſſion of religion, the time of judgment will come, when it will be too late to repent and cry for mercy; for Chriſt will then utterly diſown you, and declare that he never conſidered you as his true diſciples.

30 And, behold, there are last which shall be first; and there are first which shall be last.

31 The same day there came certain of the Pharisees, saying unto him, Get thee out, and depart hence: for Herod will kill thee.

32 And he said unto them, Go ye and tell that fox, Behold, I cast out devils, and I do cures to-day and to-morrow, and the third day I shall be perfected.

33 Nevertheless, I must walk to-day and to-morrow, and the day following: for it cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem.

34 O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not!

35 Behold, your house is left unto you desolate: and verily I say unto you, Ye shall not see me until the time come when ye shall say, blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord.

CHAP. XIV.

¶ Christ teacheth humility, 12 and to feed the poor. 16 The parable of the great supper. 25 Who cannot be Christ's disciples.

AND it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath-day, that they watched him.

2 And, behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy.

3 And Jesus answering, spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath-day?

4 And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go;

5 And answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath-day?

6 And they could not answer him again to these things.

7 ¶ And he put forth a parable to those which were bidden, when he marked how they chose out the chief rooms: saying unto them,

8 When thou art bidden of any man to a wedding, sit not down in the highest room, lest a more honourable man than thou be bidden of him;

9 And he that bade thee and him, come and say to thee, Give this man place: and thou begin with shame to take the lowest room.

10 But when thou art bidden, go and sit down in the lowest room; that when he that bade thee cometh, he may say unto thee, Friend, go up higher: then shalt thou have worship in the presence of them that sit at meat with thee.

11 For whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

12 ¶ Then said he also to him that bade him, When thou makest a dinner or a supper, call not thy friends, nor thy brethren, neither thy kinsmen, nor thy rich neighbours; lest they also bid thee again, and a recompence be made thee.

13 But when thou makest a feast, call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind:

14 And thou shalt be blessed; for they cannot recompense thee: for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just.

15 And when one of them that sat at meat with him heard these things, he said unto him, Blessed is he that shall eat bread in the kingdom of God.

16 ¶ Then said he unto him, A certain man made a great supper, and bade many:

17 And sent his servant at supper-time to say to them that were bidden, Come; for all things are now ready.

18 And they all with one consent began to make excuse. The first said unto him, I have bought a piece of ground, and I must needs go and see it: I pray thee have me excused.

19 And another said, I have bought five yoke of oxen, and I go to prove them: I pray thee have me excused.

20 And another said, I have married a wife, and therefore I cannot come.

21 So that servant came, and shewed his lord these things. Then the master of the house, being angry, said to his servant, Go out quickly into the streets and lanes of the city, and bring in hither the poor, and the maimed, and the halt, and the blind.

22 And the servant said, Lord, it is done as thou hast commanded, and yet there is room.

23 And the lord said unto the servant, Go out into the high-ways and hedges, and compel them to come in, that my house may be filled.

24 For I say unto you, That none of those men which were bidden shall taste of my supper.

25 ¶ And there went great multitudes with him: and he turned, and said unto them,

26 If any man come to me, and hate not his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brethren, and sisters, yea, and his own life also, he cannot be my disciple.

27 And whosoever doth not bear his cross, and come after me, cannot be my disciple.

28 For which of you, intending to build a tower, sitteth not down first and counteth the cost, whether he have sufficient to finish it?

29 Lest haply, after he hath laid the foundation, and is not able to finish it, all that behold it begin to mock him,

30 Saying, This man began to build, and was not able to finish.

32 Go ye and tell that fox, &c.) Though this dishonourable appellation of a prince from a private person might be thought opprobrious language, and a reviling of the rulers, contrary to God's law; yet it was not so in Christ, who herein acted under the character of a prophet; and so, by virtue of his office, had liberty and commission to reprove, and that sharply, the greatest princes upon earth; according to what God said to Jeremiah, (chap. i. 17. 18.) and the name which Christ gave Herod most fitly agreed to his crafty character and conduct, particularly on this occasion.

34 O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, &c.) Our Lord concludes this chapter with a compassionate lamentation over Jerusalem, the place where he was to suffer. His ingemination, or doubling of the word, O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, shews the vehemency of his affection towards them, and the sincerity of his desires for their salvation. Hence we may observe the kindness and compassion of Christ to the Jews in general, and Jerusalem in particular, set forth by a lively metaphor and similitude, namely, that of a hen gathering her chickens under her wings: as the hen doth tenderly cherish and carefully hide and cover her young from the eye of the destroyer, so would Christ have shrouded and sheltered this people from all those birds of prey, and particularly from the Roman eagle, by whose talons they were at last destroyed.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIV.

15 Blessed is he that shall eat bread, &c.) To eat bread was an usual phrase for a whole meal, whether of common or delicious provisions, (2 Sam. ix. 7, xii. 17. and Prov. ix. 5.) And as the company were now at table, and Christ's discourse had turned upon spiritual subjects, in allusion to a feast; the advantages of religion here, and the blessedness of heaven hereafter, are very seasonably expressed by the metaphor, of eating bread in the kingdom of God: though, as some tell us, this was a saying common among the Rabbins from Esdras' days; and it is probable that this man had carnal notions about the honours of the Messiah's kingdom, when he used it.

31 Or what king, going to make war againſt another king, ſitteth not down firſt, and conſulteth whether he be able, with ten thouſand, to meet him that cometh againſt him with twenty thouſand?

32 Or elſe, while the other is yet a great way off, he ſendeth an ambaſſage, and deſireth conditions of peace.

33 So likewiſe, whoſoever he be of you that forſaketh not all that he hath, he cannot be my diſciple.

34 ¶ Salt is good: but if the ſalt have loſt its ſavour, wherewith ſhall it be ſeaſoned?

35 It is neither fit for the land, nor yet for the dunghill; but men caſt it out. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear.

CHAP. XV.

3 The parable of the loſt ſheep, 8 of the piece of ſilver, 11 of the prodigal ſon.

THEN drew near unto him all the publicans and ſinners for to hear him.

2 And the Phariſees and ſcribes murmured, ſaying, This man receiveth ſinners, and eateth with them.

3 ¶ And he ſpake this parable unto them, ſaying,

4 What man of you, having an hundred ſheep, if he loſe one of them, doth not leave the ninety and nine in the wilderneſs, and go after that which is loſt, until he find it?

5 And when he hath found it, he layeth it on his ſhoulders rejoicing.

6 And when he cometh home, he calleth together his friends and neighbours, ſaying unto them, Rejoice with me; for I have found my ſheep which was loſt.

7 I ſay unto you, That likewiſe joy ſhall be in heaven over one ſinner that repenteth, more than over ninety and nine juſt perſons, which need no repentance.

8 Either what woman, having ten pieces of ſilver, if ſhe loſe one piece, doth not light a candle, and ſweep the houſe, and ſeek diligently till ſhe find it?

9 And when ſhe hath found it, ſhe calleth her friends and her neighbours together, ſaying, Rejoice with me: for I have found the piece which I had loſt.

10 Likewiſe, I ſay unto you, There is joy in the preſence of the angels of God over one ſinner that repenteth.

11 ¶ And he ſaid, A certain man had two ſons:

12 And the younger of them ſaid to his father, Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me. And he divided unto them his living.

13 And not many days after the younger ſon gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there waſted his ſubſtance with riotous living.

14 And when he had ſpent all, there aroſe a mighty famine in that land; and he began to be in want.

15 And he went and joined himſelf to a citizen of that country; and he ſent him into his fields to feed ſwine.

16 And he would fain have filled his belly with the huſks that the ſwine did eat: and no man gave unto him.

17 And when he came to himſelf, he ſaid, How many hired ſervants of my father's have bread enough, and to ſpare, and I periſh with hunger!

18 I will ariſe, and go to my father, and will ſay unto him, Father, I have ſinned againſt heaven, and before thee,

19 And am no more worthy to be called thy ſon: make me as one of thy hired ſervants.

20 And he aroſe, and came to his father. But when he was yet a great way off, his father ſaw him, and had compaſſion, and ran, and fell on his neck, and kiſſed him.

21 And the ſon ſaid unto him, Father, I have ſinned againſt heaven, and in thy ſight, and am no more worthy to be called thy ſon.

22 But the father ſaid to his ſervants, Bring forth the beſt robe, and put it on him; and put a ring on his hand, and ſhoes on his feet:

23 And bring hither the fatted calf, and kill it; and let us eat and be merry:

24 For this my ſon was dead, and is alive again; he was loſt, and is found. And they began to be merry.

25 Now, his elder ſon was in the field: and as he came and drew nigh to the houſe, he heard muſic and dancing,

26 And he called one of the ſervants, and aſked what theſe things meant.

27 And he ſaid unto him, Thy brother is come; and thy father hath killed the fatted calf, becauſe he hath received him ſafe and ſound.

28 And he was angry, and would not go in: therefore came his father out, and entreated him.

29 And he anſwering, ſaid to his father, Lo, theſe many years do I ſerve thee; neither tranſgreſſed I at any time thy commandment; and yet thou never gaveſt me a kid, that I might make merry with my friends;

30 But as ſoon as this thy ſon was come, which hath devoured thy living with harlots, thou haſt killed for him the fatted calf.

31 And he ſaid unto him, Son, thou art ever with me, and all that I have is thine.

32 It was meet that we ſhould make merry, and be glad: for this thy brother was dead, and is alive again; and was loſt, and is found.

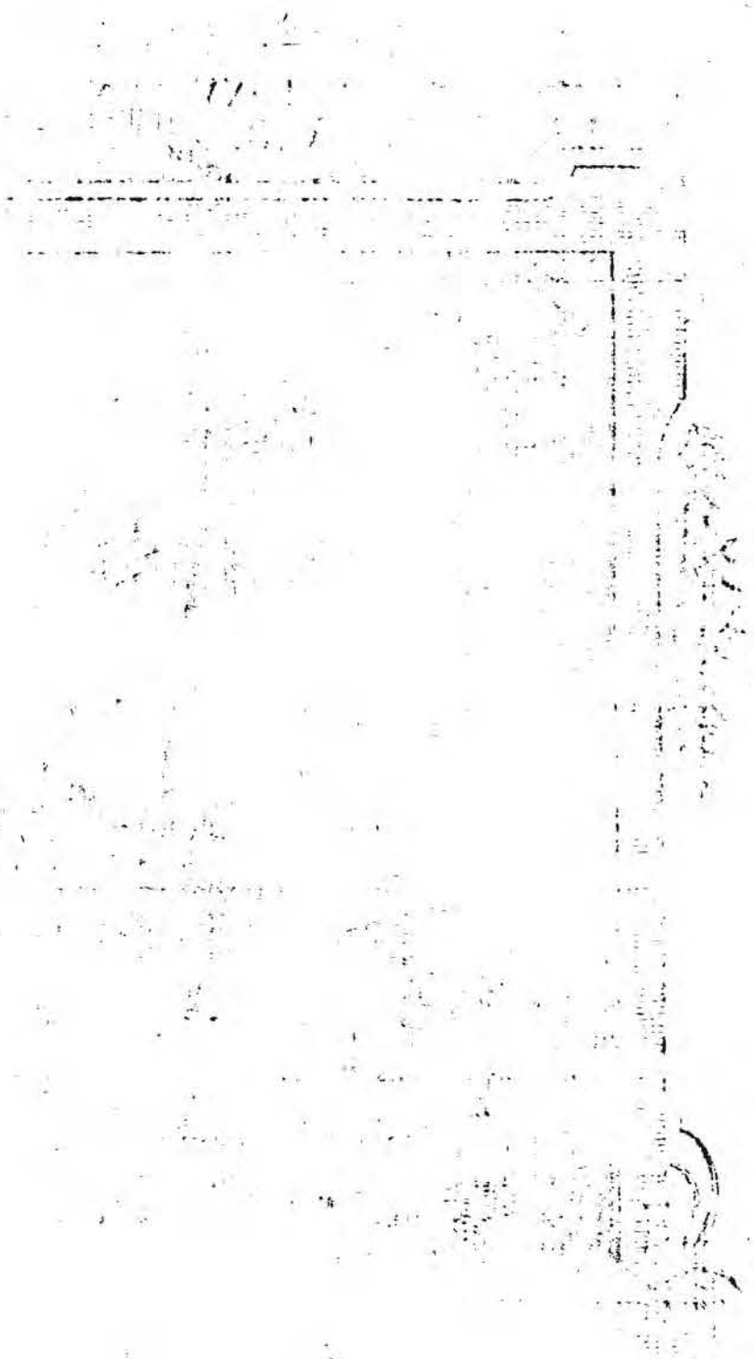
33 So likewiſe, whoſoever he be, &c.) If therefore wiſe men, in all other caſes, before they enter on any great undertaking, mutually weigh and conſider well within themſelves every difficulty and every danger they are likely to meet with in every enterprize they are going to undertake; how much more reaſonable and neceſſary is it for you that will be my diſciples, before you undertake things of the higheſt concern and greateſt importance in the world, to conſider thoroughly all the difficulties and dangers of it? eſpecially as no man can be a real Chriſtian who has not reſolution enough to prefer his religion and his duty before all temporal enjoyments and conſiderations whatſoever; whoever therefore will be my diſciple muſt conſider and reſolve before-hand, to part readily with all temporal enjoyments whenever they come in competition with his duty.



COMMENTARY on Chap. XV.

1 Then drew near unto him all the publicans and ſinners, &c.) It ſeems that our Lord was now in Galilee of the Gentiles, beyond Jordan, from whence he afterwards went to Jeruſalem, (ch. xvii 11.) and that the ſinners, here mentioned ſo emphatically, were ſinners of the Gentiles, which beſt agrees with the ſcope of the following parables.

3 He ſpake this parable unto them.) Here are three parables of like import, the two firſt of which repreſent the grace of God in ſearching his people out, chiefly among the Gentiles; and the other[s] in receiving them with great kindneſs upon their return to him; and all of them repreſent the great pleaſure he has in their ſalvation.

10 There is joy in the preſence of the angels of God over one ſinner that repenteth.) The converſion of a ſinner from a courſe and ſtate of ſin and wickedneſs is highly acceptable and pleaſing to God. It is reaſonable to ſuppoſe that the holy angels in heaven do conceive a new joy at the notice and news of a ſinner's repentance and converſion unto God. How the angels come by this knowledge, whether by virtue of their miniſtry here below, or whether God is pleaſed to reveal it to them above, as a thing extremely welcome and delightful to good ſpirits, 'tis neither material to enquire, nor poſſible to determine: but their happineſs not being intenſively infinite, it is certain that they may be happier than they are. God is not only willing to receive and embrace repenting and returning ſinners, but the news of their repentance is entertained with ſo much joy in heaven, that if it be poſſible for the bleſſed inhabitants of that place to have any thing added to their happineſs, this will be a new acceſſion to it: for though the happineſs of God himſelf be intenſively infinite, and can have nothing added to it, yet the happineſs of angels and glorified ſpirits being but finite, is capable of additions; and as their knowledge and love increaſe, ſo their felicity may be growing and improving to all eternity: ſo that it is reaſonable enough to ſuppoſe that there is really joy among the angels and ſpirits of juſt men made perfect, over every ſinner that repenteth.

Luke XV
V. 16.
THE PRODIGAL SON

CHAP. XVI.

1 Of the unjuſt ſteward. 14 The hypocriſy of the covetous Phariſees reproved. 19 The rich glutton, and Lazarus the beggar.

AND he ſaid alſo unto his diſciples, There was a certain rich man which had a ſteward; and the ſame was accuſed unto him that he had waſted his goods.

2 And he called him, and ſaid unto him, How is it that I hear this of thee? give an account of thy ſtewardſhip; for thou mayeſt be no longer ſteward.

3 Then the ſteward ſaid within himſelf, What ſhall I do, for my lord taketh away from me the ſtewardſhip? I cannot dig; to beg I am aſhamed.

4 I am reſolved what to do, that, when I am put out of the ſtewardſhip, they may receive me into their houſes.

5 So he called every one of his lord's debtors unto him, and ſaid unto the firſt, How much oweſt thou unto my lord?

6 And he ſaid, An hundred meaſures of oil. And he ſaid unto him, Take thy bill, and ſit down quickly, and write fifty.

7 Then ſaid he to another, And how much oweſt thou? And he ſaid, An hundred meaſures of wheat. And he ſaid unto him, Take thy bill, and write fourſcore.

8 And the lord commended the unjuſt ſteward, becauſe he had done wiſely: for the children of this world are in their generation wiſer than the children of light.

9 And I ſay unto you, Make to yourſelves friends of the mammon of unrighteouſneſs; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlaſting habitations.

10 He that is faithful in that which is leaſt, is faithful alſo in much; and he that is unjuſt in the leaſt, is unjuſt alſo in much.

11 If, therefore, ye have not been faithful in the unrighteous mammon, who will commit to your truſt the true riches?

12 And if ye have not been faithful in that which is another man's, who ſhall give you that which is your own?

13 No ſervant can ſerve two maſters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or elſe he will hold to the one, and deſpiſe the other. Ye cannot ſerve God and mammon.

14 ¶ And the Phariſees alſo, who were covetous, heard all theſe things; and they derided him.

15 And he ſaid unto them, Ye are they which juſtify yourſelves before men; but God knoweth your hearts: for that which is highly eſteemed among men, is abomination in the ſight of God.

16 The law and the prophets were until John: ſince that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man preſſeth into it.

17 And it is eaſier for heaven and earth to paſs, than one tittle of the law to fail.

18 Whoſoever putteth away his wife, and marrieth another, committeth adultery; and whoſoever marrieth her that is put away from her huſband, committeth adultery.

19 ¶ There was a certain rich man, which was clothed in purple and fine linen, and fared ſumptuouſly every day:

20 And there was a certain beggar named Lazarus, which was laid at his gate, full of ſores,

21 And deſiring to be fed with the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table: moreover, the dogs came and licked his ſores.

22 And it came to paſs, that the beggar died, and was carried by the angels into Abraham's boſom: the rich man alſo died, and was buried;

23 And in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments, and ſeeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his boſom.

24 And he cried, and ſaid, Father Abraham, have mercy on me, and ſend Lazarus, that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am tormented in this flame.

25 But Abraham ſaid, Son, remember that thou in thy life-time receiveds't thy good things, and likewiſe Lazarus evil things: but now he is comforted, and thou art tormented.

26 And beſides all this, between us and you there is a great gulf fixed: ſo that they which would paſs from hence to you cannot; neither can they paſs to us that would come from thence.

27 Then he ſaid, I pray thee, therefore, father, that thou wouldeſt ſend him to my father's houſe:

28 For I have five brethren; that he may teſtify unto them, leſt they alſo come into this place of torment.

29 Abraham ſaith unto him, They have Moſes and the prophets; let them hear them.

30 And he ſaid, Nay, father Abraham: but if one went unto them from the dead, they will repent.

31 And he ſaid unto them, If they hear not Moſes and the prophets, neither will they be perſuaded, tho' one roſe from the dead.

CHAP. XVII.

1 To avoid giving offence. 3 One to forgive another. 11 The ten lepers. 24 The manner of Chriſt's coming.

THEN ſaid he unto the diſciples, It is impoſſible but that offences will come: but woe unto him through whom they come!

2 It were better for him that a millſtone were hanged about his neck, and he caſt into the ſea, than that he ſhould offend one of theſe little ones.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVI.

8 And the lord commended the unjuſt ſteward, &c.) Some ſuppoſe that the lord here intended is Chriſt himſelf, who paſſed this judgment upon the ſteward's conduct.

9 Make to yourſelves friends of the mammon of unrighteouſneſs, &c.) Mammon ſignifies riches, and, according to the heathen theology, was the god of plenty; and all the treaſures of this world are here called the mammon or riches of unrighteouſneſs, in oppoſition to the true riches (ver. 11.) becauſe they are empty and unſatisfying, precarious and diſappointing to the expectations of thoſe who place their happineſs in them: and yet they may likewiſe be ſo called, becauſe they are often unjuſtly obtained and poſſeſſed, abuſed and made the means of corrupting many, and are the only portion of unrighteous men.

19, 20 There was a certain rich man, &c.) By the rich man clothed in purple, Chriſt perhaps pointed to Herod; and by Lazarus, which ſignifies one who has God for his help, he might mean ſome eminently pious man of that name, who was a known beggar in thoſe days.

22 And was carried by the angels into Abraham's boſom, &c.) Abraham's boſom was a phraſe by which the Jews expreſſed the happineſs of the ſouls of the righteous, immediately upon their death, which they uſed to ſay were carried thither by good angels: and this deſcription of heavenly bleſſedneſs ſeems to allude to the poſture that was cuſtomary among the ancients at their feaſts, where the gueſts ſat leaning backwards, the ſecond in the boſom of the firſt, and ſo on to the laſt: thus the beloved diſciple leant on Jeſus' boſom, (John xiii. 23.) And ſo poor Lazarus had the honour and the felicity of being placed next to Abraham, the father of the faithful, and the friend of God, to ſhare in communion and reſt, in refreſhment and entertainment with him, as Chriſt does with his Father, who is ſaid to be in his boſom, John i. 18.

23 And in hell he lift up his eyes, &c.) The word here tranſlated hell, properly ſignifies the ſtate of ſeparate ſouls; and it appears from hence, as alſo from this rich man's having five brethren ſtill living upon earth, under the means of grace, that his miſery and Lazarus' bleſſedneſs immediately followed their reſpective deaths, tho' their different ſtates are repreſented, in a figurative ſtrain, by moſt affecting images, taken from the body, and from what is known to be moſt ſenſibly touching to it, in the painful or pleaſing way.

3 ¶ Take heed to yourſelves: If thy brother treſpaſs againſt thee, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him.

4 And if he treſpaſs againſt thee ſeven times in a day, and ſeven times in a day turn again to thee, ſaying, I repent; thou ſhalt forgive him.

5 And the apoſtles ſaid unto the Lord, Increaſe our faith.

6 And the Lord ſaid, If ye had faith as a grain of muſtard-ſeed, ye might ſay unto this ſycamine-tree, Be thou plucked up by the root, and be thou planted in the ſea; and it ſhould obey you.

7 But which of you, having a ſervant plowing, or feeding cattle, will ſay unto him by and by, when he is come from the field, Go and ſit down to meat?

8 And will not rather ſay unto him, Make ready wherewith I may ſup, and gird thyſelf, and ſerve me, till I have eaten and drunken; and afterward thou ſhalt eat and drink?

9 Doth he thank that ſervant, becauſe he did the things that were commanded him? I trow not.

10 So likewiſe ye, when ye ſhall have done all thoſe things which are commanded you, ſay, We are unprofitable ſervants: we have done that which was our duty to do.

11 ¶ And it came to paſs, as he went to Jeruſalem, that he paſſed through the midſt of Samaria and Galilee.

12 And as he entered into a certain village, there met him ten men that were lepers, which ſtood afar off:

13 And they lifted up their voices, and ſaid, Jeſus, Maſter, have mercy on us.

14 And when he ſaw them, he ſaid unto them, Go, ſhew yourſelves unto the prieſts. And it came to paſs, that, as they went, they were cleanſed.

15 And one of them, when he ſaw that he was healed, turned back, and with a loud voice glorified God,

16 And fell down on his face at his feet, giving him thanks; and he was a Samaritan.

17 And Jeſus anſwering, ſaid, Were there not ten cleanſed? but where are the nine?

18 There are not found that returned to give glory to God, ſave this ſtranger.

19 And he ſaid unto him, Ariſe, go thy way; thy faith hath made thee whole.

20 And when he was demanded of the Phariſees when the kingdom of God ſhould come, he anſwered them and ſaid, The kingdom of God cometh not with obſervation.

21 Neither ſhall they ſay, Lo here; or, lo there: for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you.

22 And he ſaid unto the diſciples, The days will come, when ye ſhall deſire to ſee one of the days of the Son of man, and ye ſhall not ſee it.

23 And they ſhall ſay to you, See here; or, ſee there; go not after them, nor follow them.

24 ¶ For as the lightning that lighteneth out of the one part under heaven, ſhineth unto the other part under heaven; ſo ſhall alſo the Son of man be in his day.

25 But firſt muſt he ſuffer many things, and be rejected of this generation.

26 And as it was in the days of Noe, ſo ſhall it be alſo in the days of the Son of man.

27 They did eat, they drank, they married wives, they were given in marriage, until the day that Noe entered into the ark; and the flood came, and deſtroyed them all.

28 Likewiſe alſo, as it was in the days of Lot; they did eat, they drank, they bought, they ſold, they planted, they builded:

29 But the ſame day that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimſtone from heaven, and deſtroyed them all.

30 Even thus ſhall it be in the day when the Son of man is revealed.

31 In that day he which ſhall be upon the houſe-top, and his ſtuff in the houſe, let him not come down to take it away: and he that is in the field, let him likewiſe not return back.

32 Remember Lot's wife.

33 Whoſoever ſhall ſeek to ſave his life, ſhall loſe it; and whoſoever ſhall loſe his life, ſhall preſerve it.

34 I tell you, In that night there ſhall be two men in one bed; the one ſhall be taken, and the other ſhall be left.

35 Two women ſhall be grinding together; the one ſhall be taken, and the other left.

36 Two men ſhall be in the field; the one ſhall be taken, and the other left.

37 And they anſwered and ſaid unto him, Where, Lord? And he ſaid unto them, Wherefoever the body is, thither will the eagles be gathered together.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 The importunate widow. 9 The Phariſee and publican. 15 Children brought to Chriſt. 28 All to be left for Chriſt's ſake.

AND he ſpake a parable unto them to this end, that men ought always to pray, and not to faint;

2 Saying, There was in a city a judge, which feared not God, neither regarded man:

3 And there was a widow in that city; and ſhe came unto him, ſaying, Avenge me of mine adverſary.

4 And he would not for a while; but afterward he ſaid within himſelf, Though I fear not God, nor regard man;

5 Yet, becauſe this widow troubleth me, I will avenge her, leſt by her continual coming ſhe weary me.

6 And the Lord ſaid, Hear what the unjuſt judge ſaith.

7 And ſhall not God avenge his own elect, which

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVII.

17 But where are the nine?) The ingratitude of the Jews will appear monſtrous, if we conſider that leproſy, the malady from which they were delivered, is in itſelf one of the moſt loathſome diſeaſes incident to human nature, and a diſeaſe which, by the law of Moſes, ſubjected them to greater hardſhips than any diſtemper whatſoever. But though the cure of this dreadful diſeaſe was performed without the ſmalleſt pain, or even trouble to the lepers, and ſo ſpeedily that it was completed by the time they had got a ſmall diſtance from him, the Jews would not give themſelves the trouble of returning to glorify God, by making the miracle public, nor to honour Jeſus by acknowledging the favour. Such were the people that gloried in being holy, and inſolently called the men of all other nations dogs.

26 The days of Noe, &c.) The days of Noe, in this paſſage, ſignify the days in which he preached to the old world, the righteouſneſs they ought to have practiſed, and denounced the judgments of God to fall on them, if they did not repent of their wickedneſs. By parity of reaſon, the days of the Son of man ſignify the days in which Chriſt and his apoſtles preached to the Jewiſh nation, whoſe behaviour here is ſaid to have been the ſame with that of the old world, and of the Sodomites under the preaching of Noah and Lot. They went on ſecure, and wholly intent upon their worldly affairs, without being in the leaſt moved by the warnings of the divine judgments which Jeſus and his apoſtles gave them: for which cauſe theſe judgments fell on them and deſtroyed them.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVIII.

1 Men ought always to pray, &c.) As prayer is the duty of all, and believers are a generation that ſeek God's face, our Lord intimated, that they ought daily to go on with perſeverance in that duty, and not give way to deſpondency, becauſe of any preſent troubles, or becauſe their prayers are not immediately anſwered.

cry day and night unto him, though he bear long with them?

8 I tell you, that he will avenge them speedily. Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?

9 ¶ And he spake this parable unto certain which trusted in themselves that they were righteous, and despised others:

10 Two men went up into the temple to pray; the one a Pharisee, and the other a publican.

11 The Pharisee stood, and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican.

12 I fast twice in the week, I give tythes of all that I possess.

13 And the publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote upon his breast, saying, God be merciful to me a sinner.

14 I tell you, This man went down to his house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted.

15 ¶ And they brought unto him also infants, that he would touch them: but when his disciples saw it, they rebuked them.

16 But Jesus called them unto him, and said, Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God.

17 Verily I say unto you, Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, shall in no wise enter therein.

18 And a certain ruler asked him, saying, Good Master, what shall I do to inherit eternal life?

19 And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? none is good, save one, that is God.

20 Thou knowest the commandments, Do not commit adultery, Do not kill, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Honour thy father and thy mother.

21 And he said, All these have I kept from my youth up.

22 Now when Jesus had heard these things, he said unto him, Yet lackest thou one thing: sell all that thou hast, and distribute unto the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, follow me.

23 And when he heard this he was very sorrowful: for he was very rich.

24 And when Jesus saw that he was very sorrowful, he said, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God!

25 For it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God.

26 And they that heard it said, Who then can be saved?

27 And he said, The things which are impossible with men are possible with God.

28 ¶ Then Peter said, Lo, we have left all, and followed thee.

29 And he said unto them, Verily I say unto you, there is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdom of God's sake,

30 Who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting.

31 Then he took unto him the twelve, and said unto them, Behold, we go up to Jerusalem, and all things that are written by the prophets concerning the Son of man shall be accomplished.

32 For he shall be delivered unto the Gentiles, and shall be mocked, and spitefully entreated, and spitted on;

33 And they shall scourge him, and put him to death: and the third day he shall rise again.

34 And they understood none of these things: and this saying was hid from them, neither knew they the things which were spoken.

35 And it came to pass, that as he was come nigh unto Jericho, a certain blind man sat by the way-side begging:

36 And hearing the multitude pass by, he asked what it meant.

37 And they told him, that Jesus of Nazareth passeth by.

38 And he cried, saying, Jesus, thou son of David, have mercy on me.

39 And they which went before rebuked him, that he should hold his peace: but he cried so much the more, Thou son of David, have mercy on me.

40 And Jesus stood, and commanded him to be brought unto him: and, when he was come near, he asked him, 41 Saying, What wilt thou that I shall do unto thee? And he said, Lord, that I may receive my sight.

42 And Jesus said unto him, Receive thy sight: thy faith hath saved thee.

43 And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto God.

CHAP. XIX.

1 Zaccheus a publican. 13 The ten pieces of money. 28 Christ rideth into Jerusalem, 45 purgeth the temple.

AND Jesus entered and passed through Jericho.

2 And behold, there was a man named Zaccheus, which was the chief among the publicans, and he was rich.

3 And he sought to see Jesus who he was, and could not for the press, because he was little of stature.

4 And he ran before, and climbed up into a sycamore-tree to see him; for he was to pass that way.

5 And when Jesus came to the place, he looked up and saw him, and said unto him, Zaccheus, make haste and come down; for to-day I must abide at thy house.

6 And he made haste, and came down, and received him joyfully.

7 And when they saw it, they all murmured, saying, That he was gone to be guest with a man that is a sinner.

8 And Zaccheus stood, and said unto the Lord, Behold, Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor:

10 Two men went up into the temple to pray, &c.) The temple stood upon mount Moriah: and it was usual for the people of God to go up thither and offer their prayers, because it was not only the appointed place; but likewise the medium of acceptable worship, as it was a type of Christ.

18 Good Master, &c.) This the ambitious rabbies of that age affected to be honoured with; but, as some suppose, it was an higher title than used to be given, even to the most celebrated among them.

20 Thou knowest the commandments, &c.) Christ instanced only in these duties of the second table, that he might convince the ruler of his defect even in them, and so might shew him that he was far from having duly kept the whole law.

Commentary on Chap. XIX.

2 Zaccheus, which was the chief among the publicans.) This Zaccheus was probably a Jew, as his name intimates, it being a common name among that people: however, his office, and the abusive methods with which it was ordinarily managed, rendered him odious to them; and the greater he was, the more criminal and detestable they accounted him.

and

and if I have taken any thing from any man by falſe accuſation, I reſtore him four-fold.

9 And Jeſus ſaid unto him, This day is ſalvation come to this houſe, forſomuch as he alſo is a ſon of Abraham.

10 For the Son of man is come to ſeek and to ſave that which was loſt.

11 And as they heard theſe things, he added and ſpake a parable, becauſe he was nigh to Jeruſalem, and becauſe they thought that the kingdom of God ſhould immediately appear.

12 He ſaid, therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country to receive for himſelf a kingdom and to return.

13 ¶ And he called his ten ſervants, and delivered them ten pounds, and ſaid unto them, Occupy till I come.

14 But his citizens hated him, and ſent a meſſage after him, ſaying, We will not have this man to reign over us.

15 And it came to paſs, that when he was returned, having received the kingdom, then he commanded theſe ſervants to be called unto him, to whom he had given the money, that he might know how much every man had gained by trading.

16 Then came the firſt, ſaying, Lord, thy pound hath gained ten pounds.

17 And he ſaid unto him, Well, thou good ſervant: becauſe thou haſt been faithful in a very little, have thou authority over ten cities.

18 And the ſecond came, ſaying, Lord, thy pound hath gained five pounds.

19 And he ſaid likewiſe to him, Be thou alſo over five cities.

20 And another came, ſaying, Lord, behold, here is thy pound, which I have kept laid up in a napkin:

21 For I feared thee, becauſe thou art an auſtere man; thou takeſt up that thou laideſt not down, and reapeſt that thou didſt not ſow.

22 And he ſaith unto him, Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee, thou wicked ſervant. Thou kneweſt that I was an auſtere man, taking up that I laid not down, and reaping that I did not ſow:

23 Wherefore then gaveſt not thou my money into the bank, that at my coming I might have required mine own with uſury?

24 And he ſaid unto them that ſtood by, Take from him the pound, and give it to him that hath ten pounds.

25 (And they ſaid unto him, Lord he hath ten pounds.)

26 For I ſay unto you, That unto every one which hath ſhall be given; and from him that hath not, even that he hath ſhall be taken away from him.

27 But thoſe mine enemies, which would not that I ſhould reign over them, bring hither, and ſlay them before me.

28 And when he had thus ſpoken, he went before, aſcending up to Jeruſalem.

29 And it came to paſs, when he was come nigh to Bethphage and Bethany, at the mount called the mount of Olives, he ſent two of his diſciples, 30 Saying, Go ye into the village over againſt you; in the which, at your entering, ye ſhall find a colt tied, whereon yet never man ſat: looſe him, and bring him hither.

31 And if any man aſk you, Why do ye looſe him? thus ſhall ye ſay unto him, Becauſe the Lord hath need of him.

32 And they that were ſent went their way, and found even as he had ſaid unto them.

33 And as they were looſing the colt, the owners thereof ſaid unto them, Why looſe ye the colt?

34 And they ſaid, The Lord hath need of him.

35 And they brought him to Jeſus: and they caſt their garments upon the colt, and they ſet Jeſus thereon.

36 And as he went they ſpread their clothes in the way.

37 And when he was come nigh, even now at the deſcent of the mount of Olives, the whole multitude of the diſciples began to rejoice, and praiſe God with a loud voice, for all the mighty works that they had ſeen;

38 Saying, Bleſſed be the King that cometh in the name of the Lord; peace in heaven, and glory in the higheſt.

39 And ſome of the Phariſees from among the multitude ſaid unto him, Maſter, rebuke thy diſciples.

40 And he anſwered and ſaid unto them, I tell you, that if theſe ſhould hold their peace, the ſtones would immediately cry out.

41 And when he was come near, he beheld the city, and wept over it,

42 Saying, If thou hadſt known, even thou, at leaſt in this thy day, the things which belong unto thy peace! but now they are hid from thine eyes.

43 For the days ſhall come upon thee, that thine enemies ſhall caſt a trench about thee, and compaſs thee round, and keep thee in on every ſide,

44 And ſhall lay thee even with the ground, and thy children within thee; and they ſhall not leave in thee one ſtone upon another; becauſe thou kneweſt not the time of thy viſitation.

45 ¶ And he went into the temple, and began to caſt out them that ſold therein, and them that bought,

46 Saying unto them, It is written, My houſe is the houſe of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves.

47 And he taught daily in the temple. But the chief prieſts, and the ſcribes, and the chief of the people, ſought to deſtroy him;

48 And could not find what they might do: for all the people were very attentive to hear him.

8 If I have taken any thing from any man, &c.) In caſes of theft and fraud, and ſwearing falſely, to deprive another of his property, the law required a reſtoration of the principal, with the addition of a fifth part, (Lev. vi. 2—5.) If the theft was found in a man's poſſeſſion, it required reſtoring double; and for a ſtolen ox that was killed or ſold, it demanded five oxen to be reſtored, (Exod. xxii. 1. 4.) Zaccheus therefore, to ſhew the ſincerity of his repentance, declared himſelf willing to comply with the ſtricteſt of all the laws about reſtitution. And repentance can never be proved to be ſincere, without reſtitution for the injuries we have done to others, according to our ability, and the opportunities we may have for it. This is the genuine way in which true grace works in the heart, and where there is no concern about this, when we have cheated, robbed, or defrauded any man, in vain do we flatter ourſelves that our repentance is unto life.

12 A certain nobleman went into a far country, &c.) Here ſeems to be an alluſion to the kings of Judea, who uſed to go to Rome to receive the inveſtiture of their kingdoms from the Roman emperors, and then return to Judea in the full glory of their character.

13 Ten pounds.) The value of a pound is uncertain, tho' ſome have reckoned it at about three pounds two ſhillings and ſix-pence, and others at twice as much of our money.

41 He beheld the city, and wept over it.) He did this to ſhew that he had the real affections of human nature, was tenderly touched with the thoughts of Jeruſalem's iniquities and miſeries, and would try all proper means to awaken a juſt concern in the people's minds about their own ſin and ruin.

44 And ſhall lay thee even with the ground, &c.) All this was exactly verified, when, about forty years afterwards, Titus beſieged Jeruſalem, caſt up a trench, and built a wall round about it, that none of the Jews might eſcape; and at laſt, the temple being fired contrary to his will, he commanded the ſoldiers to dig up the foundations of the temple and city, and lay all level, except three towers, which in Julian the apoſtate's days were alſo levelled with the ground, as we are told by Joſephus and other hiſtorians.

CHAP. XX.

1 Christ avoucheth his authority. 9 The parable of the vineyard. 19 Of giving tribute to Cesar.

AND it came to pass, that on one of those days, as he taught the people in the temple, and preached the gospel, the chief priests and the scribes came upon him, with the elders,

2 And spake unto him, saying, Tell us, By what authority doest thou these things? or, who is he that gave thee this authority?

3 And he answered and said unto them, I will also ask you one thing; and answer me;

4 The baptism of John, was it from heaven, or of men?

5 And they reasoned with themselves, saying, If we shall say, From heaven, he will say, Why then believed ye him not?

6 But and if we say, Of men, all the people will stone us: for they be persuaded that John was a prophet.

7 And they answered, That they could not tell whence it was.

8 And Jesus said unto them, Neither tell I you by what authority I do these things.

9 ¶ Then began he to speak to the people this parable; A certain man planted a vineyard, and let it forth to husbandmen, and went into a far country for a long time.

10 And at the season he sent a servant to the husbandmen, that they should give him of the fruit of the vineyard: but the husbandmen beat him, and sent him away empty.

11 And again he sent another servant; and they beat him also, and entreated him shamefully, and sent him away empty.

12 And again he sent the third: and they wounded him also, and cast him out.

13 Then said the Lord of the vineyard, What shall I do? I will send my beloved son: it may be they will reverence him when they see him.

14 But when the husbandmen saw him, they reasoned among themselves, saying, This is the heir: come, let us kill him, that the inheritance may be ours.

15 So they cast him out of the vineyard, and killed him. What, therefore, shall the lord of the vineyard do unto them?

16 He shall come and destroy these husbandmen, and shall give the vineyard to others. And, when they heard it, they said, God forbid.

17 And he beheld them, and said, What is this then that is written, The stone which the builders rejected, the same is become the head of the corner.

18 Whosoever shall fall upon that stone shall be broken; but on whomsoever it shall fall, it will grind him to powder.

19 ¶ And the chief priests and the scribes the same hour sought to lay hands on him; and they feared the people: for they perceived that he had spoken this parable against them.

20 And they watched him, and sent forth spies, which should feign themselves just men, that they might take hold of his words, that so they might deliver him unto the power and authority of the governor.

21 And they asked him, saying, Master, we know that thou sayest and teachest rightly, neither acceptest thou the person of any, but teachest the way of God truly:

22 Is it lawful for us to give tribute unto Cesar, or no?

23 But he perceived their craftiness, and said unto them, Why tempt ye me?

24 Shew me a penny. Whose image and superscription hath it? They answered and said, Cesar's.

25 And he said unto them, Render, therefore, unto Cesar the things which be Cesar's, and unto God the things which be God's.

26 And they could not take hold of his words before the people: and they marvelled at his answer, and held their peace.

27 Then came to him certain of the Sadducees (which deny that there is any resurrection) and they asked him,

28 Saying, Master, Moses wrote unto us, If any man's brother die, having a wife, and he die without children, that his brother should take his wife, and raise up seed unto his brother.

29 There were, therefore, seven brethren: and the first took a wife, and died without children.

30 And the second took her to wife, and he died childless.

31 And the third took her; and in like manner the seven also: and they left no children, and died.

32 Last of all the woman died also.

33 Therefore, in the resurrection, whose wife of them is she? for seven had her to wife.

34 And Jesus answering, said unto them, The children of this world marry, and are given in marriage:

35 But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage.

36 Neither can they die any more: for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection.

37 Now that the dead are raised, even Moses shewed at the bush, when he calleth the Lord the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.

38 For he is not a God of the dead, but of the living: for all live unto him.

39 Then certain of the scribes, answering, said, Master, thou hast well said.

40 And after that they durst not ask him any question at all.

41 And he said unto them, How say they that Christ is David's son?

42 And David himself saith in the book of Psalms, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 43 Till I make thine enemies thy footstool.

44 David, therefore, calleth him Lord, how is he then his son?

COMMENTARY on Chap. XX.

2—8 By what authority doest thou these things? &c.) The Pharisees having often quarrelled at our Saviour's doctrine before, they call in question his mission and authority now, although they might easily have understood his divine mission by his divine miracles; for Almighty God never empowered any to work miracles that were not sent by him. Our blessed Saviour, understanding their design, gives them no direct answer, but replies to their question, by asking them another, as in ver. 4. That is, was it of divine institution, or of human invention? plainly implying, that the calling of them who call themselves the ministers of God, ought to be from God, Heb. v. 8. The Pharisees reply, That they could not tell whence John had his mission and authority, which was a manifest untruth; they knew it, but durst not own it. Our Saviour answers them, as in ver. 8. He did not say, I cannot, or I will not tell you, but I do not, I need not tell you; because the miracles which I work before you are a sufficient demonstration of my divine commission, that I am sent of God among you; because God never set the seal of his omnipotency to a lie, nor empowered an impostor to work real miracles.

44 David, therefore, calleth him Lord, how is he then his son?) The design of our blessed Saviour, in propounding this question to the Pharisees, was two-fold, namely, to confute the people's erroneous opinion touching the person of the Messias, who they thought should be a mere man, of the stock and lineage of David only, and

45 Then, in the audience of all the people, he ſaid unto his diſciples,

46 Beware of the ſcribes, which deſire to walk in long robes, and love greetings in the markets, and the higheſt ſeats in the ſynagogues, and the chief rooms at feaſts;

47 Which devour widows' houſes, and for a ſhew make long prayers; the ſame ſhall receive greater damnation.

CHAP. XXI.

1 The poor widow is commended. 5 The deſtruction of the temple and city is foretold.

AND he looked up, and ſaw the rich men caſting their gifts into the treaſury.

2 And he ſaw alſo a certain poor widow caſting in thither two mites.

3 And he ſaid, Of a truth, I ſay unto you, that this poor widow hath caſt in more than they all.

4 For all theſe have of their abundance caſt in unto the offerings of God: but ſhe of her penury hath caſt in all the living that ſhe had.

5 ¶ And as ſome ſpake of the temple, how it was adorned with goodly ſtones and gifts, he ſaid,

6 As for theſe things which ye behold, the days will come, in the which there ſhall not be left one ſtone upon another, that ſhall not be thrown down.

7 And they aſked him, ſaying, Maſter, but when ſhall theſe things be? and what ſign will there be when theſe things ſhall come to paſs?

8 And he ſaid, Take heed that ye be not deceived: for many ſhall come in my name, ſaying, I am Chriſt; and the time draweth near: go ye not therefore after them.

9 But when ye ſhall hear of wars and commotions, be not terrified: for theſe things muſt firſt come to paſs; but the end is not by and by.

10 Then ſaid he unto them, Nation ſhall riſe againſt nation, and kingdom againſt kingdom:

11 And great earthquakes ſhall be in diverſe places, and famines, and peſtilences; and fearful ſights, and great ſigns ſhall there be from heaven.

12 But before all theſe they ſhall lay their hands on you, and perſecute you, delivering you up to the ſynagogues, and into priſons, being brought before kings and rulers for my name's ſake.

13 And it ſhall turn to you for a teſtimony.

14 Settle it, therefore, in your hearts, not to meditate before what ye ſhall anſwer:

15 For I will give you a mouth and wiſdom, which all your adverſaries ſhall not be able to gainſay nor reſiſt.

16 And ye ſhall be betrayed both by parents, and brethren, and kinſfolks, and friends; and ſome of you ſhall they cauſe to be put to death.

17 And ye ſhall be hated of all men for my name's ſake.

18 But there ſhall not an hair of your head periſh.

19 In your patience poſſeſs ye your ſouls.

20 And when ye ſhall ſee Jeruſalem compaſſed with armies, then know that the deſolation thereof is nigh.

21 Then let them which are in Judea flee to the mountains; and let them which are in the midſt of it depart out; and let not them that are in the countries enter thereinto.

22 For theſe be the days of vengeance, that all things which are written may be fulfilled.

23 But woe unto them that are with child, and to them that give ſuck, in thoſe days! for there ſhall be great diſtreſs in the land, and wrath upon this people.

24 And they ſhall fall by the edge of the ſword, and ſhall be led away captive into all nations: and Jeruſalem ſhall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled.

25 And there ſhall be ſigns in the ſun, and in the moon, and in the ſtars; and upon the earth diſtreſs of nations, with perplexity; the ſea and the waves roaring;

26 Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after thoſe things which are coming on the earth: for the powers of heaven ſhall be ſhaken.

27 And then ſhall they ſee the Son of man coming in a cloud, with power and great glory.

28 And when theſe things begin to come to paſs, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh.

29 And he ſpake to them a parable; Behold the fig-tree, and all the trees;

30 When they now ſhoot forth, ye ſee and know of your own ſelves that ſummer is now nigh at hand.

31 So likewiſe ye, when ye ſee theſe things come to paſs, know ye that the kingdom of God is nigh at hand.

32 Verily I ſay unto you, this generation ſhall not paſs away till all be fulfilled.

33 Heaven and earth ſhall paſs away; but my words ſhall not paſs away.

34 And take heed to yourſelves, leſt at any time your hearts be overcharged with ſurfeiting, and drunkenneſs, and cares of this life, and ſo that day come upon you unawares.

35 For as a ſnare ſhall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth.

36 Watch ye, therefore, and pray always, that ye not the Son of God; to ſtrengthen the faith of his diſciples touching his Godhead, againſt the time they ſhould ſee him ſuffer and riſe again. The place Chriſt alludes to, is Pſal. cx. 1. The Lord, that is, God the Father, ſaid to my Lord, that is, to God the Son, who was to be incarnate, whom David calleth his Lord, both as God and as Mediator, his Lord by a right of creation and redemption alſo. The queſtion our Saviour puts to the Phariſees is this, How Chriſt could be both David's Lord and David's ſon? no ſon being lord of his own father; therefore, if Chriſt were David's ſovereign, he muſt be more than man, more than David's ſon. As man, he was David's ſon; as God-Man, he was David's Lord.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXI.

10, 11 Nation ſhall riſe againſt nation, &c.) Here we may obſerve the ſigns which our Saviour gives of Jeruſalem's approaching deſtruction, namely, the many broils and commotions, the civil diſorders and diſſentions, that ſhould be found among the Jews immediately before: Ye ſhall hear of wars and commotions, and ſee fearful ſights, and great ſigns from heaven. Joſephus declares, That there appeared in the air chariots and horſemen ſkirmiſhing; and that a blazing ſtar, in faſhion of a ſword, hung over the city for a year together. War, peſtilence, and famine, are judgments and calamities inflicted by God upon a ſinful people for their contempt of Chriſt and goſpel-grace.

18 There ſhall not an hair of your head periſh.) This may poſſibly refer to the remarkable preſervation of the Chriſtians at the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, when ſuch a vaſt multitude of the Jews were ſlaughtered by the Romans; or rather it may be conſidered as a proverbial expreſſion to denote the beſt ſafety and advantage in times of danger; for Chriſt had expreſsly ſaid (ver. 16.) ſome ſhall be put to death.

24 They—ſhall be led away captive into all nations, &c.) Joſephus tells us, that the number of thoſe who were taken captive by the Romans, during this war, was ninety-ſeven thouſand, moſt of which Titus diſperſed thro' the Roman provinces, to be deſtroyed in the theatres by the ſword and wild beaſts: but they that were under ſeventeen years of age were ſold.

29 Behold the fig-tree, and all the trees.) It was in the ſpring, juſt before the paſſover, that Chriſt ſpoke theſe words; and ſo, according to his cuſtom, he took an occaſion from the preſent ſeaſon of the year, when all the trees were budding on the mount of Olives, where they then were, (Matt. xxiv. 3.) to make uſe of this ſimilitude.

36 Watch ye, therefore,—that ye may be accounted worthy, &c.) Worthy, in the ſcripture-ſenſe of the term, ſometimes relates to an honour put upon a perſon, as when it ſpeaks of being counted worthy to ſuffer ſhame for Chriſt, (Acts v. 41.) and at other times it ſignifies meekneſs, and what is becoming, as when we are ſaid to walk worthy of God, and of the vocation wherewith we are called, and to bring forth fruits worthy of repentance, (1 Theſſ. ii. 12. Eph. iv. 1. and Luke iii. 8.) And ſo to be counted worthy to eſcape, &c. is to have the honour of it, and to be fitted or prepared for it.

may be accounted worthy to eſcape all theſe things that ſhall come to paſs, and to ſtand before the Son of man.

37 And in the day-time he was teaching in the temple; and at night he went out, and abode in the mount that is called the mount of Olives.

38 And all the people came early in the morning to him in the temple for to hear him.

CHAP. XXII.

8 Judas moved to betray Chriſt. 7 The paſſover prepared. 19 The Lord's ſupper inſtituted.

NOW the feaſt of unleaved bread drew nigh, which is called the paſſover.

2 And the chief prieſts and ſcribes ſought how they might kill him; for they feared the people.

3 ¶ Then entered Satan into Judas, ſurnamed Iſcariot, being of the number of the twelve.

4 And he went his way and communed with the chief prieſts and captains, how he might betray him unto them.

5 And they were glad, and covenanted to give him money.

6 And he promiſed, and ſought opportunity to betray him unto them in the abſence of the multitude.

7 ¶ Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the paſſover muſt be killed.

8 And he ſent Peter and John, ſaying, Go and prepare us the paſſover that we may eat.

9 And they ſaid unto him, Where wilt thou that we prepare?

10 And he ſaid unto them, Behold, when ye are entered into the city, there ſhall a man meet you, bearing a pitcher of water; follow him into the houſe where he entereth in.

11 And ye ſhall ſay unto the good man of the houſe, The Maſter ſaith unto thee, Where is the gueſt-chamber, where I ſhall eat the paſſover with my diſciples?

12 And he ſhall ſhew you a large upper room furniſhed: there make ready.

13 And they went, and found as he had ſaid unto them: and made ready the paſſover.

14 And when the hour was come, he ſat down, and the twelve apoſtles with him.

15 And he ſaid unto them, With deſire I have deſired to eat this paſſover with you before I ſuffer;

16 For I ſay unto you, I will not any more eat thereof, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God.

17 And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and ſaid, Take this, and divide it among yourſelves:

18 For I ſay unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God ſhall come.

19 ¶ And he took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, ſaying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me.

20 Likewiſe alſo the cup after ſupper, ſaying, This cup is the new teſtament in my blood, which is ſhed for you.

21 But, behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table.

22 And truly the Son of man goeth, as it was determined: but woe unto that man by whom he is betrayed!

23 And they began to enquire among themſelves, which of them it was that ſhould do this thing.

24 And there was alſo a ſtrife among them which of them ſhould be accounted the greateſt.

25 And he ſaid unto them, The kings of the Gentiles exerciſe lordſhip over them; and they that exerciſe authority upon them are called Benefactors.

26 But ye ſhall not be ſo: but he that is greateſt among you, let him be as the younger; and he that is chief, as he that doth ſerve.

27 For whether is greater, he that ſitteth at meat, or he that ſerveth? is not he that ſitteth at meat? but I am among you as he that ſerveth.

28 Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations.

29 And I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me;

30 That ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and ſit on thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Iſrael.

31 And the Lord ſaid, Simon, Simon, behold, Satan hath deſired to have you, that he may ſift you as wheat:

32 But I have prayed for thee, that thy faith fail not: and when thou art converted, ſtrengthen thy brethren.

33 And he ſaid unto him, Lord, I am ready to go with thee, both into priſon, and to death.

34 And he ſaid, I tell thee, Peter, the cock ſhall not crow this day, before that thou ſhalt thrice deny that thou knoweſt me.

35 And he ſaid unto them, When I ſent you without purſe, and ſcrip, and ſhoes, lacked ye any thing? And they ſaid, Nothing.

36 Then ſaid he unto them, But now he that hath a purſe, let him take it, and likewiſe his ſcrip; and he that hath no ſword, let him ſell his garment, and buy one.

37 For I ſay unto you, that this that is written muſt yet be accompliſhed in me, And he was reckoned among the tranſgreſſors: for the things concerning me have an end.

38 And they ſaid, Lord, behold, here are two ſwords. And he ſaid unto them, It is enough.

39 And he came out, and went, as he was wont, to the mount of Olives; and his diſciples alſo followed him.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXII.

7 Then came the day of unleavened bread, when the paſſover muſt be killed.) It is obſervable that our Lord, who was typified by the paſchal lamb, ſuffered at this paſſover for the redemption of his people, and was ſeized on the very day (the fifteenth of the month Niſan) in which Iſrael were delivered out of Egypt, Numb. xxxiii. 3.

24 There was alſo a ſtriſe among them, &c.) If theſe words be not placed out of order by St. Luke here, it may ſeem very ſtrange that the apoſtles, immediately after receiving the ſacrament, ſhould entertain their minds with thoughts of precedency and ſuperiority; and much ſtranger yet, that they ſhould diſcourſe openly of ſuch a ſubject as this, eſpecially conſidering what our Saviour had juſt before told them, that he was betrayed into the hands of ſinners. But whether at this time or not, it is moſt certain, at ſome time or other a ſtriſe was found amongſt them, which ſhould be the greateſt.

31 The Lord ſaid, Simon, Simon, &c.) Chriſt here ſeems to call him by his former name Simon, and not Peter, which ſignifies a rock, becauſe what he was going to ſay to him was an argument of his infirmity, and not of his ſtability or ſtrength: and here is a plain alluſion to the hiſtory of Job, chap. i. ii.

36 He that hath no ſword, let him ſell his garment, and buy one.) It ſeems as if what Chriſt ſaid about getting ſwords were to be underſtood, not literally as an order to buy them, but emblematically as an intimation of dangers coming on, which would be ſo extreme, that the diſciples had need be well provided againſt them, and would think that they could not repel them, but by the power of the ſword: for he afterwards ſaid, (ver. 38.) that two ſwords were enough, which could not be true, if their armed enemies were to be reſiſted by force; and when Peter uſed a ſword in that way, Chriſt reproved him for it, Matt. xxvi. 52.

38 Here are two ſwords, &c.) It is too curious to enquire how theſe diſciples came to have two ſwords among them: but it may be ſufficient to ſay, that it was providentially ordered to give our Lord an opportunity of uſing this emblem, and of leading his diſciples to underſtand his meaning in it: and ſome tell us, that it was cuſtomary among the Galileans to wear ſwords when they travelled; that they might defend themſelves againſt the robbers and aſſaſſins which infeſted their roads; and as this was lawful, Chriſt might very well allow of it in his diſciples, tho' he wore none himſelf.

40 And when he was at the place, he said unto them, Pray that ye enter not into temptation.

41 And he was withdrawn from them about a stone's cast, and kneeled down, and prayed, 42 Saying, Father, if thou be willing, remove this cup from me: nevertheless not my will, but thine, be done.

43 And there appeared an angel unto him from heaven, strengthening him.

44 And being in an agony, he prayed more earnestly: and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground.

45 And when he rose up from prayer, and was come to his disciples, he found them sleeping for sorrow, 46 And said unto them, Why sleep ye? rise and pray, lest ye enter into temptation.

47 And while he yet spake, behold a multitude, and he that was called Judas, one of the twelve, went before them, and drew near unto Jesus to kiss him.

48 But Jesus said unto him, Judas betrayest thou the Son of man with a kiss?

49 When they which were about him saw what would follow, they said unto him, Lord, shall we smite with the sword?

50 And one of them smote the servant of the high priest, and cut off his right ear.

51 And Jesus answered and said, Suffer ye thus far. And he touched his ear, and healed him.

52 Then Jesus said unto the chief priests, and captains of the temple, and the elders which were come to him, Be ye come out as against a thief, with swords and staves?

53 When I was daily with you in the temple, ye stretched forth no hands against me: but this is your hour, and the power of darkness.

54 Then took they him, and led him, and brought him into the high priest's house. And Peter followed afar off.

55 And when they had kindled a fire in the midst of the hall, and were set down together, Peter sat down among them.

56 But a certain maid beheld him as he sat by the fire, and earnestly looked upon him, and said, This man was also with him.

57 And he denied him, saying, Woman, I know him not.

58 And after a little while another saw him, and said, Thou art also of them. And Peter said, Man, I am not.

59 And about the space of one hour after, another confidently affirmed, saying, Of a truth this fellow also was with him; for he is a Galilean.

60 And Peter said, Man, I know not what thou sayest. And immediately, while he yet spake, the cock crew.

61 And the Lord turned, and looked upon Peter: and Peter remembered the word of the Lord, how he had said unto him, Before the cock crow thou shalt deny me thrice.

62 And Peter went out, and wept bitterly.

63 And the men that held Jesus mocked him, and smote him.

64 And when they had blindfolded him, they struck him on the face, and asked him, saying, Prophesy; who is it that smote thee?

65 And many other things blasphemously spake they against him.

66 And as soon as it was day, the elders of the people, and the chief priests, and the scribes, came together, and led him into their council,

67 Saying, Art thou the Christ? tell us. And he said unto them, If I tell you, ye will not believe:

68 And if I also ask you, ye will not answer me, nor let me go.

69 Hereafter shall the Son of man sit on the right hand of the power of God.

70 Then said they all, Art thou then the Son of God? And he said unto them, Ye say that I am.

71 And they said, What need we any further witness? for we ourselves have heard of his own mouth.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Jesus accused before Pilate. 29 The destruction of Jerusalem foretold. 46 Christ's death and burial.

AND the whole multitude of them arose, and led him unto Pilate.

2 And they began to accuse him, saying, We found this fellow perverting the nation, and forbidding to give tribute to Cesar, saying, That he himself is Christ a king.

3 And Pilate asked him, saying, Art thou the king of the Jews? And he answered him and said, Thou sayest it.

4 Then said Pilate to the chief priests, and to the people, I find no fault in this man.

5 And they were the more fierce, saying, He stirreth up the people, teaching throughout all Jewry, beginning from Galilee to this place.

6 When Pilate heard of Galilee, he asked whether the man were a Galilean.

7 And as soon as he knew that he belonged unto Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him to Herod, who himself also was at Jerusalem at that time.

8 And when Herod saw Jesus, he was exceeding glad: for he was desirous to see him of a long season, because he had heard many things of him; and he hoped to have seen some miracle done by him.

9 Then he questioned with him in many words; but he answered him nothing.

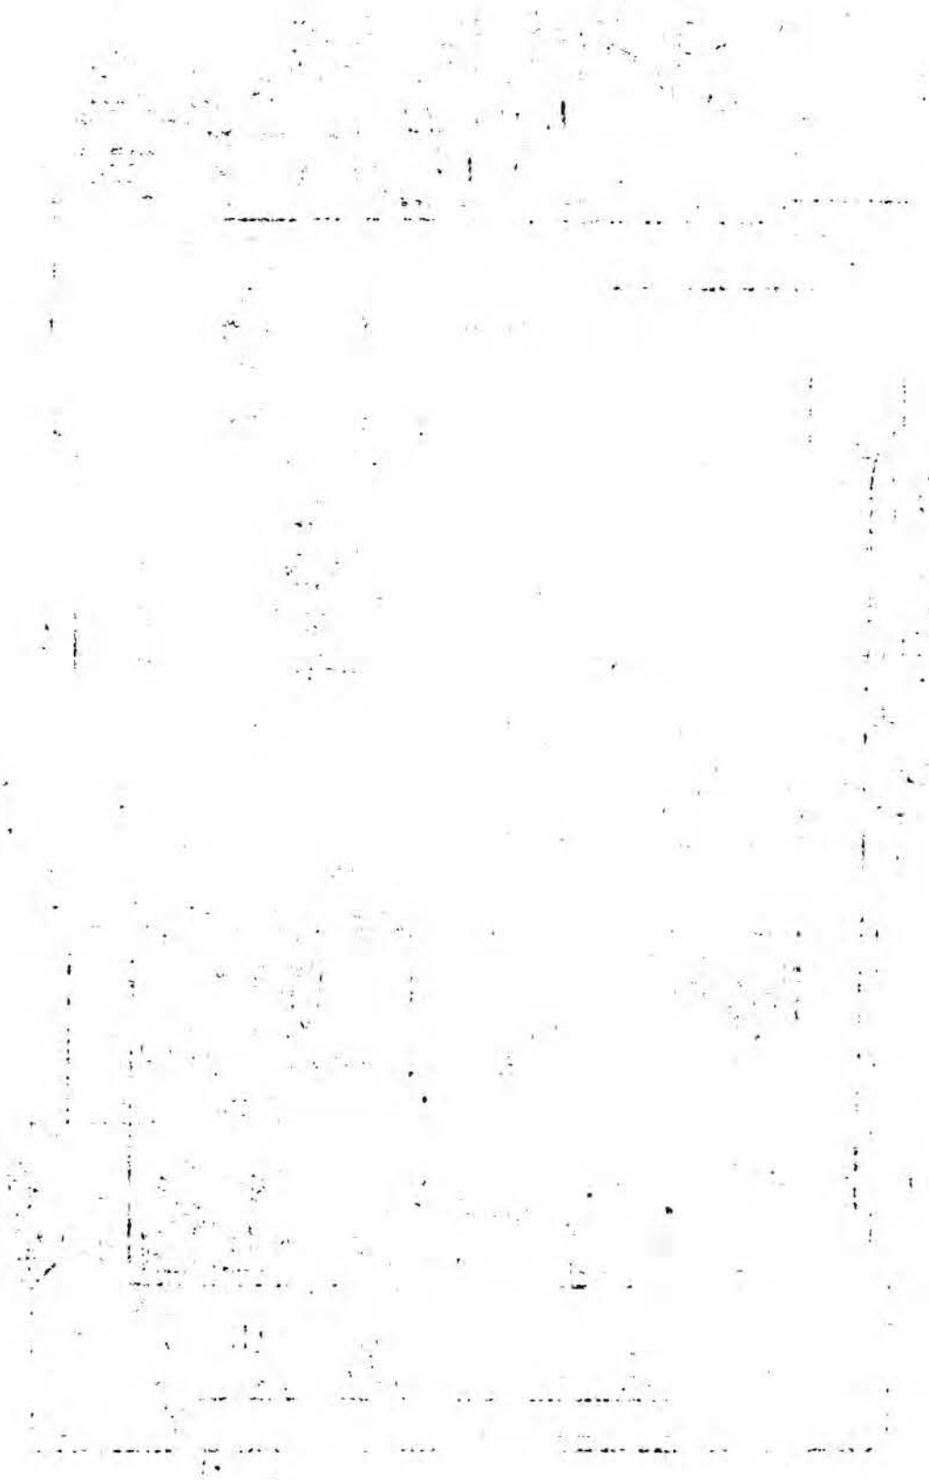
44 And being in an agony, &c.) As their iniquities were laid upon Christ, and it pleased the Lord himself to bruise him, and to awaken the sword of justice against him, (Isa. liii. 5—12, Zech. xiii. 7.) so, unless our great Lord had a present view and sensation of this, it appears rather unaccountable that he should be in such terrible distress before his external sufferings came upon him; especially considering that, at this very time, an angel was sent from heaven to strengthen him; and that so many martyrs have thought of, and gone through, as great corporal sufferings, with undaunted bravery and triumph.

58 After a little while another saw him, &c.) We are told (Mat. xxvi. 71. and Mark xiv. 69.) it was another maid that charged Peter, when he the second time denied Christ; whereas Luke here speaks of this person as another man: but it is to be observed, that both Matthew and Mark say the maid spoke concerning Peter to them that were there, or to them that stood by; whereas Luke mentions a second's speaking directly to Peter himself, and that probably upon what he had heard this woman say concerning him; which takes off the seeming contradiction in these accounts.



COMMENTARY on Chap. XXIII.

1 And the whole multitude of them arose, and led him unto Pilate.) Having thus gained from Jesus a confession of his being the Messiah, the council thought they had now sufficient ground to carry him before the Roman governor, with a grievous accusation of blasphemy against God, and sedition against the emperor; by which means they hoped to procure that he might be condemned to die; and accordingly, putting him in bonds, they brought him before Pilate, who was at that time governor of Judea.

5 He stirreth up the people,—beginning from Galilee to this place.) They seem to have mentioned this, in order to stir up Pilate so much the more against him, because the Galileans were notorious for their inclinations to rebel; and Judas of Galilee had before appeared in that country, and incited the people to throw off the Roman yoke, telling them, that paying tribute to Cesar was a sign of slavery; the account of whom we have in Acts v. 37.

CHRIST Praying on the MOUNT of OLIVES.

10 And the chief prieſts and ſcribes ſtood, and vehemently accuſed him.

11 And Herod with his chief men of war ſet him at nought, and mocked him, and arrayed him in a gorgeous robe, and ſent him again to Pilate.

12 And the ſame day Pilate and Herod were made friends together; for before they were at enmity between themſelves.

13 And Pilate, when he had called together the chief prieſts, and the rulers, and the people,

14 Said unto them, Ye have brought this man unto me, as one that perverteth the people: and, behold, I, having examined him before you, have found no fault in this man touching thoſe things whereof ye accuſe him:

15 No, nor yet Herod: for I ſent you to him; and, lo, nothing worthy of death is done unto him:

16 I will therefore chaſtiſe him, and releaſe him.

17 (For of neceſſity he muſt releaſe one unto them at the feaſt.)

18 And they cried out all at once, ſaying, Away with this man, and releaſe unto us Barabbas:

19 (Who for a certain ſedition made in the city, and for murder was caſt into priſon:)

20 Pilate, therefore, willing to releaſe Jeſus, ſpake again to them.

21 But they cried, ſaying, Crucify him, crucify him.

22 And he ſaid unto them the third time, Why? what evil hath he done? I have found no cauſe of death in him: I will therefore chaſtiſe him, and let him go.

23 And they were inſtant with loud voices, requiring that he might be crucified: and the voices of them and of the chief prieſts prevailed.

24 And Pilate gave ſentence, that it ſhould be as they required.

25 And he releaſed unto them him that for ſedition and murder was caſt into priſon, whom they had deſired; but he delivered Jeſus to their will.

26 And as they led him away, they laid hold upon one Simon a Cyrenian, coming out of the country, and on him they laid the croſs, that he might bear it after Jeſus.

27 ¶ And there followed him a great company of people, and of women, which alſo bewailed and lamented him.

28 But Jeſus, turning unto them, ſaid, Daughters of Jeruſalem, weep not for me, but weep for yourſelves, and for your children.

29 For, behold, the days are coming, in the which they ſhall ſay, Bleſſed are the barren, and the wombs that never bare, and the paps which never gave ſuck.

30 Then ſhall they begin to ſay to the mountains, Fall on us; and to the hills, Cover us.

31 For if they do theſe things in a green tree, what ſhall be done in the dry?

32 And there were alſo two others, malefactors, led with him to be put to death.

33 And when they were come to the place which is called Calvary, there they crucified him, and the malefactors; one on the right hand, and the other on the left.

34 Then ſaid Jeſus, Father forgive them; for they know not what they do. And they parted his raiment, and caſt lots.

35 And the people ſtood beholding. And the rulers alſo with them derided him, ſaying, He ſaved others; let him ſave himſelf, if he be Chriſt the choſen of God.

36 And the ſoldiers alſo mocked him, coming to him, and offering him vinegar, 37 And ſaying, If thou be the king of the Jews, ſave thyſelf.

38 And a ſuperſcription alſo was written over him in letters of Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew, THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS.

39 And one of the malefactors which were hanged railed on him, ſaying, If thou be Chriſt, ſave thyſelf and us.

40 But the other anſwering, rebuked him, ſaying, Doſt not thou fear God, ſeeing thou art in the ſame condemnation?

41 And we indeed juſtly: for we receive the due reward of our deeds: but this man hath done nothing amiſs.

42 And he ſaid unto Jeſus, Lord, remember me when thou comeſt into thy kingdom.

43 And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Verily I ſay unto thee, to-day ſhalt thou be with me in paradiſe.

44 And it was about the ſixth hour, and there was a darkneſs over all the earth until the ninth hour.

45 And the ſun was darkened, and the vail of the temple was rent in the midſt.

46 ¶ And when Jeſus had cried with a loud voice, he ſaid, Father, into thy hands I commend my ſpirit. And having ſaid thus, he gave up the ghoſt.

47 Now when the centurion ſaw what was done, he glorified God, ſaying, Certainly this was a righteous man.

48 And all the people that came together to that ſight, beholding the things which were done, ſmote their breaſts, and returned.

49 And all his acquaintance, and the women that followed him from Galilee, ſtood afar off, beholding theſe things.

50 And behold, there was a man named Joſeph, a counſellor, and he was a good man and a juſt.

51 The ſame had not conſented to the counſel and deed of them. He was of Arimathea, a city of the Jews: who alſo himſelf waited for the kingdom of God.

12 The ſame day Pilate and Herod were made friends together, &c.) Their former quarrels had probably been either about the extent of their juriſdiction and authority, or on account of emulations that were between them, or of ſome encroachment which one had made upon the other: and perhaps Herod thought Pilate had invaded his rights by putting to death the Galileans, who were his ſubjects, when they came up to Jeruſalem to offer ſacrifice, which ſeems to be referred to in Luke xiii. 1. But now they forgot their former grudges, and were reconciled into the friendſhip of this world, which was enmity with God. James iv. 4.

26 They laid hold upon one Simon a Cyrenian,—and on him they laid the croſs, &c.) Sentence of death being paſſed by Pilate, who can with dry eyes behold the ſad pomp of our Saviour's execution! Forth comes the bleſſed Jeſus out of Pilate's gates, bearing that croſs, which ſoon after was to bear him. With his croſs on his ſhoulder, he marches towards Golgotha; and when they ſee he can go no faſter, they compel Simon of Cyrenia, not out of compaſſion but indignation, to bear his croſs: this Cyrenian being a Gentile who bore Chriſt's croſs, ſome think that thereby was ſignified, that the Gentiles ſhould have a part in Chriſt, as well as the Jews, and be ſharers with them in the benefits of the croſs.

45 The ſun was darkened, &c.) What prodigies in nature happened at the crucifixion of our Saviour! The ſun was darkened at the ſetting of the Sun of righteouſneſs; and the vail of the temple was rent, ſignifying, that God was now about to forſake his temple; that the ceremonial law was now aboliſhing, and the partition-wall betwixt Jew and Gentile being now pulling down, all may have acceſs to God through the blood of a Mediator.

48 All the people that came together to that ſight, &c.) The generality of the multitude there preſent, when they ſaw all the affecting things that attended his death, were ſtruck with grief and remorſe at the thoughts of what had been unrighteouſly done to ſuch an innocent and excellent perſon; and went away from the ſight, ſmiting their breaſts, in token of their bitter lamentation and trouble on that account, and in fear of what might be the dreadful conſequence to themſelves and others.

52 This man went unto Pilate, and begged the body of Jeſus.

53 And he took it down and wrapped it in linen, and laid it in a ſepulchre that was hewn in ſtone, wherein never man before was laid.

54 And that day was the preparation, and the ſabbath drew on.

55 And the women alſo, which came with him from Galilee, followed after, and beheld the ſepulchre, and how his body was laid.

56 And they returned, and prepared ſpices and ointments: and reſted the ſabbath-day, according to the commandment.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Chriſt's reſurrection declared to the women: 9 They report it to others. 13 Chriſt himſelf appeareth.

NOW upon the firſt day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the ſepulchre, bringing the ſpices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.

2 And they found the ſtone rolled away from the ſepulchre.

3 And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jeſus.

4 And it came to paſs, as they were much perplexed thereabout, behold, two men ſtood by them in ſhining garments.

5 And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they ſaid unto them, Why ſeek ye the living among the dead?

6 He is not here, but is riſen. Remember how he ſpake unto you when he was yet in Galilee,

7 Saying, The Son of man muſt be delivered into the hands of ſinful men, and be crucified, and the third day riſe again.

8 And they remembered his words,

9 ¶ And returned from the ſepulchre, and told all theſe things unto the eleven, and to all the reſt.

10 It was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary the mother of James, and other women that were with them, which told theſe things unto the apoſtles.

11 And their words ſeemed to them as idle tales, and they believed them not.

12 Then aroſe Peter, and ran unto the ſepulchre; and, ſtooping down, he beheld the linen clothes laid by themſelves, and departed, wondering in himſelf at that which was come to paſs.

13 ¶ And behold, two of them went that ſame day to a village called Emmaus, which was from Jeruſalem about threeſcore furlongs.

14 And they talked together of all theſe things which had happened.

15 And it came to paſs, that while they communed together, and reaſoned, Jeſus himſelf drew near, and went with them.

16 But their eyes were holden, that they ſhould not know him.

17 And he ſaid unto them, What manner of communications are theſe that ye have one to another, as ye walk, and are ſad?

18 And the one of them, whoſe name was Cleopas, anſwering, ſaid unto him, Art thou only a ſtranger in Jeruſalem, and haſt not known the things which are come to paſs there in theſe days?

19 And he ſaid unto them, What things? And they ſaid unto him, Concerning Jeſus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty in deed and word before God and all the people:

20 And how the chief prieſts and our rulers delivered him to be condemned to death, and have crucified him.

21 But we truſted that it had been he which ſhould have redeemed Iſrael: and beſides all this, to-day is the third day ſince theſe things were done.

22 Yea, and certain women alſo of our company made us aſtoniſhed, which were early at the ſepulchre;

23 And when they found not his body, they came, ſaying, That they had alſo ſeen a viſion of angels, which ſaid that he was alive.

24 And certain of them which were with us went to the ſepulchre, and found it even ſo as the women had ſaid; but him they ſaw not.

25 Then he ſaid unto them, O fools, and ſlow of heart to believe all that the prophets have ſpoken!

26 Ought not Chriſt to have ſuffered theſe things, and to enter into his glory?

27 And beginning at Moſes, and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the ſcriptures the things concerning himſelf.

28 And they drew nigh unto the village whither they went: and he made as though he would have gone further.

29 But they conſtrained him, ſaying, Abide with us: for it is toward evening, and the day is far ſpent. And he went in to tarry with them.

30 And it came to paſs, as he ſat at meat with them, he took bread, and bleſſed it, and brake, and gave to them.

31 And their eyes were opened, and they knew him; and he vaniſhed out of their ſight.

32 And they ſaid one to another, Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked with us by the way, and while he opened to us the ſcriptures?

33 And they roſe up the ſame hour, and returned to Jeruſalem, and found the eleven gathered together, and them that were with them, 34 Saying, The Lord is riſen indeed, and hath appeared to Simon.

35 And they told what things were done in the way, and how he was known of them in breaking of bread.

36 And as they thus ſpake, Jeſus himſelf ſtood in the midſt of them, and ſaith unto them, Peace be unto you.

37 But they were terrified and affrighted, and ſuppoſed that they had ſeen a ſpirit.

38 And he ſaid unto them, Why are ye troubled? and why do thoughts ariſe in your hearts?

39 Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myſelf:

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXIV.

13 Two of them went that ſame day to a village called Emmaus, &c.) They might be going thither, either upon buſineſs, or on a viſit, or rather to get from the noiſe and heat, inſults, reproaches, and dangers of their enemies, with a deſign of retiring ſtill further into Galilee, becauſe of the diſappointment they had met with, and the confuſion they were in, relating to their crucified Lord and Saviour.

25 He ſaid unto them, O fools! &c.) They were fools, as they refuſed proper evidence, and acted againſt their own comfort and intereſt by their inadvertency and unbelief: and Chriſt's calling them ſo, by way of juſt reproof, for their conviction and recovery, is no breach of his own rule, (Mat. v. 22.) where he forbids calling one brother fool, which is to be underſtood of doing it, by way of cauſeleſs contempt and injurious reproach, to cenſure and expoſe him.

29 He went in to tarry with them.) There was no diſſimulation, as ſome have ſuggeſted, in our Lord's conduct on this occaſion; for he only behaved herein, juſt as common rules of civility would have obliged any ſtranger to do, that he might not ſeem to thruſt himſelf upon other company, but might leave it to them to invite him or not, determining in his own mind to ſtay with them, upon their diſcovering a deſire of further converſation with him.

Handle me, and ſee; for a ſpirit hath not fleſh and bones, as ye ſee me have.

40 And when he had thus ſpoken, he ſhewed them his hands and his feet.

41 And while they yet believed not for joy, and wondered, he ſaid unto them, Have ye here any meat?

42 And they gave him a piece of a broiled fiſh, and of an honey comb.

43 And he took it, and did eat before them.

44 And he ſaid unto them, Theſe are the words which I ſpake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things muſt be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moſes, and in the prophets, and in the Pſalms concerning me.

45 Then opened he their underſtanding, that they might underſtand the ſcriptures,

46 And ſaid unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Chriſt to ſuffer, and to riſe from the dead the third day:

47 And that repentance and remiſſion of ſins ſhould be preached in his name among all nations beginning at Jeruſalem.

48 And ye are witneſſes of theſe things.

49 And behold, I ſend the promiſe of my Father upon you: but tarry ye in the city of Jeruſalem, until ye be endued with power from on high.

50 And he led them out as far as to Bethany; and he lifted up his hands and bleſſed them.

51 And it came to paſs while he bleſſed them, he was parted from them, and carried up into heaven.

52 And they worſhipped him, and returned to Jeruſalem with great joy;

53 And were continually in the temple, praiſing and bleſſing God. Amen.

44—46 All things muſt be fulfilled which were written in the law, &c.) The general diviſion of the books of the Old Teſtament, in thoſe days, was into theſe three parts, namely, The Law, which contained the five books of Moſes; the Prophets, which contained not only thoſe books which were merely prophetical, but thoſe likewiſe which were hiſtorical, and were wrote by prophetical men; and the Hagiographa, which contained divine hymns, and moral inſtructions for the conduct of life, and went under the general title of the Pſalms, becauſe theſe were eſteemed as the moſt eminent, and were placed at the head of that ſort of writings: and ſo Chriſt, by mentioning theſe three, took in the whole of the Old Teſtament, which in ſeveral places ſpoke of his ſufferings and of the glory that ſhould follow.—The great goſpel-truth concerning the death and reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt, muſt be publiſhed to the children of men. Thus it was written in the ſealed book of the divine counſels from eternity, the volume of that book of the covenant of redemption; and thus it was written in the open book of the Old Teſtament, among the things revealed, and therefore thus it behoved Chriſt to ſuffer; for the divine counſels muſt be performed, and care taken, that no word of God fall to the ground. Go and tell the world, That Chriſt ſuffered, as it was written of him. Go preach Chriſt crucified; be not aſhamed of his croſs, nor aſhamed of a ſuffering Jeſus. Tell them what he ſuffered, and why he ſuffered, and how all the ſcriptures of the Old Teſtament were fulfilled in his ſufferings. Tell them that it behoved him to ſuffer, that it was neceſſary to the taking away the ſin of the world, and the deliverance of mankind from death and ruin: nay, it became him to be perfected through ſufferings, Heb. ii. 10. He roſe from the dead on the third day, by which not only all the offences of the croſs was rolled away, but he was declared to be the Son of God with power, and in this alſo the ſcriptures were fulfilled, 1 Cor. v. 3, 4.

50 He led them out as far as to Bethany, &c.) The town or village of Bethany, where Lazarus dwelt, and was raiſed from the dead, was about fifteen furlongs from Jeruſalem, John xi. 18. But there was a tract of ground called by that name, which reached from thence to the mount of Olives, within a ſabbath-day's journey of Jeruſalem, which is ſuppoſed to have been about eight furlongs; and this was the place to which Chriſt led his diſciples, and from which he aſcended, as appears from Acts i. 12.

52, 53 And they worſhipped him, and returned to Jeruſalem, with great joy, &c.) They acknowledged, and were witneſſes of, his divine power and glory; they worſhipped him as the Lord of all things both in heaven and earth, and returned with exceeding great joy to Jeruſalem. And they conſtantly attended the ſervice of God in the temple; praiſing and bleſſing the Almighty for his wonderful manifeſtation of his infinite wiſdom and goodneſs, in the redemption of mankind by Chriſt; and waiting for the promiſe which our Lord had given them, of the extraordinary miſſion of the Holy Ghoſt.

THE GOSPEL ACCORDING TO

S T. J O H N.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Evangeliſts St. Matthew, St. Mark, and St. Luke, have treated our bleſſed Saviour's life in a very narrow compaſs, and in a very ſuccinct manner, which was ſufficient for their purpoſe, the converſion of the Jews. The world, however, has ſuffered no loſs by the brevity of theſe hiſtorians; eſpecially as the Holy Spirit, from the beginning, intended to raiſe up one to write a hiſtory of Jeſus, in which ſome of the principal tranſactions of his life, omitted by the former hiſtorians, ſhould be ſupplied.

CHAP. I.

1 The divinity, &c. of Jeſus Chriſt. 15 The teſtimony of John. 39 The calling of Andrew, &c.

IN the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God.

2 The ſame was in the beginning with God.

3 All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made.

4 In him was life; and the life was the light of men.

5 And the light ſhineth in darkneſs; and the darkneſs comprehended it not.

6 There was a man ſent from God, whoſe name was John.

7 The ſame came for a witneſs, to bear witneſs of the Light, that all men through him might believe.

8 He was not that Light, but was ſent to bear witneſs of that Light.

9 That was the true Light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world.

10 He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not.

11 He came unto his own, and his own received him not.

12 But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the ſons of God, even to them that believe on his name:

13 Which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the fleſh, nor of the will of man, but of God.

14 And the Word was made fleſh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father,) full of grace and truth.

15 ¶ John bare witneſs of him, and cried, ſaying, This was he of whom I ſpake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me; for he was before me.

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1 In the beginning was the Word, &c.) The term Logos, tranſlated word, ſignifies wiſdom or reaſon, as well as word; accordingly Chriſt is called both the Wiſdom and the Word of God, Prov. viii. Luke xi. 49. and Rev. xix. 13. He is the Wiſdom of God, ſay ſeveral of the fathers, conſidering him in his pre-exiſtence before all worlds; and ſo he is compared to ſilent thought reſting in the mind. He is the Word of God, conſidering him in his incarnate ſtate; and ſo he is compared to outward ſpeech, whereby he reveals the Father to us: and that this word is more than an attribute, or operation of the Father, is evident from the perſonal characters under which he is ſpoken of in this and ſeveral following paſſages, where he is expreſsly called God with God.

3 All things were made by him, &c.) 'Tis not ſufficient to object againſt this, that by him denotes only an inſtrument or under-agent, in the making of all things, and not properly the efficient or author of them: for an inſtrument or under-agent to God, in creation-work, do not agree to any notions of creating power, which muſt be ſtrictly and properly divine and infinite, and is always ſpoken of in ſcripture as immediately and entirely peculiar to God; Iſa. xliv. 24. Rom. xi. 36. Heb. i. 10. The exalted characters of the Logos (here referred to) cannot agree to any the moſt glorious creature that can be imagined, ſince that muſt be a made being, and all ſuch beings are here diſtinguiſhed from the Logos, who made them; and therefore he cannot be himſelf made: nor can they (as ſome authors imagine) agree to a ſuppoſed pre-exiſtent, created ſoul of Chriſt, ſince the divinity and the power, here and in the following verſes aſcribed to him, are diſtinguiſhed from all made things, and are peculiar to Godhead, as will appear in the Evangeliſt's further account of them.

12 To them gave he power to become the ſons of God, &c.) Tho' formerly the adoption pertained only to the Jews; yet under the goſpel-ſtate, it is no longer confined to them, believing Jews and Greeks being all one in Chriſt Jeſus, (Gal. iii. 28.) And as the name of Chriſt is often put for Chriſt himſelf, according to the diſcoveries we have of his perſon, offices, works, and benefits in his word; ſo to believe in his name is to believe in him, which is the ſame with receiving him, as it is expreſſed in the former part of the verſe.

14 The Word was made fleſh, and dwelt among us, &c.) He dwelt among us, evidently refers to the Shechinah, in which God dwelt in the tabernacle that was pitched among the Iſraelites, and was a figure of the incarnation of Chriſt, and of his abode for ſome time on earth, by which God's appearance, in the manifeſtation of his glory among men, was the moſt viſible and remarkable, that had ever been made before.

16 And of his fulneſs have all we received, and grace for grace.

17 For the law was given by Moſes, but grace and truth came by Jeſus Chriſt.

18 No man hath ſeen God at any time: the only begotten Son, which is in the boſom of the Father, he hath declared him.

19 And this is the record of John, when the Jews ſent prieſts and Levites from Jeruſalem to aſk him, Who art thou?

20 And he confeſſed, and denied not; but confeſſed, I am not the Chriſt.

21 And they aſked him, What then? Art thou Elias? and he ſaith, I am not. Art thou that prophet? and he anſwered, No.

22 Then ſaid they unto him, Who art thou? that we may give an anſwer to them that ſent us. What ſayeſt thou of thyſelf?

23 He ſaid, I am the voice of one crying in the wilderneſs, Make ſtraight the way of the Lord, as ſaid the prophet Eſaias.

24 And they which were ſent were of the Phariſees.

25 And they aſked him, and ſaid unto him, Why baptiſeſt thou then, if thou be not that Chriſt, nor Elias, neither that prophet?

26 John anſwered them, ſaying, I baptize with water: but there ſtandeth one among you whom ye know not:

27 He it is who coming after me, is preferred before me, whoſe ſhoe's latchet I am not worthy to unlooſe.

28 Theſe things were done in Bethabara beyond Jordan, where John was baptizing.

29 The next day John ſeeth Jeſus coming unto him, and ſaith, Behold the Lamb of God which taketh away the ſin of the world.

30 This is he of whom I ſaid, After me cometh a man which is preferred before me; for he was before me.

31 And I knew him not: but that he ſhould be made manifeſt to Iſrael, therefore am I come baptizing with water.

32 And John, bare record, ſaying, I ſaw the Spirit deſcending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon him.

33 And I knew him not: but he that ſent me to baptize with water, the ſame ſaid unto me, Upon whom thou ſhalt ſee the Spirit deſcending, and remaining on him, the ſame is he which baptizeth with the Holy Ghoſt.

34 And I ſaw, and bare record that this is the Son of God.

35 Again, the next day after, John ſtood, and two of his diſciples;

36 And looking upon Jeſus as he walked, he ſaith, Behold the lamb of God!

37 And the two diſciples heard him ſpeak, and they followed Jeſus.

38 Then Jeſus turned, and ſaw them following, and ſaith unto them, What ſeek ye? They ſaid unto him, Rabbi, (which is to ſay, being interpreted, Maſter,) where dwelleſt thou?

39 ¶ He ſaith unto them, Come and ſee. They came and ſaw where he dwelt, and abode with him that day: for it was about the tenth hour.

40 One of the two which heard John ſpeak, and followed him, was Andrew, Simon Peter's brother.

41 He firſt findeth his own brother Simon, and ſaith unto him, We have found the Meſſias, which is, being interpreted, The Chriſt.

42 And he brought him to Jeſus. And when Jeſus beheld him, he ſaid, Thou art Simon, the ſon of Jona: thou ſhalt be called Cephas, which is, by interpretation, A ſtone.

43 The day following Jeſus would go forth into Galilee, and findeth Philip, and ſaith unto him, Follow me.

44 Now Philip was of Bethſaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.

45 Philip findeth Nathanael, and ſaith unto him, We have found him of whom Moſes in the law, and the prophets, did write, Jeſus of Nazareth, the ſon of Joſeph.

46 And Nathanael ſaid unto him, Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth? Philip ſaith unto him, Come and ſee.

47 Jeſus ſaw Nathanael coming to him, and ſaith of him, Behold, an Iſraelite indeed, in whom is no guile!

48 Nathanael ſaith unto him, Whence knoweſt thou me? Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Before that Philip called thee, when thou waſt under the fig-tree, I ſaw thee.

49 Nathanael anſwered and ſaith unto him, Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Iſrael.

50 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Becauſe I ſaid unto thee, I ſaw thee under the fig-tree, believeſt thou? thou ſhalt ſee greater things than theſe.

51 And he ſaith unto him, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, Hereafter ye ſhall ſee heaven open, and the angels of God aſcending and deſcending upon the Son of man.

CHAP. II.

1 Chriſt turneth water into wine, 12 departeth into Jeruſalem, 14 and purgeth the temple.

AND the third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee: and the mother of Jeſus was there.

2 And both Jeſus was called, and his diſciples, to the marriage.

3 And when they wanted wine, the mother of Jeſus ſaith unto him, They have no wine.

34 This is the Son of God.) Though Chriſt's being called the Son of God, and thereby diſtinguiſhed to us from the Father, ſhould not import a generation in the divine nature; though it ſhould no more import, that the Father begat him by any ſuch divine generation, than his being called the Son of Man imports, that a man begat him, and ſo was his father: yet his being called the Son of God muſt as well import, that he is truly God, as his being called the Son of Man imports that he is truly man. And this muſt always be ſuppoſed as the firſt thing in all that the ſcripture directs us to conceive as the import of his name the Son of God, even as all that is imported in the name Son of Man ſuppoſes his being man. It muſt be ſo, for this plain reaſon, That before either they who at firſt believed Jeſus to be the Son of God, or they who at firſt denied him to be the Son of God, could perceive all that the ſcripture directs us to think of his Sonſhip, both of them took his calling himſelf the Son of God, to be making himſelf God: and it will appear evident, from the hiſtory of it in the goſpel, that when this was firſt publiſhed, called in queſtion, and diſputed, all parties concerned underſtood this to be the ſenſe of it, and, however they differed, agreed all in this.

48 When thou waſt under the fig-tree, I ſaw thee.) Our Lord here ſeems to remind him of ſome ſolemn ſecret tranſactions that paſſed between God and him, when he was under a fig-tree, in which Nathanael's own heart was conſcious of its being moſt ſincerely and unreſervedly devoted to him; and ſo the reminding him of this was an evidence of Chriſt's omniſcience, and of his own integrity. And it is highly probable that Nathanael was then reading or meditating upon and conſidering the meaning of Jacob's dream (Gen. xxviii. 12.) which our Lord recites and explains as referring to himſelf (ver. 51.) and thereby ſatisfied Nathanael's enquiries about it, and gave him an undeniable proof of his knowing what were then the particular thoughts of his heart.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

1 The third day there was a marriage in Cana of Galilee, &c.) It is probable that this was a marriage of ſome near relation of Mary, becauſe ſhe is not ſpoken of as an invited gueſt, as Chriſt himſelf and his diſciples were, and becauſe ſhe concerned herſelf ſo much about a recruit of wine for the feaſt.

4 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Woman, what have I to do with thee? mine hour is not yet come.

5 His mother ſaith unto the ſervants, Whatſoever he ſaith unto you, do it.

6 And there were ſet there ſix water-pots of ſtone, after the manner of the purifying of the Jews, containing two or three firkins apiece.

7 Jeſus ſaith unto them, Fill the water-pots with water. And they filled them up to the brim.

8 And he ſaith unto them, Draw out now, and bear unto the governor of the feaſt. And they bare it.

9 When the ruler of the feaſt had taſted the water that was made wine, and knew not whence it was, (but the ſervants which drew the water knew,) the governor of the feaſt called the bridegroom.

10 And ſaith unto him, Every man at the beginning doth ſet forth good wine; and when men have well drunk, then that which is worſe: but thou haſt kept the good wine until now.

11 This beginning of miracles did Jeſus in Cana of Galilee, and manifeſted forth his glory; and his diſciples believed on him.

12 ¶ After this he went down to Capernaum, he, and his mother, and his brethren, and his diſciples; and they continued there not many days.

13 And the Jews' paſſover was at hand; and Jeſus went up to Jeruſalem.

14 ¶ And found in the temple thoſe that ſold oxen, and ſheep, and doves, and the changers of money, ſitting:

15 And when he had made a ſcourge of ſmall cords, he drove them all out of the temple, and the ſheep, and the oxen; and poured out the changers' money, and overthrew the tables;

16 And ſaid unto them that ſold doves, Take theſe things hence; make not my Father's houſe an houſe of merchandiſe.

17 And his diſciples remembered that it was written, The zeal of thine houſe hath eaten me up.

18 Then anſwered the Jews and ſaid unto him, What ſign ſheweſt thou unto us, ſeeing that thou doeſt theſe things?

19 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, Deſtroy this temple, and in three days I will raiſe it up.

20 Then ſaid the Jews, Forty and ſix years was this temple in building, and wilt thou rear it up in three days?

21 But he ſpake of the temple of his body.

22 When, therefore, he was riſen from the dead, his diſciples remembered that he had ſaid this unto them; and they believed the ſcripture, and the word which Jeſus had ſaid.

23 Now when he was in Jeruſalem at the paſſover, in the feaſt-day, many believed in his name, when they ſaw the miracles which he did.

24 But Jeſus did not commit himſelf unto them, becauſe he knew all men;

25 And needed not that any ſhould teſtify of man: for he knew what was in man.

CHAP. III.

1 Chriſt teacheth Nicodemus the neceſſity of regeneration.
18 Condemnation for unbelief.

THERE was a man of the Phariſees named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews:

2 The ſame came to Jeſus by night, and ſaid unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do theſe miracles that thou doeſt, except God be with him.

3 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, Except a man be born again, he cannot ſee the kingdom of God.

4 Nicodemus ſaith unto him, How can a man be born when he is old? can he enter the ſecond time into his mother's womb, and be born?

5 Jeſus anſwered, Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, Except a man be born of water, and of the ſpirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God.

6 That which is born of the fleſh, is fleſh; and that which is born of the Spirit, is ſpirit.

7 Marvel not that I ſaid unto thee, Ye muſt be born again.

8 The wind bloweth where it liſteth, and thou heareſt the ſound thereof, but canſt not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth; ſo is every one that is born of the Spirit.

9 Nicodemus anſwered and ſaid unto him, How can theſe things be?

10 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, Art thou a maſter of Iſrael, and knoweſt not theſe things?

11 Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, We ſpeak that we do know, and teſtify that we have ſeen; and ye receive not our witneſs.

12 If I have told you earthly things, and ye believe not, how ſhall ye believe if I tell you of heavenly things?

9 When the ruler of the feaſt had taſted the water that was made wine, &c.) If Jeſus turned all this water into wine, it is not to be ſuppoſed that the whole of it was drank at that time; but that a conſiderable quantity was left for the uſe of the family, and for an abiding proof of the miracle, which had been wrote in this ſupernatural change upon the water: or perhaps, as the widow's pot of oil increaſed in the pouring of it out, (2 Kings iv. 4—6.) ſo this water was turned into wine in the drawing it out of the veſſels; and Chriſt ordering them all to be filled, might be only to intimate that whatſoever quantity of wine there ſhould be occaſion for, he could eaſily ſupply the want without reſtraint.

13 The Jews' paſſover was at hand, &c.) This was the principal of all the Jewiſh feſtivals, being inſtituted and celebrated the firſt time in Egypt, on the night when God deſtroyed the firſt born of that land, but ſpared the children of Iſrael; the deſtroying angel paſſing over the houſes, whoſe door-poſts were ſprinkled with the blood of the paſchal ſacrifice, called for that reaſon the paſſover. This feaſt therefore was obſerved by the Jews in all ſucceeding ages with great ſolemnity, bringing to their remembrance the wonderful deliverance which God had wrought for the nation in Egypt.

19 Deſtroy this temple, &c.) It is more than probable that, at ſpeaking theſe words, he pointed to his own body, or gave ſome other intimation by which a careful obſerver might diſcern his referring to it; and it ſeems as if the Jews themſelves had either then, or afterwards, ſome notion of what he meant, tho', to ſerve a turn, they put another conſtruction upon it.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

10 Art thou a maſter of Iſrael?) By a maſter of Iſrael, is meant a teacher of the law to Iſrael, either as a public preacher in their ſynagogues, or in their divinity ſchools; or as a member of the ſanhedrim, who undertook to explain the law, and determine its meaning: Nicodemus was one of theſe, and probably a divinity-profeſſor too, who, like Gamaliel, taught it in their ſchools; and all theſe were called Rabbies.

And knoweſt not theſe things?) Our Lord (ſay ſome) expreſſed his admiration that Nicodemus ſhould be ſo ignorant of his meaning about the new birth, and ſhould think it an impoſſible thing, becauſe the Jews themſelves uſed to ſpeak of baptized proſelytes, as new-born infants. But as all their notions about new-birth related only to external, ceremonial, and pharaſaical purifications, thoſe notions rather hindered than forwarded his conceptions of that internal, ſpiritual birth, which Chriſt ſpoke of; and therefore it was no ſuch matter of wonder that Nicodemus was not led by thoſe notions to underſtand our Saviour's meaning, as it was that he ſhould be ſo entirely ignorant of it, though he was profeſſedly an expounder of the word of God, in which this doctrine was ſo clearly revealed: and this ſhews that, by being born again, Nicodemus himſelf underſtood our Saviour to mean much more than being baptized with water; otherwiſe his notions of proſelytes by baptiſm muſt neceſſarily have taken off all his amazement at, and objections againſt, this doctrine of the new birth.

13 And no man hath aſcended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man, which is in heaven.

14 And as Moſes lifted up the ſerpent in the wilderneſs, even ſo muſt the Son of man be lifted up;

15 That whoſoever believeth in him, ſhould not periſh, but have eternal life.

16 For God ſo loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whoſoever believeth in him ſhould not periſh, but have everlaſting life.

17 For God ſent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be ſaved.

18 ¶ He that believeth on him is not condemned: but he that believeth not is condemned already; becauſe he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

19 And this is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men loved darkneſs rather than light, becauſe their deeds were evil.

20 For every one that doeth evil hateth the light, neither cometh to the light, leſt his deeds ſhould be reproved.

21 But he that doeth truth cometh to the light, that his deeds may be made manifeſt that they are wrought in God.

22 After theſe things came Jeſus and his diſciples into the land of Judea; and there he tarried with them, and baptized.

23 And John alſo was baptizing in Enon, near to Salim, becauſe there was much water there; and they came, and were baptized:

24 For John was not yet caſt into priſon.

25 Then there aroſe a queſtion between ſome of John's diſciples and the Jews about purifying.

26 And they came unto John, and ſaid unto him, Rabbi, he that was with thee beyond Jordan, to whom thou beareſt witneſs, behold, the ſame baptizeth, and all men come to him.

27 John anſwered and ſaid, A man can receive nothing, except it be given him from heaven.

28 Ye yourſelves bear me witneſs, that I ſaid, I am not the Chriſt, but that I am ſent before him.

29 He that hath the bride is the bridegroom: but the friend of the bridegroom, which ſtandeth and heareth him, rejoiceth greatly becauſe of the bridegroom's voice? this my joy, therefore, is fulfilled.

30 He muſt increaſe, but I muſt decreaſe.

31 He that cometh from above is above all: he that is of the earth is earthly, and ſpeaketh of the earth: he that cometh from heaven is above all.

32 And what he hath ſeen and heard, that he teſtifieth; and no man receiveth his teſtimony.

33 He that hath received his teſtimony, hath ſet to his ſeal that God is true.

34 For he whom God hath ſent ſpeaketh the words of God; for God giveth not the Spirit by meaſure unto him.

35 The Father loveth the Son, and hath given all things into his hand.

36 He that believeth on the Son hath everlaſting life: and he that believeth not the Son ſhall not ſee life; but the wrath of God abideth on him.

CHAP. IV.

1 Chriſt talketh with a woman of Samaria. 27 His diſciples marvel. 31 His zeal for God's glory.

WHEN, therefore, the Lord knew how the Phariſees had heard that Jeſus made and baptized more diſciples than John,

2 (Though Jeſus himſelf baptized not, but his diſciples,)

3 He left Judea, and departed again into Galilee.

4 And he muſt needs go through Samaria.

5 Then cometh he to a city in Samaria, which is called Sychar, near to the parcel of ground that Jacob gave to his ſon Joſeph.

6 Now Jacob's well was there. Jeſus therefore, being wearied with his journey, ſat thus on the well: and it was about the ſixth hour.

7 There cometh a woman of Samaria to draw water: Jeſus ſaith unto her, Give me to drink:

8 (For his diſciples were gone away unto the city to buy meat.)

9 Then ſaith the woman of Samaria unto him, How is it that thou, being a Jew, aſkeſt drink of me, which 13 No man hath aſcended up to heaven, &c.) As the divine and human natures were united in the perſon of Chriſt, attributions are made of the properties of one nature to him, whilſt he is ſpoken of under a title which relates to his other nature. Thus when it is ſaid, (1 Cor. ii. 8.) The Lord of glory was crucified, and (Acts xx. 28.) he is called God, who purchaſed the church with his own blood: the meaning is not that he, as the Lord of glory, was crucified, or, as God, ſhed his blood, as if the divine nature could be crucified and bleed; but that the perſon, who was the Lord of glory in one nature, was crucified in the other; and the perſon who was God in one nature, redeemed the church with his own blood, which belonged to his other nature: ſo when it is ſaid, The ſon of man is in heaven, the meaning is not that he, as the Son of man, was there whilſt he was on earth, but that he, who was here in his human nature, was there in his divine.

18 He that believeth on him is not condemned, &c.) Things are now brought to this point, that whoſoever, Jew or Gentile, believes on the Son of God, as manifeſted and propoſed in the goſpel, is freed from the condemning ſentence of the law, its curſe ſtanding no longer in force againſt him: but whoſoever rejects or neglects the crucified Saviour, remains under a ſentence of condemnation; and perſiſting therein to the end, he ſhall certainly be caſt in the day of judgment for all his iniquities, and eſpecially for the great ſin of unbelief, in refuſing his only remedy; becauſe, notwithſtanding all the light, endearments, and obligations of his laſt diſpenſation of grace, he has not by faith embraced God's own eternally begotten Son, and the only method of ſalvation brought in and revealed by him 31 He that cometh from above is above all, &c.) He being of divine original came down immediately from heaven, and therefore is infinitely ſuperior, in his perſon and adminiſtration, to all others: for as I, and every other prophet that appeared before me, had our original from the earth, like our firſt common father, we being of earthly parents, and of an earthly frame; ſo we naturally are moſt affected with and ſpeak of earthly things, and can of ourſelves ſay nothing of heaven, but in a groſs and earthly manner; and what we ſpeak of the things of God, even under ſome degrees of inſpiration, is low and flat, and ſavours of the earth, if compared with the ſublime myſteries of infinite Wiſdom, as they lie in God's own mind: but this divine perſon naturally ſpeaks of heavenly things, and that in the moſt ſurprizing and exalted ſtrains like himſelf, like one intimately acquainted with them, as they lie in the divine counſels, and as they are in themſelves; and ſo he, who came down from heaven, is every way ſuperior to me and all other prophets whatſoever.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

4 He muſt needs go through Samaria.) Samaria was inhabited by Gentiles, mixed with apoſtate Jews: and that mungrel people received the law of Moſes, and worſhipped the God of Iſrael, but denied the divine authority of the reſt of the Old Teſtament, and mingled many heathen idolatries and ſuperſtitions in their worſhip.

5 Then cometh he to a city in Samaria, which is called Sychar.) This Sychar is ſuppoſed to be the ſame with Shechem, which is mentioned Joſh. xxiv. 32. and in ſeveral other places of the Old Teſtament; but which the Jews, in their enmity to the Samaritans, called by way of reproach Sychar, which ſignifies the drunken city: and near to this was the valley of Achor, which was given as a door of hope with reſpect to the calling of the Gentiles, (Hoſ. ii. 15.) the firſt ſpecimen of their believing in Chriſt was now to be given here: and here were made the firſt proſelytes to the church of Iſrael.

9 How is it that thou, being a Jew, aſkeſt drink of me? &c.) The Jews and Samaritans were inveterate enemies to one another, on account of ancient injuries that had paſſed between them, and of their different temples and religions; and the enmity had aroſe to ſuch an height, that they treated one another with the utmoſt ab-am a woman of Samaria? (for the Jews have no dealings with the Samaritans.)

10 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto her, If thou kneweſt the gift of God, and who it is that ſaith to thee, Give me to drink; thou wouldeſt have aſked of him, and he would have given thee living water.

11 The woman ſaith unto him, Sir, thou haſt nothing to draw with, and the well is deep: from whence then haſt thou that living water?

12 Art thou greater than our father Jacob, which gave us the well, and drank thereof himſelf, and his children, and his cattle?

13 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto her, Whoſoever drinketh of this water ſhall thirſt again:

14 But whoſoever drinketh of the water that I ſhall give him ſhall never thirſt; but the water that I ſhall give him ſhall be in him a well of water, ſpringing up into everlaſting life.

15 The woman ſaith unto him, Sir, give me this water, that I thirſt not, neither come hither to draw.

16 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Go, call thy huſband, and come hither.

17 The woman anſwered and ſaid, I have no huſband. Jeſus ſaid unto her, Thou haſt well ſaid, I have no huſband:

18 For thou haſt had five huſbands, and he whom thou now haſt is not thy huſband: in that ſaidſt thou truly.

19 The woman ſaith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet.

20 Our fathers worſhipped in this mountain: and ye ſay that in Jeruſalem is the place where men ought to worſhip.

21 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when ye ſhall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jeruſalem worſhip the Father.

22 Ye worſhip ye know not what: we know what we worſhip; for ſalvation is of the Jews.

23 But the hour cometh, and now is, when the true worſhippers ſhall worſhip the Father in ſpirit and in truth: for the Father ſeeketh ſuch to worſhip him.

24 God is a Spirit, and they that worſhip him muſt worſhip him in ſpirit and in truth.

25 The woman ſaith unto him, I know that Meſſias cometh, which is called Chriſt: when he is come, he will tell us all things.

26 Jeſus ſaid unto her, I that ſpeak unto thee am he.

27 ¶ And upon this came his diſciples, and marvelled that he talked with the woman: yet no man ſaid, What ſeekeſt thou? or, Why talkeſt thou with her?

28 The woman then left her water-pot, and went her way into the city, and ſaith to the men,

29 Come, ſee a man which told me all things that ever I did: is not this the Chriſt?

30 Then they went out of the city, and came unto him.

31 ¶ In the mean while his diſciples prayed him, ſaying, Maſter, eat.

32 But he ſaid unto them, I have meat to eat that ye know not of.

33 Therefore ſaid the diſciples one to another, Hath any man brought him ought to eat?

34 Jeſus ſaith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that ſent me, and to finiſh his work.

35 Say not ye, There are yet four months, and then cometh harveſt? behold, I ſay unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harveſt.

36 And he that reapeth receiveth wages, and gathereth fruit unto life eternal: that both he that ſoweth and he that reapeth may rejoice together.

37 And herein is that ſaying true, One ſoweth and another reapeth.

38 I ſent you to reap that whereon ye beſtowed no labour: other men laboured, and ye are entered into their labours.

39 And many of the Samaritans of that city believed on him, for the ſaying of the woman which teſtified, He told me all that ever I did.

40 So when the Samaritans were come unto him, they beſought him that he would tarry with them: and he abode there two days.

41 And many more believed becauſe of his own word;

42 And ſaid unto the woman, Now we believe; not becauſe of thy ſaying: for we have heard him ourſelves, and know that this is indeed the Chriſt, the Saviour of the world.

43 Now after two days he departed thence, and went into Galilee:

44 For Jeſus himſelf teſtified, that a prophet hath no honour in his own country.

45 Then when he was come into Galilee, the Galileans received him, having ſeen all the things that he did at Jeruſalem at the feaſt: for they alſo went unto the feaſt.

46 So Jeſus came again into Cana of Galilee, where he made the water wine. And there was a certain nobleman, whoſe ſon was ſick at Capernaum.

47 When he heard that Jeſus was come out of Judea into Galilee, he went unto him, and beſought him that he would come down and heal his ſon; for he was at the point of death.

horrence and contempt: and though in caſes of neceſſity they ſometimes traded together; yet they refuſed all acts of friendſhip, humanity, and common civility to each other, as the laſt words of this verſe intimate, compared with ver. 8. Many learned expoſitors ſuppoſe theſe to be, not the words of the woman, becauſe they think there was no occaſion for her to mention a thing ſo univerſally known to both nations, but the words of the Evangeliſt, which he added for our better underſtanding the reaſon of her queſtion to our Lord; and yet, as this was a pertinent ſupport of her queſtion, others ſuppoſe that ſhe herſelf might have alledged it: for the more the fact was known, ſhe might think it the more to her purpoſe to remind Chriſt of it.

20 Our fathers worſhipped in this mountain, &c.) There was a temple on mount Gerizim, and the occaſion of building it was this: Soon after the rebuilding of the temple at Jeruſalem under Darius the Perſian, one of the ſons of Jehoiada the high-prieſt, whom Joſephus calls Manaſſeh, having married the daughter of Sanballat, Nehemiah, that great reformer, obliged all, who, contrary to the law, had taken ſtrange wives, to put them away, or to quit the country: whereupon Manaſſeh, being unwilling to part with his wife, flew to Samaria, and with many others in like circumſtances, ſettled under the protection of Sanballat, who was governor of that place: and Sanballat, at his inſtigation, built a temple on mount Gerizim, like that at Jeruſalem, and in oppoſition to it; and Manaſſeh was the high-prieſt there. From that time forward Samaria became the receptacle of all diſcontented and apoſtate Jews, and bitter contentions were carried on from age to age, between the two nations about the true place of worſhip; the Jews, that had not revolted, pleading for Jeruſalem, as the place which God himſelf had expreſsly appointed for the temple, and honoured with his ſpecial preſence; and the Samaritans pleading that Abraham and Jacob built altars on mount Gerizim, and offered ſacrifices there long before the temple was built at Jeruſalem; that God himſelf had appointed mount Gerizim (Deut. xxvii. 12.) for bleſſing the people; and that Joſhua had built an altar there; for the ſupport of which notion they had corrupted their copy of the pentateuch.

41 Many more believed becauſe of his own word.) It does not appear that he wrought any miracle here: but the bleſſed effect of his preaching to this people was ſurpriſing; and he can as effectually convert the worſt ſinners, and the moſt unlikely to be wrought upon, without miracles, as with them, whenever he pleaſes to ſet home his word with power upon their hearts; but without this, the greateſt of all miracles will have no ſaving effect.

48 Then ſaid Jeſus unto him, Except ye ſee ſigns and wonders, ye will not believe.

49 The nobleman ſaith unto him, Sir, come down ere my child die.

50 Jeſus ſaith unto him, Go thy way; thy ſon liveth. And the man believed the word that Jeſus had ſpoken unto him, and he went his way.

51 And as he was now going down his ſervants met him, and told him, ſaying, Thy ſon liveth.

52 Then enquired he of them the hour when he began to amend. And they ſaid unto him, Yeſterday at the ſeventh hour the fever left him.

53 So the father knew that it was at the ſame hour in the which Jeſus ſaid unto him, Thy ſon liveth; and himſelf believed, and his whole houſe.

54 This is again the ſecond miracle that Jeſus did, when he was come out of Judea into Galilee.

CHAP. V.

1 Jeſus on the ſabbath-day cureth him that was diſeaſed eight and thirty years. 10 The Jews cavil, and perſecute him for it.

AFTER this there was a feaſt of the Jews; and Jeſus went up to Jeruſalem.

2 Now there is at Jeruſalem by the ſheep-market a pool, which is called in the Hebrew tongue Bethesda, having five porches.

3 In theſe lay a great multitude of impotent folk, of blind, halt, withered, waiting for the moving of the water.

4 For an angel went down at a certain ſeaſon into the pool, and troubled the water; whoſoever then firſt after the troubling of the water ſtepped in, was made whole of whatſoever diſeaſe he had.

5 And a certain man was there which had an infirmity thirty and eight years.

6 When Jeſus ſaw him lie, and knew that he had been now a long time in that caſe, he ſaith unto him, Wilt thou be made whole?

7 The impotent man anſwered him, Sir, I have no man, when the water is troubled, to put me into the pool: but while I am coming, another ſteppeth down before me.

8 Jeſus ſaith unto him, Riſe, take up thy bed, and walk.

9 And immediately the man was made whole, and took up his bed, and walked: and on the ſame day was the ſabbath.

10 ¶ The Jews, therefore, ſaid unto him that was cured, It is the ſabbath-day: it is not lawful for thee to carry thy bed.

11 He anſwered them, He that made me whole, the ſame ſaid unto me, Take up thy bed, and walk.

12 Then aſked they him, What man is that which ſaid unto thee, Take up thy bed, and walk?

13 And he that was healed wiſt not who it was: for Jeſus had conveyed himſelf away, a multitude being in that place.

14 Afterward Jeſus findeth him in the temple, and ſaid unto him, Behold, thou art made whole: ſin no more, leſt a worſe thing come unto thee.

15 The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jeſus which had made him whole.

16 And therefore did the Jews perſecute Jeſus, and ſought to ſlay him, becauſe he had done theſe things on the ſabbath-day.

17 But Jeſus anſwered them, My Father worketh hitherto, and I work.

18 Therefore the Jews ſought the more to kill him, becauſe he not only had broken the ſabbath, but ſaid alſo that God was his Father, making himſelf equal with God.

19 Then anſwered Jeſus, and ſaid unto them, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, The Son can do nothing of himſelf, but what he ſeeth the Father do: for what things ſoever he doeth, theſe alſo doeth the Son likewiſe.

20 For the Father loveth the Son, and ſheweth him all things that himſelf doeth: and he will ſhew him greater works than theſe, that ye may marvel.

21 For as the Father raiſeth up the dead, and quickeneth them; even ſo the Son quickeneth whom he will.

22 For the Father judgeth no man; but hath committed all judgment unto the Son:

23 That all men ſhould honour the Son, even as they honour the Father. He that honoureth not the Son, honoureth not the Father which hath ſent him.

24 Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that ſent me, hath everlaſting life, and ſhall not come into condemnation; but is paſſed from death unto life.

25 Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, The hour is coming, and now is, when the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God: and they that hear ſhall live.

26 For as the Father hath life in himſelf, ſo hath he given to the Son to have life in himſelf;

27 And hath given him authority to execute judgment alſo, becauſe he is the Son of man.

28 Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in the which all that are in the graves ſhall hear his voice,

29 And ſhall come forth; they that have done good, unto the reſurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the reſurrection of damnation.

30 I can of mine own ſelf do nothing: as I hear, I

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

4 Whoſoever then firſt after the troubling of the water ſtepped in, was made whole, &c.) This ſhews that the virtue of this water was not owing, as ſome have ſuggeſted, to a mixture of the blood of the ſacrifices, which ran into this pool, and to a motion which ſome meſſenger from the ſanhedrim, or from the prieſts, put the impregnated water into, nor to any other natural cauſe whatſoever: for then its virtue would not have been reſtrained to the healing of the ſingle perſon who firſt ſtepped in; and no natural virtue could be effectual to cure all, one as well as another, of the different ſorts of diſeaſes here mentioned; and therefore every cure by this means muſt be entirely miraculous.

15 The man departed, and told the Jews that it was Jeſus which had made him whole.) It is obſervable that the Jews, in their queſtion (ver. 12.) took no notice of the miracle, but only aſked what man had ordered this perſon to take up his bed and walk: but the man, in his account of Jeſus, took no notice of his ordering him to carry his bed, but only of his making him whole; which ſhews that the information this man gave was not from any ill will to Chriſt, as their enquiry was; but that he deſigned it for the honour of his great benefactor.

18 The Jews ſought the more to kill him, becauſe he—ſaid alſo that God was his Father, &c.) The Jews themſelves often called God their Father, and would never have found fault with, much leſs charged blaſphemy upon, any that came to them under the character of a prophet, for uſing the ſame ſtile: and therefore they muſt be ſuppoſed to underſtand our Lord, as ſpeaking of God, as his Father, in a ſenſe ſuperior to any covenant or office-relation, and in a ſenſe ſo peculiar to himſelf, as to intimate his partaking of the ſame nature and perfections with him; or elſe there would have been no room for their imagining or ſuggeſting, that by this claim of relation to God as his Father, he made himſelf equal with God.

25 When the dead ſhall hear the voice of the Son of God, &c.) The goſpel is called Chriſt's voice, (chap. x. 16.) and of this he ſays, The words that I ſpeak, they are ſpirit, and they are life, (chap. vi. 63.) and he ſoon gave a viſible repreſentation of his quickening power, in his raiſing ſeveral perſons to life that were literally dead, before his own death, and at his own reſurrection: ſo that what he here ſays about raiſing the dead, and in ver. 27. about executing judgment, ſeems evidently to refer to the power which he then was beginning to exerciſe in the adminiſtration of his kingdom in this world; becauſe theſe are diſtinguiſhed from the general reſurrection and judgment at the laſt day, which are ſpoken of, ver. 28. 29.

judge: and my judgment is juſt; becauſe I ſeek not mine own will, but the will of the Father which hath ſent me.

31 If I bear witneſs of myſelf, my witneſs is not true.

32 There is another that beareth witneſs of me, and I know that the witneſs which he witneſſeth of me is true.

33 Ye ſent unto John, and he bare witneſs unto the truth.

34 But I receive not teſtimony from man: but theſe things I ſay that ye might be ſaved.

35 He was a burning and a ſhining light: and ye were willing for a ſeaſon to rejoice in his light.

36 But I have greater witneſs than that of John: for the works which the Father hath given me to finiſh, the ſame works that I do bear witneſs of me, that the Father hath ſent me.

37 And the Father himſelf, which hath ſent me, hath borne witneſs of me. Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor ſeen his ſhape.

38 And ye have not his word abiding in you; for whom he hath ſent, him ye believe not.

39 Search the ſcriptures; for in them ye think ye have eternal life: and they are they which teſtify of me.

40 And ye will not come to me, that ye might have life.

41 I receive not honour from men.

42 But I know you, that ye have not the love of God in you.

43 I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not: if another ſhall come in his own name, him ye will receive.

44 How can ye believe, which receive honour one of another, and ſeek not the honour that cometh from God only?

45 Do not think that I will accuſe you to the Father: there is one that accuſeth you, even Moſes, in whom ye truſt.

46 For had ye believed Moſes, ye would have believed me: for he wrote of me.

47 But if ye believe not his writings, how ſhall ye believe my words?

CHAP. VI.

1 Chriſt feedeth five thouſand with five loaves and two fiſhes. 26 He reproveth the fleſhly hearers of his word, 32 and declareth himſelf to be the bread of life.

AFTER theſe things Jeſus went over the ſea of Galilee, which is the ſea of Tiberias.

2 And a great multitude followed him, becauſe they ſaw his miracles which he did on them that were diſeaſed.

3 And Jeſus went up into a mountain, and there he ſat with his diſciples.

4 And the paſſover, a feaſt of the Jews, was nigh.

5 When Jeſus then lifted up his eyes, and ſaw a great company come unto him, he ſaith unto Philip, Whence ſhall we buy bread, that theſe may eat?

6 (And this he ſaid to prove him: for he himſelf knew what he would do.

7 Philip anſwered him, Two hundred pennyworth of bread is not ſufficient for them, that every one of them may take a little.

8 One of his diſciples, Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, ſaith unto him,

9 There is a lad here which hath five barley-loaves, and two ſmall fiſhes: but what are they among ſo many?

10 And Jeſus ſaid, Make the men ſit down. Now there was much graſs in the place. So the men ſat down, in number about five thouſand.

11 And Jeſus took the loaves; and, when he had given thanks, he diſtributed to the diſciples, and the diſciples to them that were ſet down; and likewiſe of the fiſhes, as much as they would.

12 When they were filled, he ſaid unto his diſciples, Gather up the fragments that remain, that nothing be loſt.

13 Therefore they gathered them together, and filled twelve baſkets with the fragments of the five barley-loaves, which remained over and above unto them that had eaten.

14 Then thoſe men, when they had ſeen the miracle that Jeſus did, ſaid, This is of a truth that Prophet that ſhould come into the world.

15 When Jeſus, therefore, perceived that they would come and take him by force to make him a king, he departed again into a mountain himſelf alone.

16 And when even was now come, his diſciples went down unto the ſea,

17 And entered into a ſhip, and went over the ſea toward Capernaum; and it was now dark, and Jeſus was not come to them.

18 And the ſea aroſe, by reaſon of a great wind that blew.

19 So when they had rowed about five and twenty or thirty furlongs, they ſee Jeſus walking on the ſea, and drawing nigh unto the ſhip: and they were afraid.

20 But he ſaith unto them, It is I; be not afraid.

21 Then they willingly received him into the ſhip: and immediately the ſhip was at the land whither they went.

22 The day following, when the people, which ſtood on the other ſide of the ſea, ſaw that there was none other boat there, ſave that one whereinto his diſciples were entered, and that Jeſus went not with his diſciples into the boat, but that his diſciples were gone away alone;

23 (Howbeit there came other boats from Tiberias, nigh unto the place where they did eat bread, after that the Lord had given thanks;)

24 When the people, therefore, ſaw that Jeſus was not there, neither his diſciples, they alſo took ſhipping, and came to Capernaum, ſeeking for Jeſus.

25 And when they had found him on the other ſide of the ſea, they ſaid unto him, Rabbi, when cameſt thou hither?

26 ¶ Jeſus anſwered them and ſaid, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, Ye ſeek me, not becauſe ye ſaw the miracles, but becauſe ye did eat of the loaves, and were filled.

27 Labour not for the meat which periſheth, but for 37 Ye have neither heard his voice at any time, nor ſeen his ſhape.) Shape ſignifies an appearance or repreſentation: and as many of the Jews heard the Father's voice, and ſaw the viſible repreſentation he made at Chriſt's baptiſm; and as after this they heard a voice to him from heaven, (chap. xii. 28, 29.) what is here ſaid ſeems to relate, not to theſe particular perſons, but to the nation of the Jews, and ſtrongly intimates that this was a peculiar privilege which none of their anceſtors were ever favoured with; and, by conſequence, that all the voices and appearances of God, under the Old Teſtament, were not of the Father, but of the Son, as preſages of his incarnation: otherwiſe it could not be ſaid that the Jews had never before heard the Father's voice at any time, nor ſeen his appearance in a viſible repreſentation made by him.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

15 When Jeſus, therefore, perceived that they would come and take him by force, &c.) The people ſeeing ſo many thouſands fed with five loaves, were ſo tranſported, that they concluded that Jeſus was certainly the promiſed Meſſias. Now the notion they had of the Meſſias was this, that he ſhould be a temporal prince that ſhould ſubdue all nations under his feet, and particularly free the Jews from the ſlavery of the Roman yoke, which was now upon their necks, forgetting what our Saviour had often told them, that his kingdom was not of this world: upon this miſtake, the Jews here in a furious zeal deſigned to take Chriſt by force, and make him their king; but our Saviour, underſtanding their intentions, withdraws himſelf into a mountain, to avoid giving any occaſion for jealouſy or ſuſpicion.

that meat which endureth unto everlaſting life, which the Son of man ſhall give unto you: for him hath God the Father ſealed.

28 Then ſaid they unto him, What ſhall we do, that we might work the works of God?

29 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath ſent.

30 They ſaid therefore unto him, What ſign ſheweſt thou then, that we may ſee and believe thee? what doeſt thou work?

31 Our fathers did eat manna in the deſert; as it is written, He gave them bread from heaven to eat.

32 ¶ Then Jeſus ſaid unto them, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, Moſes gave you not that bread from heaven; but my Father giveth you the true bread from heaven.

33 For the bread of God is he which cometh down from heaven, and giveth life unto the world.

34 Then ſaid they unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread.

35 And Jeſus ſaid unto them, I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me ſhall never hunger; and he that believeth on me ſhall never thirſt.

36 But I ſaid unto you, That ye alſo have ſeen me, and believe not.

37 All that the Father giveth me ſhall come to me; and him that cometh to me, I will in no wiſe caſt out.

38 For I came down from heaven, not to do mine own will, but the will of him that ſent me.

39 And this is the Father's will which hath ſent me, that of all which he hath given me I ſhould loſe nothing, but ſhould raiſe it up again at the laſt day.

40 And this is the will of him that ſent me, that every one which ſeeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlaſting life: and I will raiſe him up at the laſt day.

41 The Jews then murmured at him, becauſe he ſaid, I am the bread which came down from heaven.

42 And they ſaid, Is not this Jeſus the ſon of Joſeph, whoſe father and mother we know? how is it then that he ſaith, I came down from heaven?

43 Jeſus, therefore, anſwered and ſaid unto them, Murmur not among yourſelves.

44 No man can come to me, except the Father which hath ſent me draw him: and I will raiſe him up at the laſt day.

45 It is written in the prophets, And they ſhall be all taught of God. Every man, therefore, that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me.

46 Not that any man hath ſeen the Father, ſave he which is of God, he hath ſeen the Father.

47 Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, He that believeth on me hath everlaſting life.

48 I am that bread of life.

49 Your fathers did eat manna in the wilderneſs, and are dead.

50 This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof, and not die.

51 I am the living bread which came down from heaven. If any man eat of this bread, he ſhall live for ever: and the bread that I will give is my fleſh, which I will give for the life of the world.

52 The Jews, therefore, ſtrove among themſelves, ſaying, How can this man give us his fleſh to eat?

53 Then Jeſus ſaid unto them, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, Except ye eat the fleſh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you.

54 Whoſo eateth my fleſh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raiſe him up at the laſt day.

55 For my fleſh is meat indeed, and my blood is drink indeed.

56 He that eateth my fleſh, and drinketh my blood, dwelleth in me, and I in him.

57 As the living Father hath ſent me, and I live by the Father; ſo he that eateth me, even he ſhall live by me.

58 This is that bread which came down from heaven: not as your fathers did eat manna, and are dead. He that eateth of this bread ſhall live for ever.

59 Theſe things ſaid he in the ſynagogue, as he taught in Capernaum.

60 Many, therefore, of his diſciples, when they had heard this, ſaid, This is an hard ſaying; who can hear it?

61 When Jeſus knew in himſelf that his diſciples murmured at it, he ſaid unto them, Doth this offend you?

62 What and if ye ſhall ſee the Son of man aſcend up where he was before?

63 It is the Spirit that quickeneth; the fleſh profiteth nothing: the words that I ſpeak unto you, they are ſpirit, and they are life.

64 But there are ſome of you that believe not. For Jeſus knew from the beginning who they were that believed not, and who ſhould betray him.

65 And he ſaid, Therefore ſaid I unto you, That no man can come unto me, except it were given unto him of my Father.

66 From that time many of his diſciples went back, and walked no more with him.

67 Then ſaid Jeſus unto the twelve, Will ye alſo go away?

68 Then Simon Peter anſwered him, Lord, to whom ſhall we go? thou haſt the words of eternal life.

69 And we believe, and are ſure, that thou art that Chriſt, the Son of the living God.

70 Jeſus anſwered them, Have not I choſen you twelve, and one of you is a devil?

71 He ſpake of Judas Iſcariot, the ſon of Simon: for he it was that ſhould betray him, being one of the twelve.

CHAP. VII.

1 Jeſus reproveth his kinſmen: 10 goeth unto the feaſt of tabernacles: 14 teacheth in the temple.

AFTER theſe things Jeſus walked in Galilee: for he would not walk in Jewry, becauſe the Jews ſought to kill him.

34 Then ſaid they unto him, Lord, evermore give us this bread.) Some have imagined that they ſaid this by way of deriſion, as ſuppoſing that what our bleſſed Lord ſpoke of was a ridiculous conceit of ſomething which was impoſſible to be done. But by the reſpectful way of their addreſſing him, it ſeems that they were ſerious, though very ignorant in this requeſt, and that therefore in the following verſes he ſo clearly explained his meaning in its reference to himſelf.

37 All that the Father giveth me ſhall come to me, &c.) Coming to Chriſt, in this and the 37th verſe, is the ſame as believing in him: for the people were already come in a corporal manner to him; and it cannot be ſaid that the bleſſings here promiſed ſhall be given to all that ſo come to him.

57 As the living Father hath ſent me, and I live by the Father, &c.) Chriſt living by the Father ſeems to relate to his life as man and mediator; becauſe it is here ſpoken of, as the conſequence of his Father's ſending him; and a believer's living by him is repreſented as bearing an analogy to his living by the Father.

60 Many, therefore, of his diſciples, &c.) Now as he had a great number of diſciples at large, who often attended his miniſtry, and made a profeſſion of his name; ſo many of them, whoſe hearts were not right with him, were highly offended at what he had ſaid about his being the bread that came down from heaven, and about the neceſſity of eating him, in order to their living by him: they that ſtill took theſe things in a literal ſenſe, thought it a monſtrous and ſavage doctrine; they that took them in a figurative ſenſe, as Chriſt explained them, thought that he blaſphemouſly aſſumed to himſelf a divine original and operation; and they that knew not what conſtruction to put upon his words, thought there was ſomething ſo myſterious in them, that no man in his wits could receive them; and ſo they heavily complained, one to another, that he preached ſuch doctrine as was not fit for any man to believe, or even to hear.

2 Now the Jews' feaſt of tabernacles was at hand:

3 His brethren, therefore, ſaid unto him, Depart hence, and go into Judea, that thy diſciples alſo may ſee the works that thou doeſt.

4 For there is no man that doeth any thing in ſecret, and he himſelf ſeeketh to be known openly: if thou do theſe things, ſhew thyſelf to the world.

5 For neither did his brethren believe in him.

6 Then Jeſus ſaid unto them, My time is not yet come: but your time is alway ready.

7 The world cannot hate you; but me it hateth, becauſe I teſtify of it, that the works thereof are evil.

8 Go ye up unto this feaſt: I go not up yet unto this feaſt; for my time is not yet full come.

9 When he had ſaid theſe words unto them, he abode ſtill in Galilee.

10 ¶ But when his brethren were gone up, then went he alſo up unto the feaſt, not openly, but as it were in ſecret.

11 Then the Jews ſought him at the feaſt, and ſaid, Where is he?

12 And there was much murmuring among the people concerning him; for ſome ſaid, He is a good man: others ſaid, Nay; but he deceiveth the people.

13 Howbeit, no man ſpake openly of him, for fear of the Jews.

14 ¶ Now, about the midſt of the feaſt, Jeſus went up into the temple and taught.

15 And the Jews marvelled, ſaying, How knoweth this man letters, having never learned?

16 Jeſus anſwered them and ſaid, My doctrine is not mine, but his that ſent me.

17 If any man will do his will, he ſhall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I ſpeak of myſelf.

18 He that ſpeaketh of himſelf ſeeketh his own glory: but he that ſeeketh his glory that ſent him, the ſame is true, and no unrighteouſneſs is in him.

19 Did not Moſes give you the law, and yet none of you keepeth the law? Why go ye about to kill me?

20 The people anſwered and ſaid, Thou haſt a devil: who goeth about to kill thee?

21 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, I have done one work, and ye all marvel.

22 Moſes, therefore, gave unto you circumciſion, (not becauſe it is of Moſes, but of the fathers,) and ye on the ſabbath-day circumciſe a man.

23 If a man on the ſabbath-day receive circumciſion, that the law of Moſes ſhould not be broken; are ye angry at me becauſe I have made a man every whit whole on the ſabbath-day?

24 Judge not according to the appearance, but judge righteous judgment.

25 Then ſaid ſome of them of Jeruſalem, Is not this he whom they ſeek to kill?

26 But, lo, he ſpeaketh boldly, and they ſay nothing unto him: do the rulers know indeed that this is the very Chriſt?

27 Howbeit, we know this man whence he is: but when Chriſt cometh, no man knoweth whence he is.

28 Then cried Jeſus in the temple, as he taught, ſaying, Ye both know me, and ye know whence I am: and I am not come of myſelf, but he that ſent me is true, whom ye know not.

29 But I know him: for I am from him, and he hath ſent me.

30 Then they ſought to take him; but no man laid hands on him, becauſe his hour was not yet come.

31 And many of the people believed on him and ſaid, When Chriſt cometh, will he do more miracles than theſe which this man hath done?

32 The Phariſees heard that the people murmured ſuch things concerning him; and the Phariſees and the chief prieſts ſent officers to take him.

33 Then ſaid Jeſus unto them, Yet a little while am I with you, and then I go unto him that ſent me.

34 Ye ſhall ſeek me, and ſhall not find me: and where I am, thither ye cannot come.

35 Then ſaid the Jews among themſelves, Whither will he go, that we ſhall not find him? Will he go unto the diſperſed among the Gentiles, and teach the Gentiles?

36 What manner of ſaying is this that he ſaid, Ye ſhall ſeek me, and ſhall not find me? and, Where I am, thither ye cannot come.

37 In the laſt day, that great day of the feaſt, Jeſus ſtood and cried, ſaying, If any man thirſt, let him come unto me and drink.

38 He that believeth on me, as the ſcripture hath ſaid, out of his belly ſhall flow rivers of living water.

39 (But this ſpake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him ſhould receive: for the Holy Ghoſt was not yet given, becauſe that Jeſus was not yet glorified.)

40 Many of the people, therefore, when they heard this ſaying, ſaid, Of a truth this is the Prophet.

41 Others ſaid, This is the Chriſt. But ſome ſaid, Shall Chriſt come out of Galilee?

42 Hath not the ſcripture ſaid, That Chriſt cometh of the ſeed of David, and out of the town of Beth-lehem, where David was?

43 So there was a diviſion among the people becauſe of him.

44 And ſome of them would have taken him: but no man laid hands on him.

45 Then came the officers to the chief prieſts and Phariſees; and they ſaid unto them, Why have ye not brought him?

46 The officers anſwered, Never man ſpake like this man.

47 Then anſwered them the Phariſees, Are ye alſo deceived?

48 Have any of the rulers, or of the Phariſees, believed on him?

2 Now the Jews' feaſt of tabernacles was at hand.) There were three great feaſts which the Jews celebrated every year; namely, the feaſt of the Paſſover, the feaſt of Pentecoſt, and the feaſt of Tabernacles: this laſt was obſerved in the month of September, after they had gathered in the fruits of the earth; whence it was alſo called the feaſt of In-gathering: at this feaſt they went out of their houſes, and dwelt in booths ſeven days, in remembrance of their living in tents or booths in the wilderneſs for forty years together, before they came to Canaan: now, the inſtitution of this feaſt, being to call the Iſraelites to remembrance of their former condition in the wilderneſs, teaches us how prone and ready we are to forget our troubles, and the mercies wherewith our troubles have been ſweetened, when once they are paſt and over. The Jews, when ſettled in Canaan, going out of their houſes yearly, and dwelling in booths, did thereby teſtify that preſent mercies had not made them forget former trials and troubles.

16 My doctrine is not mine, but his that ſent me.) Though, conſidering Chriſt as God, his doctrine was his own as well as his Father's; yet, he here evidently ſpeaking of himſelf as man and the Meſſiah, his doctrine, under that conſideration of him, was not his own, but his Father's that ſent him: and it became him, in his ſtate of humiliation, and under the character of a prophet, to ſpeak of it in this light, according to what God had ſaid to Moſes concerning him, Deut. xviii. 18.

37 In the laſt day, that great day of the feaſt, &c.) On this day there was the greateſt concourſe of people, and they were then wont to fetch water from the pool of Siloam, part of which they uſed for drink-offerings, and the reſt they drank themſelves with joyful acclamations, in remembrance of God's miraculouſly giving water out of the rock to their fathers, when they dwelt in booths in the wilderneſs; and on this day they offered up ſolemn prayers for ſeaſonable rains.

49 But this people who knoweth not the law are curſed.
50 Nicodemus ſaith unto them, (he that came to Jeſus by night, being one of them,)
51 Doth our law judge any man before it hear him, and know what he doeth?
52 They anſwered and ſaid unto him, Art thou alſo of Galilee? Search, and look: for out of Galilee ariſeth no prophet.
53 And every man went unto his own houſe.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Chriſt delivereth the woman taken in adultery. 12 He preacheth himſelf the light of the world.

JESUS went unto the mount of Olives.
2 And early in the morning he came again into the temple, and all the people came unto him: and he ſat down and taught them.
3 And the ſcribes and Phariſees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery: and when they had ſet her in the midſt,
4 They ſay unto him, Maſter, this woman was taken in adultery, in the very act.
5 Now Moſes in the law commanded us, that ſuch ſhould be ſtoned: but what ſayeſt thou?
6 This they ſaid, tempting him, that they might have to accuſe him. But Jeſus ſtooped down, and with his finger wrote on the ground, as though he heard them not.
7 So when they continued aſking him, he lifted up himſelf, and ſaid unto them, He that is without ſin among you, let him firſt caſt a ſtone at her.
8 And again, he ſtooped down, and wrote on the ground.
9 And they which heard it, being convicted by their own conſcience, went out one by one, beginning at the eldeſt, even unto the laſt: and Jeſus was left alone, and the woman ſtanding in the midſt.
10 When Jeſus had lifted up himſelf, and ſaw none but the woman, he ſaid unto her, Woman, where are thoſe thine accuſers? hath no man condemned thee?
11 She ſaid, No man, Lord. And Jeſus ſaid unto her, Neither do I condemn thee: go, and ſin no more.
12 ¶ Then ſpake Jeſus again unto them, ſaying, I am the light of the world: he that followeth me ſhall not walk in darkneſs, but ſhall have the light of life.
13 The Phariſees, therefore, ſaid unto him, Thou beareſt record of thyſelf; thy record is not true.
14 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto them, Though I bear record of myſelf, yet my record is true: for I know whence I came, and whither I go; but ye cannot tell whence I come and whither I go.
15 Ye judge after the fleſh; I judge no man.
16 And yet if I judge, my judgment is true; for I am not alone, but I and the Father that ſent me.
17 It is alſo written in your law, that the teſtimony of two men is true.
18 I am one that bear witneſs of myſelf, and the Father that ſent me beareth witneſs of me.
19 Then ſaid they unto him, Where is thy Father? Jeſus anſwered, Ye neither know me nor my Father: if ye had known me, ye ſhould have known my Father alſo.
20 Theſe words ſpake Jeſus in the treaſury, as he taught in the temple: and no man laid hands on him; for his hour was not yet come.
21 Then ſaid Jeſus again unto them, I go my way, and ye ſhall ſeek me, and ſhall die in your ſins: whither I go ye cannot come.
22 Then ſaid the Jews, Will he kill himſelf? becauſe he ſaith, Whither I go ye cannot come.
23 And he ſaid unto them, Ye are from beneath; I am from above: ye are of this world; I am not of this world.
24 I ſaid, therefore, unto you, that ye ſhall die in your ſins; for if ye believe not that I am he, ye ſhall die in your ſins.
25 Then ſaid they unto him, Who art thou? And Jeſus ſaith unto them, Even the ſame that I ſaid unto you from the beginning.
26 I have many things to ſay and to judge of you: but he that ſent me is true; and I ſpeak to the world thoſe things which I have heard of him.
27 They underſtood not that he ſpake to them of the Father.
28 Then ſaid Jeſus unto them, When ye have lifted up the Son of man, then ſhall ye know that I am he, and that I do nothing of myſelf; but as my Father hath taught me, I ſpeak theſe things.
29 And he that ſent me is with me: the Father hath not left me alone; for I do always thoſe things that pleaſe him.
30 As he ſpake theſe words many believed on him.
31 Then ſaid Jeſus to thoſe Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my diſciples indeed:
32 And ye ſhall know the truth, and the truth ſhall make you free.
33 They anſwered him, We be Abraham's ſeed, and were never in bondage to any man: how ſayeſt thou, Ye ſhall be made free?
34 Jeſus anſwered them, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, Whoſoever committeth ſin is the ſervant of ſin.

52 Art thou alſo of Galilee? &c.) Here they took the vulgar error for granted, about Chriſt's being born in Nazareth of Galilee, and would not give themſelves the trouble of an impartial enquiry, to ſet themſelves to rights about it, though they might have been eaſily ſatisfied that he was born at Beth-lehem, from the public regiſter there, and from the genealogies of the family of David, as well as from himſelf and his diſciples. And it was not true that no prophet aroſe in that country: for Jonah was of Gath-Hepher in the tribe of Zebulon, (2 Kings xiv. 25. Joſh. xix. 13, 16.) and Nahum was an Elkoſhite (Nah. i. 1.) of the town called Elſes, which, Jerom on the place ſays, was in Galilee, there being a village of that name there to this day.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VIII.

3 The ſcribes and Phariſees brought unto him a woman taken in adultery, &c.) Perhaps it was very lately that ſhe had been guilty of this crime in one of their booths, during the feaſt of tabernacles, at which time the hearts of ſome might be made too merry by plentiful eating and drinking.

6 But Jeſus ſtooped down, &c.) If he ſhould declare for the law of Moſes, and encourage the people to ſtone this woman, they might hope it would give them a plauſible handle to reproach him for cruelty, and therein acting contrary to his pretences of being the Meſſiah, who was to be meek and lowly, and bring ſalvation; and for partiality in ordering ſo ſevere a puniſhment to an adultreſs, tho' he had freely admitted perſons of that character to converſe with him; or they might think it would give them a fair opportunity of accuſing him to the Roman government, as an abettor of tumults, and of judicial power, independent of its authority: and if, on the contrary, he ſhould declare againſt the people's ſtoning her, according to the rigour of Moſes' law, they might hope to incenſe the people againſt him, as an enemy to their law, and as a favourer of ſin, and of the worſt of ſinners: and if he ſhould turn them over to the judgment of the Roman government, they might think to expoſe him to the rage of the people, as an enemy to their liberty.

11 Neither do I condemn thee, &c.) It does not appear that this woman was a penitent, or that Chriſt forgave her ſin; but only that he diſmiſſed her, as not thinking it proper to take upon himſelf the office of the civil magiſtrate, in condemning her.

33 We be Abraham's ſeed, and were never in bondage to any man, &c.) It is ſurprizing that they ſhould have the confidence to aſſert ſo downright and known a falſhood, as that they were never in bondage to any man: for they had been notoriouſly in bondage for many years to foreign powers in Egypt and Babylon, and were at this very time tributaries to the Romans, and under great reſtraints of their liberties from them.

35 And the ſervant abideth not in the houſe for ever: but the Son abideth ever.

36 If the Son, therefore, ſhall make you free, ye ſhall be free indeed.

37 I know that ye are Abraham's ſeed: but ye ſeek to kill me, becauſe my word hath no place in you.

38 I ſpeak that which I have ſeen with my Father; and ye do that which ye have ſeen with your father.

39 They anſwered and ſaid unto him, Abraham is our father. Jeſus ſaith unto them, If ye were Abraham's children, ye would do the works of Abraham.

40 But now ye ſeek to kill me, a man that hath told you the truth, which I have heard of God: this did not Abraham.

41 Ye do the deeds of your father. Then ſaid they to him, We be not born of fornication; we have one Father, even God.

42 Jeſus ſaid unto them, If God were your Father, ye would love me: for I proceeded forth and came from God; neither came I of myſelf, but he ſent me.

43 Why do ye not underſtand my ſpeech? even becauſe ye cannot hear my word.

44 Ye are of your father the devil, and the luſts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, becauſe there is no truth in him. When he ſpeaketh a lie, he ſpeaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it.

45 And becauſe I tell you the truth, ye believe me not.

46 Which of you convinceth me of ſin? and if I ſay the truth, why do ye not believe me?

47 He that is of God heareth God's words: ye therefore hear them not, becauſe ye are not of God.

48 Then anſwered the Jews, and ſaid unto him, Say we not well that thou art a Samaritan, and haſt a devil?

49 Jeſus anſwered, I have not a devil; but I honour my Father, and ye do diſhonour me.

50 And I ſeek not mine own glory; there is one that ſeeketh and judgeth.

51 Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, If a man keep my ſaying, he ſhall never ſee death.

52 Then ſaid the Jews unto him, Now we know that thou haſt a devil. Abraham is dead, and the prophets; and thou ſayeſt, If a man keep my ſaying, he ſhall never taſte of death.

53 Art thou greater than our father Abraham, which is dead? and the prophets are dead: whom makeſt thou thyſelf?

54 Jeſus anſwered, If I honour myſelf, my honour is nothing: it is my Father that honoureth me; of whom ye ſay that he is your God.

55 Yet ye have not known him: but I know him. And if I ſhould ſay, I know him not, I ſhall be a liar like unto you: but I know him, and keep his ſaying.

56 Your father Abraham rejoiced to ſee my day: and he ſaw it, and was glad.

57 Then ſaid the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet fifty years old, and haſt thou ſeen Abraham?

58 Jeſus ſaid unto them, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, Before Abraham was, I am.

59 Then took they up ſtones to caſt at him: but Jeſus hid himſelf, and went out of the temple, going through the midſt of them, and ſo paſſed by.

CHAP. IX.

1 A blind man brought to ſight. 34 The Phariſees excommunicate him. 35 Chriſt receiveth him.

AND as Jeſus paſſed by, he ſaw a man which was blind from his birth.

2 And his diſciples aſked him, ſaying, Maſter, who did ſin, this man, or his parents, that he was born blind?

3 Jeſus anſwered, Neither hath this man ſinned, nor his parents; but that the works of God ſhould be made manifeſt in him.

4 I muſt work the works of him that ſent me while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work.

5 As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.

6 When he had thus ſpoken, he ſpat on the ground, and made clay of the ſpittle, and he anointed the eyes of the blind man with the clay.

7 And ſaid unto him, Go, waſh in the pool of Siloam (which is, by interpretation, Sent.) He went his way therefore, and waſhed, and came ſeeing.

8 The neighbours therefore, and they which before had ſeen him that he was blind, ſaid, Is not this he that ſat and begged?

9 Some ſaid, This is he. Others ſaid, He is like him. But he ſaid, I am he.

10 Therefore ſaid they unto him, How were thine eyes opened?

11 He anſwered and ſaid, A man that is called Jeſus made clay, and anointed mine eyes, and ſaid unto me, Go to the pool of Siloam, and waſh. And I went and waſhed, and I received ſight.

12 Then ſaid they unto him, Where is he? He ſaid, I know not.

13 They brought to the Phariſees him that aforetime was blind.

14 And it was the ſabbath-day when Jeſus made the clay, and opened his eyes.

15 Then again the Phariſees alſo aſked him how he had received his ſight. He ſaid unto them, He put clay upon mine eyes, and I waſhed, and do ſee.

16 Therefore ſaid ſome of the Phariſees, This man is not of God, becauſe he keepeth not the ſabbath-day. Others ſaid, How can a man that is a ſinner do ſuch miracles? And there was a diviſion among them.

17 They ſay unto the blind man again, What ſayeſt thou of him, that he hath opened thine eyes? He ſaid, He is a prophet.

18 But the Jews did not believe concerning him that he had been blind, and received his ſight, until they called the parents of him that had received his ſight.

46 Which of you convinceth me of ſin? &c.) So perfectly pure, innocent, and ſpotleſs, was the doctrine and life of Chriſt, that altho' his enemies loaded him with ſlander and falſe accuſation, yet none of them could juſtly convict him of, much leſs condemn him for, the leaſt known ſin. The Jews, being enraged at this free reproof, fell a railing at his perſon, charging him with being a Samaritan, poſſeſſed with an evil ſpirit. Our Saviour meekly replies, That he did not deal with the devil, but was honouring his Father in what he did and ſaid; and therefore his Father would take care of his honour, and judge between him and them.

56 Your father Abraham rejoiced to ſee my day, &c.) This ſeems naturally, from the form of expreſſion in the Greek, to ſignify, he vehemently deſired to ſee it; and this prevents the tautology that otherwiſe appears in the words, He rejoiced, and was glad. And tho' Abraham did not ſee Chriſt's day, in the ſame ſenſe as the Jews ſaw it, by his appearing actually in the fleſh; yet he ſaw it by faith in types, figures, and promiſes, as particularly in Melchizedeck, (Gen. xiv. 18.) in the appearance of Jehovah to him in the plains of Mamre, (chap. xviii. 1.) in his offering up of the ram in Iſaac's ſtead; and in the promiſe, that in his ſeed all the nations of the earth ſhould be bleſſed, chap. xxi. 11,—18.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IX.

3 Neither hath this man ſinned, &c.) The plain deſign of Chriſt here is, not to deny original ſin, or ſay any thing about it, but only to reply to their ſuggeſtion, as if this man or his parents were guilty of ſome greater ſin than others: for it could no more be ſaid abſolutely that his parents had not actually ſinned, than it could that neither he nor they were under the guilt and power of original ſin.

19 And

19 And they aſked them, ſaying, Is this your ſon who ye ſay was born blind? how then doth he now ſee?

20 His parents anſwered them and ſaid, We know that this is our ſon, and that he was born blind:

21 But by what means he now ſeeth, we know not; or who hath opened his eyes, we know not: he is of age; aſk him: he ſhall ſpeak for himſelf.

22 Theſe words ſpake his parents, becauſe they feared the Jews: for the Jews had agreed already, that if any man did confeſs that he was Chriſt, he ſhould be put out of the ſynagogue.

23 Therefore ſaid his parents, He is of age aſk him.

24 Then again called they the man that was blind, and ſaid unto him, Give God the praiſe: we know that this man is a ſinner.

25 He anſwered and ſaid, Whether he be a ſinner or no, I know not: one thing I know, that, whereas I was blind, now I ſee.

26 Then ſaid they to him again, What did he do to thee? how opened he thine eyes?

27 He anſwered them, I have told you already, and ye did not hear: wherefore would ye hear it again? will ye alſo be his diſciples?

28 Then they reviled him, and ſaid, Thou art his diſciple, but we are Moſes' diſciples.

29 We know that God ſpake unto Moſes: as for this fellow, we know not from whence he is.

30 The man anſwered and ſaid unto them, Why, herein is a marvellous thing, that ye know not from whence he is, and yet he hath opened mine eyes.

31 Now we know that God heareth not ſinners: but if any man be a worſhipper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth.

32 Since the world began was it not heard that any man opened the eyes of one that was born blind.

33 If this man were not of God, he could do nothing.

34 ¶ They anſwered and ſaid unto him, Thou waſt altogether born in ſins, and doſt thou teach us? And they caſt him out.

35 ¶ Jeſus heard that they had caſt him out; and when he had found him, he ſaid unto him, Doſt thou believe on the Son of God?

36 He anſwered and ſaid, Who is he, Lord, that I might believe on him?

37 And Jeſus ſaid unto him, Thou haſt both ſeen him, and it is he that talketh with thee.

38 And he ſaid, Lord, I believe. And he worſhipped him.

39 And Jeſus ſaid, For judgment I am come into this world; that they which ſee not might ſee; and that they which ſee might be made blind.

40 And ſome of the Phariſees, which were with him, heard theſe words, and ſaid unto him, Are we blind alſo?

41 Jeſus ſaid unto them, If ye were blind, ye ſhould have no ſin: but now ye ſay, We ſee; therefore your ſin remaineth.

CHAP. X.

1 Chriſt is the door, and the good ſhepherd: 24 he proveth by his works that he is Chriſt the Son of God.

VERILY, verily, I ſay unto you, He that entereth not by the door into the ſheep-fold, but climbeth up ſome other way; the ſame is a thief and a robber.

2 But he that entereth in by the door is the ſhepherd of the ſheep.

3 To him the porter openeth; and the ſheep hear his voice: and he calleth his own ſheep by name, and leadeth them out.

4 And when he putteth forth his own ſheep, he goeth before them, and the ſheep follow him; for they know his voice.

5 And a ſtranger will they not follow, but will flee from him: for they know not the voice of ſtrangers.

6 This parable ſpake Jeſus unto them: but they underſtood not what things they were which he ſpake unto them.

7 Then ſaid Jeſus unto them again, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, I am the door of the ſheep.

8 All that ever came before me are thieves and robbers: but the ſheep did not hear them.

9 I am the door: by me if any man enter in, he ſhall be ſaved, and ſhall go in and out, and find paſture.

10 The thief cometh not but for to ſteal, and to kill, and to deſtroy: I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

11 I am the good ſhepherd: the good ſhepherd giveth his life for the ſheep.

24 Again called they the man that was blind, &c.) Here we have an account of the Phariſees' farther practiſing upon this blind man, to rob Chriſt of the glory of this miracle. They firſt inſinuate with him, and then they frown upon him. Firſt, they inſinuate with him, ſaying, Give God the praiſe; as if they had ſaid, Aſcribe the cure to God, not to this man, whom they conclude to be a ſinner, becauſe he broke (as they thought) the ſabbath. It is no new thing to ſee men pretend to aim at the glory of God, when at the ſame time they are maliciouſly oppoſing Chriſt, and perſecuting his members. They next attempted to frown this poor man into a denial of this miracle wrought upon him, or to perſuade the people that it was a cheat; but it is wonderful to obſerve how the boldneſs and confidence of this poor man increaſed, God giving him that wiſdom and courage which all his adverſaries were not able to reſiſt or gainſay. Therefore the Phariſees being angry at the boldneſs of this man, they revile him for being ſo ſilly as to become a diſciple to Chriſt, whoſe office and authority they knew not; whereas they were the diſciples of Moſes, whom they knew God ſpake unto.

29 As for this fellow, we know not from whence he is.) The people had a little before objected againſt Jeſus' being the Meſſiah, becauſe, ſaid they, We know this man whence he is: but when Chriſt cometh, no man knoweth whence he is, chap. vii. 27. And here the Phariſees object againſt him, becauſe, ſay they, We know not from whence he is: ſo that, right or wrong, his enemies reſolved to run him down, and, without any ſcruple, would talk contradictions to ſerve a turn, and affirm or deny the ſame thing, or any thing, rather than not oppoſe him. But the truth is, they all did, or eaſily might, know his human original: and the unſearchableneſs of his generation as a Divine Perſon, whoſe goings forth were of old from everlaſting, was ſo far from being an argument againſt, that it was an argument for his being the true Meſſiah.

34 They caſt him out.) Caſting out of the ſynagogue, ſignified excommunication, which was principally of two ſorts among the Jews. One the leſs, called Niddui, which ſeparated the party from the congregation and ſociety of Iſrael four cubits, for thirty days; the other, called Cherem, was the greater, which excluded from any entrance into the ſynagogue, and from all religious and civil privileges in the church and commonwealth of Iſrael.

COMMENTARY on Chap. X.

11 I am the good ſhepherd, &c.) Though our Lord rebuked one for calling him good Maſter while he took him to be no more than a man, (Matt. xix. 16. 17.) yet here he aſſumes this title of goodneſs to himſelf, to intimate that it is really his due, and that he is the God who alone is abſolutely good: for the good Shepherd is as high and divine a title, as good Maſter can be ſuppoſed to be; and as Chriſt claims the firſt, he undoubtedly has an equal right to the laſt: and as God in the Old Teſtament is ſpoken of by way of eminence, as the ſhepherd of Iſrael; ſo Chriſt here ſpeaks of himſelf under that relation to his people, with the additional epithet of good: and to ſhew that he did this in the moſt eminent ſenſe of the expreſſion, in which it was peculiar to God, he ſays emphatically, I am the good ſhepherd, in a way of ſingularity, and of preference to all others whatſoever.

The good ſhepherd giveth his life for the ſheep.) This anſwers to what was propheſied of the Meſſiah, Iſa. liii. 10. And Chriſt's ſpeaking here of laying down his own human ſoul, as a ſacrifice for ſin, intimates that he, as Lord of himſelf, reſigned it unto ſufferings, according to his Father's will, in a way of ſubſtitution, in the room and ſtead of his ſheep, when he gave his life or ſoul a ranſom for many, Matt. xx. 28.

12 But he that is an hireling, and not the ſhepherd, whoſe own the ſheep are not, ſeeth the wolf coming, and leaveth the ſheep, and fleeth; and the wolf catcheth them, and ſcattereth the ſheep.

13 The hireling fleeth, becauſe he is an hireling, and careth not for the ſheep.

14 I am the good ſhepherd, and know my ſheep, nad am known of mine.

15 As the Father knoweth me, even ſo know I the Father: and I lay down my life for the ſheep.

16 And other ſheep I have, which are not of this fold: them alſo I muſt bring, and they ſhall hear my voice; and there ſhall be one fold, and one ſhepherd.

17 Therefore doth my Father love me, becauſe I lay down my life that I might take it again.

18 No man taketh it from me, but I lay it down of myſelf. I have power to lay it down, and I have power to take it again. This commandment have I received of my Father.

19 There was a diviſion therefore again among the Jews for theſe ſayings.

20 And many of them ſaid, He hath a devil, and is mad: why hear ye him?

21 Others ſaid, Theſe are not the words of him that hath a devil: can a devil open the eyes of the blind?

22 And it was at Jeruſalem the feaſt of the dedication and it was winter.

23 And Jeſus walked in the temple in Solomon's porch.

24 ¶ Then came the Jews round about him, and ſaid unto him, How long doſt thou make us to doubt? If thou be the Chriſt, tell us plainly.

25 Jeſus anſwered them, I told you, and ye believed not: the works that I do in my Father's name, they bear witneſs of me.

26 But ye believe not; becauſe ye are not of my ſheep, as I ſaid unto you.

27 My ſheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me:

28 And I give unto them eternal life; and they ſhall never periſh, neither ſhall any man pluck them out of my hand.

29 My Father, which gave them me, is greater than all: and no man is able to pluck them out of my Father's hand.

30 I and my Father are one.

31 Then the Jews took up ſtones again to ſtone him.

32 Jeſus anſwered them, Many good works have I ſhewed you from my Father; for which of thoſe works do ye ſtone me?

33 The Jews anſwered him, ſaying, For a good work we ſtone thee not, but for blaſphemy; and becauſe that thou, being a man, makeſt thyſelf God.

34 Jeſus anſwered them, Is it not written in your law, I ſaid, Ye are gods?

35 If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came, and the ſcripture cannot be broken,

36 Say ye of him whom the Father hath ſanctified, and ſent into the world, Thou blaſphemeſt; becauſe I ſaid, I am the Son of God?

37 If I do not the works of my Father, believe me not.

38 But if I do, though ye believe not me, believe the works; that ye may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I in him.

39 Therefore they ſought again to take him: but he eſcaped out of their hand,

40 And went away again beyond Jordan, into the place where John at firſt baptized, and there he abode.

41 And many reſorted unto him, and ſaid, John did no miracle: but all things that John ſpake of this man were true.

42 And many believed on him there.

CHAP. XI.

1 Chriſt raiſeth Lazarus. 47 The prieſts and Phariſees gather a council againſt him.

NOW a certain man was ſick, named Lazarus of Bethany, the town of Mary and her ſiſter Martha.

2 It was that Mary which anointed the Lord with ointment, and wiped his feet with her hair, whoſe brother Lazarus was ſick.

3 Therefore his ſiſters ſent unto him, ſaying, Lord, behold, he whom thou loveſt, is ſick.

4 When Jeſus heard that, he ſaid, This ſickneſs is not unto death, but for the glory of God, that the Son of God might be glorified thereby.

5 Now Jeſus loved Martha, and her ſiſter, and Lazarus.

6 When he had heard therefore that he was ſick, he abode two days ſtill in the ſame place where he was.

7 Then after that ſaith he to his diſciples, Let us go into Judea again.

8 His diſciples ſay unto him, Maſter, the Jews of late ſought to ſtone thee; and goeſt thou thither again?

9 Jeſus anſwered, Are there not twelve hours in the day? If any man walk in the day, he ſtumbleth not, becauſe he ſeeth the light of this world.

10 But if a man walk in the night, he ſtumbleth, becauſe there is no light in him.

22 It was at Jeruſalem the feaſt of the dedication, &c.) This feaſt did not relate to the dedication of the temple by Solomon, nor to that which was made upon its being rebuilt by Zerubbabel: for there was no anniverſary feſtival appointed for either of theſe: and the firſt of them was in the month Ethanim, the ſeventh month (1 Kings viii. 2.) which was in autumn, about our September; and the other was in the month Adar (Ezra vi. 15, &c.) which was at the beginning of the ſpring; whereas this was in winter, and ſo evidently related to the dedication of the altar and temple by Judas Maccabeus, who appointed an annual feſtival, in commemoration of it, to begin on the twenty-fifth day of the month Chiſleu, which was about our December; an account of which we have at large, 1 Mac. iv. 18—59. and 2 Mac. x. 1—8. This was not an ordinance of divine inſtitution, nor was the obſervation of it confined to Jeruſalem; but it was a civil appointment in remembrance of this dedication, as the feaſt of Purim was, in remembrance of the Jews' deliverance from Haman's conſpiracy, (Eſth. ix. 28.) and therefore Chriſt choſe to be at Jeruſalem then, not in honour of the days themſelves, or to give a ſanction to them, as ſacred time; for had he been ſo minded, he might have obſerved them any where elſe, as well as at Jeruſalem: but he came thither at this time, that he might take the opportunity of preaching to the people, who were then aſſembled in great numbers at Jeruſalem; as the apoſtles afterwards did for the like purpoſe, when they went to the Jews' ſynagogues on the ſabbath, after the obligation of keeping a holy ſabbath to the Lord was transferred from the ſeventh to the firſt day of the week.

41 John did no miracle, &c.) The miracle of John's conception, and of his father Zechary's being ſtruck dumb, and not ſpeaking again 'till after his birth, and the miraculous appearance and voice from heaven at Jordan, when he baptized Jeſus, were, together with his holy life, ſufficient to gain credit to his doctrine; for it contained nothing new or extraordinary, more than his reminding the people of ancient prophecies concerning the Meſſiah, and pointing them to him, whoſe miracles were an abundant confirmation, both of his own and of John's doctrine concerning him. And it was fit that this honour ſhould be reſerved for the Meſſiah himſelf, as one diſtinguiſhing mark of his ſuperiority to his forerunner.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XI.

9 Are there not twelve hours in the day? &c.) Judea being about twenty degrees nearer the equator than Great Britain is, their days were more nearly equal than ours, and ſo they generally reckoned them to conſiſt of twelve hours, as we alſo do, when we ſpeak of a day's work.

11 Theſe things ſaid he: and after that he ſaith unto them, Our friend Lazarus ſleepeth; but I go that I may awake him out of ſleep.

12 Then ſaid his diſciples, Lord, if he ſleep he ſhall do well.

13 Howbeit, Jeſus ſpake of his death: but they thought that he had ſpoken of taking of reſt in ſleep.

14 Then ſaid Jeſus unto them plainly, Lazarus is dead.

15 And I am glad for your ſakes that I was not there, to the intent ye may believe; nevertheleſs, let us go unto him.

16 Then ſaid Thomas, which is called Didymus, unto his fellow-diſciples, Let us alſo go, that we may die with him.

17 Then when Jeſus came, he found that he had lain in the grave four days already.

18 Now Bethany was nigh unto Jeruſalem, about fifteen furlongs off.

19 And many of the Jews came to Martha and Mary, to comfort them concerning their brother.

20 Then Martha, as ſoon as ſhe heard that Jeſus was coming, went and met him; but Mary ſat ſtill in the houſe.

21 Then ſaid Martha unto Jeſus, Lord, if thou hadſt been here, my brother had not died.

22 But I know, that even now, whatſoever thou wilt aſk of God, God will give it thee.

23 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Thy brother ſhall riſe again.

24 Martha ſaith unto him, I know that he ſhall riſe again in the reſurrection at the laſt day.

25 Jeſus ſaid unto her, I am the reſurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet ſhall he live:

26 And whoſoever liveth, and believeth in me, ſhall never die. Believeſt thou this?

27 She ſaith unto him, Yea, Lord: I believe that thou art the Chriſt, the Son of God, which ſhould come into the world.

28 And when ſhe had ſo ſaid ſhe went her way, and called Mary her ſiſter ſecretly, ſaying, The Maſter is come, and calleth for thee.

29 As ſoon as ſhe heard that, ſhe aroſe quickly, and came unto him.

30 Now Jeſus was not yet come into the town, but was in that place where Martha met him.

31 The Jews then which were with her in the houſe, and comforted her, when they ſaw Mary, that ſhe roſe up haſtily, and went out, followed her, ſaying, She goeth unto the grave, to weep there.

32 Then when Mary was come where Jeſus was, and ſaw him, ſhe fell down at his feet, ſaying unto him, Lord, if thou hadſt been here, my brother had not died.

33 When Jeſus, therefore, ſaw her weeping, and the Jews alſo weeping which came with her, he groaned in the ſpirit, and was troubled,

34 And ſaid, Where have ye laid him? They ſay unto him, Lord, come and ſee.

35 Jeſus wept.

36 Then ſaid the Jews, Behold, how he loved him!

37 And ſome of them ſaid, Could not this man, which opened the eyes of the blind, have cauſed that even this man ſhould not have died?

38 Jeſus therefore, again groaning in himſelf, cometh to the grave. It was a cave, and a ſtone lay upon it.

39 Jeſus ſaid, Take ye away the ſtone. Martha, the ſiſter of him that was dead, ſaith unto him, Lord, by this time he ſtinketh: for he hath been dead four days.

40 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Said I not unto thee, that if thou wouldeſt believe, thou ſhouldeſt ſee the glory of God?

41 Then they took away the ſtone from the place where the dead was laid. And Jeſus lifted up his eyes, and ſaid, Father, I thank thee that thou haſt heard me.

42 And I knew that thou hearеſt me always: but becauſe of the people which ſtand by, I ſaid it, that they may believe that thou haſt ſent me.

43 And when he thus had ſpoken, he cried with a loud voice, Lazarus, come forth.

44 And he that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot with grave-clothes; and his face was bound about with a napkin. Jeſus ſaith unto them, Looſe him, and let him go.

45 Then Many of the Jews which came to Mary, and had ſeen the things which Jeſus did, believed on him.

46 But ſome of them went their ways to the Phariſees, and told them what things Jeſus had done.

47 ¶ Then gathered the chief prieſts and the Phariſees a council, and ſaid, What do we? for this man doeth many miracles.

48 If we let him thus alone, all men will believe on him: and the Romans ſhall come and take away both our place and nation.

49 And one of them, named Caiaphas, being the high prieſt that ſame year, ſaid unto them, Ye know nothing at all,

50 Nor conſider that it is expedient for us that one man ſhould die for the people, and that the whole nation periſh not.

51 And this ſpake he not of himſelf: but, being high prieſt that year, he propheſied that Jeſus ſhould die for that nation;

52 And not for that nation only, but that alſo he ſhould gather together in one the children of God that were ſcattered abroad.

16 Then ſaid Thomas, which is called Didymus, &c.) Thomas in the Hebrew, and Didymus in the Greek, ſignify a twin; and probably this name was given him, becauſe he was a twin-brother: and perhaps, as ſome think, his being three times ſpoken of in this goſpel with this interpretation of his name in the Greek (as here and chap. xx. 24. and xxi. 2.) might be to intimate that he bore twins of different qualities, like Jacob and Eſau, in his heart, he being ſometimes believing, and at other times full of unbelief.

21 Lord, if thou hadſt been here, my brother had not died.) Martha's faith was very defective, in thinking that Chriſt could not prevent her brother's dying, when at a diſtance, and in not going ſo far, as to reſt upon his own power for making up this loſs: nor does it ſeem that ſhe as yet had much, if any, hope of her brother's being raiſed from the dead, though ſhe might believe that God was able, and that, if Chriſt ſaw fit to aſk it, he would do it.

38 It was a cave, and a ſtone lay upon it.) Perhaps this cuſtom of burying in caves might be in imitation of the burial of Abraham, Iſaac, and Jacob, and their wives, in the cave of Machpelah, Gen. xlix. 29, 30, 31. Theſe caves for perſons of diſtinction, as Lazarus ſeems to have been, were commonly in rocks, which abounded in that country: in ſome of theſe were natural caverns fit for this purpoſe, and others were cut out by art, as Joſeph of Arimathea's was, where the dead body of our Lord was laid, (Matt. xxvii. 60.) and the entrance of theſe caves was ſhut up with a great ſtone, 44 He that was dead came forth, bound hand and foot, &c.) His hands and feet being bound, and his eyes covered with the cloth, as was uſual, to prevent the ghaſtly appearance of a dead corpſe, ſhewed the miraculous power of Chriſt in bringing him out of the ſepulchre in this form, as well as in reſtoring him to life.

52 He ſhould gather together in one the children of God that were ſcattered abroad.) The Evangeliſt's conſtruction of this prophetic ſenſe of Caiaphas' words, may relate to the Jews diſperſed among the Gentiles, who, on account of their ancient adoption, as God's covenant-people, might be called the children of God: and ſuppoſing that he carried his thought ſtill further to the Gentiles, it ſeems as if the nation, or church of Iſrael, were therein conſidered as typical of the whole New Teſtament-church, conſiſting of Gentiles as well as Jews: otherwiſe there was nothing in Caiaphas' words, about the whole nation's periſhing, that could be conſtrued as prophetic of Chriſt's gathering together the children of God that were Gentiles: but which ever way we take the Evangeliſt's meaning, it does not appear how it can extend to the whole nation of the Jews, and all individuals among the nations of the Gentiles, or can ſignify any more than the true Iſrael of God in both: for he ſpeaks of ſuch a fruit of Chriſt's death, as ſhould ſave them from periſhing, and ſhould be effectual to gather together the children of God into one ſpiritual body under Chriſt, anſwerable to the like language that is uſed in Rev. v. 9.

53 Then, from that day forth, they took counsel together for to put him to death.

54 Jesus, therefore, walked no more openly among the Jews; but went thence unto a country near to the wilderness, into a city called Ephraim, and there continued with his disciples.

55 And the Jews' passover was nigh at hand: and many went out of the country up to Jerusalem before the passover, to purify themselves.

56 Then sought they for Jesus, and spake among themselves, as they stood in the temple, What think ye, that he will not come to the feast?

57 Now both the chief priests and the Pharisees had given a commandment, that if any man knew where he were, he should shew it, that they might take him.

CHAP. XII.

1 Jesus excuseth Mary anointing his feet. 10 The chief priests consult to kill Lazarus.

THEN Jesus, six days before the passover, came to Bethany, where Lazarus was which had been dead, whom he raised from the dead.

2 There they made him a supper; and Martha served: but Lazarus was one of them that sat at the table with him.

3 Then took Mary a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped his feet with her hair; and the house was filled with the odour of the ointment.

4 Then saith one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, Simon's son, which should betray him,

5 Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred pence, and given to the poor?

6 This he said, not that he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and had the bag, and bare what was put therein.

7 Then said Jesus, Let her alone: against the day of my burying hath she kept this.

8 For the poor always ye have with you; but me ye have not always.

9 Much people of the Jews therefore knew that he was there; and they came, not for Jesus' sake only, but that they might see Lazarus also, whom he had raised from the dead.

10 ¶ But the chief priests consulted that they might put Lazarus also to death;

11 Because that by reason of him many of the Jews went away, and believed on Jesus.

12 On the next day much people that were come to the feast, when they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, 13 Took branches of palm-trees, and went forth to meet him, and cried, Hosanna: Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord.

14 And Jesus, when he had found a young ass, sat thereon: as it is written,

15 Fear not, daughter of Sion: behold, thy King cometh, sitting on an ass's colt.

16 These things understood not his disciples at the first: but when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him.

17 The people, therefore, that was with him when he called Lazarus out of his grave, and raised him from the dead, bare record.

18 For this cause the people also met him, for that they heard that he had done this miracle.

19 The Pharisees, therefore, said among themselves, Perceive ye how ye prevail nothing? behold, the world is gone after him.

20 And there were certain Greeks among them, that came up to worship at the feast:

21 The same came, therefore, to Philip, which was of Bethsaida of Galilee, and desired him, saying, Sir, we would see Jesus.

22 Philip cometh and telleth Andrew; and again, Andrew and Philip tell Jesus.

23 And Jesus answered them, saying, The hour is come that the Son of man should be glorified.

24 Verily, verily, I say unto you, Except a corn of wheat fall into the ground and die, it abideth alone: but if it die, it bringeth forth much fruit.

25 He that loveth his life shall lose it; and he that hateth his life in this world shall keep it unto life eternal.

26 If any man serve me, let him follow me; and where I am, there shall also my servant be; if any man serve me, him will my Father honour.

27 Now is my soul troubled; and what shall I say? Father, save me from this hour: but for this cause came I unto this hour.

28 Father, glorify thy name. Then came there a voice from heaven, saying, I have both glorified it, and will glorify it again.

29 The people, therefore, that stood by, and heard it, said, That it thundered: others said, An angel spake to him.

30 Jesus answered and said, This voice came not because of me, but for your sakes.

31 Now is the judgment of this world: now shall the prince of this world be cast out.

32 And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me

33 (This he said, signifying what death he should die.)

54 Ephraim:) This Ephraim was so obscure a place, that it is uncertain where it stood, or whether it were Ephratah, in the tribe of Judah, or Ephraim in the tribe of Benjamin: but which ever it was, it probably bordered on the wilderness of Judea.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XII.

2 Martha served, &c.) It appears that Martha was a person of some figure, from the great respect that was paid to her and her sister, in visits and condolances, at Lazarus' death, as well as from the costly ointment that her sister used in anointing Christ's feet, (ver 3.) and from theirs being an house of entertainment to our Lord and his disciples, he probably lodged there, when he returned from Jerusalem to Bethany, every evening of the last week of his life, which he now entered upon.

20 And there were certain Greeks among them, &c.) The Greeks and Grecians are very different in the stile of the New Testament. The Grecians or Hellenists are mentioned in Acts vi. 1. ix. 29. and xi. 20. and signify such Jews as were scattered abroad in Gentile nations, and used the Greek language: but the Greeks are mentioned a dozen times in the New Testament, and properly signify Greeks by nation or birth; these, being a renowned people for learning among the Gentiles, are sometimes put for the Gentile nations in general, in opposition to the Jews, (as in Rom. i. 16. and ii. 9, 10. compared with ver. 14.) and at other times for the more polite Gentiles, in opposition to the more rude and barbarous nations among them, as in Rom. i. 14. It is probable, as Grotius thinks, that these Greeks were Syrophenicians, who dwelt about Tyre and Sidon, and, by means of their commerce, were acquainted with the Galileans, and particularly with Philip, who was a man of Bethsaida in Galilee of the Gentiles, ver. 21. And they are more generally thought to be proselytes of the gate, who used at public solemnities to repair to Jerusalem, to worship; though, not being circumcised, they were not suffered to eat the passover: accordingly, it is here only said of these Greeks, that they came to Jerusalem to worship.

27 Now is my soul troubled, &c.) Whilst our Saviour was thus preaching of his own death and sufferings, a natural horror of his approaching passion (though such as was without sin) seizes upon him; his Father giving him a taste of that wrath which he was to undergo upon the cross for our sins. Hereupon he betakes himself to prayer, Father, save me from this hour: this was the harmless inclination of his sinless nature, which abhorred lying under wrath, and therefore prays against it; yet (as it were) recalling himself, he submits to what his office, as our surety, required of him, and prays again unto his Father to dispose of him as may most and best conduce to the purposes of his glory.

34 The people anſwered him, We have heard out of the law that Chriſt abideth for ever: and how ſayeſt thou, The Son of man muſt be lifted up? Who is this Son of man?

35 Then ſaid Jeſus unto them, Yet a little while is the light with you: walk while ye have the light, leſt darkneſs come upon you: for he that walketh in darkneſs knoweth not whither he goeth.

36 While ye have light, believe in the light, that ye may be the children of light. Theſe things ſpake Jeſus, and departed, and did hide himſelf from them.

37 But though he had done ſo many miracles before them, yet they believed not on him;

38 That the ſaying of Eſaias the prophet might be fulfilled, which he ſpake, Lord, who hath believed our report? and to whom hath the arm of the Lord been revealed?

39 Therefore they could not believe, becauſe that Eſaias ſaid again,

40 He hath blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart; that they ſhould not ſee with their eyes, nor underſtand with their heart, and be converted, and I ſhould heal them.

41 Theſe things ſaid Eſaias, when he ſaw his glory, and ſpake of him.

42 Nevertheleſs, among the chief rulers alſo many believed on him; but becauſe of the Phariſees they did not confeſs him, leſt they ſhould be put out of the ſynagogue:

43 For they loved the praiſe of men more than the praiſe of God.

44 Jeſus cried, and ſaid, He that believeth on me, believeth not on me, but on him that ſent me.

45 And he that ſeeth me, ſeeth him that ſent me.

46 I am come a light into the world, that whoſoever believeth on me ſhould not abide in darkneſs.

47 And if any man hear my words, and believe not, I judge him not: for I came not to judge the world, but to ſave the world.

48 He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have ſpoken, the ſame ſhall judge him in the laſt day.

49 For I have not ſpoken of myſelf: but the Father which ſent me, he gave me a commandment what I ſhould ſay, and what I ſhould ſpeak.

50 And I know that his commandment is life everlaſting: whatſoever I ſpeak, therefore, even as the Father ſaid unto me, ſo I ſpeak.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Jeſus waſheth his diſciples' feet, 14 and exhorteth them to humility.

NOW before the feaſt of the paſſover, when Jeſus knew that his hour was come that he ſhould depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end.

2 And ſupper being ended, the devil having now put into the heart of Judas Iſcariot, Simon's ſon, to betray him;

3 Jeſus knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands, and that he was come from God, and went to God.

4 He riſeth from ſupper, and laid aſide his garments; and took a towel, and girded himſelf:

5 After that, he poureth water into a baſon, and began to waſh the diſciples' feet, and to wipe them with the towel wherewith he was girded.

6 Then cometh he to Simon Peter: and Peter ſaid unto him, Lord doſt thou waſh my feet?

7 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, What I do, thou knoweſt not now; but thou ſhalt know hereafter.

8 Peter ſaith unto him, Thou ſhalt never waſh my feet. Jeſus anſwered him, If I waſh thee not, thou haſt no part with me.

9 Simon Peter ſaith unto him, Lord, not my feet only, but alſo my hands and my head.

10 Jeſus ſaith to him, He that is waſhed, needeth not, ſave to waſh his feet, but is clean every whit: and ye are clean, but not all.

11 For he knew who ſhould betray him: therefore ſaid he, Ye are not all clean.

12 So after he had waſhed their feet, and had taken his garments, and was ſet down again, he ſaid unto them, Know ye what I have done to you?

13 Ye call me Maſter, and Lord: and ye ſay well: for ſo I am.

14 ¶ If I then, your Lord and Maſter, have waſhed your feet: ye alſo ought to waſh one another's feet.

15 For I have given you an example that ye ſhould do as I have done to you.

16 Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, The ſervant is not greater than his lord; neither he that is ſent greater than he that ſent him.

17 If ye know theſe things, happy are ye if ye do them.

18 I ſpeak not of you all; I know whom I have choſen: but, that the ſcripture may be fulfilled, He that eateth bread with me hath lifted up his heel againſt me.

19 Now I tell you before it come, that, when it is come to paſs, ye may believe that I am he.

20 Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, He that receiveth whomſoever I ſend, receiveth me; and he that receiveth me, receiveth him that ſent me.

21 When Jeſus had thus ſaid, he was troubled in ſpirit, and teſtified, and ſaid, Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, that one of you ſhall betray me.

22 Then the diſciples looked one on another, doubting of whom he ſpake.

---

36 Theſe things ſpake Jeſus, and departed, &c.) It is generally thought that he retired, as uſual, to Bethany, or to the mount of Olives. But, as ſome ſuppoſe, the preceding diſcourſe, and that which follows at ver. 44. and ſo on to the end of the chapter, are to be connected and conſidered as delivered at the ſame time, all the intermediate verſes being the Evangeliſt's own remarks: and ſo they underſtood Chriſt's departing, and hiding himſelf from them, to relate to his taking his final leave of them; after which he never preached publicly to them any more, but ſpent the little remains of his time in a more private way with his diſciples, or by himſelf.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIII.

1 Now before the feaſt of the paſſover, &c.) Our bleſſed Lord, having now done with preaching to the people, devoted the ſmall remains of his time to a more private inſtruction of his diſciples, and preparation for his own death: accordingly, on the evening which introduced the ſeven days, that altogether were called the feaſt, he, who was the true paſchal Lamb, knowing that the appointed time was then fully come for his being ſacrificed, and for his departing from this world by death, and returning to his Father in heaven, took occaſion from thence to intimate that, as he had always loved his own children and members, which were in this world of ſin and ſorrow, he reſted in his love, (Zeph. iii. 17.) and would continue it to the end of his own life, and of their days and troubles on earth, and for ever afterwards in the other world, to which he was going, yea, that he loved them to perfection, even to the completing of their ſtate of happineſs with him there.

14 If I then, your Lord and Maſter, have waſhed your feet, &c.) We never read that the apoſtles ever waſhed the feet of one another, or of any other diſciples; and therefore what our Lord here ſays, is only to be underſtood of their performing offices to each other, as mean as this; but gives no colour for obſerving this ceremony of feigned humility, by waſhing people's feet every year on the Thurſday of Paſſion-week.

23 Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.

24 Simon Peter, therefore, beckoned to him, that he should ask who it should be of whom he spake.

25 He then, lying on Jesus' breast, saith unto him, Lord who is it?

26 Jesus answered, He it is to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon.

27 And after the sop Satan entered into him. Then said Jesus unto him, That thou doest, do quickly.

28 Now no man at the table knew for what intent he spake this unto him.

29 For some of them thought, because Judas had the bag, that Jesus had said unto him, Buy those things that we have need of against the feast; or, that he should give something to the poor.

30 He then, having received the sop, went immediately out; and it was night.

31 Therefore, when he was gone out, Jesus said, Now is the Son of man glorified, and God is glorified in him.

32 If God be glorified in him, God shall also glorify him in himself, and shall straightway glorify him.

33 Little children, yet a little while I am with you. Ye shall seek me: and, as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go ye cannot come: so now I say unto you.

34 A new commandment I give unto you, That ye love one another; as I have loved you, that ye also love one another.

35 By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another.

36 Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me afterwards.

37 Peter said unto him, Lord, why cannot I follow thee now? I will lay down my life for thy sake.

38 Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, The cock shall not crow till thou hast denied me thrice.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Christ comforteth his disciples; 6 professeth himself the way, the truth, and the life.

LET not your heart be troubled: ye believe in God, believe also in me.

2 In my Father's house are many mansions: if it were not so, I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you.

3 And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself: that where I am, there ye may be also.

4 And whither I go ye know, and the way ye know.

5 Thomas saith unto him, Lord, we know not whither thou goest: and how can we know the way?

6 ¶ Jesus saith unto him, I am the way, and the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the Father but by me.

7 If ye had known me, ye should have known my Father also: and from henceforth ye know him, and have seen him.

8 Philip saith unto him, Lord, shew us the Father, and it sufficeth us.

9 Jesus saith unto him, Have I been so long time with you, and yet hast thou not known me, Philip? he that hath seen me hath seen the Father; and how sayest thou then, Shew us the Father?

10 Believest thou not that I am in the Father, and the Father in me? the words that I speak unto you, I speak not of myself: but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works.

11 Believe me that I am in the Father, and the Father in me: or else believe me for the very works sake.

12 Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also, and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father.

13 And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son.

14 If ye shall ask any thing in my name, I will do it.

15 If ye love me, keep my commandments:

16 And I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever;

17 Even the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you.

18 I will not leave you comfortless; I will come to you.

19 Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more; but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also.

23 Now there was leaning on Jesus' bosom one of his disciples, whom Jesus loved.) This was the apostle John himself, who wrote this Gospel, but in modesty concealed his own name, when he spoke of the disciple whom Jesus loved.

26 He it is to whom I shall give a sop, when I have dipped it.) This dipping of the sop is to be distinguished from, and seems to have been after the dipping of the hand in the dish, as mentioned, Matt. xxvi. 23. Mark xiv. 20. which was spoken openly to them all, but this privately to John; that related to Judas' dipping in the dish with our Lord, but this to Christ's dipping the sop, and giving it to Judas; that was a more indeterminate signal, answering to, and probably at the same time with what he said, ver. 18. But this was determinate, and directly pointing out Judas himself as the very person whom he meant.

34 A new commandment I give unto you, &c.) This cannot be understood as a commandment absolutely new, since our Lord himself had said before, (Matt. xxii. 39, 40.) that to love our neighbour as ourselves, is one of the two great commandments on which hang all the law and the prophets; and our Evangelist speaks of loving one another, as an old commandment, which we had from the beginning, (1 John ii. 7. compared with 2 John ver. 5.) not only from the beginning of Christ's ministry, but even from the beginning of the world, ever since mankind had a being; and from the beginning of the law ever since it was delivered to Israel, it being a fundamental law of nature, which runs through all dispensations, according to the various relations in which we stand one to another.

36 Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? &c.) It seems as if Peter thought that Christ, being rejected by the Jews, would go to some other parts of the earth to erect his throne, where he might reign without disturbance, and with great power, according to the carnal notions he had of Christ's kingdom.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIV.

11 Believe me for the very works sake.) It seems that Christ's referring to his works here, as often elsewhere, respects not merely his miracles themselves, but his sovereign Godlike way of performing them by his own divine power, which was the same in him as in the Father: otherwise those works themselves were no proof of his being in the Father, and the Father in him, or of the Father's dwelling in him, in any higher sense than the same might be affirmed of the apostles, who, he says (ver. 12.) should do the same, and greater works than these: much less could it be said that he who had seen him had also seen the Father, unless he had been partaker of the same nature with the Father, and had, in his acting like a divine person, exerted the very same power as resides in the Father himself, and that in such an absolute way as the Father himself would have done it, had he appeared personally and visibly among men; for nothing like this was ever said of the apostles, or any other mere man, because they acted not by their own, but by Christ's power.

12 He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also, &c.) Here our Lord accurately speaks of the works he then wrought, saying, in the present tense, which I do: for he was likewise the author of those greater works that the apostles were afterwards to do, because he went to the Father to exercise all power at his right hand: and these greater works might partly respect one apostle's working miracles, merely by his shadow, and another by handkerchiefs carried from his body, (Acts v. 15. and xix. 12.) but principally their speaking all sorts of languages for the propagation of the gospel among all nations, and the wonderful power of the Holy Ghost that attended their ministrations, for the conversion of three thousand at once, and afterwards of innumerable multitudes of Jews and Gentiles for many succeeding years together, beyond all that was ever done by Christ's personal ministry.

20 At that day ye ſhall know that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

21 He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me ſhall be loved of my Father, and I will love him, and will manifeſt myſelf to him.

22 Judas ſaith unto him, (not Iſcariot) Lord, how is it that thou wilt manifeſt thyſelf unto us, and not unto the world?

23 Jeſus anſwered and ſaid unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my words: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him.

24 He that loveth me not, keepeth not my ſayings: and the word which ye hear is not mine, but the Father's which ſent me.

25 Theſe things have I ſpoken unto you, being yet preſent with you.

26 But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghoſt, whom the Father will ſend in my name, he ſhall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatſoever I have ſaid unto you.

27 Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.

28 Ye have heard how I ſaid unto you, I go away, and come again unto you. If ye loved me, ye would rejoice, becauſe I ſaid, I go unto the Father: for my Father is greater than I.

29 And now I have told you before it come to paſs, that, when it is come to paſs, ye might believe.

30 Hereafter I will not talk much with you: for the prince of this world cometh, and hath nothing in me.

31 But that the world may know that I love the Father; and as the Father gave me commandment, even ſo I do. Ariſe, let us go hence.

CHAP. XV.

The mutual love between Chriſt and his members, under the parable of the vine.

I AM the true vine, and my Father is the huſbandman.

2 Every branch in me that beareth not fruit he taketh away; and every branch that beareth fruit, he purgeth it, that it may bring forth more fruit.

3 Now ye are clean through the word which I have ſpoken unto you.

4 Abide in me, and I in you. As the branch cannot bear fruit of itſelf, except it abide in the vine; no more can ye, except ye abide in me.

5 I am the vine, ye are the branches: he that abideth in me, and I in him, the ſame bringeth forth much fruit: for without me ye can do nothing.

6 If a man abide not in me, he is caſt forth as a branch, and is withered; and men gather them, and caſt them into the fire, and they are burned.

7 If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye ſhall aſk what ye will, and it ſhall be done unto you.

8 Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit: ſo ſhall ye be my diſciples.

9 As the Father hath loved me, ſo have I loved you: continue ye in my love.

10 If ye keep my commandments, ye ſhall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love.

11 Theſe things have I ſpoken unto you, that my joy might remain in you, and that your joy might be full.

12 This is my commandment, that ye love one another, as I have loved you.

13 Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends.

14 Ye are my friends, if ye do whatſoever I command you.

15 Henceforth I call you not ſervants; for the ſervant knoweth not what his lord doeth: but I have called you friends; for all things that I have heard of my Father I have made known unto you.

16 Ye have not choſen me, but I have choſen you, and ordained you, that ye ſhould go and bring forth fruit, and that your fruit ſhould remain; that whatſoever ye ſhall aſk of the Father in my name, he may give it you.

17 Theſe things I command you, that ye love one another.

18 If the world hate you, ye know that it hated me before it hated you.

19 If ye were of the world, the world would love his own: but becauſe ye are not of the world, but I have choſen you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you.

20 Remember the word that I ſaid unto you, The ſervant is not greater than his lord. If they have perſecuted me, they will alſo perſecute you: if they have kept my ſaying, they will keep yours alſo.

21 But all theſe things will they do unto you for my name's ſake, becauſe they know not him that ſent me.

22 If I had not come and ſpoken unto them, they had not had ſin: but now they have no cloak for their ſin.

23 He that hateth me, hateth my Father alſo.

24 If I had not done among them the works which none other man did, they had not had ſin: but now have they both ſeen and hated both me and my Father.

25 But this cometh to paſs, that the word might be fulfilled that is written in their law, They hated me without a cauſe.

26 But when the Comforter is come, whom I will ſend unto you from the Father, even the Spirit of truth, which proceedeth from the Father, he ſhall teſtify of me:

27 And ye alſo ſhall bear witneſs, becauſe ye have been with me from the beginning.

30 Hereafter I will not talk much with you, &c.) The time wears off ſo faſt, that I ſhall have little opportunity of ſaying much more to you before my death: for Satan, who in his former temptations pretended to offer me the kingdoms of this world, as if he had the diſpoſal of them, (Luke iv. 5,—7.) and who works powerfully in the hearts of its princes and rulers, as well as in every child of diſobedience, is juſt now making his laſt effort, by ſtirring up his evil inſtruments to unite ſtratagem and force for murdering me. And after all, he can find no corruption in me to work upon by his temptations, or to give him power over me; nor can he anſwer his own ends by all that he is able to do againſt me, who, by dying, ſhall deſtroy his kingdom, glorify my Father, and redeem my people; nor can he prevail againſt me, to bring about my death itſelf, without my own free conſent.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XV.

6 If a man abide not in me, he is caſt forth as a branch, &c.) According to ſome expoſitors, Men's gathering withered branches, ſignifies hypocritical formal profeſſors being ſeized by Satan and his agents in this world, that they may bring them to deſtruction in the next. And according to others, it ſignifies their being gathered out of God's kingdom, and caſt into hell by the holy angels, as miniſters of juſtice at the laſt day: but as every expreſſion in a parable is not to be ſtrained, hypocrites and unbelievers being caſt into everlaſting fire to be perpetually tormented there, may be ſufficient to anſwer the deſign of this part of the parable.

25 They hated me without a cauſe.) Theſe words declare the heinous nature of the Phariſees' ſin in hating and perſecuting Chriſt, who had done before their eyes ſuch works as no man beſides him, or before him, ever did; he acting by his own power. Peter healed the lame man, Acts iii. but it was in the name of Jeſus of Nazareth; but Chriſt healed the ſick, and raiſed the dead in his own name, and by a ſpecial word of command; I ſay unto thee, Ariſe: yet did the Phariſees hate him and his Father, according to the prediction, Pſ. xxxv. 19.

26 But when the Comforter is come, &c.) But notwithſtanding all this furious, though cauſeleſs enmity to my perſon, truths and intereſts, they ſhall triumph over all oppoſition. When that divine perſon whom I told you of (ch. xiv. 16.) ſhall come to ſhed abroad his gifts and graces, and whom, in conſequence of my death and

CHAP. XVI.

Chriſt comforteth his diſciples againſt tribulation, by the promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt.

THESE things have I ſpoken unto you, that ye ſhould not be offended.

2 They ſhall put you out of the ſynagogues: yea, the time cometh, that whoſoever killeth you will think that he doeth God ſervice.

3 And theſe things will they do unto you, becauſe they have not known the Father nor me.

4 But theſe things have I told you, that when the time ſhall come ye may remember that I told you of them. And theſe things I ſaid not unto you at the beginning, becauſe I was with you.

5 But now I go my way to him that ſent me; and none of you aſketh me, Whither goeſt thou?

6 But becauſe I have ſaid theſe things unto you, ſorrow hath filled your heart.

7 Nevertheleſs, I tell you the truth; It is expedient for you that I go away: for if I go not away the Comforter will not come unto you; but if I depart I will ſend him unto you.

8 And when he is come, he will reprove the world of ſin, and of righteouſneſs, and of judgment:

9 Of ſin, becauſe they believe not on me:

10 Of righteouſneſs, becauſe I go to my Father, and ye ſee me no more;

11 Of judgment, becauſe the prince of this world is judged.

12 I have yet many things to ſay unto you, but ye cannot bear them now.

13 Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you in all truth: for he ſhall not ſpeak of himſelf; but whatſoever he ſhall hear, that ſhall he ſpeak; and he will ſhew you things to come.

14 He ſhall glorify me: for he ſhall receive of mine, and ſhall ſhew it unto you.

15 All things that the Father hath are mine; therefore ſaid I, that he ſhall take of mine, and ſhew it unto you.

16 A little while, and ye ſhall not ſee me: and again, a little while, and ye ſhall ſee me; becauſe I go to the Father.

17 Then ſaid ſome of his diſciples among themſelves, What is this that he ſaith unto us, A little while, and ye ſhall not ſee me: and again, A little while, and ye ſhall ſee me: and, Becauſe I go to the Father?

18 They ſaid, therefore, What is this that he ſaith, A little while? we cannot tell what he ſaith.

19 Now Jeſus knew that they were deſirous to aſk him, and ſaid unto them, Do ye enquire among yourſelves of that I ſaid, A little while, and ye ſhall not ſee me: and again, A little while, and ye ſhall ſee me?

20 Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, That ye ſhall weep and lament, but the world ſhall rejoice; and ye ſhall be ſorrowful, but your ſorrow ſhall be turned into joy.

21 A woman when ſhe is in travail hath ſorrow, becauſe her hour is come: but as ſoon as ſhe is delivered of the child, ſhe remembereth no more the anguiſh, for joy that a man is born into the world.

22 And ye now, therefore, have ſorrow: but I will ſee you again, and your heart ſhall rejoice, and your joy no man taketh from you.

23 And in that day ye ſhall aſk me nothing. Verily, verily, I ſay unto you, Whatſoever ye ſhall aſk the Father in my name, he will give it you.

24 Hitherto have ye aſked nothing in my name: aſk, and ye ſhall receive, that your joy may be full.

25 Theſe things have I ſpoken unto you in proverbs: but the time cometh when I ſhall no more ſpeak unto you in proverbs, but I ſhall ſhew you plainly of the Father.

26 At that day ye ſhall aſk in my name: and I ſay not unto you, that I will pray the Father for you:

27 For the Father himſelf loveth you, becauſe ye have loved me, and have believed that I came out from God.

28 I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world: again, I leave the world, and go to the Father.

29 His diſciples ſaid unto him, Lo, now ſpeakeſt thou plainly, and ſpeakeſt no proverb.

30 Now are we ſure that thou knoweſt all things, and needeſt not that any man ſhould aſk thee: by this we believe that thou cameſt forth from God.

31 Jeſus anſwered them, Do ye now believe?

32 Behold, the hour cometh, yea, is now come, that ye ſhall be ſcattered, every man to his own: and ſhall leave me alone: and yet I am not alone, becauſe the Father is with me.

33 Theſe things I have ſpoken unto you, that in me ye might have peace. In the world ye ſhall have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world.

CHAP. XVII.

1 Chriſt prayeth to his Father to glorify him, 6 and to preſerve his apoſtles, 11 in unity, 17 and in truth.

THESE words ſpake Jeſus, and lifted up his eyes to heaven, and ſaid, Father, the hour is come; glorify thy Son, that thy Son alſo may glorify thee:

exaltation, I, with the concurrence and approbation of my Father, will ſhortly ſend unto you even the Holy Spirit, who is faithfulneſs and truth itſelf, and who, in a divine and incomprehenſible manner, proceeds from the Father: he, as an advocate to maintain my cauſe, and as a counſellor and Comforter to direct, encourage and ſupport you under all your difficulties and dangers, ſhall bear a convincing witneſs to me, by the revelations he will further make of my character, and the miraculous operations he will enable you to perform; and by his aſſiſting, owning and ſucceeding you unto the confutation of all your enemies, and bringing vaſt multitudes of all nations to the obedience of faith; as well as by thoſe inward joys that he will raiſe in your own ſouls.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVI.

16—21 A little while, and ye ſhall not ſee me: and again, a little while, and ye ſhall ſee me, &c.) In theſe words our holy Lord proceeds to comfort his diſciples with a promiſe that, however he was now to be removed from them, yet they ſhould ſhortly ſee him again; it being impoſſible that he ſhould be held by death, but muſt ariſe and go to his Father. His diſciples not underſtanding what he meant, but labouring under the prejudices of their national errors concerning the temporal kingdom of their Meſſias, knew not what to make of thoſe words, A little while, and ye ſhall not ſee me. Our Saviour therefore explains himſelf to his diſciples, telling them that they ſhould have a time of ſad ſorrow and grief of heart during the time of his ſufferings and abſence from them; but their ſadneſs ſhall ſoon be turned into joy, when they ſhall ſee him alive again after his reſurrection. This he illuſtrates by the ſimilitude of a travailing woman, who ſoon forgets her ſorrow after ſhe hath brought forth a child. Thus will their hearts revive upon the ſight of him riſen from the grave; and no man ſhall be able to take their joy away from them, becauſe he ſhall die no more, but go to heaven, and there live for ever, to make interceſſion for them.

25 Theſe things have I ſpoken unto you in proverbs, &c.) Here our Saviour tells his diſciples, that altho' he had ſpoken many things to them in dark parables and figurative expreſſions, yet now the time was approaching, namely, the Comforter's coming, when he would by the Holy Ghoſt clearly enlighten their underſtandings in the knowledge of divine myſteries, and the things pertaining to the kingdom of God, and particularly in the knowledge of God as his Father, and their Father in him. Hence we may learn, That the cleareſt truths will be but parables, proverbs, and dark myſteries, even to diſciples themſelves, 'till the Holy Spirit enlightens their underſtandings; and that the clear and full manifeſtation of divine truth was reſerved 'till the coming of the Comforter, who did communicate it to the apoſtles, and by them to the church, or body of Chriſtians.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVII.

1 Theſe words ſpake Jeſus, &c.) Our bleſſed Lord having given his diſciples a farewell ſermon, cloſed it with a parting prayer, in which he, like an affectionate dying parent, committed his family,

2 As thou haſt given him power over all fleſh, that he ſhould give eternal life to as many as thou haſt given him.

3 And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jeſus Chriſt whom thou haſt ſent.

4 I have glorified thee on the earth: I have finiſhed the work which thou gaveſt me to do.

5 And now, O Father, glorify thou me with thine own ſelf, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was.

6 ¶ I have manifeſted thy name unto the men which thou gaveſt me out of the world: thine they were, and thou gaveſt them me; and they have kept thy word.

7 Now they have known that all things whatſoever thou haſt given me, are of thee:

8 For I have given unto them the words which thou gaveſt me; and they have received them, and have known ſurely that I came out from thee, and they have believed that thou didſt ſend me.

9 I pray for them: I pray not for the world, but for them which thou haſt given me; for they are thine.

10 And all mine are thine, and thine are mine; and I am glorified in them.

11 ¶ And now I am no more in the world, but theſe are in the world, and I come to thee. Holy Father, keep through thine own name thoſe whom thou haſt given me, that they may be one as we are.

12 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name: thoſe that thou gaveſt me I have kept, and none of them is loſt, but the ſon of perdition; that the ſcripture might be fulfilled.

13 And now come I to thee; and theſe things I ſpeak in the world, that they might have my joy fulfilled in themſelves.

14 I have given them thy word; and the world hath hated them, becauſe they are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

15 I pray not that thou ſhouldeſt take them out of the world, but that thou ſhouldeſt keep them from the evil.

16 They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world.

17 ¶ Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth.

18 As thou haſt ſent me into the world, even ſo have I alſo ſent them into the world.

19 And for their ſakes I ſanctify myſelf, that they alſo might be ſanctified through the truth.

20 Neither pray I for theſe alone, but for them alſo which ſhall believe on me through their word;

21 That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they alſo may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou haſt ſent me.

22 And the glory which thou gaveſt me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one:

23 I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou haſt ſent me, and haſt loved them as thou haſt loved me.

24 Father, I will that they alſo whom thou haſt given me be with me where I am; that they may behold my glory, which thou haſt given me: for thou lovedſt me before the foundation of the world.

25 O righteous Father, the world hath not known thee: but I have known thee, and theſe have known that thou haſt ſent me.

26 And I have declared unto them thy name, and will declare it; that the love wherewith thou haſt loved me may be in them, and I in them.

CHAP. XVIII.

2 Judas betrayeth Jeſus. 12 Jeſus is taken, and led unto Annas and Caiaphas.

WHEN Jeſus had ſpoken theſe words, he went forth with his diſciples over the brook Cedron, where was a garden, into the which he entered, and his diſciples.

2 ¶ And Judas alſo, which betrayed him, knew the place; for Jeſus oft-times reſorted thither with his diſciples.

3 Judas then, having received a band of men, and officers, from the chief prieſts and Phariſees, cometh thither with lanthorns, and torches, and weapons.

4 Jeſus, therefore, knowing all things that ſhould come upon him, went forth, and ſaid unto them, Whom ſeek ye?

5 They anſwered him, Jeſus of Nazareth. Jeſus ſaith unto them, I am he. And Judas alſo, which betrayed him, ſtood with them.

6 As ſoon then as he had ſaid unto them, I am he, they went backward, and fell to the ground.

7 Then aſked he them again, Whom ſeek ye? And they ſaid, Jeſus of Nazareth.

and, like a merciful and faithful high prieſt, recommended the apoſtles, and the whole church, to his Father, and therein gave a ſpecimen of the continual interceſſion which he was going to make for them in heaven. He therefore lifted up his eyes, with great ſolemnity, to the habitation of God's glory, and poured out the deſires of his heart in the following manner, ſaying, "O my Father, the ſet time agreed upon in eternal counſels, for finiſhing my courſe of obedience and ſufferings on earth, is now come; own me, I beſeech thee, as the Son; ſupport me under my laſt agonies; and give me ſuch a triumphant victory over death and the grave, and all the powers of darkneſs, as ſhall iſſue in thy receiving me up to glory; that I, thine own eternal Son, may honour all thy perfections by my death, and then, being exalted at thy right hand, may ſpread thy glory, by my word and Spirit, through the world."

6 I have manifeſted thy name, &c.) Though this part of Chriſt's prayer, to the end of ver. 10, may have a principal reference to the apoſtles; yet it may be underſtood likewiſe of the ſeventy, and of all that had been already effectually called under his miniſtry: for there ſeems to be nothing peculiar to the apoſtles, till we come to ver. 11. where our Lord begins to ſpeak more immediately of them, as appears by his there altering the pronoun, from they to theſe, and then going to mention things more peculiar to the apoſtles: and his ſpeaking of what he had done, in the ſaving illumination of all theſe converts, may very well be conſidered as a ſpecimen of his faithfulneſs, in what he would likewiſe do, in proper ſeaſon, for all the reſt, that the Father had given him, eſpecially ſince he cloſes this part of his prayer with ſaying, (ver. 10.) All mine are thine, and thine are mine, and I am glorified in them.

12 While I was with them in the world, I kept them in thy name, &c.) Whilſt I have been perſonally converſant with them in the world, I have, according to thy commiſſion, kept them from apoſtacy, by my doctrine and example, and by my powerful influence upon their hearts: I have ſo faithfully watched over, eſtabliſhed and preſerved them, whom thou gaveſt me for the apoſtleſhip, that not one of them has miſcarried, except the perfidious Judas who has forſaken me, and is gone to betray me to death; and who has deſerved and brought deſtruction upon himſelf, under divine permiſſion, in accompliſhment of ancient predictions of his treachery and ruin, Pſalm xli. 9. and cix. 8, &c.

Commentary on Chap. XVIII.

1 Jeſus—went forth with his diſciples over the brook Cedron, &c.) Cedron ran on the eaſt ſide of Jeruſalem, between that city and the mount of Olives, and was the brook which David, a type of Chriſt, went over with the people weeping, in his flight from Abſalom, 2 Sam. xv. 23, 30; and there ſeems to be a reference to our Lord's paſſing over it, in a prophecy of the Meſſiah's ſufferings, Pſal. cx. 7.

6 As ſoon then as he had ſaid unto them, I am he, &c.) No ſooner had Jeſus uttered theſe words, I am he, but ſuch divine power and majeſty attended them, that they, who came to apprehend him, were ſtruck with the utmoſt conſternation and terror; and immediately retiring backwards, fell down to the ground, like men who had no ſpirit in them: he thereby ſhewing that he could as eaſily have ſtruck them dead, as ſtruck them to the ground; and that had he not been free to ſuffer, they could have done nothing againſt him.

8 Jeſus anſwered, I have told you that I am he. If, therefore, ye ſeek me, let theſe go their way:

9 That the ſaying might be fulfilled which he ſpake, Of them which thou gaveſt me have I loſt none.

10 Then Simon Peter, having a ſword, drew it, and ſmote the high prieſt's ſervant, and cut off his right ear. The ſervant's name was Malchus.

11 Then ſaid Jeſus unto Peter, Put up thy ſword into the ſheath: the cup which my Father hath given me, ſhall I not drink it?

12 ¶ Then the band, and the captain, and officers of the Jews, took Jeſus and bound him.

13 And led him away to Annas firſt: (for he was father-in-law to Caiaphas, which was the high prieſt that ſame year.)

14 Now Caiaphas was he which gave counſel to the Jews, that it was expedient that one man ſhould die for the people.

15 And Simon Peter followed Jeſus, and ſo did another diſciple. That diſciple was known unto the high prieſt, and went in with Jeſus into the palace of the high prieſt.

16 But Peter ſtood at the door without. Then went out that other diſciple, which was known unto the high prieſt, and ſpake unto her that kept the door, and brought in Peter.

17 Then ſaith the damſel that kept the door unto Peter, Art not thou alſo one of this man's diſciples? He ſaith, I am not.

18 And the ſervants and officers ſtood there, who had made a fire of coals, (for it was cold,) and they warmed themſelves: and Peter ſtood with them, and warmed himſelf.

19 The high prieſt then aſked Jeſus of his diſciples, and of his doctrine.

20 Jeſus anſwered him, I ſpake openly to the world: I ever taught in the ſynagogue, and in the temple, whither the Jews always reſort; and in ſecret have I ſaid nothing.

21 Why aſkeſt thou me? aſk them which heard me what I have ſaid unto them: behold, they know what I ſaid.

22 And when he had thus ſpoken, one of the officers which ſtood by ſtruck Jeſus with the palm of his hand, ſaying, Anſwereſt thou the high prieſt ſo?

23 Jeſus anſwered him, If I have ſpoken evil, bear witneſs of the evil; but if well, why ſmiteſt thou me?

24 (Now Annas had ſent him bound unto Caiaphas the high prieſt.)

25 And Simon Peter ſtood and warmed himſelf: they ſaid, therefore, unto him, Art not thou alſo one of his diſciples? He denied it, and ſaid, I am not.

26 One of the ſervants of the high prieſt (being his kinſman whoſe ear Peter cut off) ſaid, Did not I ſee thee in the garden with him?

27 Peter then denied again; and immediately the cock crew.

28 Then led they Jeſus from Caiaphas unto the hall of judgment: and it was early; and they themſelves went not into the judgment-hall, leſt they ſhould be defiled; but that they might eat the paſſover.

29 Pilate then went out unto them, and ſaid, What accuſation bring ye againſt this man?

30 They anſwered and ſaid unto him, If he were not a malefactor, we would not have delivered him up unto thee.

31 Then ſaid Pilate unto them, Take ye him, and judge him according to your law. The Jews, therefore, ſaid unto him, It is not lawful for us to put any man to death:

32 That the ſaying of Jeſus might be fulfilled, which he ſpake, ſignifying what death he ſhould die.

33 Then Pilate entered into the judgment-hall again, and called Jeſus, and ſaid unto him, Art thou the king of the Jews?

34 Jeſus anſwered him, Sayeſt thou this thing of thyſelf, or did others tell it thee of me?

35 Pilate anſwered, Am I a Jew? Thine own nation and the chief prieſts have delivered thee unto me. What haſt thou done?

36 Jeſus anſwered, My kingdom is not of this world. If my kingdom were of this world, then would my ſervants fight, that I ſhould not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence.

37 Pilate, therefore, ſaid unto him, Art thou a king then? Jeſus anſwered, Thou ſayeſt that I am a king. To this end was I born, and for this cauſe came I into the world, that I ſhould bear witneſs unto the truth. Every one that is of the truth heareth my voice.

38 Pilate ſaith unto him, What is truth? And when he had ſaid this he went out again unto the Jews, and ſaith unto them, I find in him no fault at all.

39 But ye have a cuſtom that I ſhould releaſe unto you one at the paſſover: will ye, therefore, that I releaſe unto you the king of the Jews?

40 Then cried they all again, ſaying, Not this man, but Barrabbas. Now Barrabbas was a robber.

CHAP. XIX.

1 Chriſt is ſcourged, crowned with thorns, beaten, and crucified. 30 He dieth, 38 and is buried.

THEN Pilate therefore took Jeſus, and ſcourged him.

2 And the ſoldiers platted a crown of thorns, and put it on his head, and they put on him a purple robe,

15 And Simon Peter followed Jeſus, and ſo did another diſciple.) Who this other diſciple was, is uncertain. It does not ſeem to have been John; for he was a Galilean as well as Peter, and was an unlikely perſon to be acquainted with the high prieſt, conſidering that he had been only a fiſherman, and had carried on his trade in Galilee: but this diſciple was probably a perſon of figure who lived in Jeruſalem, and was one of them that believed in Jeſus, but had not made an open profeſſion of him: and ſome have conjectured that it was either Nicodemus or Joſeph of Arimathea, or the perſon at whoſe houſe Chriſt had lately eaten the paſſover with his diſciples.

31 It is not lawful for us to put any man to death.) It is hard to ſay how far the power of life and death was at this time taken from the Jews, conſidering the proceedings of the high-prieſt and council in ſtoning Stephen to death, (Acts vi. 11—15. and vii. 1, &c.) and what power Saul received from them for perſecuting the Chriſtians unto death, (Acts xxii. 3, 5.) and how they would have judged Paul according to their law, had not Lyſias prevented them, Acts xxiv. 6. But as the ſceptre was departed from Judah, and the law-giver from Iſrael, by their being made a Roman province and ſubjected to Cæſar as their king, it is evident that this power was under ſome limitations and reſtraints from the Roman government. And whether the Jews meant abſolutely, or only under ſome reſtrictions, that it was not lawful for them to put any man to death; or whether they ſaid this only becauſe it was the time of the paſſover, or that the odium of condemning and executing Chriſt, and the people's rage on that account, might be turned off from themſelves to the Romans; it was over-ruled by providence, that the judgment ſhould fall into the Romans' hands, for accompliſhing ancient prophecies, as well as Chriſt's own predictions, about the manner of his death: for crucifixion was not appointed by the Jewiſh law for any crime whatſoever.

38 Pilate ſaith unto him, What is truth? &c.) This is a very important queſtion, which many put, but, like Pilate, give up again before they get any ſatisfaction about it: and it is uncertain whether his aſking it were merely from curioſity, or from ſome good opinion that he had of Chriſt's ability to give him an account of truth; or whether it were only for information in a judicial way, that he might the better know how to proceed in the caſe before him; or whether it were in a way of contempt and ſcorn, as one that made a jeſt of truth and derided Chriſt for his ſolemn profeſſion of coming to bear witneſs to it.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIX.

2, 3 The ſoldiers platted a crown of thorns, &c.) The crown which they prepared for our Saviour is a crown of thorns, and with great cruelty they preſs it cloſe to his ſacred temples, whilſt thoſe

3 And ſaid, Hail, king of the Jews! and they ſmote him with their hands.

4 Pilate, therefore, went forth again, and ſaith unto them, behold, I bring him forth to you, that ye may know that I find no fault in him.

5 Then came Jeſus forth, wearing the crown of thorns, and the purple robe. And Pilate ſaith unto them, Behold the man!

6 When the chief prieſts, therefore, and officers ſaw him, they cried out, ſaying, Crucify him, crucify him. Pilate ſaith unto them, Take ye him, and crucify him: for I find no fault in him.

7 The Jews anſwered him, We have a law, and by our law he ought to die, becauſe he made himſelf the Son of God.

8 When Pilate, therefore, heard that ſaying, he was the more afraid;

9 And went again into the judgment-hall, and ſaith unto Jeſus, Whence art thou? but Jeſus gave him no anſwer.

10 Then ſaith Pilate unto him, Speakeſt thou not unto me? knoweſt thou not that I have power to crucify thee, and have power to releaſe thee?

11 Jeſus anſwered, Thou couldeſt have no power at all againſt me, except it were given thee from above: therefore he that delivered me unto thee hath the greater ſin.

12 And from thenceforth Pilate ſought to releaſe him: but, the Jews cried out, ſaying, If thou let this man go thou art not Ceſar's friend: whoſoever maketh himſelf a king ſpeaketh againſt Ceſar.

13 When Pilate, therefore, heard that ſaying, he brought Jeſus forth, and ſat down in the judgment-ſeat, in a place that is called the Pavement, but in the Hebrew, Gabbatha.

14 And it was the preparation of the paſſover, and about the ſixth hour: and he ſaith unto the Jews, Behold your king!

15 But they cried out, Away with him, away with him, crucify him. Pilate ſaith unto them, Shall I crucify your king? the chief prieſts anſwered, We have no king but Ceſar.

16 Then delivered he him, therefore, unto them to be crucified. And they took Jeſus, and led him away.

17 And he, bearing his croſs, went forth into a place called the place of a ſcull, which is called in the Hebrew, Golgotha;

18 Where they crucified him, and two other with him, on either ſide one, and Jeſus in the midſt.

19 And Pilate wrote a title and put it on the croſs. And the writing was, JESUS OF NAZARETH, THE KING OF THE JEWS.

20 This title then read many of the Jews; for the place where Jeſus was crucified was nigh to the city: and it was written in Hebrew, and Greek, and Latin.

21 Then ſaid the chief prieſts of the Jews to Pilate, Write not, The King of the Jews; but that he ſaid, I am King of the Jews.

22 Pilate anſwered, What I have written I have written.

23 Then the ſoldiers, when they had crucified Jeſus, took his garments, and made four parts, to every ſoldier a part, and alſo his coat: now the coat was without ſeam, woven from the top throughout.

24 They ſaid, therefore, among themſelves, Let us not rend it, but caſt lots for it, whoſe it ſhall be: that the ſcripture might be fulfilled, which ſaith, They parted my garment among them, and for my veſture they did caſt lots. Theſe things, therefore the ſoldiers did.

25 Now there ſtood by the croſs of Jeſus, his mother, and his mother's ſiſter, Mary the wife of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

26 When Jeſus, therefore, ſaw his mother, and the diſciple ſtanding by whom he loved, he ſaith unto his mother, Woman, behold thy ſon!

27 Then ſaith he to the diſciple, Behold thy mother! And from that hour that diſciple took her unto his own home.

28 After this, Jeſus, knowing that all things were now accompliſhed, that the ſcripture might be fulfilled, ſaith, I thirſt.

29 Now there was ſet a veſſel full of vinegar: and they filled a ſponge with vinegar, and put it upon hyſſop, and put it to his mouth.

30 ¶ When Jeſus, therefore, had received the viſharp-pointed briers piercing thoſe tender parts, let out that blood which in a ſhort time was to be more freely poured forth for the redemption of captive ſouls. The next part of our Saviour's ſufferings conſiſted of cruel mockings: Chriſt had owned himſelf to be the King of the Jews; that is, a ſpiritual King to and over his church: but the Jews expecting that the Meſſiah ſhould have appeared in the pomp of an earthly prince, and finding it to be quite otherwiſe in our Saviour, they look upon him as a deceiver and impoſtor, and accordingly treat him as a mocking-ſtock with all the marks of deriſion and ſcorn: they put a crown upon his head, but a very ignominious and painful one; they put a ſceptre in his hand, but it was that of a reed; a robe of purple upon his body; and then bowed their knees unto him, as they were wont to do before their princes, crying, Hail, king! Thus were all the marks of ſcorn imaginable put upon our dear Redeemer; yet what they did in jeſt, God permitted to be done in earneſt: for all theſe things were enſigns and marks of ſovereignty, and Almighty God cauſed the royal dignity of his Son to ſhine forth, even in the midſt of his greateſt abaſement. Whence was all this jeering and ſport, but to flout majeſty? And why did the Son of God undergo all this ignominy, diſgrace, and ſhame, but to ſhew what was due unto us for our ſins; as alſo to give us an example to bear all the ſcorn, reproach and ſhame imaginable, for the ſake of him, who for the joy that was ſet before him, deſpiſed the ſhame, as well as endured the croſs? Verily nothing was omitted that either the malice of men, or the rage of devils, could poſſibly invent, either to torment or reproach him. But with what a lamb-like meekneſs, with what an aſtoniſhing patience, did he undergo all theſe trials, both for our good, and in our ſtead!

15 We have no king but Ceſar.) In this reply they publicly renounced their hope of the Meſſiah, which the whole œconomy of their religion had been calculated to cheriſh: they likewiſe publicly acknowledged their ſubjection to the Romans; and by ſo doing condemned themſelves, when they afterwards rebelled againſt the emperor. The unwillingneſs which the governor ſhewed all along to paſs ſentence of death upon Jeſus, has ſomething very remarkable in it: for by the character which he bears in the Roman hiſtory, he ſeems to have been far from poſſeſſing any true principle of virtue. To what then could it be owing, that ſo wicked a man thus ſteadily adhered to the cauſe of innocence, which he defended with an uncommon bravery, 'till the threatenings of the Jewiſh grandees vanquiſhed him? And when he did yield, taking from our Lord his life, how came he to leave him his innocence! Certainly this can be attributed to no cauſe whatſoever, but to the ſecret and powerful direction of the providence of God, who intended that, at the ſame time his Son was condemned and executed as a malefactor, his innocence ſhould be made to appear in the moſt public manner, and by the moſt authentic evidence; even by the teſtimony of his judge, who frequently declared him innocent in the courſe of his trial. This probably was the reaſon alſo that Pilate's lady had the dream concerning Chriſt, of which ſhe ſent her huſband an account whilſt he was ſitting on the judgment-ſeat.

27 Behold thy mother, &c.) Her huſband Joſeph was probably by this time dead: and Jeſus, who had taken care of her hitherto, having none of this world's goods to leave her, gave an example of filial love and duty, in putting her under the care of the apoſtle John to provide for her; who, though he, like the reſt of the apoſtles, had quitted all his buſineſs and affairs in life to follow Chriſt, might nevertheleſs retain his property in what he had before he left off trade, or in what his father Zebedee had afterwards given him. But it is uncertain where he dwelt, and how long Mary lived with him.

29 There was ſet a veſſel full of vinegar, &c.) Vinegar, mixed with water, is ſaid to have been the drink of the Roman ſoldiers: and ſo this veſſel of vinegar might be ſet for their uſe, as they ſhould have occaſion for it, while they were attending the crucifixion. This ſour liquid they gave to Chriſt, inſtead of a cordial or a cooling draught: and their hyſſop, like their muſtard-tree, being of much larger growth than ours, might afford a ſtalk long enough to reach up to his mouth, as he hung upon the croſs; or a ſponge full of vinegar might be ſtuck on the top of ſome other reed, in the midſt of a bunch of hyſſop.

negar, he ſaid, It is finiſhed: and he bowed his head, and gave up the ghoſt.

31 The Jews, therefore, becauſe it was the preparation, that the bodies ſhould not remain upon the croſs on the ſabbath-day, (for that ſabbath-day was an high day) beſought Pilate that their legs might be broken, and that they might be taken away.

32 Then came the ſoldiers, and brake the legs of the firſt, and of the other, which was crucified with him.

33 But when they came to Jeſus, and ſaw that he was dead already, they brake not his legs:

34 But one of the ſoldiers with a ſpear pierced his ſide, and forthwith came thereout blood and water.

35 And he that ſaw it bare record, and his record is true; and he knoweth that he ſaith true, that ye might believe.

36 For theſe things were done, that the ſcripture ſhould be fulfilled, A bone of him ſhall not be broken.

37 And again, another ſcripture ſaith, They ſhall look on him whom they pierced.

38 ¶ And after this, Joſeph of Arimathea (being a diſciple of Jeſus, but ſecretly for fear of the Jews) beſought Pilate that he might take away the body of Jeſus: and Pilate gave him leave. He came, therefore, and took the body of Jeſus.

39 And there came alſo Nicodemus, (which at the firſt came to Jeſus by night) and brought a mixture of myrrh and aloes, about an hundred pound weight.

40 Then took they the body of Jeſus, and wound it in linen clothes with the ſpices, as the manner of the Jews is to bury.

41 Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden: and in the garden a new ſepulchre, wherein was never man yet laid.

42 There laid they Jeſus, therefore, becauſe of the Jews' preparation-day; for the ſepulchre was nigh at hand.

CHAP. XX.

1 Mary cometh to the ſepulchre, 3 and Peter and John.
24 The incredulity of Thomas.

THE firſt day of the week cometh Mary Magdalene, early, when it was yet dark, unto the ſepulchre, and ſeeth the ſtone taken away from the ſepulchre.

2 Then ſhe runneth, and cometh to Simon Peter, and to the other diſciple whom Jeſus loved, and ſaith unto them, They have taken away the Lord out of the ſepulchre, and we know not where they have laid him.

3 Peter, therefore, went forth, and that other diſciple, and came to the ſepulchre.

4 So they ran both together: and the other diſciple did outrun Peter, and came firſt to the ſepulchre.

5 And he, ſtooping down, and looking in, ſaw the linen clothes lying; yet went he not in.

6 Then cometh Simon Peter following him, and went into the ſepulchre, and ſeeth the linen clothes lie;

7 And the napkin that was about his head not lying with the linen clothes, but wrapped together in a place by itſelf.

8 Then went in alſo that other diſciple which came firſt to the ſepulchre, and he ſaw and believed.

9 For as yet they knew not the ſcripture, that he muſt riſe again from the dead.

10 Then the diſciples went away again unto their own home.

11 But Mary ſtood without at the ſepulchre weeping; and, as ſhe wept, ſhe ſtooped down, and looked into the ſepulchre,

12 And ſeeth two angels in white ſitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jeſus had lain.

13 And they ſay unto her, Woman, why weepeſt thou? She ſaith unto them, Becauſe they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him.

14 And when ſhe had thus ſaid, ſhe turned herſelf back, and ſaw Jeſus ſtanding, and knew not that it was Jeſus.

15 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Woman, why weepeſt thou? whom ſeekeſt thou? She, ſuppoſing him to be the gardener, ſaith unto him, Sir, if thou have borne him hence, tell me where thou haſt laid him, and I will take him away.

16 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Mary. She turned herſelf, and ſaith unto him, Rabboni; which is to ſay, Maſter.

17 Jeſus ſaith unto her, Touch me not; for I am not yet aſcended to my Father: but go to my brethren, and ſay unto them, I aſcend unto my Father and your Father, and to my God and your God.

18 Mary Magdalene came and told the diſciples that ſhe had ſeen the Lord, and that he had ſpoken theſe things unto her.

19 Then the ſame day at evening, being the firſt day of the week, when the doors were ſhut where the diſciples were aſſembled for fear of the Jews, came Jeſus, and ſtood in the midſt, and ſaith unto them, Peace be unto you.

20 And when he had ſo ſaid, he ſhewed unto them his hands and his ſide. Then were the diſciples glad when they ſaw the Lord.

21 Then ſaid Jeſus to them again, Peace be unto you: as my Father hath ſent me, even ſo ſend I you.

22 And when he had ſaid this, he breathed on them, and ſaith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghoſt.

23 Whoſe ſoever ſins ye remit, they are remitted unto them; and whoſe ſoever ſins ye retain, they are retained.

24 ¶ But Thomas, one of the twelve, called Didymus, was not with them when Jeſus came.

25 The other diſciples, therefore, ſaid unto him, We have ſeen the Lord. But he ſaid unto them, Except I ſhall ſee in his hands the print of the nails, and put my finger into the print of the nails, and thruſt my hand into his ſide, I will not believe.

26 And after eight days, again his diſciples were within,

34 One of the ſoldiers with a ſpear pierced his ſide, &c.) How far the ſpear entered Chriſt's body, and whether it ſtruck into the cavity of the breaſt, or into the pericardium, and let out the liquid in which the heart ſwims there; or whether it pierced the heart itſelf, has been variouſly conjectured: and poſſibly it may be difficult to account for this diſtinct flow of blood and water, upon the principles of anatomy. But it was an evident proof that Jeſus was really dead; and there was ſomething extraordinary and myſterious, if not miraculous, in this circumſtance of his death, ſince the Evangeliſt here takes ſuch particular notice of it, and lays ſuch weight upon the truth of his record about it, (ver 35.) and refers to it as a matter of great importance, 1 John v. 6, 8.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XX.

8 He ſaw, and believed.) Peter wondered at theſe things, (Luke xxiv. 12.) but it does not appear that Peter as yet believed that Chriſt was riſen from the dead: and as angels can appear or diſappear at pleaſure, neither of theſe diſciples ſaw them at the ſepulchre, to help their faith, which was in a little time to be ſatisfied, and confirmed by Chriſt's own appearing to them.

9 As yet they knew not the ſcripture, &c.) So wonderful was the wiſdom of God, in giving unqueſtionable evidence of Chriſt's reſurrection, that his enemies, who were afraid of it and did all they could to prevent it, were jealous about it; and his own diſciples, who could not but heartily wiſh for it, thought nothing of it; though afterward, being fully convinced, they bore a brave and noble teſtimony to it.

26 After eight days, &c.) This, in the Jewiſh idiom, ſignifies a week, or that day ſeven-night, which, including the day reckoned from and the day reckoned to, is eight days; probably Chriſt, in his within, and Thomas with them: then came Jeſus, the doors being ſhut, and ſtood in the midſt, and ſaid, Peace be unto you.

27 Then ſaith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and behold my hands; and reach hither thy hand, and thruſt it into my ſide: and be not faithleſs, but believing.

28 And Thomas anſwered and ſaid unto him, My Lord, and my God.

29 Jeſus ſaith unto him, Thomas, becauſe thou haſt ſeen me, thou haſt believed: bleſſed are they that have not ſeen, and yet have believed.

30 And many other ſigns truly did Jeſus in the preſence of his diſciples, which are not written in this book:

31 But theſe are written, that ye might believe that Jeſus is the Chriſt, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Chriſt appeareth to his diſciples: 18 he foretelleth Peter's death.

AFTER theſe things Jeſus ſhewed himſelf again to the diſciples at the ſea of Tiberias; and on this wiſe ſhewed he himſelf.

2 There were together Simon Peter, and Thomas called Didymus, and Nathanael of Cana in Galilee, and the ſons of Zebedee, and two other of his diſciples.

3 Simon Peter ſaith unto them, I go a fiſhing. They ſay unto him, We alſo go with thee. They went forth, and entered into a ſhip immediately; and that night they caught nothing.

4 But when the morning was now come, Jeſus ſtood on the ſhore; but the diſciples knew not that it was Jeſus.

5 Then Jeſus ſaith unto them, Children, have ye any meat? They anſwered him, No.

6 And he ſaid unto them, Caſt the net on the right ſide of the ſhip, and ye ſhall find. They caſt therefore, and now they were not able to draw it for the multitude of fiſhes.

7 Therefore that diſciple whom Jeſus loved ſaith unto Peter, It is the Lord. Now when Simon Peter heard that it was the Lord, he girt his fiſher's coat unto him, (for he was naked) and did caſt himſelf into the ſea.

8 And the other diſciples came in a little ſhip, (for they were not far from land, but as it were two hundred cubits) dragging the net with fiſhes.

9 As ſoon then as they were come to land, they ſaw a fire of coals there, and fiſh laid thereon, and bread.

10 Jeſus ſaith unto them, Bring of the fiſh which ye have now caught.

11 Simon Peter went up, and drew the net to land full of great fiſhes, an hundred and fifty and three: and for all there were ſo many, yet was not the net broken.

12 Jeſus ſaith unto them, Come and dine. And none of the diſciples durſt aſk him, Who art thou? knowing that it was the Lord.

13 Jeſus then cometh, and taketh bread, and giveth them, and fiſh likewiſe.

14 This is now the third time that Jeſus ſhewed himſelf to his diſciples after that he was riſen from the dead.

15 So when they had dined, Jeſus ſaith to Simon Peter, Simon, ſon of Jonas, loveſt thou me more than theſe? He ſaith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knoweſt that I love thee. He ſaith unto him, Feed my lambs.

16 He ſaith to him again the ſecond time, Simon, ſon of Jonas, loveſt thou me? He ſaith unto him, Yea, Lord; thou knoweſt that I love thee. He ſaith unto him, Feed my ſheep.

17 He ſaith unto him the third time, Simon, ſon of Jonas, loveſt thou me? Peter was grieved, becauſe he ſaid unto him the third time, Loveſt thou me? And he ſaid unto him, Lord, thou knoweſt all things; thou knoweſt that I love thee. Jeſus ſaith unto him, Feed my ſheep.

18 ¶ Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, When thou waſt young thou girdedſt thyſelf, and walkedſt whither thou wouldeſt: but when thou ſhalt be old thou ſhalt ſtretch forth thy hands, and another ſhall gird thee, and carry thee whither thou wouldeſt not.

19 This ſpake he, ſignifying by what death he ſhould glorify God. And when he had ſpoken this, he ſaith unto him, Follow me.

20 Then Peter, turning about, ſeeth the diſciple whom Jeſus loved following; which alſo leaned on his breaſt at ſupper, and ſaid, Lord, which is he that betrayeth thee?

21 Peter, ſeeing him, ſaith to Jeſus, Lord, and what ſhall this man do?

22 Jeſus ſaith unto him, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee? Follow thou me.

23 Then went this ſaying abroad among the brethren, that that diſciple ſhould not die: yet Jeſus ſaid not unto him, He ſhall not die; but, If I will that he tarry till I come, what is that to thee?

24 This is the diſciple which teſtifieth of theſe things, and wrote theſe things; and we know that his teſtimony is true.

25 And there are alſo many other things which Jeſus did, the which if they ſhould be written every one, I ſuppoſe that even the world itſelf could not contain the books that ſhould be written. Amen.

former meeting of the diſciples on the firſt day of the week, gave them an intimation of his appointing it for the New Teſtament-ſabbath, if not of his viſiting them perſonally again at its next return; and ſome think that he appeared to them every firſt day of the week, between his reſurrection and aſcenſion to heaven: however, he ſo ſanctified and bleſſed it, by theſe vouchſafements of his preſence now and before, and by the wonderful effuſion of his Spirit at the following pentecoſt, that from thenceforward it was conſtantly obſerved by the apoſtles and the primitive church, and was commonly called by way of eminence and diſtinction the Lord's day, Rev. i. 10.

Commentary on Chap. XXI.

9 They ſaw a fire of coals there, and fiſh laid thereon, and bread.) 'Tis highly probable that Chriſt, as the Lord of the earth, as well as of the ſea, had miraculouſly provided all this for their ſpeedy refreſhment and for a further manifeſtation of his power and mercy on their behalf.

24 We know that his teſtimony is true.) The words, We know, have been drawn by ſome into an argument for this laſt chapter's being written by other hands than the apoſtle John's. But the beginning of this verſe is a plain confutation of that opinion, where, referring to what Chriſt had mentioned concerning John, it is ſaid, This is the diſciple which teſtifieth of theſe things, and wrote theſe things; and in this chapter he apparently uſes the ſame ſtile as he had in the foregoing parts of the hiſtory, continuing to conceal his name, and ſpeak of himſelf as the diſciple whom Jeſus loved.

THE

THE

ACTS OF THE APOSTLES.

THE ARGUMENT.

This book contains a great part of the lives of St. Peter and St. Paul, beginning at the aſcenſion of our Saviour, and is continued as far as St. Paul's arrival at Rome after his appeal to Ceſar; that is, it includes the hiſtory of above eight and twenty or thirty years. St. Luke has been always conſidered as the author of the Acts.

CHAP. I.

1 A repetition of part of Chriſt's hiſtory after his paſſion.

THE former treatiſe have I made, O Theophilus, of all that Jeſus began both to do and teach,

2 Until the day in which he was taken up, after that he through the Holy Ghoſt had given commandments unto the apoſtles whom he had choſen:

3 To whom alſo he ſhewed himſelf alive after his paſſion by many infallible proofs, being ſeen of them forty days, and ſpeaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God:

4 And, being aſſembled together with them, commanded them that they ſhould not depart from Jeruſalem, but wait for the promiſe of the Father, which, ſaith he, ye have heard of me.

5 For John truly baptized with water; but ye ſhall be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt not many days hence.

6 When they, therefore, were come together, they aſked of him, ſaying, Lord wilt thou at this time reſtore again the kingdom to Iſrael?

7 And he ſaid unto them, It is not for you to know the times or the ſeaſons which the Father hath put in his own power:

8 But ye ſhall receive power, after that the Holy Ghoſt is come upon you: and ye ſhall be witneſſes unto me, both in Jeruſalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermoſt part of the earth.

9 ¶ And, when he had ſpoken theſe things, while they beheld, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their ſight.

10 And while they looked ſtedfaſtly toward heaven, as he went up, behold, two men ſtood by them in white apparel;

11 Which alſo ſaid, Ye men of Galilee, why ſtand ye gazing up into heaven? this ſame Jeſus which is taken up from you into heaven, ſhall ſo come in like manner as ye have ſeen him go into heaven.

12 Then returned they unto Jeruſalem from the mount called Olivet, which is from Jeruſalem a ſabbath-day's journey.

13 And when they were come in, they went up into an upper room, where abode both Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew, Philip, and Thomas, Bartholomew, and Matthew, James the ſon of Alpheus, and Simon Zelotes, and Judas the brother of James.

14 Theſe all continued with one accord in prayer and ſupplication, with the women, and Mary the mother of Jeſus, and with his brethren.

15 And in thoſe days Peter ſtood up in the midſt of the diſciples, and ſaid, (the number of the names together were about an hundred and twenty,)

16 Men and brethren. This ſcripture muſt needs have been fulfilled, which the Holy Ghoſt, by the mouth of David, ſpake before concerning Judas, which was guide to them that took Jeſus.

17 For he was numbered with us, and had obtained part of this miniſtry.

18 Now this man purchaſed a field with the reward of iniquity; and falling headlong, he burſt aſunder in the midſt, and all his bowels guſhed out.

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

10 And while they looked ſtedfaſtly toward heaven, &c.) None of the diſciples ſaw Chriſt riſe from the dead, nor was there any occaſion that they ſhould, ſince their ſeeing him afterwards alive, and converſing with him, &c. were as undeniable proofs of his reſurrection, as if they had ſtood by when he came out of the ſepulchre. But he aſcended to heaven in their ſight, that they might be equally aſſured of his being gone thither, which ſeems to have been, not by a ſwift flight or rapture, but in a leiſurely gradual manner, that they might be in no danger of being deceived, and might have the faireſt opportunity of diſtinctly obſerving it.

12 A ſabbath-day's journey.) This was, according to ſome, two thouſand cubits, or a thouſand yards, and according to others, about eight furlongs, or one of our miles. Thus far it was lawful for the Jews to travel on the ſabbath-day: their cities, together with the ſuburbs, might be ſo long as to make it ſometimes neceſſary for them to go ſo far to the ſynagogue; and as this is made a deſcription of the diſtance between Jeruſalem and that part of mount Olivet from which our Lord aſcended, his aſcending from Bethany, (Luke xxiv. 50.) may be underſtood only of that part of the mount which lay within the borders of Bethany, for that town itſelf was fifteen furlongs from Jeruſalem, John xi. 18.

19 And it was known unto all the dwellers at Jeruſalem; inſomuch as that field is called, in their proper tongue, Aceldama, that is to ſay, The field of blood.

20 For it is written in the book of Pſalms, Let his habitation be deſolate, and let no man dwell therein: and, His biſhopric let another take.

21 Wherefore, of theſe men which have companied with us all the time that the Lord Jeſus went in and out among us,

22 Beginning from the baptiſm of John, unto that ſame day that he was taken up from us, muſt one be ordained to be a witneſs with us of his reſurrection.

23 And they appointed two, Joſeph, called Barſabas, who was ſurnamed Juſtus, and Matthias.

24 And they prayed, and ſaid, Thou, Lord, which knoweſt the hearts of all men, ſhew whether of theſe two thou haſt choſen,

25 That he may take part of this miniſtry and apoſtleſhip, from which Judas by tranſgreſſion fell, that he might go to his own place.

26 And they gave forth their lots; and the lot fell upon Matthias; and he was numbered with the eleven apoſtles.

CHAP. II.

The apoſtles, filled with the Holy Ghoſt, ſpeak divers languages.

AND when the day of Pentecoſt was fully come, they were all with one accord in one place.

2 And ſuddenly there came a ſound from heaven, as of a ruſhing mighty wind, and it filled all the houſe where they were ſitting.

3 And there appeared unto them cloven tongues, like as of fire, and it ſat upon each of them:

4 And they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and began to ſpeak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance.

5 And there were dwelling at Jeruſalem, Jews, devout men, out of every nation under heaven.

6 Now when this was noiſed abroad, the multitude came together, and were confounded, becauſe that every man heard them ſpeak in his own language.

7 And they were all amazed, and marvelled, ſaying one to another, Behold, are not all theſe which ſpeak Galileans?

8 And how hear we every man in our own tongue, wherein we were born?

9 Parthians, and Medes, and Elamites, and the dwellers in Meſopotamia, and in Judea, and Cappadocia, in Pontus, and Aſia,

10 Phrygia, and Pamphylia, in Egypt, and in the parts of Libya about Cyrene, and ſtrangers of Rome, Jews and proſelytes, 11 Cretes and Arabians, we do hear them ſpeak in our tongues the wonderful works of God.

12 And they were all amazed, and were in doubt, ſaying one to another, What meaneth this?

13 Others mocking, ſaid, Theſe men are full of new wine.

14 But Peter, ſtanding up with the eleven, lifted up his voice, and ſaid unto them, Ye men of Judea, and all ye that dwell at Jeruſalem, be this known unto you, and hearken to my words:

15 For theſe are not drunken, as ye ſuppoſe, ſeeing it is but the third hour of the day.

16 But this is that which was ſpoken by the prophet Joel:

17 And it ſhall come to paſs in the laſt days, (ſaith God,) I will pour out of my Spirit upon all fleſh: and your ſons and your daughters ſhall propheſy, and your young men ſhall ſee viſions, and your old men ſhall dream dreams.

18 And on my ſervants, and on my handmaidens, I will pour out in thoſe days of my Spirit, and they ſhall propheſy:

19 And I will ſhew wonders in heaven above, and ſigns in the earth beneath; blood, and fire, and vapour of ſmoke:

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

1 And when the day of Pentecoſt was fully come, &c.) The word Pentecoſt is derived from the Greek penticoſte, which ſignifies the fiftieth, becauſe the day of Pentecoſt was celebrated the fiftieth day after the ſixteenth of the month Niſan, which was the ſecond day of the feaſt of the paſſover (Lev. xxiii. 15, 16.) and for the ſame reaſon it is called the feaſt of weeks (Deut. xvi. 9.) becauſe it was obſerved ſeven weeks after the paſſover. It was firſt inſtituted, in order to oblige the Jews to repair to the temple of the Lord, there to acknowledge his ſovereignty and dominion over all their labours, and there to render thanks to him for the law, which he gave them on a ſimilar day, namely on the fiftieth day after their departure out of Egypt. In like manner the Chriſtian church celebrates the feaſt of Pentecoſt fifty days, or ſeven weeks after the paſſover, or the reſurrection of the Son of God, to put us in remembrance, that the gifts of the Spirit were then poured out in an extraordinary manner, as the firſt fruits of our Saviour's aſcenſion into heaven, and that the goſpel began to be publiſhed by the apoſtles on the ſame day, that the ancient law was given to the Hebrews.

3 There appeared unto them cloven tongues, &c.) It is highly probable that this appearance of cloven tongues reſted on the heads, not only of the apoſtles, but of all the hundred and twenty; for it was on their heads, of whom it is ſaid that they were all with one accord in one place, which exactly anſwers to what was ſaid of the whole company, incluſive of Mary and the other women, (chap. i. 14, 15.) and Peter afterwards in this chapter, ver. 16—18. expreſsly ſpeaks of this as an accompliſhment of Joel's prophecy, about God's pouring out his Spirit on his ſons and daughters and on his ſervants and hand-maidens; and as thoſe that were afterwards recommended by the apoſtles, to be choſen to the office of deacons, are deſcribed as men full of the Holy Ghoſt, (chap. vi. 3.) ſo it ſeems that the ſeventy diſciples, and others of this company, who were afterward, evangeliſts, paſtors, and teachers, were at this time filled with gifts in their meaſure and proportion proper for their work, as the apoſtles, were for theirs; ſince furniſhing out gifts for all theſe offices, is ſpoken of as the immediate fruit of Chriſt's aſcenſion to heaven Eph. iv. 8, 11. And that this was the opinion of the ancients, appears from Jerom, Chryſoſtom, and Oecumenius.

13 Others mocking, &c.) Theſe appear to have been ſome of the natives of Judea and inhabitants of Jeruſalem, who underſtood only the dialect of that country by the apoſtle's directing his ſpeech immediately to them in the next verſe; and it is highly probable that the ſcribes and Phariſees, who had maliciouſly charged our Lord as caſting out devils by Beelzebub, the prince of devils, (Matt. xii. 24.) ſtirred up the people to charge this wonderful operation of the Spirit, as the babbling and rodomontado of drunken men.

20 The ſun ſhall be turned into darkneſs, &c.) Theſe expreſſions may be conſidered in a metaphorical ſenſe, to ſignify not only the deſtruction of cities and towns, but alſo of rulers and people, and of the civil and eccleſiaſtical ſtate of the Jews: but beſides the account that Joſephus gives of the dreadful havock made upon the Jews by fire and ſword, he tells us of many other ſtupendous prodigies in the air, and on the earth: In the air (he ſays) a ſtar hung over the city like a ſword, and a comet appeared for the ſpace of a year; and when the people were aſſembled together at the paſſover, a light ſhone for half an hour round about the altar and the temple, at the ninth hour of the night, as if it had been noon-day; and ſoon after that feſtival chariots of war appeared aloft in the air, and armed troops made ſwift marches along the clouds all over the country, and ſeemed to draw lines of circumvallation round about cities. On the earth (he ſays) at the fore mentioned paſſover a cow, as a prieſt was leading it to be ſacrificed, brought forth a lamb in the midſt of the temple; and the eaſtern gate of the inner temple, which was of braſs, and of ſo immenſe a weight that twenty men could hardly ſhut it, ſeemed of its own accord to open about the ſixth hour; and at the feaſt of Pentecoſt, when the prieſts, according to cuſtom, went to miniſter in the temple, they firſt heard a motion and noiſe, and then a voice, as it were of a great multitude, ſaying, Let us go hence. And one Jeſus, the ſon of Ananus, a mean countryman, went about all the city, night and day, crying, Woe to Jeruſalem, and woe to the temple, &c. and could not be reſtrained by ſcourging and other cruel uſage; but finiſhed his warning at laſt, ſaying, Woe to me alſo; at which he was ſmote by a ſtone from a ſling, and immediately died.

moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come:

21 And it ſhall come to paſs, that whoſoever ſhall call on the name of the Lord ſhall be ſaved.

22 Ye men of Iſrael, hear theſe words; Jeſus of Nazareth, a man approved of God among you by miracles and wonders and ſigns, which God did by him in the midſt of you, as ye yourſelves alſo know:

23 Him being delivered by the determinate counſel and foreknowledge of God, ye have taken, and by wicked hands have crucified and ſlain:

24 Whom God hath raiſed up, having looſed the pains of death; becauſe it was not poſſible that he ſhould be holden of it,

25 For David ſpeaketh concerning him, I foreſaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand that I ſhould not be moved:

26 Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad; moreover alſo, my fleſh ſhall reſt in hope:

27 Becauſe thou wilt not leave my ſoul in hell, neither wilt thou ſuffer thine Holy One to ſee corruption:

28 Thou haſt made known to me the ways of life: thou ſhalt make me full of joy with thy countenance.

29 Men and brethren, let me freely ſpeak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his ſepulchre is with us unto this day.

30 Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had ſworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins according to the fleſh he would raiſe up Chriſt to ſit on his throne;

31 He ſeeing this before, ſpake of the reſurrection of Chriſt, that his ſoul was not left in hell, neither his fleſh did ſee corruption.

32 This Jeſus hath God raiſed up, whereof we all are witneſſes.

33 Therefore being by the right hand of God exalted, and having received of the Father the promiſe of the Holy Ghoſt, he hath ſhed forth this which ye now ſee and hear.

34 For David is not aſcended into the heavens: but he ſaith himſelf, The Lord ſaid unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, 35 Until I make thy foes thy footſtool.

36 Therefore let all the houſe of Iſrael know aſſuredly that God hath made that ſame Jeſus whom ye have crucified both Lord and Chriſt.

37 Now when they heard this they were pricked in their heart, and ſaid unto Peter and to the reſt of the apoſtles, Men and brethren what ſhall we do?

38 Then Peter ſaid unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jeſus Chriſt for the remiſſion of ſins, and ye ſhall receive the gift of the Holy Ghoſt.

39 For the promiſe is unto you, and to your children, and to all that are afar off, even as many as the Lord our God ſhall call.

40 And with many other words did he teſtify and exhort, ſaying, Save yourſelves from this untoward generation.

41 Then they that gladly received his word were baptized: and the ſame day there were added unto them about three thouſand ſouls.

42 And they continued ſtedfaſtly in the apoſtles' doctrine and fellowſhip, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers.

43 And fear came upon every ſoul: and many wonders and ſigns were done by the apoſtles.

44 And all that believed were together, and had all things common;

45 And ſold their poſſeſſions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need.

46 And they continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from houſe to houſe, did eat their meat with gladneſs and ſingleneſs of heart;

47 Praiſing God, and having favour with all the people. And the Lord added to the church daily ſuch as ſhould be ſaved.

CHAP. III.

1 Peter and John reſtore a lame man. 19 The people are exhorted to repentance.

NOW Peter and John went up together into the temple at the hour of prayer, being the ninth hour,

2 And a certain man, lame from his mother's womb, was carried, whom they laid daily at the gate of the temple which is called Beautiful, to aſk alms of them that entered into the temple;

3 Who, ſeeing Peter and John about to go into the temple, aſked an alms.

4 And Peter, faſtening his eyes upon him, with John, ſaid, Look on us.

5 And he gave heed unto them, expecting to receive ſomething of them.

6 Then Peter ſaid, Silver and gold have I none; but ſuch as I have, give I thee: In the name of Jeſus Chriſt of Nazareth riſe up and walk.

7 And he took him by the right hand, and lifted him up: and immediately his feet and ancle-bones received ſtrength.

8 And he, leaping up, ſtood, and walked, and entered

45 Sold their poſſeſſions, &c.) Many of the firſt Chriſtians, who were Jews dwelling in Judea, ſold their lands and poſſeſſions. The Gentiles did it not when the goſpel came to them; and none of St. Paul's epiſtles contain any ſuch precept, or intimate any ſuch practice. The Jews acted thus, though not by command, yet doubtleſs with the approbation of the apoſtles; and the moſt probable reaſon for it was this: they knew that Chriſt had foretold the deſtruction of their country which ſhould come upon it before that generation was paſſed away, and therefore they thought it proper, while there was opportunity to improve to the beſt uſes their eſtates, which they ſhould not long enjoy, by relieving the poorer brethren, and by enabling the firſt teachers to purſue their travels from place to place.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

2 At the gate of the temple, &c.) Joſephus tells us, that ſeveral of the gates were plated all over with gold and ſilver: but this, which he calls the Corinthian gate, becauſe it was made of Corinthian braſs, far ſurpaſſed in glory thoſe of gold and ſilver, being built with ſuch art and elegance, as well became the frontiſpiece of that place where the divine majeſty vouchſafed to dwell.

6 In the name of Jeſus Chriſt of Nazareth.) How different was the behaviour of the apoſtles from our bleſſed Lord's in working miracles! Though on proper occaſions, for aſſerting and vindicating his official character as the Meſſiah, in human nature, he ſpoke of himſelf as coming and doing his works in his Father's name; (John v. 43 x. 25.) yet even at thoſe very times, he to ſecure the honour of his ſuperior character as God ſpoke of himſelf as the Son, who acts in full concurrence with the Father, in all that the Father himſelf doth: and has life in himſelf, and quickens whom he will; and ſaid I and my Father are one, (John v. 19——26. x. 30.) And his uſual way of performing his miracles themſelves, was with the ſovereignty and authority of a God, without taking any manner of notice of his Father therein. But the apoſtles commonly wrought their miracles in Chriſt's name, and with an expreſs reference to him as their principal, and as the fund of all the power by which they were wrought; and abſolutely diſclaimed every thing in themſelves as contributing toward them, any further than as their faith was the appointed means of his conveying the virtue that produced them; (ver. 12. 16.) and ſo theſe works were wrought by his power when he was corporally abſent from our world, as well as when he was preſent in it; and ſhew it to be ſuch as can be found in none but the omnipreſent, omniſcient and omnipotent God: and that the apoſtles believed him to be ſo, is aparent from their taking no notice of his Father, but only of Chriſt himſelf, as the divine Author of theſe cures.

with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praiſing God.

9 And all the people ſaw him walking, and praiſing God:

10 And they knew that it was he which ſat for alms at the Beautiful gate of the temple; and they were filled with wonder and amazement at that which had happened unto him.

11 And, as the lame man which was healed held Peter and John, all the people ran together unto them in the porch that is called Solomon's, greatly wondering.

12 And when Peter ſaw it, he anſwered unto the people, Ye men of Iſrael, why marvel ye at this? or why look ye ſo earneſtly on us, as though by our own power or holineſs we had made this man to walk?

13 The God of Abraham, and of Iſaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Son Jeſus; whom ye delivered up, and denied him in the preſence of Pilate, whenhe was determined to let him go.

14 But ye denied the Holy One, and the Juſt, and deſired a murderer to be granted unto you;

15 And killed the Prince of life, whom God hath raiſed from the dead, whereof we are witneſſes.

16 And his name, through faith in his name, hath made this man ſtrong, whom ye ſee and know; yea, the faith which is by him hath given him this perfect ſoundneſs in the preſence of you all.

17 And now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did alſo your rulers.

18 But thoſe things which God before had ſhewed by the mouth of all his prophets, that Chriſt ſhould ſuffer, he hath ſo fulfilled.

19 ¶ Repent ye, therefore, and be converted, that your ſins may be blotted out, when the times of refreſhing ſhall come from the preſence of the Lord;

20 And he ſhall ſend Jeſus Chriſt, which before was preached unto you;

21 Whom the heaven muſt receive until the times of reſtitution of all things, which God hath ſpoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets ſince the world began.

22 For Moſes truly ſaid unto the fathers, A Prophet ſhall the Lord your God raiſe up unto you of your brethren, like unto me: him ſhall ye hear in all things, whatſoever he ſhall ſay unto you.

23 And it ſhall come to paſs, that every ſoul which will not hear that Prophet, ſhall be deſtroyed from among the people.

24 Yea, and all the prophets from Samuel, and thoſe that follow after, as many as have ſpoken, have likewiſe foretold of theſe days.

25 Ye are the children of the prophets, and of the covenant which God made with our fathers, ſaying unto Abraham, And in thy ſeed ſhall all the kindreds of the earth be bleſſed.

26 Unto you firſt, God, having raiſed up his Son Jeſus, ſent him to bleſs you, in turning away every one of you from his iniquities.

CHAP. IV.

1 Peter and John impriſoned. 5 Their defence. 13 They are threatened.

AND as they ſpake unto the people, the prieſts, and the captain of the temple, and the Sadducees, came upon them,

2 Being grieved that they taught the people, and preached through Jeſus the reſurrection from the dead.

3 And they laid hands on them, and put them in hold unto the next day: for it was now even-tide.

4 Howbeit, many of them which heard the word believed; and the number of the men was about five thouſand.

5 ¶ And it came to paſs on the morrow, that their rulers, and elders, and ſcribes,

6 And Annas the high prieſt, and Caiaphas, and John, and Alexander, and as many as were of the kindred of the high prieſt, were gathered together at Jeruſalem.

7 And when they had ſet them in the midſt, they aſked, By what power, or by what name, have ye done this?

8 Then Peter, filled with the Holy Ghoſt, ſaid unto them, Ye rulers of the people, and elders of Iſrael,

9 If we this day be examined of the good deed done to the impotent man, by what means he is made whole;

10 Be it known unto you all, and to all the people of Iſrael, that by the name of Jeſus Chriſt of Nazareth, whom ye crucified, whom God raiſed from the dead, even by him doth this man ſtand here before you whole.

11 This is the ſtone which was ſet at nought of you builders, which is become the head of the corner.

12 Neither is there ſalvation in any other: for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we muſt be ſaved.

13 ¶ Now when they ſaw the boldneſs of Peter and John, and perceived that they were unlearned and ignorant men, they marvelled; and they took knowledge of them, that they had been with Jeſus.

14 And beholding the man which was healed ſtanding with them, they could ſay nothing againſt it.

15 But when they had commanded them to go aſide out of the council, they conferred among themſelves,

16 Saying, What ſhall we do to theſe men? for that indeed a notable miracle hath been done by them is manifeſt to all them that dwell in Jeruſalem; and we cannot deny it.

17 But, that it ſpread no further among the people, let us ſtraitly threaten them, that they ſpeak henceforth to no man in this name.

18 And they called them, and commanded them not to ſpeak at all, nor teach, in the name of Jeſus.

19 But Peter and John anſwered and ſaid unto them, Whether it be right in the ſight of God to hearken unto you more than unto God, judge ye.

20 For we cannot but ſpeak the things which we have ſeen and heard.

21 So, when they had further threatened them, they let them go, finding nothing how they might puniſh them, becauſe of the people: for all men glorified God for that which was done.

22 For the man was above forty years old on whom this miracle of healing was ſhewed.

23 And, being let go, they went to their own company, and reported all that the chief prieſts and elders had ſaid unto them.

24 And when they heard that, they lifted up their voice to God with one accord, and ſaid, Lord, thou art God, which haſt made heaven, and earth, and the ſea, and all that in them is.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

4 The number of the men was about five thouſand.) The men only that believed are ſaid to be about 5000; and beſides theſe, many women were alſo probably converted at this time: and this 5000 does not ſeem to include the 3000 mentioned chap. ii. 41. but to to be entirely new converts; for all along in the third chapter, and in this verſe, the people that ſaw the miracle on the cripple, and heard the apoſtles diſcourſe on that occaſion, are the only perſons mentioned; and their believing is ſpoken of as brought about by thoſe means. So mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed, when the Spirit was poured from on high.

25 Who, by the mouth of thy ſervant David, haſt ſaid, Why did the heathen rage, and the people imagine vain things?

26 The kings of the earth ſtood up, and the rulers were gathered together againſt the Lord and againſt his Chriſt.

27 For of a truth againſt thy holy child Jeſus whom thou haſt anointed, both Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the people of Iſrael, were gathered together, 28 For to do whatſoever thy hand and thy counſel determined before to be done.

29 And now, Lord, behold their threatenings; and grant unto thy ſervants that with all boldneſs they may ſpeak thy word,

30 By ſtretching forth thine hand to heal; and that ſigns and wonders may be done by the name of thy holy child Jeſus.

31 And, when they had prayed, the place was ſhaken where they were aſſembled together; and they were all filled with the Holy Ghoſt, and they ſpake the word of God with boldneſs.

32 And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart, and of one ſoul: neither ſaid any of them that ought of the things which he poſſeſſed was his own; but they had all things common.

33 And with great power gave the apoſtles witneſs of the reſurrection of the Lord Jeſus: and great grace was upon them all.

34 Neither was there any among them that lacked: for as many as were poſſeſſors of lands or houſes ſold them, and brought the prices of the things that were ſold,

35 And laid them down at the apoſtles feet: and diſtribution was made unto every man according as he had need.

36 And Joſes, who by the apoſtles was ſurnamed Barnabas, (which is, being interpreted, The ſon of conſolation,) a Levite, and of the country of Cyprus, 37 Having land, ſold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the apoſtles feet.

CHAP. V.

1 The death of Ananias and Sapphira. 17 The apoſtles impriſoned again, and delivered.

BUT a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, ſold a poſſeſſion,

2 And kept back part of the price, his wife alſo being privy to it, and brought a certain part, and laid it at the apoſtles feet.

3 But Peter ſaid, Ananias, why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghoſt, and to keep back part of the price of the land?

4 Whiles it remained, was it not thine own? and after it was ſold, was it not in thine own power? why haſt thou conceived this thing in thine heart? thou haſt not lied unto men, but unto God.

5 And Ananias, hearing theſe words, fell down, and gave up the ghoſt: and great fear came on all them that heard theſe things.

6 And the young men aroſe, wound him up, and carried him out, and buried him.

7 And it was about the ſpace of three hours after, when his wife, not knowing what was done, came in.

8 And Peter anſwered unto her, Tell me whether ye ſold the land for ſo much? and ſhe ſaid, Yea, for ſo much.

9 Then Peter ſaid unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thy huſband are at the door, and ſhall carry thee out.

10 Then fell ſhe down ſtraightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghoſt. And the young men came in, and found her dead, and carrying her forth, buried her by her huſband.

11 And great fear came upon all the church, and upon as many as heard theſe things.

12 And by the hands of the apoſtles were many ſigns and wonders wrought among the people. And they were all with one accord in Solomon's porch.

13 And of the reſt durſt no man join himſelf to them: but the people magnified them.

14 And believers were the more added to the Lord, multitudes both of men and women:

15 Inſomuch that they brought forth the ſick into the ſtreets, and laid them on beds and couches, that at the leaſt, the ſhadow of Peter paſſing by might overſhadow ſome of them.

16 There came alſo a multitude out of the cities round about unto Jeruſalem, bringing ſick folks, and them which were vexed with unclean ſpirits: and they were healed every one.

17 ¶ Then the high prieſt roſe up, and all they that were with him, which is the ſect of the Saducees; and were filled with indignation,

18 And laid their hands on the apoſtles, and put them in the common priſon.

19 But the angel of the Lord by night opened the priſon doors, and brought them forth, and ſaid, 20 Go, ſtand and ſpeak in the temple to the people all the words of this life.

21 And when they heard that, they entered into the temple early in the morning, and taught. But the high prieſt came, and they that were with him, and called the council together, and all the ſenate of the children of Iſrael, and ſent to the priſon to have them brought.

22 But when the officers came, and found them not in the priſon, they returned, and told,

23 Saying, The priſon truly found we ſhut with all ſafety; and the keepers ſtanding without before the doors: but when we had opened, we found no man within.

24 Now, when the high prieſt, and the captain of the temple, and the chief prieſts heard theſe things, they doubted of them whereunto this would grow.

25 Then came one and told them, ſaying, Behold,

25 Who by the mouth of thy ſervant David, &c.) This, as ſeveral commentators have obſerved, intimates not only that David was inſpired by the Spirit of God, in writing his Pſalms; but as this, ſo all other Pſalms, in the title of which no notice is taken of the penman, are to be reckoned to him.

32 Were of one heart and one ſoul.) Living in perfect love and entire unity among themſelves; every one being more ſolicitous to provide for the neceſſities of others, than to lay up any thing in ſtore for himſelf.

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

15 That at the leaſt the ſhadow, &c.) The efficacy of St. Peter's ſhadow in curing diſtempers, is ſo far from being natural, or likely to come into the mind of man, that nothing but the force of truth could have rendered it credible; and it muſt have been experience that gave the firſt notion of it. For the ſick at that time being expoſed in the ſtreets, where the apoſtles paſſed, that they might receive from them a cure by their prayers and the interpoſition of hands, found that the ſhadow of Peter had the ſame power: and this unlooked for trial became afterwards the foundation of their faith and expectation.

17 Then the high prieſt roſe up, and all they that were with him, &c.) This ſeems to ſignify perſons of his party, and to intimate, that he himſelf was a Saducee, and that a great part of the ſanhedrim now conſiſted of perſons of that ſect, though there was alſo a mixture of Phariſees with them, as appears from chap. xxiii. 6. And the Sadducees all along in this hiſtory appear to have been the moſt furious adverſaries to the apoſtles, whoſe chief buſineſs was to preach a riſen Saviour, and the doctrines that depend upon, and ſtand connected with, that great article of the Chriſtian faith.

the men whom ye put in priſon, are ſtanding in the temple, and teaching the people.

26 Then went the captain, with the officers, and brought them without violence: (for they feared the people, leſt they ſhould have been ſtoned:)

27 And when they had brought them, they ſet them before the council: and the high prieſt aſked them,

28 Saying, Did not we ſtraitly command you that ye ſhould not teach in this name? and, behold, ye have filled Jeruſalem with your doctrine, and intend to bring this man's blood upon us.

29 Then Peter and the other apoſtles anſwered and ſaid, We ought to obey God rather than men.

30 The God of our fathers raiſed up Jeſus, whom ye ſlew, and hanged on a tree:

31 Him hath God exalted with his right hand to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give repentance to Iſrael, and forgiveneſs of ſins.

32 And we are his witneſſes of theſe things; and ſo is alſo the Holy Ghoſt, whom God hath given to them that obey him.

33 When they heard that, they were cut to the heart, and took counſel to ſlay them.

34 Then ſtood there up one in the council, a Phariſee, named Gamaliel, a doctor of the law, had in reputation among all the people, and commanded to put the apoſtles forth a little ſpace;

35 And ſaid unto them, Ye men of Iſrael, take heed to yourſelves what ye intend to do as touching theſe men.

36 For before theſe days roſe up Theudas, boaſting himſelf to be ſomebody; to whom a number of men, about four hundred, joined themſelves: who was ſlain; and all, as many as obeyed him, were ſcattered, and brought to nought.

37 After this man aroſe up Judas of Galilee, in the days of the taxing, and drew away much people after him: he alſo periſhed; and all, even as many as obeyed him, were diſperſed.

38 And now, I ſay unto you, Refrain from theſe men, and let them alone: for if this counſel, or this work, be of men, it will come to nought:

39 But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it; leſt haply ye be found even to fight againſt God.

40 And to him they agreed: and when they had called the apoſtles, and beaten them, they commanded that they ſhould not ſpeak in the name of Jeſus, and let them go.

41 And they departed from the preſence of the council, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to ſuffer ſhame for his name.

42 And daily in the temple, and in every houſe, they ceaſed not to teach and preach Jeſus Chriſt.

CHAP. VI.

1 Deacons choſen. 9 Stephen falſly accuſed of blaſphemy.

AND in thoſe days, when the number of the diſciples was multiplied, there aroſe a murmuring of the Grecians againſt the Hebrews, becauſe their widows were neglected in the daily miniſtration.

2 Then the twelve called the multitude of the diſciples unto them, and ſaid, It is not reaſon that we ſhould leave the word of God and ſerve tables.

3 Wherefore, brethren, look ye out among you ſeven men of honeſt report, full of the Holy Ghoſt and wiſdom, whom we may appoint over this buſineſs.

4 But we will give ourſelves continually to prayer, and to the miniſtry of the word.

5 And the ſaying pleaſed the whole multitude; and they choſe Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghoſt, and Philip, and Prochorus, and Nicanor, and Timon, and Parmenas, and Nicolas a proſelyte of Antioch;

6 Whom they ſet before the apoſtles; and, when they had prayed, they laid their hands on them.

7 And the word of God increaſed; and the number of the diſciples multiplied in Jeruſalem greatly; and a great company of the prieſts were obedient to the faith.

8 And Stephen, full of faith and power, did great wonders and miracles among the people.

9 ¶ Then there aroſe certain of the ſynagogue, which is called the ſynagogue of the Libertines, and Cyrenians, and Alexandrians, and of them of Cilicia, and of Aſia, diſputing with Stephen.

10 And they were not able to reſiſt the wiſdom and the ſpirit by which he ſpake.

11 Then they ſuborned men, which ſaid, We have heard him ſpeak blaſphemous words againſt Moſes, and againſt God.

12 And they ſtirred up the people, and the elders, and the ſcribes, and came upon him, and caught him, and brought him to the council,

13 And ſet up falſe witneſſes, which ſaid, This man ceaſeth not to ſpeak blaſphemous words againſt this holy place, and the law.

14 For we have heard him ſay, That this Jeſus of Nazareth ſhall deſtroy this place, and ſhall change the cuſtoms which Moſes delivered us.

15 And all that ſat in the council, looking ſtedfaſtly on him, ſaw his face as it had been the face of an angel.

CHAP. VII.

1 Stephen anſwereth to his accuſation. 54 They ſtone him to death.

THEN ſaid the high prieſt, Are theſe things ſo?

2 And he ſaid, Men, brethren, and fathers, hearken; The God of glory appeared unto our father Abraham when he was in Meſopatamia, before he dwelt in Charran,

3 And ſaid unto him, Get thee out of thy country and from thy kindred, and come into the land which I ſhall ſhew thee.

4 Then came he out of the land of the Chaldeans, and dwelt in Charran: and from thence, when his father was dead, he removed him into this land wherein ye now dwell.

34 A Phariſee, named Gamaliel, &c.) It is ſuppoſed from what is found in Talmudical writings, that this Gamaliel was the ſon of good old Simeon, who took Chriſt up in his arms, when he was preſented in the temple, (Luke ii. 25, 28.) and was the grandſon of the famous Hillel, one of the moſt eminent of the Jewiſh doctors.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

5 And they choſe Stephen, a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghoſt, and Philip, &c.) All theſe deacons having Greek names, ſeem to have been of the Grecian or Hellineſtical part of the church, that their poor might have no room for further complaints of being neglected in the diſtribution of the public money. Stephen and Philip are ſpoken of at large in this and the two following chapters; but the ſcripture never mentions any of the reſt again, unleſs this Nicolas were the man from whom the abominable ſect of the Nicolaitanes, ſpoken of Rev. ii. 6, 15. took their name. If he advanced the impure notions which antiquity ſays they held, he muſt be ſadly degenerated from his firſt faith.

9 Diſputing with Stephen.) The diſputants againſt Stephen were, probably, either the tutors, or ſome other of the moſt learned and acute men of the ſchools, belonging to the ſynagogues where the foreign youth were educated in Jewiſh learning; and as Saul of Tarſus was a great ſcholar, of ſmart parts, and furious zeal againſt Chriſtianity, it is very likely that he was concerned in theſe debates, as well as in the ſtoning of Stephen to death, chap. vii. 57. and viii. 1.

5 And he gave him none inheritance in it, no not ſo much as to ſet his foot on: yet he promiſed that he would give it to him for a poſſeſſion, and to his ſeed after him, when as yet he had no child.

6 And God ſpake on this wiſe, That his ſeed ſhould ſojourn in a ſtrange land; and that they ſhould bring them into bondage, and intreat them evil four hundred years.

7 And the nation to whom they ſhall be in bondage will I judge, ſaid God: and after that ſhall they come forth, and ſerve me in this place.

8 And he gave him the covenant of circumciſion. And ſo Abraham begat Iſaac, and circumciſed him the eighth day; and Iſaac begat Jacob: and Jacob begat the twelve patriarchs.

9 And the patriarchs moved with envy ſold Joſeph into Egypt: but God was with him,

10 And delivered him out of all his afflictions, and gave him favour and wiſdom in the ſight of Pharaoh king of Egypt; and he made him governor over Egypt, and all his houſe.

11 Now there came a dearth over all the land of Egypt and Chanaan, and great affliction: and our fathers found no ſuſtenance.

12 But when Jacob heard that there was corn in Egypt, he ſent out our fathers firſt.

13 And at the ſecond time Joſeph was made known to his brethren: and Joſeph's kindred was made known unto Pharaoh.

14 Then ſent Joſeph and called his father Jacob to him, and all his kindred, threeſcore and fifteen ſouls.

15 So Jacob went down into Egypt, and died, he, and our fathers,

16 And were carried over into Sychem, and laid in the ſepulchre that Abraham bought for a ſum of money of the ſons of Emmor, the father of Sychem.

17 But when the time of the promiſe drew nigh, which God had ſworn to Abraham, the people grew and multiplied in Egypt.

18 Till another king aroſe, which knew not Joſeph:

19 The ſame dealt ſubtilely with our kindred, and evil-entreated our fathers, ſo that they caſt out their young children to the end they might not live.

20 In which time Moſes was born, and was exceeding fair, and nouriſhed up in his father's houſe three months:

21 And when he was caſt out, Pharaoh's daughter took him up and nouriſhed him for her own ſon.

22 And Moſes was learned in all the wiſdom of the Egyptians, and was mighty in words and in deeds.

23 And when he was full forty years old, it came into his heart to viſit his brethren the children of Iſrael.

24 And ſeeing one of them ſuffer wrong, he defended him, and avenged him that was oppreſſed, and ſmote the Egyptian:

25 For he ſuppoſed his brethren would have underſtood how that God by his hand would deliver them; but they underſtood not.

26 And the next day he ſhewed himſelf unto them as they ſtrove, and would have ſet them at one again, ſaying, Sirs, ye are brethren; why do ye wrong one to another?

27 But he that did his neighbour wrong thruſt him away, ſaying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge over us?

28 Wilt thou kill me, as thou didſt the Egyptian yeſterday?

29 Then fled Moſes at this ſaying, and was a ſtranger in the land of Madian, where he begat two ſons.

30 And when forty years were expired, there appeared to him in the wilderneſs of mount Sina, an angel of the Lord in a flame of fire in a buſh.

31 When Moſes ſaw it, he wondered at the ſight: and as he drew near to behold it, the voice of the Lord came unto him, 32 Saying, I am the God of thy fathers, the God of Abraham, and the God of Iſaac, and the God of Jacob. Then Moſes trembled, and durſt not behold.

33 Then ſaid the Lord to him, Put off thy ſhoes from thy feet: for the place where thou ſtandeſt is holy ground.

34 I have ſeen, I have ſeen the affliction of my people which is in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning and am come down to deliver them. And now, come, I will ſend thee into Egypt.

35 This Moſes whom they refuſed, ſaying, Who made thee a ruler and a judge? the ſame did God ſend to be a ruler and a deliverer, by the hand of the angel which appeared to him in the buſh.

36 He brought them out, after that he had ſhewed wonders and ſigns in the land of Egypt, and in the Red ſea, and in the wilderneſs forty years.

37 This is that Moſes which ſaid unto the children of Iſrael, A Prophet ſhall the Lord your God raiſe up unto you of your brethren, like unto me, him ſhall ye hear.

38 This is he that was in the church in the wilderneſs with the angel which ſpake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers: who received the lively oracles to give unto us;

39 To whom our fathers would not obey, but thruſt him from them, and in their hearts turned back again into Egypt.

40 Saying unto Aaron, Make us gods to go before us: for as for this Moſes, which brought us out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him.

41 And they made a calf in thoſe days, and offered ſacrifice unto the idol, and rejoiced in the works of their own hands.

42 Then God turned, and gave them up to worſhip the hoſt of heaven as it is written in the book of the prophets, O ye houſe of Iſrael, have ye offered to me ſlain beaſts and ſacrifices by the ſpace of forty years in the wilderneſs?

43 Yea, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, and

Commentary on Chap. VII.

18 Till another king aroſe which knew not Joſeph.) Joſephus tell us, that when the Iſraelites increaſed in number, riches, and ſtrength, and when the kingdom was transferred to another family, the Egyptians treated the Iſraelites inhumanly, and contrived to oppreſs them with various fatiguing labours, ſuch as cutting dikes, caſting up banks, building walls round about their cities, and erecting pyramids. And we are told, that the king, which knew not Joſeph, was a foreigner, who with a numerous army, ſome ſay of Aſſyrians, others of Phenicians, others of Arabians, and others of the Horims, whom the children of Eſau drove out of their land, (Deut. ii. 12, 22.) invaded and conquered Egpyt, and called themſelves paſtors or ſhepherds.

22 And Moſes was learned in all the wiſdom of the Egyptians,) Moſes is ſpoken of by Jewiſh writers, as adopted by Thermuſis, Pharaoh's daughter, for her ſon, as a man of great eminence among the Egpytians, as general of their armies, and as deſigned by Pharaoh himſelf for their king.

43 Yea, ye took up the tabernacle of Moloch, &c) As the ſun and moon were worſhipped by the eaſtern nations under the character of the king and queen of heaven, and were the Oſidis and Apis of the Egyptians; the firſt of which they repreſented by a golden bull, and the ſecond by a living ox; the learned generaly agree, that by Moloch was meant the ſun, which was at other times called Baal, Bel, and Belus; and in the opinion of ſome, the ſtar Remphan, which was alſo called Chiun, and, by the ſeventy, Rephan, or Remphan, (Amos v. 26.) ſignified the moon; but others think it rather ſignified Saturn.

the ſtar of your God Remphan, figures which ye made to worſhip them: and I will carry you away beyond Babylon.

44 Our fathers had the tabernacle of witneſs in the wilderneſs, as he had appointed, ſpeaking unto Moſes, that he ſhould make it according to the faſhion that he had ſeen:

45 Which alſo our fathers that came after brought in with Jeſus into the poſſeſſion of the Gentiles, whom God drave out before the face of our fathers, unto the days of David;

46 Who found favour before God, and deſired to find a tabernacle for the God of Jacob.

47 But Solomon built him an houſe.

48 Howbeit, the Moſt High dwelleth not in temples made with hands; as ſaith the prophet,

49 Heaven is my throne, and earth is my footſtool: what houſe will ye build me? ſaith the Lord; or, what is the place of my reſt?

50 Hath not my hand made all theſe things?

51 Ye ſtiff-necked and uncircumciſed in heart and ears, ye do always reſiſt the Holy Ghoſt: as your fathers did, ſo do ye.

52 Which of the prophets have not your fathers perſecuted? and they have ſlain them which ſhewed before of the coming of the Juſt One; of whom ye have been now the betrayers and murderers:

53 Who have received the law by the diſpoſition of angels, and have not kept it.

54 ¶ When they heard theſe things they were cut to the heart, and they gnaſhed on him with their teeth.

55 But he, being full of the Holy Ghoſt, looked up ſtedfaſtly into heaven, and ſaw the glory of God, and Jeſus ſtanding on the right hand of God, 56 And ſaid, Behold, I ſee the heavens opened, and the Son of man ſtanding on the right hand of God.

57 Then they cried out with a loud voice, and ſtopped their ears, and ran upon him with one accord.

58 And caſt him out of the city, and ſtoned him: and the witneſſes laid down their clothes at a young man's feet, whoſe name was Saul.

59 And they ſtoned Stephen, calling upon God, and ſaying, Lord Jeſus, receive my ſpirit.

60 And he kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this ſin to their charge. And when he had ſaid this, he fell aſleep.

CHAP. VIII.

1 The church planted in Samaria by Philip: 26 he baptizeth the Ethiopian eunuch.

AND Saul was conſenting unto his death. And at that time there was a great perſecution againſt the church which was at Jeruſalem; and they were all ſcattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apoſtles.

2 And devout men carried Stephen to his burial, and made great lamentation over him.

3 As for Saul, he made havock of the church, entering into every houſe, and haling men and women, committed them to priſon.

4 Therefore they that were ſcattered abroad, went every where preaching the word.

5 Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Chriſt unto them.

6 And the people with one accord gave heed unto thoſe things which Philip ſpake, hearing and ſeeing the miracles which he did.

7 For unclean ſpirits, crying with loud voice, came out of many that were poſſeſſed with them: and many taken with palſies, and that were lame, were healed.

8 And there was great joy in that city.

9 But there was a certain man called Simon, which beforetime in the ſame city uſed ſorcery, and bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himſelf was ſome great one:

10 To whom they all gave heed, from the leaſt to the greateſt, ſaying, This man is the great power of God.

11 And to him they had regard, becauſe that of long time he had bewitched them with ſorceries.

12 But when they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jeſus Chriſt, they were baptized both men and women.

13 Then Simon himſelf believed alſo: and when he was baptized he continued with Philip, and wondered, beholding the miracles and ſigns which were done.

14 Now when the apoſtles, which were at Jeruſalem, heard that Samaria had received the word of God, they ſent unto them Peter and John:

15 Who, when they were come down, prayed for them, that they might receive the Holy Ghoſt.

16 (For as yet he was fallen upon none of them: only they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus.)

17 Then laid they their hands on them, and they received the Holy Ghoſt.

18 And when Simon ſaw that through laying on of the apoſtles' hands the Holy Ghoſt was given, he offered them money,

19 Saying, Give me alſo this power, that on whomſoever I lay hands, he may receive the Holy Ghoſt.

20 But Peter ſaid unto him, Thy money periſh with thee, becauſe thou haſt thought that the gift of God may be purchaſed with money.

21 Thou haſt neither part nor lot in this matter: for thy heart is not right in the ſight of God.

22 Repent, therefore, of this thy wickedneſs, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee.

23 For I perceive that thou art in the gall of bitterneſs, and in the bond of iniquity.

24 Then anſwered Simon and ſaid, Pray ye to the Lord for me, that none of theſe things which ye have ſpoken come upon me.

25 And they, when they had teſtified and preached the word of the Lord, returned to Jeruſalem, and preached the goſpel in many villages of the Samaritans.

---

55 But he, being full of the Holy Ghoſt, &c.) Whether to afford St. Stephen this delightful proſpect, the opening of the heavens was real, as at our Lord's baptiſm; or whether this, like other appearances to the prophets of the Old Teſtament, was repreſented to him by way of viſion, we cannot certainly know, nor is it of any great conſequence that we ſhould. For, ſince a viſion is deſcribed by thoſe, that are particularly curious in theſe matters, to be ſuch a diſtinct and ſtrong impreſſion upon the faculty of the imagination, as ſets the object before the man as plainly as if it were actually preſent, and perceived by his bodily ſenſes, it is not to be doubted, but that the evidence of the perſuaſion is the ſame by either, and every other effect, which we can ſuppoſe it is intended to produce in the mind of the perſon whom it actuates.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VIII.

1 And they were all ſcattered abroad, &c.) This muſt be underſtood with ſome limitation; the apoſtles themſelves continued at Jeruſalem, and there being ſtill devout Chriſtians, who were probably converts from among the Jewiſh proſelytes that buried Stephen, with great lamentations over him at his grave; and there being, beſides theſe, many other men and women, whom Saul perſecuted, and who are diſtinguiſhed from them that were ſcattered abroad, (ver. 1,—4.) Theſe therefore ſeem to be the remainder of the hundred and twenty that were called the apoſtles own company, (chap. iv. 23.) and perhaps included ſeveral other later converts, that had received the gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, and went about as evangeliſts to preach the goſpel.

26 ¶ And the angel of the Lord ſpake unto Philip, ſaying, Ariſe, and go toward the ſouth, unto the way that goeth down from Jeruſalem unto Gaza, which is deſert.

27 And he aroſe and went: and, behold, a man of Ethiopia, an eunuch of great authority under Candace queen of the Ethiopians, who had the charge of all her treaſure, and had come to Jeruſalem for to worſhip, 28 Was returning, and, ſitting in his chariot, read Eſaias the prophet.

29 Then the Spirit ſaid unto Philip, Go near, and join thyſelf to this chariot.

30 And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the prophet Eſaias, and ſaid, Underſtandeſt thou what thou readeſt?

31 And he ſaid, How can I, except ſome man ſhould guide me? And he deſired Philip that he would come up and ſit with him.

32 The place of the ſcripture which he read was this: He was led as a ſheep to the ſlaughter; and like a lamb dumb before his ſhearer, ſo opened he not his mouth:

33 In his humiliation his judgment was taken away; and who ſhall declare his generation? for his life is taken from the earth.

34 And the eunuch anſwered Philip, and ſaid, I pray thee, of whom ſpeaketh the prophet this? of himſelf, or of ſome other man?

35 Then Philip opened his mouth, and began at the ſame ſcripture, and preached unto him Jeſus.

36 And as they went on their way, they came unto a certain water: and the eunuch ſaid, See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?

37 And Philip ſaid, If thou believeſt with all thine heart, thou mayeſt. And he anſwered and ſaid, I believe that Jeſus Chriſt is the Son of God.

38 And he commanded the chariot to ſtand ſtill: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him.

39 And when they were come up out of the water, the Spirit of the Lord caught away Philip, that the eunuch ſaw him no more: and he went on his way rejoicing.

40 But Philip was found at Azotus: and, paſſing through, he preached in all the cities, till he came to Ceſarea.

CHAP. IX.

1 Saul going toward Damaſcus, 10 is called to the apoſtleſhip. 23 The Jews lay wait for him. 36 Tabitha raiſed.

AND Saul yet breathing out threatenings and ſlaughter againſt the diſciples of the Lord, went unto the high prieſt,

2 And deſired of him letters to Damaſcus to the ſynagogues, that if he found any of this way, whether they were men or women, he might bring them bound unto Jeruſalem.

3 And as he journeyed, he came near Damaſcus: and ſuddenly there ſhined round about him a light from heaven.

4 And he fell to the earth, and heard a voice ſaying unto him, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me?

5 And he ſaid, Who art thou, Lord? and the Lord ſaid, I am Jeſus whom thou perſecuteſt. It is hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks.

6 And he trembling and aſtoniſhed, ſaid, Lord what wilt thou have me to do? and the Lord ſaid unto him, Ariſe and go into the city, and it ſhall be told thee what thou muſt do.

7 And the men which journeyed with him ſtood ſpeechleſs, hearing a voice, but ſeeing no man.

8 And Saul aroſe from the earth; and when his eyes were opened he ſaw no man: but they led him by the hand, and brought him into Damaſcus.

9 And he was three days without ſight, and neither did eat nor drink.

10 ¶ And there was a certain diſciple at Damaſcus named Ananias; and to him ſaid the Lord in a viſion, Ananias. And he ſaid, Behold, I am here, Lord.

11 And the Lord ſaid unto him, Ariſe, and go into the ſtreet which is called Straight, and enquire in the houſe of Judas for one called Saul of Tarſus: for, behold, he prayeth, 12 And hath ſeen in a viſion a man named Ananias coming in, and putting his hand on him that he might receive his ſight.

13 Then Ananias anſwered, Lord, I have heard by many of this man, how much evil he hath done to thy ſaints at Jeruſalem;

14 And here he hath authority from the chief prieſts to bind all that call on thy name.

15 But the Lord ſaid unto him, Go thy way: for he is a choſen veſſel unto me, to bear my name before the Gentiles, and kings, and the children of Iſrael:

16 For I will ſhew him how great things he muſt ſuffer for my name's ſake.

17 And Ananias went his way, and entered into the houſe, and putting his hands on him, ſaid, Brother Saul, the Lord even Jeſus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou cameſt, hath ſent me that thou mighteſt receive thy ſight, and be filled with the Holy Ghoſt.

18 And immediately there fell from his eyes as it had been ſcales: and he received his ſight forthwith, and aroſe and was baptized.

19 And when he had received meat he was ſtrengthened. Then was Saul certain days with the diſciples which were at Damaſcus.

20 And ſtraightway he preached Chriſt in the ſynagogues, that he is the Son of God.

21 But all that heard him were amazed, and ſaid, Is not this he that deſtroyed them which called on this name in Jeruſalem, and came hither for that intent that he might bring them bound unto the chief prieſts?

22 But Saul increaſed the more in ſtrength, and confounded the Jews which dwelt at Damaſcus, proving that this is very Chriſt.

27 Candace queen of the Ethiopians,) Candace was a common name for the queens of Ethiopia, as Pharaoh was for the kings of Egypt, and Cæſar for the emperors of Rome; and the chief officers were called eunuchs, though not always literally ſo, becauſe ſuch uſed to be chief miniſters in the courts of the eaſtern nations: hence the ſeventy call Potiphar, an eunuch of Pharaoh. Jerom and Euſebius report, that this eunuch became a preacher of Chriſt in Ethiopia.

36 They came unto a certain water.) A certain water, ſeems to be of diminutive ſignification, and to intimate, that it was not water of any depth: and travellers ſpeak of it, as a certain ſpring or fountain, that riſes at the foot of a mountain in the tribe of Judah or Benjamin, whoſe waters are ſucked in by the ſame ground that produces them; and they report that this was the place where the eunuch was baptized by Philip.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IX.

7 And the men which journeyed with him ſtood ſpeechleſs.) They ſtood ſpeechleſs, relates to their being ſo ſtruck at this viſible token of the divine preſence, as not to be able to move forwards, any more than to ſpeak, and ſo is very conſiſtent with what is ſaid (ch. xxvi. 14.) about their falling to the earth; or after they got up again, their ſurpriſe was ſo great, that they ſtood ſtill for awhile, like men in amaze.

11 Saul of Tarſus.) It is very obſervable, that as Saul was to be the chief apoſtle of the Gentiles; ſo, though both his parents were Jews, his converſion at, or near Damaſcus in Syria, and his birth at Tarſus in Cilicia, were on Gentile-ground.

23 ¶ And

23 ¶ And after that many days were fulfilled, the Jews took counſel to kill him:

24 But their laying await was known of Saul. And they watched the gates day and night to kill him.

25 Then the diſciples took him by night, and let him down by the wall in a baſket.

26 And when Saul was come to Jeruſalem, he aſſayed to join himſelf to the diſciples: but they were all afraid of him and believed not that he was a diſciple.

27 But Barnabas took him, and brought him to the apoſtles, and declared unto them how he had ſeen the Lord in the way, and that he had ſpoken to him, and how he had preached boldly at Damaſcus in the name of Jeſus.

28 And he was with them coming in and going out at Jeruſalem.

29 And he ſpake boldly in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and diſputed againſt the Grecians: but they went about to ſlay him.

30 Which when the brethren knew, they brought him down to Ceſarea, and ſent him forth to Tarſus.

31 Then had the churches reſt throughout all Judea, and Galilee, and Samaria, and were edified; and walking in the fear of the Lord, and in the comfort of the Holy Ghoſt were multiplied.

32 And it came to paſs, as Peter paſſed throughout all quarters, he came down alſo to the ſaints which dwelt at Lydda.

33 And there he found a certain man, named Eneas, which had kept his bed eight years, and was ſick of the palſy.

34 And Peter ſaid unto him, Eneas, Jeſus Chriſt maketh thee whole: ariſe, and make thy bed. And he aroſe immediately.

35 And all that dwelt at Lydda and Saron ſaw him, and turned to the Lord.

36 Now there was at Joppa a certain diſciple, named Tabitha, which by interpretation is called Dorcas: this woman was full of good works and alms-deeds which ſhe did.

37 And it came to paſs in thoſe days, that ſhe was ſick and died: whom when they had waſhed, they laid her in an upper chamber.

38 And foraſmuch as Lydda was nigh to Joppa, and the diſciples had heard that Peter was there, they ſent unto him two men, deſiring him that he would not delay to come to them.

39 Then Peter aroſe, and went with them. When he was come, they brought him into the upper chamber: and all the widows ſtood by him weeping, and ſhewing the coats and garments which Dorcas made while ſhe was with them.

40 But Peter put them all forth, and kneeled down and prayed; and turning him to the body, ſaid, Tabitha, ariſe. And ſhe opened her eyes, and when ſhe ſaw Peter, ſhe ſat up.

41 And he gave her his hand, and lifted her up: and when he had called the ſaints and widows, he preſented her alive.

42 And it was known throughout all Joppa; and many believed in the Lord.

43 And it came to paſs that he tarried many days at Joppa with one Simon a tanner.

CHAP. X.

1 Cornelius ſendeth for Peter. 9 His viſion. 34 He preacheth. 44 The Holy Ghoſt falleth on the hearers.

THERE was a certain man in Ceſarea called Cornelius, a centurion of the band called the Italian band,

2 A devout man, and one that feared God with all his houſe, which gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God alway:

3 He ſaw in a viſion evidently, about the ninth hour of the day; an angel of God coming in to him, and ſaying unto him, Cornelius!

4 And when he looked on him, he was afraid, and ſaid, What is it, Lord? and he ſaid unto him, Thy prayers and thine alms are come up for a memorial before God.

5 And now ſend men to Joppa, and call for one Simon whoſe ſurname is Peter.

6 He lodgeth with one Simon a tanner, whoſe houſe is by the ſea-ſide: he ſhall tell thee what thou oughteſt to do.

7 And when the angel which ſpake unto Cornelius was departed, he called two of his houſehold ſervants, and a devout ſoldier of them that waited on him continually;

8 And when he had declared all theſe things unto them, he ſent them to Joppa.

9 ¶ On the morrow as they went on their journey, and drew nigh unto the city, Peter went up upon the houſe-top to pray, about the ſixth hour.

10 And he became very hungry, and would have eaten: but while they made ready, he fell into a trance,

11 And ſaw heaven opened, and a certain veſſel deſcending unto him, as it had been a great ſheet knit at the four corners, and let down to the earth:

12 Wherein were all manner of four-footed beaſts of the earth, and wild beaſts, and creeping things, and fowls of the air.

13 And there came a voice to him, Riſe Peter; kill, and eat.

14 But Peter ſaid, Not ſo, Lord: for I have never eaten any thing that is common or unclean.

15 And the voice ſpake unto him again the ſecond time, What God hath cleanſed, that call not thou common.

16 This was done thrice: and the veſſel was received up again into heaven.

32 He came down alſo to the ſaints which dwelt at Lydda.) Joſephus tells us, that Lydda was a village equal to a city in magnitude; and in another place, he expreſly calls it a city. It was burnt by Ceſtius, while the men were gone up to Jeruſalem to celebrate the feaſt of tabernacles; but, after the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, it was rebuilt, and made one of the Jewiſh academies. It was called by the Gentiles Dioſpolis, or, the city of Jupiter; but the Chriſtians, in the time of the holy wars, filled it the city of St. George, partly from a magnificent church which the emperor Juſtinian had there erected in honour of that ſaint, and partly from an erroneous opinion, then prevailing among them, that in that place he obtained the crown of martyrdom.

38 They ſent unto him two men, &c.) They probably hoped that he, who had reſtored Eneas to his limbs, might reſtore Dorcas to life; the divine power of Chriſt, which had done one by his hands, being equally capable of doing the other: or they might ſend for him to aſſiſt their improvement of the affecting providence, to the glory of God, and their own edification and comfort, in ſuch a way as Peter might be directed to, and enabled for, without preſcribing to him.

Commentary on Chap. X.

3 He ſaw in a viſion—an angel of God coming in to him, &c.) It has been aſked, If God was ſo very kind to Cornelius as to ſend an angel to him, why did not he, at the ſame time, give that angel commiſſion to inſtruct him in what he was to do, and ſave his apoſtle a journey from Joppa to Ceſarea? But it ſhould be remembered that the Almighty intended by this method of proceeding, both to confer a remarkable honour on St. Peter and his miniſtry, and teach mankind that we are not to expect extraordinary ways of inſtruction, where he hath inſtituted ordinary means. The angel doubtleſs could as eaſily have told Cornelius what he ought to do, as bid him ſend for Peter; and God could as eaſily have given his ſpirit at that time, as four days after; but then this would not have been ſo agreeable to the order which Chriſt hath ſettled in his church.

9 The houſe-top.) The houſes in this country had flat roofs of terrace, and were guarded with balluſtrades or parapet-walls.

17 Now while Peter doubted in himſelf what this viſion which he had ſeen ſhould mean, behold, the men which were ſent from Cornelius had made enquiry for Simon's houſe, and ſtood before the gate,

18 And called, and aſked whether Simon, which was ſurnamed Peter, were lodged there.

19 While Peter thought on the viſion, the Spirit ſaid unto him, Behold, three men ſeek thee.

20 Ariſe, therefore, and get thee down, and go with them, doubting nothing; for I have ſent them.

21 Then Peter went down to the men which were ſent unto him from Cornelius, and ſaid, Behold, I am he whom ye ſeek: what is the cauſe wherefore ye are come?

22 And they ſaid, Cornelius the centurion, a juſt man, and one that feareth God, and of good report among all the nation of the Jews, was warned from God by an holy angel to ſend for thee into his houſe, and to hear words of thee.

23 Then called he them in, and lodged them. And on the morrow Peter went away with them, and certain brethren from Joppa accompanied him.

24 And the morrow after they entered into Ceſarea. And Cornelius waited for them, and had called together his kinſmen and near friends.

25 And as Peter was coming in, Cornelius met him, and fell down at his feet, and worſhipped him.

26 But Peter took him up, ſaying, Stand up; I myſelf alſo am a man.

27 And as he talked with him, he went in, and found many that were come together.

28 And he ſaid unto them, Ye know how that it is an unlawful thing for a man that is a Jew to keep company, or to come unto one of another nation: but God hath ſhewed me that I ſhould not call any man common or unclean.

29 Therefore came I unto you without gainſaying, as ſoon as I was ſent for: I aſk, therefore, for what intent ye have ſent for me?

30 And Cornelius ſaid, Four days ago I was faſting until this hour; and at the ninth hour I prayed in my houſe, and behold, a man ſtood before me in bright clothing,

31 And ſaid, Cornelius, thy prayer is heard, and thine alms are had in remembrance in the ſight of God.

32 Send, therefore, to Joppa, and call hither Simon, whoſe ſurname is Peter: he is lodged in the houſe of one Simon a tanner, by the ſea-ſide; who, when he cometh, ſhall ſpeak unto thee.

33 Immediately, therefore, I ſent to thee; and thou haſt well done that thou art come. Now, therefore, are we all here preſent before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God.

34 ¶ Then Peter opened his mouth, and ſaid, Of a truth I perceive that God is no reſpecter of perſons:

35 But in every nation, he that feareth him, and worketh righteouſneſs, is accepted with him.

36 The word which God ſent unto the children of Iſrael, preaching peace by Jeſus Chriſt, (he is Lord of all,)

37 That word, I ſay, ye know, which was publiſhed throughout all Judea, and began from Galilee, after the baptiſm which John preached;

38 How God anointed Jeſus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghoſt, and with power; who went about doing good, and healing all that were oppreſſed of the devil: for God was with him.

39 And we are witneſſes of all things which he did, both in the land of the Jews, and in Jeruſalem; whom they ſlew, and hanged on a tree:

40 Him God raiſed up the third day, and ſhewed him openly;

41 Not to all the people, but unto witneſſes choſen before of God, even to us, who did eat and drink with him after he roſe from the dead.

42 And he commanded us to preach unto the people, and to teſtify that it is he which was ordained of God to be the judge of quick and dead.

43 To him gave all the prophets witneſs, that through his name, whoſoever believeth in him ſhall receive remiſſion of ſins.

44 ¶ While Peter yet ſpake theſe words, the Holy Ghoſt fell on all them which heard the word.

45 And they of the circumciſion which believed were aſtoniſhed, as many as came with Peter, becauſe that on the Gentiles alſo was poured out the gift of the Holy Ghoſt:

46 For they heard them ſpeak with tongues, and magnify God. Then anſwered Peter, 47 Can any man forbid water, that theſe ſhould not be baptized, which have received the Holy Ghoſt as well as we?

48 And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord. Then prayed they to him to tarry certain days.

CHAP. XI.

1 Peter accuſed, defendeth himſelf. 19 The goſpel is ſpread. 27 Agabus propheſieth.

AND the apoſtles and brethren that were in Judea heard that the Gentiles had alſo received the word of God.

2 And when Peter was come up to Jeruſalem, they that were of the circumciſion contended with him.

3 Saying, Thou wenteſt in to men uncircumciſed, and didſt eat with them.

4 But Peter rehearſed the matter from the beginning, and expounded it by order unto them, ſaying,

5 I was in the city of Joppa, praying, and in a trance I ſaw a viſion, A certain veſſel deſcend, as it had been a great ſheet, let down from heaven by four corners; and it came even to me:

6 Upon the which when I had faſtened mine eyes, I conſidered, and ſaw four-footed beaſts of the earth, and wild beaſts, and creeping things and fowls of the air.

7 And I heard a voice ſaying unto me, Ariſe, Peter; ſlay, and eat.

8 But I ſaid, not ſo, Lord: for nothing common or unclean hath at any time entered into my mouth.

9 But the voice anſwered me again from heaven, What God hath cleanſed, that call not thou common.

20 I have ſent them.) The Spirits ſaying that he had ſent theſe meſſengers, was taking upon himſelf the ſtile and work of God, who diſpatched the angel to Cornelius, to order him to ſend them to Peter; and as theſe were perſonal and divine actions of the Holy Ghoſt, they ſhew him to be ſuch a perſon as is alſo God.

46 They heard them ſpeak with tongues, &c.) As they ſpake with tongues, it is probable that they were deſigned for miniſters of the goſpel, and had this gift conferred upon them to enable them to preach to people of different languages, wherefoever they might go.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XI.

3 Thou wenteſt in to men uncircumciſed, &c.) The Jews, apprehending that the Meſſiah had been ſent to none but the ſeed of Abraham, were greatly offended at the call and converſion of the Gentiles; and accordingly contended with Peter for eating, converſing, and admitting them into the Chriſtian communion without circumciſion. But they ſhould have remembered, that though God had forbidden the Jews to make marriages with the Gentiles, he never forbad their having commerce and converſation with them: no converſation with Gentiles, in order to convert them from their idolatry, and worſhip the living God, was ever forbidden by the Almighty.

10 And

Acts 12
Ch:
PETER deliverd out of PRISON

10 And this was done three times: and all were drawn up again into heaven.

11 And behold, immediately there were three men already come unto the house where I was, sent from Cesarea unto me.

12 And the Spirit bade me go with them, nothing doubting. Moreover these six brethren accompanied me, and we entered into the man's house:

13 And he shewed us how he had seen an angel in his house, which stood and said unto him, Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter;

14 Who shall tell thee words, whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved.

15 And as I began to speak, the Holy Ghost fell on them, as on us at the beginning.

16 Then remembered I the word of the Lord, how that he said, John indeed baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost.

17 Forasmuch then as God gave them the like gift as he did unto us, who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ; what was I that I could withstand God?

18 When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life.

19 Now they which were scattered abroad upon the persecution that arose about Stephen travelled as far as Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none but unto the Jews only.

20 And some of them were men of Cyprus and Cyrene, which, when they were come to Antioch, spake unto the Grecians, preaching the Lord Jesus.

21 And the hand of the Lord was with them: and a great number believed, and turned unto the Lord.

22 Then tidings of these things came unto the ears of the church which was in Jerusalem; and they sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch;

23 Who, when he came, and had seen the grace of God, was glad, and exhorted them all that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord.

24 For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Ghost, and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord.

25 Then departed Barnabas to Tarsus, for to seek Saul:

26 And when he had found him, he brought him unto Antioch. And it came to pass, that a whole year they assembled themselves with the church, and taught much people. And the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch.

27 ¶ And in these days came prophets from Jerusalem unto Antioch.

28 And there stood up one of them, named Agabus, and signified by the Spirit that there should be great dearth throughout all the world; which came to pass in the days of Claudius Cesar.

29 Then the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren which dwelt in Judea:

30 Which also they did, and sent it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

CHAP. XII.

1 Herod persecuteth the Christians. 20 His pride and miserable death.

NOW about that time, Herod the king stretched forth his hands to vex certain of the church.

2 And he killed James, the brother of John, with the sword.

3 And because he saw it pleased the Jews, he proceeded further to take Peter also. (Then were the days of unleavened bread.)

4 And when he had apprehended him he put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers to keep him; intending after Easter to bring him forth to the people.

5 Peter, therefore, was kept in prison; but prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him.

6 And when Herod would have brought him forth, the same night Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains; and the keepers before the door kept the prison.

7 And, behold, the angel of the Lord came upon him, and a light shined in the prison: and he smote Peter on the side, and raised him up, saying, Arise up quickly. And his chains fell off from his hands.

8 And the angel said unto him, Gird thyself, and bind on thy sandals: and so he did. And he saith unto him, Cast thy garment about thee, and follow me.

9 And he went out and followed him; and wist not that it was true which was done by the angel: but thought he saw a vision.

10 When they were past the first and the second ward, they came unto the iron gate that leadeth unto the city, which opened to them of his own accord: and they went out, and passed on through one street, and forthwith the angel departed from him.

11 And when Peter was come to himself, he said, Now I know of a surety, that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me out of the hand of Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews.

12 And when he had considered the thing, he came to the house of Mary the mother of John, whose surname was Mark; where many were gathered together, praying.

13 And as Peter knocked at the door of the gate, a damsel came to hearken named Rhoda.

14 And when she knew Peter's voice, she opened not the gate for gladness, but ran in, and told how Peter stood before the gate.

22 They sent forth Barnabas, that he should go as far as Antioch.) We find from Acts iv. 36. that this disciple's name was originally Joses; that he was descended from the tribe of Levi, but born in Cyprus; and that, as he was the first who sold an estate and placed the purchase-money in a common fund, then applied to the sustenance of poor Christians, he probably, from that action, received the name of Barnabas, which according to St. Luke's interpretation signifies the son of consolation. But besides these eminent virtues of Barnabas, there were two other reasons that might induce the apostles to make choice of Barnabas, preferably to any other on this occasion, viz. because he was a great master of the Greek, which was the current language of Antioch, as being himself born at Cyprus, where that language only was in use; and because the apostles thought it might be more agreeable to these first planters of the gospel in Antioch, who were many of them natives of Cyprus, to have a fellow-labourer of the same country sent among them.

Commentary on Chap. XII.

1 Herod the king, &c.) Agrippa was the surname of this Herod, and he was the grandson of Herod the great, and the nephew of Herod Antipas, the tetrarch of Galilee, (Luke iii. 1.) and was himself not only made governor of Galilee by Caligula in Antipas' room, but was confirmed therein, with the addition of the kingdom of Judea, by Claudius Cæsar, to whom he had been serviceable in obtaining his advancement to the Imperial crown: and he was the father of that king Agrippa, before whom Paul was brought, and whom he almost persuaded to be a Christian, chap. xxvi. 1,—28.

6 Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains, &c.) The Roman way of chaining prisoners was by fastening one end of an iron chain of some length to the right hand of the prisoner, and the other end to the left hand or arm of a soldier, if but one had the custody of him; and by fastening another chain, in like manner, to the left hand of the prisoner, and the right hand of another soldier, if he were committed to the care of two, as Peter was.

15 And

15 And they ſaid unto her, Thou art mad. But ſhe conſtantly affirmed that it was even ſo. Then ſaid they, It is his angel.

16 But Peter continued knocking. And when they had opened the door, and ſaw him, they were aſtoniſhed.

17 But he, beckoning unto them with the hand to hold their peace, declared unto them how the Lord had brought him out of the priſon. And he ſaid, Go, ſhew theſe things unto James, and to the brethren. And he departed, and went into another place.

18 Now as ſoon as it was day, there was no ſmall ſtir among the ſoldiers what was become of Peter.

19 And when Herod had ſought for him, and found him not, he examined the keepers, and commanded that they ſhould be put to death. And he went down from Judea to Ceſarea, and there abode.

20 ¶ And Herod was highly diſpleaſed with them of Tyre and Sidon: but they came with one accord to him; and having made Blaſtus the king's chamberlain their friend, deſired peace; becauſe their country was nouriſhed by the king's country.

21 And upon a ſet day Herod, arrayed in royal apparel, ſat upon his throne, and made an oration unto them.

22 And the people gave a ſhout, ſaying, It is the voice of a god, and not of a man.

23 And immediately the angel of the Lord ſmote him, becauſe he gave not God the glory: and he was eaten of worms, and gave up the ghoſt.

24 But the word of God grew and multiplied.

25 And Barnabas and Saul returned from Jeruſalem, when they had fulfilled their miniſtry, and took with them John, whoſe ſurname was Mark.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Paul and Barnabas go to the Gentiles. 42 The Gentiles believe. 45 The Jews blaſpheme.

NOW there were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers; as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen, which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul.

2 As they miniſtered to the Lord, and faſted, the Holy Ghoſt ſaid, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them.

3 And when they had faſted and prayed, and laid their hands on them, they ſent them away.

4 So they, being ſent forth by the Holy Ghoſt, departed unto Seleucia; and from thence they ſailed to Cyprus.

5 And when they were at Salamis they preached the word of God in the ſynagogues of the Jews: and they had alſo John to their miniſter.

6 And when they had gone through the iſle unto Paphos they found a certain ſorcerer a falſe prophet, a Jew, whoſe name was Barjeſus;

7 Which was with the deputy of the country, Sergius Paulus, a prudent man; who called for Barnabas and Saul, and deſired to hear the word of God.

8 But Elymas the ſorcerer (for ſo is his name by interpretation) withſtood them, ſeeking to turn away the deputy from the faith.

9 Then Saul, (who alſo is called Paul,) filled with the Holy Ghoſt, ſet his eyes on him,

10 And ſaid, O full of all ſubtilty, and all miſchief, thou child of the devil, thou enemy of all righteouſneſs! wilt thou not ceaſe to pervert the right ways of the Lord?

11 And now behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou ſhalt be blind, not ſeeing the ſun for a ſeaſon. And immediately there fell on him a miſt and a darkneſs; and he went about, ſeeking ſome to lead him by the hand.

12 Then the deputy, when he ſaw what was done, believed, being aſtoniſhed at the doctrine of the Lord.

13 Now when Paul and his company looſed from Paphos, they came to Perga in Pamphylia: and John, departing from them, returned to Jeruſalem.

14 But when they departed from Perga, they came to Antioch in Piſidia, and went into the ſynagogue on the ſabbath-day, and ſat down.

15 And after the reading of the law and the prophets, the rulers of the ſynagogue ſent unto them, ſaying, Ye men and brethren, if ye have any word of exhortation for the people, ſay on.

16 Then Paul ſtood up, and, beckoning with his hand, ſaid, Men of Iſrael, and ye that fear God, give audience.

17 The God of this people of Iſrael choſe our fathers, and exalted the people when they dwelt as ſtrangers in the land of Egypt, and with an high arm brought he them out of it.

18 And about the time of forty years ſuffered he their manners in the wilderneſs.

19 And when he had deſtroyed ſeven nations in the land of Chanaan, he divided their land to them by lot.

20 And after that he gave unto them judges, about the ſpace of four hundred and fifty years, until Samuel the prophet.

21 And afterward they deſired a king: and God

20 Herod was highly diſpleaſed with them of Tyre and Sidon, &c.) The inhabitants of the countries of Tyre and Sidon, which were very narrow, and pent up by the ſea, took little pains in cultivating their lands. Their whole buſineſs and employment was commerce; and therefore they were beholden to Judea for the common neceſſaries of life, and conſequently unable to ſupport a war againſt the ruler of that country: this determined them to compound the matter with Herod, which they found means to accompliſh, by bribing Blaſtus his chamberlain.

21 Herod—made an oration unto them.) It is very probable that this oration was ſuited both to the occaſion of the aſſembly, in honour of Cæſar's memory, and to the affairs that lay between Herod and the inhabitants of Tyre and Sidon, who are the proper antecedent to them, to whom this oration was made; and that it was calculated to extol his own, as well as Cæſar's praiſes, on account of his power over them, and condeſcenſion to them. Joſephus tells us, that this was on the ſecond day of that feſtival; and that Herod went early in the morning into the theatre, clothed with a robe of curious workmanſhip, all of ſilver, which reflected the rays of the riſing ſun with ſuch luſtre, as ſtruck the eyes of them that looked upon him with a ſort of dread and horror.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIII.

4 So they, being ſent forth by the Holy Ghoſt, departed unto Seleucia, &c.) This city lay on the weſt, or rather a little on the north-weſt of the city of Antioch, on the Mediterranean ſea, and was ſo called from Seleucus, its founder, who was reputed the greateſt builder in the world; for he is ſaid to have founded nine cities, called by his own name; ſixteen in memory of his father Antiochus; ſix by the name of Laodice his mother, and three in honour of Apamia his firſt wife; beſides many others of great note in Greece and Aſia, either new built, or beautified and repaired by him.

7 The deputy of the country, &c.) The word here rendered deputy, ſignifies a proconſul, which was the chief governor of a province, when he was ſet over by the Roman ſenate: but this officer was called proprætor, when he was made governor of a province by the emperor, as the lieutenant is made governor of Ireland by the king of Great Britain. The ſame title is likewiſe given to Gallio, the elder brother of Seneca, (chap. xviii. 12.) with an exact propriety, becauſe, at the time of Luke's writing his hiſtory of the Acts, both theſe perſons were made governors of their reſpective provinces by the ſenate; tho' before that time the governors of them ſeverally received their authority from the emperor, and then were called proprætors.

15 After the reading of the law and the prophets, &c.) The law and the prophets were each of them divided (ſay ſome) into fifty-two, or (ſay others) into fifty-three or fifty-four ſections; and by reading of one ſection of each every ſabbath-day, or joining two of the ſhorteſt once or twice in the year, if there were occaſion for it, the Jews uſed to read over thoſe parts of the Old Teſtament in their ſynagogues once a year; but the Hagiographa, which are called the Pſalms, in diſtinction from the law and the prophets, were not publicly read among them.

gave unto them Saul the ſon of Cis, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, by the ſpace of forty years.

22 And when he had removed him, he raiſed up unto them David to be their king; to whom alſo he gave teſtimony, and ſaid, I have found David the ſon of Jeſſe, a man after mine own heart, which ſhall fulfil all my will.

23 Of this man's ſeed hath God, according to his promiſe, raiſed unto Iſrael a Saviour, Jeſus;

24 When John had firſt preached before his coming the baptiſm of repentance to all the people of Iſrael.

25 And as John fulfilled his courſe, he ſaid, Whom think ye that I am? I am not he: but, behold, there cometh one after me, whoſe ſhoes of his feet I am not worthy to looſe.

26 Men and brethren, children of the ſtock of Abraham, and whoſoever among you feareth God, to you is the word of this ſalvation ſent.

27 For they that dwell at Jeruſalem, and their rulers, becauſe they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the prophets which are read every ſabbath-day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him.

28 And though they found no cauſe of death in him, yet deſired they Pilate that he ſhould be ſlain.

29 And when they had fulfilled all that was written of him, they took him down from the tree, and laid him in a ſepulchre.

30 But God raiſed him from the dead:

31 And he was ſeen many days of them which came up with him from Galilee to Jeruſalem, who are his witneſſes unto the people.

32 And we declare unto you glad tidings, how that the promiſe which was made unto the fathers,

33 God hath fulfilled the ſame unto us their children, in that he hath raiſed up Jeſus again; as it is alſo written in the ſecond pſalm, Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee.

34 And as concerning that he raiſed him up from the dead, now no more to return to corruption, he ſaid on this wiſe, I will give you the ſure mercies of David.

35 Wherefore he ſaith alſo in another pſalm, Thou ſhalt not ſuffer thine holy One to ſee corruption.

36 For David, after he had ſerved his own generation, by the will of God fell on ſleep, and was laid unto his fathers, and ſaw corruption:

37 But he whom God raiſed again ſaw no corruption.

38 Be it known unto you, therefore, men and brethren, that through this man is preached unto you the forgiveneſs of ſins:

39 And by him all that believe are juſtified from all things, from which ye could not be juſtified by the law of Moſes.

40 Beware, therefore, leſt that come upon you which is ſpoken of in the prophets,

41 Behold, ye deſpiſers, and wonder, and periſh: for I work a work in your days, a work which ye ſhall in no wiſe believe, though a man declare it unto you.

42 ¶ And when the Jews were gone out of the ſynagogue, the Gentiles beſought that theſe words might be preached to them the next ſabbath.

43 Now when the congregation was broken up, many of the Jews and religious proſelytes followed Paul and Barnabas; who, ſpeaking to them, perſuaded them to continue in the grace of God.

44 And the next ſabbath-day came almoſt the whole city together, to hear the word of God.

45 ¶ But when the Jews ſaw the multitudes they were filled with envy, and ſpake againſt thoſe things which were ſpoken by Paul, contradicting and blaſpheming.

46 Then Paul and Barnabas waxed bold, and ſaid, It was neceſſary that the word of God ſhould firſt have been ſpoken to you; but ſeeing ye put it from you, and judge yourſelves unworthy of everlaſting life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles:

47 For ſo hath the Lord commanded us, ſaying, I have ſet thee to be a light of the Gentiles, that thou ſhouldeſt be for ſalvation unto the ends of the earth.

48 And when the Gentiles heard this they were glad, and glorified the word of the Lord: and as many as were ordained to eternal life believed.

49 And the word of the Lord was publiſhed throughout all the region.

50 But the Jews ſtirred up the devout and honourable women, and the chief men of the city, and raiſed perſecution againſt Paul and Barnabas, and expelled them out of their coaſts.

51 But they ſhook off the duſt of their feet againſt them, and came unto Iconium.

52 And the diſciples were filled with joy, and with the Holy Ghoſt.

CHAP. XIV.

1. Paul and Barnabas are perſecuted. 8 Paul healing a cripple, they are reputed as gods. 19 Paul ſtoned.

AND it came to paſs in Iconium, that they went both together into the ſynagogue of the Jews, and ſo ſpake, that a great multitude, both of the Jews and alſo of the Greeks, believed.

2 But the unbelieving Jews ſtirred up the Gentiles, and made their minds evil-affected againſt the brethren.

3 Long time, therefore, abode they, ſpeaking boldly in the Lord, which gave teſtimony unto the word of his grace, and granted ſigns and wonders to be done by their hands.

4 But the multitude of the city was divided; and part held with the Jews, and part with the apoſtles.

5 And when there was an aſſault made, both of the Gentiles, and alſo of the Jews, with their rulers, to uſe them deſpitefully, and to ſtone them,

6 They were aware of it, and fled unto Lyſtra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and unto the region that lieth round about:

7 And there they preached the goſpel.

8 ¶ And there ſat a certain man at Lyſtra, impotent in his feet, being a cripple from his mother's womb, who never had walked:

9 The ſame heard Paul ſpeak; who, ſtedfaſtly beholding him, and perceiving that he had faith to be healed,

44 The next ſabbath-day came almoſt the whole city together, &c.) It appears from the following verſes, that ſome of this vaſt multitude were idolatrous Gentiles, who, upon the rumour that was ſpread abroad of this new doctrine, joined the aſſembly of the religious proſelytes to hear what it was; for the prophecy recited ver. 47. relates to them; and it was the apoſtles' preaching to them that raiſed the envy of the Jews, ver. 45. and put them upon ſtirring up the devout women-proſelytes to perſecute Paul and Barnabas, ver. 50. Accordingly they are called the Gentiles, ver. 42, 46, 48. in diſtinction from the proſelytes of the gate, as well as from the Jews, ver. 16, 26. And when the apoſtles returned to Antioch, they reported (ch. xiv. 27.) how, in this journey, God had opened a door of faith to the Gentiles, which muſt mean the idolatrous Gentiles, becauſe that door had been opened to the devout Gentiles, at the converſion of Cornelius, long before. Thus the goſpel was gradually publiſhed, firſt to the Jews and proſelytes of righteouſneſs, who were of the ſame church with them; then to the devout Gentiles, or proſelytes of the gate; and now at length to the idolatrous Gentiles, and that upon their own requeſt here, as it had been to Sergius Paulus at his requeſt before, ver. 7. And from this time forward it was preached by Paul and Barnabas chiefly to theſe, though not without firſt offering it to the Jews.

10 Said, with a loud voice, Stand upright on thy feet. And he leaped and walked.

11 And when the people ſaw what Paul had done, they lifted up their voices, ſaying, in the ſpeech of Lycaonia, The gods are come down to us in the likeneſs of men.

12 And they called Barnabas Jupiter, and Paul Mercurius, becauſe he was the chief ſpeaker.

13 Then the prieſt of Jupiter, which was before their city, brought oxen and garlands unto the gates, and would have done ſacrifice with the people.

14 Which when the apoſtles, Barnabas and Paul, heard of, they rent their clothes, and ran in among the people, crying out,

15 And ſaying, Sirs, why do ye theſe things? We alſo are men of like paſſions with you, and preach unto you that ye ſhould turn from theſe vanities unto the living God, which made heaven and earth, and the ſea, and all things that are therein;

16 Who in times paſt ſuffered all nations to walk in their own ways.

17 Nevertheleſs, he left not himſelf without witneſs, in that he did good, and gave us rain from heaven, and fruitful ſeaſons, filling our hearts with food and gladneſs.

18 And with theſe ſayings ſcarce reſtrained they the people that they had not done ſacrifice unto them.

19 ¶ And there came thither certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who perſuaded the people; and having ſtoned Paul, drew him out of the city, ſuppoſing he had been dead.

20 Howbeit, as the diſciples ſtood round about him he roſe up, and came into the city; and the next day he departed with Barnabas to Derbe.

21 And when they had preached the goſpel to that city, and had taught many, they returned again to Lyſtra, and to Iconium, and to Antioch,

22 Confirming the ſouls of the diſciples, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that we muſt through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God.

23 And when they had ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with faſting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed.

24 And after they had paſſed throughout Piſidia, they came to Pamphylia.

25 And when they had preached the word in Perga, they went down into Attalia;

26 And thence ſailed to Antioch, from whence they had been recommended to the grace of God, for the work which they fulfilled.

27 And when they were come, and had gathered the church together, they rehearſed all that God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith unto the Gentiles.

28 And there they abode long time with the diſciples.

CHAP. XV.

1 Diſſenſion about circumciſion. 6 The apoſtles conſult about it. 22 Their determination.

AND certain men which came down from Judea taught the brethren, and ſaid, Except ye be circumciſed after the manner of Moſes ye cannot be ſaved.

2 When, therefore, Paul and Barnabas had no ſmall diſſenſion and diſputation with them, they determined that Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them, ſhould go up to Jeruſalem unto the apoſtles and elders about this queſtion.

3 And being brought on their way by the church, they paſſed through Phenice and Samaria, declaring the converſion of the Gentiles: and they cauſed great joy unto all the brethren.

4 And when they were come to Jeruſalem they were received of the church, and of the apoſtles and elders, and they declared all things that God had done with them.

5 But there roſe up certain of the ſect of the Phariſees which believed, ſaying, That it was needful to circumciſe them, and to command them to keep the law of Moſes.

6 ¶ And the apoſtles and elders came together for to conſider of this matter.

7 And when there had been much diſputing, Peter roſe up, and ſaid unto them, Men and brethren, ye know how that, a good while ago, God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth ſhould hear the word of the goſpel, and believe.

8 And God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witneſs, giving them the Holy Ghoſt, even as he did unto us;

9 And put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith.

10 Now therefore why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the diſciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear?

11 But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt we ſhall be ſaved even as they.

12 Then all the multitude kept ſilence, and gave audience to Barnabas and Paul, declaring what miracles and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles by them.

13 And after they had held their peace, James anſwered, ſaying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me.

14 Simeon hath declared how God at the firſt did viſit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name.

15 And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written,

16 After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down: and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will ſet it up;

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIV.

11 The gods are come down to us in the likeneſs of men.) It was a common notion among the heathens, which they had taken from the philoſophers as well as poets, that their gods were in ſhape like men, and never appeared in any other form. But how amazingly did the prince of darkneſs blind the minds of them who believed not; that though, under his influence, the Jews would not own Chriſt's Godhead, but ſacrificed him to their rage, while they ſaw him work innumerable miracles; yet the heathens were ſo ſtupid, as, on ſeeing mere mortal men perform one wonderful work, to deify them, and go about to treat them with anſwerable homage.

20 He roſe up, and came into the city.) To ſhew himſelf alive and confirm the faith of his new converts: his cure muſt have been miraculous, approaching, as near as one can conceive, to a reſurrection from the dead. This is the more illuſtrated by his going the next day to Derbe, whereas, in a courſe of nature, he would then have felt his bruiſes much more than at firſt.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XV.

2 They determined that Paul and Barnabas——ſhould go up to Jeruſalem. &c.) This was the third time of Paul's going to Jeruſalem, which he refers to Gal. ii. 1, 2, 3. where he ſays, that it was fourteen years after his converſion, and that he then took Titus with him; and went by revelation, either to himſelf, whereby, as well as by the choice of the church at Antioch, he was directed to go thither; or by revelation to the prophets of that church, who now again, by an immediate ſuggeſtion of the Holy Spirit, appointed theſe meſſengers, in concurrence with the whole church, as they at firſt had ſent forth Paul and Barnabas to miniſter to the Gentiles, chap. xiii. 2.

5 It was needful to circumciſe them, &c.) This plainly ſhews that it was not barely circumciſion, but a compliance with the whole law of Moſes, which circumciſion obliged to, that the Judaizing Chriſtians aimed at, as neceſſary to ſalvation: and it was under this notion of it, that they were ſo zealous to impoſe it, and the apoſtle Paul was ſo zealous in ſetting himſelf againſt it, as a moſt dangerous error, ſubverſive to the truth of the goſpel, and of God's way of juſtifying, alone through faith in Chriſt, without the deeds of the law.

17 That

17 That the reſidue of men might ſeek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles upon whom my name is called, ſaith the Lord, who doeth all theſe things.

18 Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world.

19 Wherefore my ſentence is, that we trouble not them which from among the Gentiles are turned to God:

20 But that we write unto them that they abſtain from pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from things ſtrangled, and from blood.

21 For Moſes of old time hath in every city them that preach him, being read in the ſynagogues every ſabbath-day.

22 Then pleaſed it the apoſtles and elders, with the whole church, to ſend choſen men of their own company to Antioch with Paul and Barnabas; namely, Judas, ſurnamed Barſabas, and Silas, chief men among the brethren;

23 And they wrote letters by them after this manner: The apoſtles, and elders, and brethren, ſend greeting unto the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch, and Syria, and Cilicia:

24 Foraſmuch as we have heard that certain which went out from us have troubled you with words, ſubverting your ſouls, ſaying, Ye muſt be circumciſed, and keep the law; to whom we gave no ſuch commandment:

25 It ſeemed good unto us, being aſſembled with one accord, to ſend choſen men unto you, with our beloved Barnabas and Paul;

26 Men that have hazarded their lives for the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

27 We have ſent, therefore, Judas and Silas, who ſhall alſo tell you the ſame things by mouth.

28 For it ſeemed good to the Holy Ghoſt, and to us, to lay upon you no greater burden than theſe neceſſary things;

29 That ye abſtain from meats offered to idols, and from blood, and from things ſtrangled, and from fornication: from which if ye keep yourſelves, ye ſhall do well. Fare ye well.

30 So, when they were diſmiſſed, they came to Antioch; and, when they had gathered the multitude together, they delivered the epiſtle;

31 Which when they had read, they rejoiced for the conſolation.

32 And Judas and Silas, being prophets alſo themſelves, exhorted the brethren with many words, and confirmed them.

33 And after they had tarried there a ſpace, they were let go in peace from the brethren unto the apoſtles.

34 Notwithſtanding, it pleaſed Silas to abide there ſtill.

35 Paul alſo and Barnabas continued in Antioch, teaching and preaching the word of the Lord, with many others alſo.

36 ¶ And ſome days after Paul ſaid unto Barnabas, Let us go again and viſit our brethren in every city where we have preached the word of the Lord, and ſee how they do.

37 And Barnabas determined to take with them John, whoſe ſurname was Mark.

38 But Paul thought not good to take him with them, who departed from them from Pamphylia, and went not with them to the work.

39 And the contention was ſo ſharp between them, that they departed aſunder one from the other: and ſo Barnabas took Mark, and ſailed unto Cyprus:

40 And Paul choſe Silas, and departed, being recommended by the brethren unto the grace of God.

41 And he went through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the churches.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Paul circumciſeth Timothy, 14 converteth Lydia, 16 caſteth out a ſpirit of divination: 19 he and Silas are impriſoned.

THEN came he to Derbe and Lyſtra: and, behold, a certain diſciple was there, named Timotheus, the ſon of a certain woman which was a Jeweſs, and believed; but his father was a Greek:

2 Which was well reported of by the brethren that were at Lyſtra and Iconium:

3 Him would Paul have to go forth with him; and took and circumciſed him, becauſe of the Jews which were in thoſe quarters: for they knew all that his father was a Greek.

29 From things ſtrangled, and from blood.) The Jews had ſo ſtrong an averſion to blood, that they accounted all who made uſe of it in food, as creatures ſadly polluted, and groſs tranſgreſſors even of the law of nature. The Gentiles, on the contrary, looked upon blood as the moſt delicious food of their gods, and thought that by eating of it, they entered into a more intimate communion with them; and therefore the prohibition of it was neceſſary for theſe two reaſons; 1ſt, that no offence might be given to the Jewiſh converts, who would be loth to converſe, much more to join in any religious office, with perſons who indulged themſelves in ſuch meats, which they deteſted; and, 2dly, that the Gentile converts might be in no danger of relapſing into idolatry, which they poſſibly might do, if they were ſtill tolerated to eat things offered to idols.

22 Judas ſirnamed Barſabas, and Silas.) As Judas' ſirname is the ſame with that of Joſeph who was called Barſabas, and was a candidate for the apoſtleſhip, (chap. i. 23.) ſome have thought that they were brethren. Silas was the Jewiſh name of the other of theſe meſſengers, and it ſeems from his being called a Roman, (chap. xvi. 37.) that he was a free-man of Rome, and that Silvanus was his Roman name, by which he was uſually called, after he became the companion of the apoſtle Paul, in preaching the goſpel to the Gentiles.

39 And the contention was ſo ſharp between them, &c.) From hence we may learn, not only that theſe great lights in the chriſtian church were men of the like paſſions with us, but that God upon this occaſion, diſplayed in a remarkable manner the wiſdom of his providence, by rendering the frailties of two ſuch eminent ſervants inſtrumental to the benefit of his church, ſince both of them from that time employed their extraordinary induſtry and zeal, ſingly and apart, which till then had been united, and confined to the ſame place.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVI.

3 Took and circumciſed him, &c.) Circumciſion, and all the rites of the ceremonial law, were, de jure, in the deſign of God, and in the nature of things, aboliſhed by the death of Chriſt; and yet it pleaſed God, in his infinite wiſdom and gracious condeſcenſion to the infirmities and prepoſſeſſions of the Jewiſh converts, to defer the revelation of this doctrine for many years, and then to ſpread the knowledge of it among them in a very ſlow and gradual manner, as they were able to bear it; leſt an earlier and more open diſcovery of it, all at once, ſhould be too ſhocking to them who were ſo fond of thoſe ordinances which he himſelf had formerly inſtituted, and which they could not eaſily, on a ſudden, be brought to believe were repealed: and therefore they were left, for the preſent, as indifferent things to be obſerved by Jewiſh believers, or not, as might be moſt unto edification, till the whole frame of that conſtitution ſhould be demoliſhed in the deſtruction of Jeruſalem and the temple, when they in fact, would ceaſe of courſe. In the mean while, the apoſtle, ſpeaking of ſuch ſort of things, referred them to the judgment of the Chriſtian's own mind, provided it were without offence to his brethren, (Rom. xiv. 5, 14, 23.) and ſaid, as to himſelf, that all things were lawful to him, but all things were not expedient, nor would he be brought under the power of any, (1 Cor. vi. 12. x. 23.) and particularly inſiſted, that in Chriſt Jeſus, neither circumciſion avails any thing, nor uncircumciſion, but a new creature, and faith which works by love, Gal. v. 6. vi. 15. Accordingly no notice is taken in the decree of the council about what the Jewiſh Chriſtians ſhould do, relating to circumciſion, and keeping the law of Moſes; but only about what might be proper for thoſe of the Gentiles: for the apoſtles, elders, and church at Jeruſalem, ſeemed to have no notion as yet, nor for many years afterwards, of the abolition of the

4 And

4 And as they went through the cities they delivered them the decrees for to keep, that were ordained of the apoſtles and elders which were at Jeruſalem.

5 And ſo were the churches eſtabliſhed in the faith, and increaſed in number daily.

6 Now when they had gone throughout Phrygia, and the region of Galatia, and were forbidden of the Holy Ghoſt to preach the word in Aſia,

7 After they were come to Myſia, they aſſayed to go into Bithynia: but the Spirit ſuffered them not.

8 And they paſſing by Myſia, came down to Troas.

9 And a viſion appeared to Paul in the night; There ſtood a man of Macedonia, and prayed him, ſaying, Come over into Macedonia, and help us.

10 And after he had ſeen the viſion, immediately we endeavoured to go into Macedonia, aſſuredly gathering that the Lord had called us for to preach the goſpel unto them.

11 Therefore, looſing from Troas, we came with a ſtraight courſe to Samothracia, and the next day to Neapolis;

12 And from thence to Philippi, which is the chief city of that part of Macedonia, and a colony: and we were in that city abiding certain days.

13 And on the ſabbath we went out of the city by a river-ſide, where prayer was wont to be made; and we ſat down, and ſpake unto the women which reſorted thither.

14 ¶ And a certain woman, named Lydia, a ſeller of purple, of the city of Thyatira, which worſhipped God, heard us: whoſe heart the Lord opened, that ſhe attended unto the things which were ſpoken of Paul.

15 And when ſhe was baptized, and her houſhold, ſhe beſought us, ſaying, If ye have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, come into my houſe, and abide there. And ſhe conſtrained us.

16 ¶ And it came to paſs, as we went to prayer, a certain damſel, poſſeſſed with a ſpirit of divination, met us, which brought her maſters much gain by ſoothſaying:

17 The ſame followed Paul and us, and cried, ſaying, Theſe men are the ſervants of the moſt high God, which ſhew unto us the way of ſalvation.

18 And this did ſhe many days. But Paul, being grieved, turned, and ſaid to the ſpirit, I command thee in the name of Jeſus Chriſt to come out of her. And he came out the ſame hour.

19 ¶ And when her maſters ſaw that the hope of their gains was gone, they caught Paul and Silas, and drew them into the market-place, unto the rulers,

20 And brought them to the magiſtrates, ſaying, Theſe men being Jews do exceedingly trouble our city,

21 And teach cuſtoms which are not lawful for us to receive, neither to obſerve, being Romans.

22 And the multitude roſe up together againſt them; and the magiſtrates rent off their clothes, and commanded to beat them.

23 And when they had laid many ſtripes upon them, they caſt them into priſon, charging the jailor to keep them ſafely:

24 Who, having received ſuch a charge, thruſt them into the inner priſon, and made their feet faſt in the ſtocks.

25 And at midnight Paul and Silas prayed, and ſang praiſes unto God: and the priſoners heard them.

26 And ſuddenly there was a great earthquake, ſo that the foundations of the priſon were ſhaken: and immediately all the doors were opened, and every one's bands were looſed.

27 And the keeper of the priſon awaking out of his ſleep, and ſeeing the priſon-doors open, he drew out his ſword, and would have killed himſelf, ſuppoſing that the priſoners had been fled.

28 But Paul cried with a loud voice, ſaying, Do thyſelf no harm; for we are all here.

29 Then he called for a light, and ſprang in, and came trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas;

30 And brought them out, and ſaid, Sirs, what muſt I do to be ſaved?

31 And they ſaid, Believe on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and thou ſhalt be ſaved, and thy houſe.

32 And they ſpake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his houſe.

33 And he took them the ſame hour of the night, and waſhed their ſtripes, and was baptized, he and all his, ſtraightway.

34 And when he had brought them into his houſe, he ſet meat before them, and rejoiced, believing in God with all his houſe.

35 And when it was day, the magiſtrates ſent the ſerjeants, ſaying, Let thoſe men go.

36 And the keeper of the priſon told this ſaying to Paul, The magiſtrates have ſent to let you go: now, therefore, depart, and go in peace.

37 But Paul ſaid unto them, They have beaten us openly uncondemned, being Romans, and have caſt us into priſon; and now do they thruſt us out privily? nay, verily; but let them come themſelves and fetch us out.

law, as to Jewiſh converts; and therefore, eſpecially conſidering that circumciſion might be regarded in a civil view relating to the ſtate, as well as in a religious view relating to the church of Iſrael, the apoſtle Paul ſaw fit that Timothy, who was a Jew by his mother's ſide, ſhould be circumciſed. And for like reaſons he afterwards took upon himſelf a vow of Nazaritiſm, and conſented to purify himſelf, and be at charges with others who had done the ſame; Acts xviii. 18. xxi. 23,—26. And though he intimated the abolition of the ceremonial law in ſome of his epiſtles to Gentile churches, as particularly in Gal. iv. 9, 10. Col. ii. 16,—23. yet, as he knew that the prejudices of the Jewiſh converts were too ſtrong to bear with that ſort of doctrine, it does not appear that he ever delivered it in his preaching, or in any of his writings to the Jews, except in his epiſtle to the Hebrews, which is generally believed to be his, and to have been wrote toward the cloſe of his life. Hence, when they firſt heard as if he taught the Jews that were among the Gentiles, to forſake Moſes, ſaying, that they ought not to circumciſe their children, nor to walk after the cuſtoms, they were exceedingly offended at him for it; and yet that was a mere aſperſion upon him, as appears from chap. xxi. 20, 21, 24.

13 We went out of the city by a river-ſide, where prayer was wont to be made, &c.) The Jews had their oratories, or places of prayer, as well as ſynagogues: the difference between which was, that their oratories were without their towns or cities, and were places compaſſed with a wall, or ſome other incloſure, and open above, like our courts, and were principally uſed for prayer; whereas their ſynagogues were within their cities or towns, and were covered houſes, where not only prayers to God, but the law and the prophets were alſo read and expounded; and as there were but few Jews at Philippi, they ſeem to have had only one of theſe houſes of prayer, which was chiefly reſorted to by the good women, but was well known to be there, and was allowed of by the law of the Romans, to be uſed according to the cuſtom of the Jews and proſelytes.

16 A certain damſel, poſſeſſed with a ſpirit of divination, &c.) The words in the original are pneuma puthonos: and all commentators agree that Python was a ſpirit that divined things to come; and they generally conclude, that the moſt famous Pythoneſs in the world was that at the temple of Delphi. But in what manner the damſel at Philippi was agitated, is impoſſible to ſay; tho' certainly the apoſtle was highly commendable for diſpoſſeſſing the ſpirit, ſince he thereby not only manifeſted the power of the name of Jeſus, but alſo reſcued the poor woman from a troubleſome inmate.

25 Sang praiſes unto God, &c.) The conſideration of the cauſe and maſter they ſuffered for, filled them with joy in a dungeon, and gave them ſongs in the night: ther bodies were cut with deep and cruel ſtripes, but their ſouls were refreſhed and raviſhed with divine conſolations; and though their feet were faſtened in the ſtocks, their hearts were enlarged with heavenly pleaſure, and their tongues with inſpired eloquence broke out into hymns of praiſe: ſo juſt is that pious remark of St. Chryſoſtom, To ſuffer for Chriſt is ſweeter than all conſolation.

38 And the ſerjeants told theſe words unto the magiſtrates; and they feared when they heard that they were Romans.

39 And they came and beſought them, and brought them out, and deſired them to depart out of the city.

40 And they went out of the priſon, and entered into the houſe of Lydia: and when they had ſeen the brethren, they comforted them, and departed.

CHAP. XVII.

1 Paul preacheth at Theſſalonica, 10 Berea, 16 and at Athens. 34 Some are converted.

NOW when they had paſſed through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they came to Theſſalonica, where was a ſynagogue of the Jews:

2 And Paul, as his manner was, went in unto them, and three ſabbath-days reaſoned with them out of the ſcriptures,

3 Opening and alledging that Chriſt muſt needs have ſuffered, and riſen again from the dead: and that this Jeſus, whom I preach unto you, is Chriſt.

4 And ſome of them believed, and conſorted with Paul and Silas; and of the devout Greeks a great multitude, and of the chief women, not a few.

5 But the Jews which believed not, moved with envy, took unto them certain lewd fellows of the baſer ſort, and gathered a company, and ſet all the city on an uproar, and aſſaulted the houſe of Jaſon, and ſought to bring them out to the people.

6 And when they found them not, they drew Jaſon, and certain brethren, unto the rulers of the city, crying, Theſe that have turned the world upſide down are come hither alſo;

7 Whom Jaſon hath received; and theſe all do contrary to the decrees of Ceſar, ſaying, That there is another king, one Jeſus.

8 And they troubled the people, and the rulers of the city, when they heard theſe things.

9 And when they had taken ſecurity of Jaſon, and of the other, they let them go.

10 ¶ And the brethren immediately ſent away Paul and Silas by night unto Berea: who coming thither, went into the ſynagogue of the Jews.

11 Theſe were more noble than thoſe in Theſſalonica, in that they received the word with all readineſs of mind, and ſearched the ſcriptures daily, whether thoſe things were ſo.

12 Therefore many of them believed; alſo of honourable women which were Greeks, and of men not a few.

13 But when the Jews of Theſſalonica had knowledge that the word of God was preached of Paul at Berea, they came thither alſo, and ſtirred up the people.

14 And then immediately the brethren ſent away Paul, to go as it were to the ſea: but Silas and Timotheus abode there ſtill.

15 And they that conducted Paul brought him unto Athens: and receiving a commandment unto Silas and Timotheus, for to come to him with all ſpeed, they departed.

16 ¶ Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his ſpirit was ſtirred in him, when he ſaw the city wholly given to idolatry.

17 Therefore diſputed he in the ſynagogue with the Jews, and with the devout perſons, and in the market daily with them that met with him.

18 Then certain philoſophers of the Epicureans, and of the Stoicks, encountered him: and ſome ſaid, What will this babbler ſay? other ſome, He ſeemeth to be a ſetter forth of ſtrange gods; becauſe he preached unto them Jeſus, and the reſurrection.

19 And they took him, and brought him unto Areopagus, ſaying, May we know what this new doctrine, whereof thou ſpeakeſt, is?

20 For thou bringeſt certain ſtrange things to our ears: we would know, therefore, what theſe things mean.

21 (For all the Athenians, and ſtrangers which were there, ſpent their time in nothing elſe but either to tell or to hear ſome new thing.)

22 Then Paul ſtood in the midſt of Mars-hill, and ſaid, Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too ſuperſtitious.

23 For as I paſſed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inſcription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom, therefore, ye ignorantly worſhip, him declare I unto you.

24 God that made the world, and all things therein, ſeeing that he is Lord of heaven and earth, dwelleth not in temples made with hands;

25 Neither is worſhipped with men's hands, as though he needed any thing, ſeeing he giveth to all life, and breath, and all things;

26 And hath made of one blood all nations of men, for to dwell on all the face of the earth, and hath determined the times before appointed, and the bounds of their habitation;

Commentary on Chap. XVII.

11 Theſe were more noble than thoſe in Theſſalonica, &c.) As there were doubtleſs ſome good people among the Jews of this age, it cannot be reaſonable to apprehend, but that theſe noble Bereans were of a truly religious ſpirit, according to their light, before Paul preached to them; and therefore, by the concurring illumination and influence of the Holy Ghoſt, they cheerfully embraced Chriſt, as ſoon as he was revealed to them: for we no where meet with a ſet of Jews that were ſo well affected to the goſpel, at its firſt propoſal to them, as theſe. They ſeemed to be well acquainted with the ſcriptures, and to pay a conſcientious regard to their divine authority, and to be deeply concerned, that they might not be miſtaken, or impoſed upon, in the moſt important points, relating to the Meſſiah and the ſalvation of their ſouls, and yet heartily willing to receive Chriſt, upon finding that the characters, under which the Meſſiah was ſet forth in ancient prophecy, were verified in him; and the whole account here given of them is ſuch as might be expected from perſons whoſe hearts were already turned to God, through the promiſed Meſſiah, and now rejoiced to find that Jeſus was the Chriſt, and accordingly were converted to him.

19 And they took him, and brought him unto Areopagus.) This was a place in Athens where the ſenate generally aſſembled. In the midſt of it was a tribunal hewn in the rock, and all round were ſeats cut alſo in ſtone, where the ſenate heard cauſes in the open air, without any covering, and (as ſome ſay) in the night-time, that they might not be moved with compaſſion at the ſight of the criminal that was brought before them. For this tribunal was ſo famous for its ſtrict regard to juſtice, and held by all in ſuch eſteem and veneration, that the Romans, after they had conquered Greece and ſent their pro-conſuls to rule there, often referred difficult cauſes to the judgment of the Areopagus. But after the loſs of their liberty, the authority of this ſenate declined apace; ſo that in St. Paul's time the Areopagus was not ſo much a court of judicature, as a place of rendezvous, where all curious and inquiſitive perſons, who ſpent their time in nothing elſe, but either in hearing or telling ſome new thing, were accuſtomed to meet. But though their power in other matters was greatly impaired, yet they ſeem ſtill to have retained the privilege of canonizing all gods that were allowed public worſhip; and therefore St. Paul was brought before them, as an aſſertor and preacher of ſuch a deity as they had not yet admitted among them.

23 I found an altar with this inſcription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD.) Some ſuppoſe that the altar with this inſcription was ſet up by Socrates, to expreſs, in covert way, his devotion to the only true God, whilſt he derided the plurality of the heathen gods, for which he was condemned to death: and others, that, whoever erected this altar, it was done in honour to the God of the Jews, of whom there was no image, and whoſe name Jehovah, as ineffable, was never pronounced by the Jews, and never made known to the idolatrous Gentiles; him therefore the apoſtle took this opportunity to declare unto them.

27 That they ſhould ſeek the Lord, if haply they might feel after him, and find him, though he be not far from every one of us:

28 For in him we live, and move, and have our being; as certain alſo of your own poets have ſaid, For we are alſo his offspring.

29 Foraſmuch then as we are the offspring of God, we ought not to think that the Godhead is like unto gold, or ſilver, or ſtone, graven by art and man's device.

30 And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men every where to repent:

31 Becauſe he hath appointed a day in the which he will judge the world in righteouſneſs, by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given aſſurance unto all men, in that he hath raiſed him from the dead.

32 And when they heard of the reſurrection of the dead, ſome mocked: and others ſaid, We will hear thee again of this matter.

33 So Paul departed from among them.

34 ¶ Howbeit, certain men clave unto him, and believed: among the which was Dionyſius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

CHAP. XVIII.

3 Paul laboureth with his hands, and preaching at Corinth, 9 is encouraged in a viſion.

AFTER theſe things Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth;

2 And found a certain Jew, named Aquila, born in Pontus, lately come from Italy, with his wife Priſcilla, (becauſe that Claudius had commanded all Jews to depart from Rome,) and came unto them.

3 And becauſe he was of the ſame craft he abode with them, and wrought: (for by their occupation they were tent-makers.)

4 And he reaſoned in the ſynagogue every ſabbath, and perſuaded the Jews and the Greeks.

5 And when Silas and Timotheus were come from Macedonia, Paul was preſſed in ſpirit, and teſtified to the Jews that Jeſus was Chriſt.

6 And when they oppoſed themſelves, and blaſphemed, he ſhook his raiment, and ſaid unto them, Your blood be upon your own heads; I am clean: from henceforth I will go unto the Gentiles.

7 And he departed thence, and entered into a certain man's houſe, named Juſtus, one that worſhipped God, whoſe houſe joined hard to the ſynagogue.

8 And Criſpus, the chief ruler of the ſynagogue, believed on the Lord with all his houſe: and many of the Corinthians hearing, believed, and were baptized.

9 ¶ Then ſpake the Lord to Paul in the night by a viſion, Be not afraid, but ſpeak, and hold not thy peace:

10 For I am with thee, and no man ſhall ſet on thee to hurt thee; for I have much people in this city.

11 And he continued there a year and ſix months, teaching the word of God among them.

12 And when Gallio was the deputy of Achaia the Jews made inſurrection with one accord againſt Paul, and brought him to the judgment-ſeat.

13 Saying, This fellow perſuadeth men to worſhip God contrary to the law.

14 And when Paul was now about to open his mouth, Gallio ſaid unto the Jews, If it were a matter of wrong or wicked lewdneſs, O ye Jews! reaſon would that I ſhould bear with you:

15 But if it be a queſtion of words, and names, and of your law, look ye to it; for I will be no judge of ſuch matters.

16 And he drave them from the judgment-ſeat.

17 Then all the Greeks took Soſthenes, the chief ruler of the ſynagogue, and beat him before the judgment-ſeat: and Gallio cared for none of thoſe things:

18 And Paul after this tarried there yet a good while, and then took his leave of the brethren, and ſailed thence into Syria, and with him Priſcilla and Aquila; having ſhorn his head in Cenchrea: for he had a vow.

19 And he came to Epheſus, and left them there: but he himſelf entered into the ſynagogue, and reaſoned with the Jews.

20 When they deſired him to tarry longer time with them, he conſented not;

---

28 As certain alſo of your own poets have ſaid, &c.) The poet whom St. Paul means was Aratus, born in Cilicia, and conſequently his countryman; and what that poet attributes to Jupiter, the apoſtle applies to the true God. This indeed was no argument to the Epicurean auditors, who held the poets in great contempt, becauſe, on all occaſions, they introduced the gods, and taught the ſeparate exiſtence of human ſouls; but it was of great weight to the common people, who highly venerated the poets, from whoſe work ſome of the greateſt philoſophers then living borrowed citations, to confirm and adorn their diſcourſes.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVIII.

1 Paul departed from Athens, and came to Corinth.) Corinth, anciently called Epirus, was the capital of Achaia, and had its name from one Corinthus, who took and rebuilt it. Its ſituation, which is at the bottom of the iſthmus which joins the Peloponneſus to the continent, rendered it capable of commanding all Greece; but its inhabitants living as it were upon two ſeas, were chiefly merchants, and by their commerce procured abundance of wealth, which produced pride, oſtentation, effeminacy, and all manner of vice 4 And perſuaded the Jews and the Greeks.) Tho' theſe Greeks are not called devout, or worſhipping Greeks, as in chap. xvii. 4. yet it is plain that they were proſelytes of the gate, becauſe they joined with the Jews in their ſynagogue-worſhip every ſabbath-day; and Juſtus, who doubtleſs was one of them, is mentioned under that character, ver. 7. where he is ſpoken of as a worſhipper of God, which is the uſual deſcription of a proſelyte of the gate.

5 When Silas and Timotheus were come from Macedonia, &c.) Silas ſeems to have ſtaid a conſiderable time at Berea after theſe orders, the neceſſity of affairs there requiring it: but Timothy had come to the apoſtle while he was at Athens, and been ſent by him from thence to Theſſalonica, to eſtabliſh and comfort the Chriſtians under their difficulties and dangers there, as we find 1 Theſſ. iii. 1—5. which epiſtle was wrote during the apoſtle's abode in Corinth. But now, at length, both Silas and Timothy came to the apoſtle at Corinth, where Timothy gave him ſuch an account of the faith and love of the Theſſalonians, as was to his abundant joy, 1 Theſſ. iii. 6—10. and probably Silas brought comfortable tidings of the good ſtate of things at Berea, ſince the apoſtle left that city.

19 And he came to Epheſus, &c.) This was the metropolis and principal mart of the pro-conſular Aſia; it was ſituated on the river Cayſter, and on the ſide of a hill, which was towards the weſt the proſpect of a lovely plain, watered and beautified with the pleaſant circles of the river, turning and winding in ſo many curious mazes, that ſome travellers have taken it for the Meander; and this the rather, as the Turks gave it the name of the Leſſer Mendres. Among heathen authors, this city was once celebrated for its famous temple of Diana, which, for largeneſs and workmanſhip, was accounted one of the ſeven wonders of the world. It is ſaid to have been 425 feet long, 220 broad, and to have been ſupported with 127 marble pillars, 70 feet high, 27 of which were wrought very curiouſly, and all the reſt finely poliſhed. One Cteſiphon, a famous architect in his time, contrived the model of it, and that with ſo much art and curioſity, that it took up 200 years before it was finiſhed, even though it was built at the common charge of all Aſia, properly ſo called. It was ſet on fire ſeven times; but once more eſpecially, on the very ſame day that Socrates took the poiſoned potion, namely, 400 years before Chriſt: and at another time Eroſtratus ſet fire to it, only to get himſelf a name, on the ſame night that Alexander the Great was born. It was rebuilt, however, and beautified by the Epheſians; to which work the ladies of Epheſus contributed very largely. In the time of our apoſtle, it retained a great deal of its ancient grandeur: but at preſent 'tis only a heap of ruins; and the very place where it ſtood is ſo little known, that it affords matter of various conjectures to travellers. The only two buildings worth obſerving are a ſtrong and lofty caſtle, ſituate on an eminence, and a beautiful church, honoured with the name of St. John, but now converted into a Turkiſh moſque. All the reſt of the place is only a habitation of herdſmen and farmers, who live in low and mean cottages of mud, covered a-top with earth, and ſheltered from the injury of the weather by mighty maſſes of ruinous walls.

21 But bade them farewell, ſaying, I muſt by all means keep this feaſt that cometh in Jeruſalem: but I will return again unto you, if God will. And he ſailed from Epheſus.

22 And when he had landed at Ceſarea, and gone up and ſaluted the church, he went down to Antioch.

23 And after he had ſpent ſome time there he departed, and went over all the country of Galatia and Phrygia in order, ſtrengthening all the diſciples.

24 And a certain Jew named Apollos, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man, and mighty in the ſcriptures, came to Epheſus.

25 This man was inſtructed in the way of the Lord; and, being fervent in the ſpirit, he ſpake and taught diligently the things of the Lord, knowing only the baptiſm of John.

26 And he began to ſpeak boldly in the ſynagogue: whom, when Aquila and Priſcilla had heard, they took him unto them, and expounded unto him the way of God more perfectly.

27 And when he was diſpoſed to paſs into Achaia, the brethren wrote, exhorting the diſciples to receive him: who, when he was come, helped them much which had believed through grace:

28 For he mightily convinced the Jews, and that publicly, ſhewing by the ſcriptures that Jeſus was Chriſt.

CHAP. XIX.

The Holy Ghoſt given by Paul's hands.

AND it came to paſs, that while Apollos was at Corinth, Paul, having paſſed through the upper coaſts, came to Epheſus: and finding certain diſciples,

2 He ſaid unto them, Have ye received the Holy Ghoſt ſince ye believed? And they ſaid unto him, We have not ſo much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghoſt.

3 And he ſaid unto them, Unto what then were ye baptized? And they ſaid, Unto John's baptiſm.

4 Then ſaid Paul, John verily baptized with the baptiſm of repentance, ſaying unto the people, That they ſhould believe on him which ſhould come after him, that is, on Chriſt Jeſus.

5 When they heard this, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jeſus.

6 And when Paul had laid his hands upon them, the Holy Ghoſt came on them; and they ſpake with tongues, and propheſied.

7 And all the men were about twelve.

8 And he went into the ſynagogue, and ſpake boldly for the ſpace of three months, diſputing and perſuading the things concerning the kingdom of God.

9 But when divers were hardened, and believed not, but ſpake evil of that way before the multitude, he departed from them, and ſeparated the diſciples, diſputing daily in the ſchool of one Tyrannus.

10 And this continued by the ſpace of two years; ſo that all they which dwelt in Aſia heard the word of the Lord Jeſus, both Jews and Greeks.

11 And God wrought ſpecial miracles by the hands of Paul;

12 So that from his body were brought unto the ſick, handkerchiefs or aprons, and the diſeaſes departed from them, and the evil ſpirits went out of them.

13 Then certain of the vagabond Jews, exorciſts, took upon them to call over them which had evil ſpirits, the name of the Lord Jeſus, ſaying, We adjure you by Jeſus, whom Paul preacheth.

14 And there were ſeven ſons of one Sceva a Jew, and chief of the prieſts, which did ſo.

15 And the evil ſpirit anſwered and ſaid, Jeſus I know, and Paul I know; but who are ye?

16 And the man in whom the evil ſpirit was leaped on them, and overcame them, and prevailed againſt them, ſo that they fled out of that houſe, naked and wounded.

17 And this was known to all the Jews and Greeks alſo dwelling at Epheſus; and fear fell on them all, and the name of the Lord Jeſus was magnified.

18 And many that believed came, and confeſſed, and ſhewed their deeds.

19 Many of them alſo, which uſed curious arts, brought their books together, and burned them before all men: and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thouſand pieces of ſilver.

20 So mightily grew the word of God, and prevailed.

21 After theſe things were ended, Paul purpoſed in the ſpirit, when he had paſſed through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jeruſalem, ſaying, After I have been there, I muſt alſo ſee Rome.

22 So he ſent into Macedonia two of them that miniſtered unto him, Timotheus and Eraſtus; but he himſelf ſtayed in Aſia for a ſeaſon.

23 And the ſame time there aroſe no ſmall ſtir about that way.

24 For a certain man, named Demetrius, a ſilverſmith, which made ſilver ſhrines for Diana, brought no ſmall gain unto the craftſmen:

25 Whom he called together, with the workmen of like occupation, and ſaid, Sirs, ye know that by this craft we have our wealth:

26 Moreover, ye ſee and hear, that not alone at Epheſus, but almoſt throughout all Aſia, this Paul hath perſuaded and turned away much people, ſaying, That they be no gods which are made with hands:

27 So that not only this our craft is in danger to be ſet at nought; but alſo that the temple of the great goddeſs Diana ſhould be deſpiſed, and her magnificence should

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIX.

2 We have not ſo much as heard whether there be any Holy Ghoſt.) Theſe diſciples, who had been baptiſed with John's baptiſm, could not be ignorant whether there were any ſuch thing as the Holy Ghoſt; becauſe John himſelf not only ſpoke of the Spirit's deſcending on Chriſt, but likewiſe of Chriſt's baptiſing with the Holy Ghoſt, Matt. iii. 11. and John i. 33. But they had never heard that this was actually come to paſs, in any extraordinary effuſion of his gifts, together with his graces.

9 The ſchool of one Tyrannus.) Some ſuppoſe that this was a divinity ſchool of the Jews; and others, that it was a philoſophical ſchool of the Greeks. But, be that as it will, here was liberty, which there was not in the ſynagogue, for all ſorts of perſons, even Gentile idolators, as well as others, to attend on the preaching of the goſpel.

12 From his body were brought unto the ſick, handkerchiefs or aprons, &c.) Theſe aprons are thought by ſome to have been thoſe that Paul himſelf wore when he worked at the tent-making trade: others take them to have been aprons, or other linen cloths, that were brought from ſick perſons, and being touched by Paul, were carried back to them, and were the tokens of their miraculous cures. But whatever theſe cloths were, it is certain that no natural or artificial effluvia from themſelves could operate in ſuch a miraculous way upon the diſeaſed.

19 Fifty thouſand pieces of ſilver.) If theſe be taken for Jewiſh ſhekels, and valued only at half a-crown each, the ſum amounts to 6250l. ſterling: but as the Attic drachm ſeems to have been uſed generally among the Greeks, it is moſt natural to compute it by that; which, if with Prideaux we reckon at nine-pence each, reduced the ſum to 1875l.

22 He himſelf ſtayed in Aſia for a ſeaſon.) It is generally agreed, that the apoſtle wrote his firſt epiſtle to the Corinthians, ſoon after he had ſent theſe meſſengers to that and ſome other churches in thoſe parts, and before the riot made by Demetrius, ver. 24, &c.

ſhould be deſtroyed, whom all Aſia and the world worſhippeth.

28 And when they heard theſe ſayings, they were full of wrath, and cried out, ſaying, Great is Diana of the Epheſians.

29 And the whole city was filled with confuſion: and having caught Gaius and Ariſtarchus, men of Macedonia, Paul's companions in travel, they ruſhed with one accord into the theatre.

30 And when Paul would have entered in unto the people, the diſciples ſuffered him not.

31 And certain of the chief of Aſia, which were his friends, ſent unto him, deſiring him that he would not adventure himſelf into the theatre.

32 Some therefore cried one thing, and ſome another: for the aſſembly was confuſed; and the more part knew not wherefore they were come together.

33 And they drew Alexander out of the multitude, the Jews putting him forward. And Alexander beckoned with the hand, and would have made his defence unto the people.

34 But when they knew that he was a Jew, all with one voice, about the ſpace of two hours, cried out, Great is Diana of the Epheſians.

35 And when the town-clerk had appeaſed the people, he ſaid, Ye men of Epheſus, what man is there that knoweth not, how that the city of the Epheſians is a worſhipper of the great goddeſs Diana, and of the image which fell down from Jupiter?

36 Seeing then that theſe things cannot be ſpoken againſt, ye ought to be quiet, and to do nothing raſhly.

37 For ye have brought hither theſe men, which are neither robbers of churches, nor yet blaſphemers of your goddeſs.

38 Wherefore if Demetrius, and the craftſmen which are with him, have a matter againſt any man, the law is open, and there are deputies; let them implead one another.

39 But if ye enquire any thing concerning other matters, it ſhall be determined in a lawful aſſembly.

40 For we are in danger to be called in queſtion for this day's uproar, there being no cauſe whereby we may give an account of this concourſe.

41 And when he had thus ſpoken, he diſmiſſed the aſſembly.

CHAP. XX.

1 Paul goeth to Macedonia. 7 He celebrateth the Lord's ſupper, and preacheth. 9 Eutychus, falling down dead, 10 is raiſed to life. 28 Paul committeth the flock to the elders, 36 and prayeth.

AND after the uproar was ceaſed, Paul called unto him the diſciples, and embraced them, and departed for to go into Macedonia.

2 And when he had gone over thoſe parts, and had given them much exhortation, he came into Greece,

3 And there abode three months: and when the Jews laid wait for him, as he was about to ſail into Syria, he purpoſed to return through Macedonia.

4 And there accompanied him into Aſia, Sopater of Berea: and of the Theſſalonians, Ariſtarchus and Secundus, and Gaius of Derbe, and Timotheus; and of Aſia, Tychicus and Trophimus.

5 Theſe, going before, tarried for us at Troas.

6 And we ſailed away from Philippi, after the days of unleavened bread, and came unto them to Troas in five days; where we abode ſeven days.

7 ¶ And upon the firſt day of the week, when the diſciples came together to break bread, Paul preached unto them, ready to depart on the morrow; and continued his ſpeech until midnight.

8 And there were many lights in the upper chamber, where they were gathered together.

9 ¶ And there ſat in a window a certain young man named Eutychus, being fallen into a deep ſleep: and as Paul was long preaching, he ſunk down with ſleep, and fell down from the third loft, and was taken up dead.

10 ¶ And Paul went down, and fell on him, and, embracing him, ſaid, Trouble not yourſelves; for his life is in him.

11 When he, therefore, was come up again, and had broken bread, and eaten, and talked a long while, even till break of day, ſo he departed.

12 And they brought the young man alive, and were not a little comforted.

13 And we went before to ſhip, and ſailed unto Aſſos, there intending to take in Paul: for ſo had he appointed, minding himſelf to go afoot.

14 And when he met with us at Aſſos, we took him in, and came to Mitylene.

29 The whole city was filled with confuſion, &c.) There is no doubt but that this riotous company brought Gaius and Ariſtarchus to the theatre, to abuſe and expoſe them, as a public ſpectacle to the people; and it is highly probable that they hoped to oblige them to fight with the wild beaſts, as was cuſtomary for criminals to do there, and as it ſeems, from 1 Cor. xv. 32. Paul had done before.

33 They drew Alexander out of the multitude, &c.) This was very probably Alexander the copperſmith, who was a warm Judaizing Chriſtian, and a great enemy to the apoſtle Paul, 2 Tim. iv. 14. and afterwards turned apoſtate, 1 Tim. i. 19, 20. and ſo was a fit tool for the Jews on this occaſion, as his own character would incenſe the Epheſians againſt Chriſtianity, and he himſelf was ſtrongly inclined to faſten an odium upon Paul: and the Jews might hope by this means to gratify their own reſentment againſt Alexander himſelf, in bringing him into trouble for turning Chriſtian.

35 When the town-clerk had appeaſed the people, &c.) The word here rendered town-clerk, properly ſignifies a ſcribe, who, among the Jews, was a learned man, expert in their laws; and among the Romans was a civil magiſtrate of conſiderable note, and is ſuppoſed to have been chief governor of the public games.

The image which fell down from Jupiter.) The image of Diana is ſpoken of as falling down from Jupiter, by way of artful inſinuation, as if it were not made with hands, and ſo were not of that ſort of idols which Paul had ſaid were no gods, ver. 16. tho' in reality he condemned all idols and image-worſhip, chap. xvii. 24—29.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XX.

5 Theſe, going before, tarried for us at Troas.) Luke, the writer of this hiſtory, had not ſpoke of himſelf as one of Paul's company 'till now, ſince they were firſt together at Troas and Philippi, where, at the laſt of thoſe cities, Lydia and the jailor were converted, chap. xvi. 11, 12, &c. It ſeems therefore that the evangeliſt had continued, by the apoſtle's direction, to water the churches which he had planted, and ſtill further to propagate the goſpel in thoſe parts; and that now, on the apoſtle's return to that neighbourhood, they met together again; and probably Luke was one of the meſſengers appointed by the church at Philippi, or perhaps, by the common conſent of the Macedonian churches, to attend Paul with their contributions to Jeruſalem. And ever afterwards we find him ſpeaking of himſelf, as preſent with the apoſtle, to the end of this hiſtory.

6 Came unto them to Troas in five days, where we abode ſeven days.) No notice is taken of theſe diſciples meeting, or of the apoſtle's preaching to them on the Jewiſh ſabbath; and there can be no ſufficient reaſon given for this account of his ſtaying ſeven days, till the return of the firſt day of the week, or of their coming, without being called, together on that day for religious worſhip, but on the ſuppoſition that this day was ſubſtituted in the room of the ſeventh, to be kept holy to the Lord. When therefore the apoſtle went at other times into the Jewiſh ſynagogues on their ſabbath, it was not (as ſome apprehend) from a ſenſe of obligation to obſerve that day, but from a zealous diſpoſition to take the opportunity of full aſſemblies, as he ſometimes did of the great concourſe of people at the paſſover and Pentecoſt, to preach to Jews and proſelytes. But there's not one inſtance to be found in the New Teſtament, of the apoſtle's ever calling any one Chriſtian church together, or of their ever meeting as ſuch, on the ſeventh day; and though Judaizing Chriſtians, and perhaps ſome others, in tenderneſs to them, might obſerve both days for ſome time; yet Gentiles churches conſtantly kept the firſt day of the week, as appears from 1 Cor. xvi.

15 And we ſailed thence, and came the next day over-againſt Chios; and the next day we arrived at Samos, and tarried at Trogyllium; and the next day we came to Miletus.

16 For Paul had determined to ſail by Epheſus, becauſe he would not ſpend the time in Aſia; for he haſted, if it were poſſible for him, to be at Jeruſalem the day of Pentecoſt.

17 And from Miletus he ſent to Epheſus, and called the elders of the church.

18 And when they were come to him, he ſaid unto them, Ye know, from the firſt day that I came into Aſia, after what manner I have been with you at all ſeaſons,

19 Serving the Lord with all humility of mind, and with many tears and temtations which befell me by the lying in wait of the Jews;

20 And how I kept back nothing that was profitable unto you, but have ſhewed you, and have taught you publicly, and from houſe to houſe,

21 Teſtifying both to the Jews, and alſo to the Greeks, repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

22 And now behold, I go bound in the ſpirit unto Jeruſalem, not knowing the things that ſhall befal me there:

23 Save that the Holy Ghoſt witneſſeth in every city, ſaying, That bonds and afflictions abide me.

24 But none of theſe things move me, neither count I my life dear unto myſelf, ſo that I might finiſh my courſe with joy, and the miniſtry which I have received of the Lord Jeſus, to teſtify the goſpel of the grace of God.

25 And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I have gone preaching the kingdom of God, ſhall ſee my face no more.

26 Wherefore I take you to record this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men.

27 For I have not ſhunned to declare unto you all the counſel of God.

28 Take heed, therefore, unto yourſelves, and to all the flock over the which the Holy Ghoſt hath made you overſeers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchaſed with his own blood.

29 For I know this, that after my departing ſhall grievous wolves enter in among you, not ſparing the flock.

30 Alſo of your own ſelves ſhall men ariſe, ſpeaking perverſe things, to draw away diſciples after them.

31 Therefore watch, and remember that, by the ſpace of three years, I ceaſed not to warn every one night and day with tears.

32 And now, brethren, I commend you to God, and to the word of his grace, which is able to build you up, and to give you an inheritance among all them which are ſanctified.

33 I have coveted no man's ſilver, or gold, or apparel.

34 Yea, ye yourſelves know that theſe hands have miniſtered unto my neceſſities, and to them that were with me.

35 I have ſhewed you all things, how that ſo labouring ye ought to ſupport the weak; and to remember the words of the Lord Jeſus, how he ſaid, It is more bleſſed to give than to receive.

36 And when he had thus ſpoken, he kneeled down, and prayed with them all.

37 And they all wept ſore, and fell on Paul's neck, and kiſſed him;

38 Sorrowing moſt of all for the words which he ſpake, that they ſhould ſee his face no more. And they accompanied him unto the ſhip.

CHAP. XXI.

1 Paul will not be diſſuaded from going to Jeruſalem: 27 he is apprehended at Jeruſalem; 31 but is reſcued by the chief captain.

AND it came to paſs, that after we were gotten from them, and had launched, we came with a ſtraight courſe unto Coos, and the day following unto Rhodes, and from thence unto Patara:

2 And finding a ſhip ſailing over unto Phenicia, we went aboard, and ſet forth.

3 Now when we had diſcovered Cyprus, we left it on the left hand, and ſailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ſhip was to unlade her burden.

4 And finding diſciples, we tarried there ſeven days: who ſaid to Paul through the Spirit, that he ſhould not go up to Jeruſalem.

5 And when we had accompliſhed thoſe days we departed, and went our way; and they all brought us on our way, with wives and children, till we were out of the city: and we kneeled down on the ſhore, and prayed.

15 The next day we came to Miletus.) Some place Miletus about thirty, and others about fifty miles from Epheſus.

21 Teſtifying both to the Jews, and alſo to the Greeks, &c.) I can appeal to you, that in all my miniſtrations I have bore my teſtimony for Chriſt, in word and deed, both to the Jews, and even to the moſt learned among the Gentiles: this I have done with the greateſt earneſtneſs and concern, as one that ſhall witneſs either for or againſt them in the day of judgment; and I have therein, as ye know, chiefly inſiſted on two of the moſt important and comprehenſive articles of Chriſtian religion: one is the nature and neceſſity of unfeigned repentance toward God, which Chriſt is exalted to give, and which conſiſts in a deep and humbling ſenſe of the evil, miſchief, and danger of all ſin, and of all its aggravations, as ſin; in an ingenuous ſorrow and ſhame for it; in utter hatred of it, and hearty reſolutions, by divine grace, againſt it; and in turning from it to God upon the encouragements, and by the aſſiſtance of his free mercy, through Jeſus Chriſt, as manifeſted in the goſpel: and the other grand ſubject of my miniſtry has been, the nature and neceſſity of ſincere faith, as terminating upon the perſon and mediation of Chriſt, which is alſo the gift of God, and conſiſts in a convinced ſinner's cordially aſſenting to, approving of, and embracing the goſpel diſcovery of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as the only ſuitable, divine, and all-ſufficient prophet, prieſt, and king of the church; and in receiving and relying on him alone, and on the rich grace of God, through his merit and righteouſneſs, for pardon of ſin, and juſtification, and for a whole ſalvation.

28 Take heed, therefore, unto yourſelves, and to all the flock, &c.) It is ſufficiently evident from many paſſages in ſcripture, that the divine ſpirit enabled the apoſtles to diſcern who were fit to be governors of the church, and that, by its motion or inſpiration, they were accordingly choſen into that office. Thus the Spirit, by the prophets of Antioch, ſaid, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them, (chap. xiii. 2.) and thus the Holy Ghoſt is ſaid to have conſtituted the biſhops and preſbyters in Aſia, becauſe as Clemens Romanus ſays, They made trial of them by the Holy Ghoſt; and therefore Ignatius teſtifies of the biſhops of his time, that "They were not appointed by men, but by the counſel of Chriſt Jeſus;" even as Cyprian ſays of thoſe in his, "That they were conſtituted, not only by the conſent of the people, and the ſuffrage of their fellow-biſhops, but by the teſtimony of God."

35 It is more bleſſed to give than to receive.) Some have thought that here is a reference to what Chriſt ſaid in ſenſe, though in different words, Luke xiv. 13, 14. and xvi. 9. But as they are expreſsly called the words of the Lord Jeſus, it rather ſeems that this was a ſaying uſed by our Lord on ſome occaſions, and familiarly known among his diſciples, though omitted by the Evangeliſts in the hiſtory of his life. If ſo, whether the apoſtle had the account of it from ear-witneſſes, or by immediate revelation, we are now aſſured that Chriſt ſpoke ſuch words as theſe: but had not the ſacred hiſtorian recorded Paul's recital of them, we ſhould never have known, with certainty, any thing of them; ſince oral tradition would have left us as much in the dark about this, as about thouſands of other ſentences that were ſpoke by our Lord, but were not recorded by the inſpired penmen.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXI.

5 They all brought us on our way.) It is highly probable, that they gave preſents to the apoſtle and his company at parting, as their friends at Melita or Malta did, chap. xxviii. 10. And it is thought that this was a fulfilment of the prophecy, in Pſal. xlv. 12.

6 And when we had taken our leave one of another we took ſhip: and they returned home again.

7 And when we had finiſhed our courſe from Tyre, we came to Ptolemais, and ſaluted the brethren, and abode with them one day.

8 And the next day we that were of Paul's company departed, and came to Ceſarea; and we entered into the houſe of Philip the evangeliſt, (which was one of the ſeven) and abode with him.

9 And the ſame man had four daughters, virgins, which did propheſy.

10 And as we tarried there many days, there came down from Judea a certain prophet, named Agabus.

11 And when he was come unto us, he took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, and ſaid, Thus ſaith the Holy Ghoſt, So ſhall the Jews at Jeruſalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and ſhall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles.

12 And when we heard theſe things, both we, and they of that place, beſought him not to go up to Jeruſalem.

13 Then Paul anſwered, What mean ye to weep, and to break mine heart? for I am ready not to be bound only, but alſo to die at Jeruſalem, for the name of the Lord Jeſus.

14 And when he would not be perſuaded, we ceaſed, ſaying, The will of the Lord be done.

15 And after thoſe days we took up our carriages, and went up to Jeruſalem.

16 There went with us alſo certain of the diſciples of Ceſarea, and brought with them one Mnaſon of Cyprus, an old diſciple, with whom we ſhould lodge.

17 And when we were come to Jeruſalem, the brethren received us gladly.

18 And the day following Paul went in with us unto James; and all the elders were preſent.

19 And when he had ſaluted them, he declared particularly what things God had wrought among the Gentiles by his miniſtry.

20 And when they heard it, they glorified the Lord, and ſaid unto him, Thou ſeeſt, brother, how many thouſands of Jews there are which believe; and they are all zealous of the law:

21 And they are informed of thee, that thou teacheſt all the Jews which are among the Gentiles to forſake Moſes, ſaying, That they ought not to circumciſe their children, neither to walk after the cuſtoms.

22 What is it therefore? the multitude muſt needs come together: for they will hear that thou art come.

23 Do, therefore, this that we ſay to thee: We have four men which have a vow on them;

24 Them take, and purify thyſelf with them, and be at charges with them, that they may ſhave their heads: and all may know that thoſe things, whereof they were informed concerning thee, are nothing: but that thou thyſelf alſo walkeſt orderly, and keepeſt the law.

25 As touching the Gentiles which believe, we have written and concluded that they obſerve no ſuch thing, ſave only that they keep themſelves from things offered to idols, and from blood, and from ſtrangled, and from fornication.

26 Then Paul took the men, and the next day, purifying himſelf with them, entered into the temple, to ſignify the accompliſhment of the days of purification, until that an offering ſhould be offered for every one of them.

27 ¶ And when the ſeven days were almoſt ended, the Jews which were of Aſia, when they ſaw him in the temple, ſtirred up all the people, and laid hands on him,

28 Crying out, Men of Iſrael, help: this is the man that teacheth all men every where againſt the people, and the law, and this place; and further, brought Greeks alſo into the temple, and hath polluted this holy place.

29 (For they had ſeen before with him in the city Trophimus an Epheſian, whom they ſuppoſed that Paul had brought into the temple.)

30 And all the city was moved, and the people ran together; and they took Paul, and drew him out of the temple: and forthwith the doors were ſhut.

31 ¶ And as they went about to kill him, tidings came unto the chief captain of the band, that all Jeruſalem was in an uproar;

32 Who immediately took ſoldiers and centurions, and ran down unto them: and when they ſaw the chief captain and the ſoldiers, they left beating of Paul.

33 Then the chief captain came near, and took him, and commanded him to be bound with two chains; and demanded who he was, and what he had done?

34 And ſome cried one thing, ſome another, among the multitude: and when he could not know the certainty for the tumult, he commanded him to be carried into the caſtle.

35 And when he came upon the ſtairs, ſo it was that he was borne of the ſoldiers for the violence of the people.

36 For the multitude of the people followed after, crying, Away with him.

37 And as Paul was to be led into the caſtle, he ſaid unto the chief captain, May I ſpeak unto thee? Who ſaid, Canſt thou ſpeak Greek?

38 Art not thou that Egyptian, which before theſe days madeſt an uproar, and leddeſt out into the wilderneſs four thouſand men that were murderers?

39 But Paul ſaid, I am a man which am a Jew of

11 He took Paul's girdle, and bound his own hands and feet, &c.) Agabus, it ſeems, firſt bound his hands, and afterwards looſing them, bound his feet with Paul's girdle, in an emblematical way, to impreſs the ſpectators with a moving ſenſe of the ill treatment the apoſtle would meet with, which was prophetically repreſented by that action, in like manner as Iſaiah was ordered to walk naked and bare-foot, for a ſign and wonder upon Egypt and Ethiopia, to intimate their captivity by the Aſſyrian, (Iſa. xxii. 3, &c.) and as Jeremiah was ordered to put bands and yokes upon his neck, to ſignify that the kings of Edom, Moab, &c. ſhould be brought into ſubjection to the king of Babylon, Jer. xxvii. 2, &c.

24 All may know that thoſe things whereof they were informed concerning thee are nothing, &c.) Though the apoſtle Paul, on all occaſions, zealouſly oppoſed an obſervation of the Moſaic law, as neceſſary to, or having any concern in the great buſineſs of juſtification; and though, as far as the Jews were able to bear it, he gradually ſhewed that it was fulfilled by the death of Chriſt, and ſo was no longer binding in point of conſcience; yet he never aſſerted, as his enemies falſly alledged, that it was abſolutely unlawful for a Jew to comply with its ceremonial rites, in any caſes, or on any account whatſoever; but rather left it as an indifferent matter, or at leaſt as what the wiſdom, goodneſs and condeſcenſion of God to them tolerated for the preſent, and as what they might lawfully obſerve in the view of national civil rites, during the continuance of the Jewiſh polity, 'till they, by degrees, ſhould be thoroughly brought off from their conſcientious ſcruples and confirmed prejudices, and 'till at length many of thoſe rites would become impracticable by the deſtruction of the temple and of their political ſtate.

34 He commanded him to be carried into the caſtle.) This was a tower or fortreſs, where the Romans kept a conſtant garriſon at Jeruſalem. It was originally built by the Aſmonean princes, who called it Baris; but Herod the Great having repaired it, changed its name in honour of his friend Mark Anthony. It was ſituated near the weſt angle of the temple upon an eminence cut ſteep on all ſides, and encloſed with a wall three hundred cubits high. It was built in the form of a large ſquare, having within the magnificence of a palace, and the conveniences of a city; and without ſeveral fortifications and a tower at each corner to ſtrengthen and defend it. So that, conſidering its form and ſituation, we may be allowed to ſay, that it was a citadel to the temple, even as the temple was in ſome ſort a citadel to the city.

39 A Jew of Tarſus.) That all the inhabitants of Tarſus enjoyed the privilege of Roman citizens has been generally maintained, but is expoſed to many difficulties, which leave it more probable, that St. Paul had this privilege from his father, as it was frequently conferred upon ſingle perſons of families.

Tarſus,

Tarſus, a city in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city: and I beſeech thee ſuffer me to ſpeak unto the people.

40 And when he had given him licence, Paul ſtood on the ſtairs, and beckoned with the hand unto the people. And when there was made a great ſilence, he ſpake unto them in the Hebrew tongue, ſaying,

CHAP. XXII.

1 Paul declareth his converſion. 25 He eſcapeth ſcourging by the privilege of a Roman.

MEN, brethren, and fathers, hear ye my defence, which I make now unto you.

2 (And when they heard that he ſpake in the Hebrew tongue to them, they kept the more ſilence: and he ſaith,)

3 I am verily a man which am a Jew, born in Tarſus, a city in Cilicia, yet brought up in this city at the feet of Gamaliel, and taught according to the perfect manner of the law of the fathers, and was zealous toward God, as ye all are this day.

4 And I perſecuted this way unto the death, binding and delivering into priſons both men and women.

5 As alſo the high prieſt doth bear me witneſs, and all the eſtate of the elders: from whom alſo I received letters unto the brethren, and went to Damaſcus, to bring them which were there bound unto Jeruſalem, for to be puniſhed.

6 And it came to paſs, that as I made my journey, and was come nigh unto Damaſcus about noon, ſuddenly there ſhone from heaven a great light round about me.

7 And I fell unto the ground, and heard a voice ſaying unto me, Saul, Saul, why perſecuteſt thou me?

8 And I anſwered, Who art thou, Lord? And he ſaid unto me, I am Jeſus of Nazareth, whom thou perſecuteſt.

9 And they that were with me ſaw indeed the light, and were afraid; but they heard not the voice of him that ſpake to me.

10 And I ſaid, What ſhall I do, Lord? And the Lord ſaid unto me, Ariſe, and go into Damaſcus; and there it ſhall be told thee of all things which are appointed for thee to do.

11 And when I could not ſee for the glory of that light, being led by the hand of them that were with me, I came into Damaſcus.

12 And one Ananias, a devout man according to the law, having a good report of all the Jews which dwelt there, 13 Came unto me, and ſtood, and ſaid unto me, Brother Saul, receive thy ſight. And the ſame hour I looked up upon him.

14 And he ſaid, The God of our fathers hath choſen thee, that thou ſhouldeſt know his will, and ſee that juſt One, and ſhouldeſt hear the voice of his mouth.

15 For thou ſhalt be his witneſs unto all men of what thou haſt ſeen and heard.

16 And now, why tarrieſt thou? ariſe, and be baptized, and waſh away thy ſins, calling on the name of the Lord.

17 And it came to paſs, that when I was come again to Jeruſalem, even while I prayed in the temple, I was in a trance;

18 And ſaw him ſaying unto me, Make haſte, and get thee quickly out of Jeruſalem: for they will not receive thy teſtimony concerning me.

19 And I ſaid, Lord, they know that I impriſoned and beat in every ſynagogue them that believed on thee:

20 And when the blood of thy martyr Stephen was ſhed, I alſo was ſtanding by, and conſenting unto his death, and kept the raiment of them that ſlew him.

21 And he ſaid unto me, Depart: for I will ſend thee far hence unto the Gentiles.

22 And they gave him audience unto this word, and then lifted up their voices, and ſaid, Away with ſuch a fellow from the earth; for it is not fit that he ſhould live.

23 And as they cried out, and caſt off their clothes, and threw duſt into the air,

24 The chief captain commanded him to be brought into the caſtle, and bade that he ſhould be examined by ſcourging; that he might know wherefore they cried ſo againſt him.

25 And as they bound him with thongs, Paul ſaid unto the centurion that ſtood by, Is it lawful for you to ſcourge a man that is a Roman, and uncondemned?

26 When the centurion heard that, he went and told the chief captain, ſaying, Take heed what thou doeſt: for this man is a Roman.

27 Then the chief captain came, and ſaid unto him, Tell me, art thou a Roman? He ſaid, Yea.

28 And the chief captain anſwered, With a great ſum obtained I this freedom. And Paul ſaid, But I was free-born.

29 Then ſtraightway they departed from him which ſhould have examined him: and the chief captain alſo was afraid, after he knew that he was a Roman, and becauſe he had bound him.

30 On the morrow, becauſe he would have known the certainty wherefore he was accuſed of the Jews, he looſed him from his bands, and commanded the chief prieſts and all their council to appear, and brought Paul down, and ſet him before them.

CHAP. XXIII.

1 Paul pleadeth his cauſe. 7 Diſſenſion among his accuſers. 23 He is ſent to Felix.

AND Paul, earneſtly beholding the council, ſaid, Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conſcience before God until this day.

2 And the high prieſt Ananias commanded them that ſtood by him to ſmite him on the mouth.

3 Then ſaid Paul unto him, God ſhall ſmite thee, thou whited wall: for ſitteſt thou to judge me after the law, and commandeſt me to be ſmitten contrary to the law?

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXII.

3 At the feet of Gamaliel, &c.) The apoſtle here refers to the Jewiſh cuſtom in their ſchools, where the learners uſed to ſit either upon benches, or upon mats on the floor, at the feet of their maſters, whoſe ſeats were elevated above them.

25 They bound him with thongs, &c.) A freeman of Rome might be bound with a chain, and beaten with a ſtaff; but it was reckoned an unſufferable indignity to bind him with thongs, or ſcourge with rods.

28 Paul ſaid, But I was free-born.) Paul ſeems to have been free-born, not by virtue of his nativity at Tarſus, as has been ſuppoſed by many: for had that been a Roman colony, veſted with the honour of the citizen-ſhip of Rome, Lyſias muſt have known it, and conſequently could not have wondered how Paul came by it, ſince he had told him before (chap. xxi. 39.) that he was a Jew of Tarſus. But perhaps he was born of anceſtors who had obtained this privilege, as ſeveral Jews had in thoſe days, for ſome remarkable ſervices to the commonwealth. If ſo, Paul was one of thoſe freemen whom the Romans called Libertini, as being the children of ſuch as had been made free, in diſtinction from the Liberti, who had been made free themſelves, and from the Ingenui, who were born of parents that had been always free.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXIII.

3 God ſhall ſmite thee, thou whited wall, &c.) A whited wall was a proverbial expreſſion, denoting an hypocrite of any kind; and the propriety of it appears in this,—That as the wall had a fair outſide, and nothing but dirt, or ſticks, and ſtones within, ſo the high prieſt had the outward appearance of a righteous judge, ſitting as one that would paſs ſentence according to law, and yet commanding him, to be puniſhed for ſpeaking the truth, and ſo condemning the innocent,

4 And

4 And they that ſtood by ſaid, Revileſt thou God's high prieſt?

5 Then ſaid Paul, I wiſt not, brethren, that he was the high prieſt: for it is written, Thou ſhalt not ſpeak evil of the ruler of thy people.

6 But when Paul perceived that the one part were Sadducees, and the other Phariſees, he cried out in the council, Men and brethren, I am a Phariſee, the ſon of a Phariſee: of the hope and reſurrection of the dead I am called in queſtion.

7 ¶ And when he had ſo ſaid, there aroſe a diſſenſion between the Phariſees and the Sadducees: and the multitude was divided.

8 For the Sadducees ſay that there is no reſurrection, neither angel nor ſpirit; but the Phariſees confeſs both.

9 And there aroſe a great cry: and the ſcribes that were of the Phariſees' part aroſe, and ſtrove, ſaying, We find no evil in this man; but if a ſpirit or an angel hath ſpoken to him, let us not fight againſt God.

10 And when there aroſe a great diſſenſion, the chief captain, fearing leſt Paul ſhould have been pulled in pieces of them, commanded the ſoldiers to go down, and to take him by force from among them, and to bring him into the caſtle.

11 And the night following the Lord ſtood by him, and ſaid, Be of good cheer, Paul; for as thou haſt teſtified of me in Jeruſalem, ſo muſt thou bear witneſs alſo at Rome.

12 And when it was day, certain of the Jews banded together, and bound themſelves under a curſe, ſaying, That they would neither eat nor drink till they had killed Paul.

13 And they were more than forty which had made this conſpiracy.

14 And they came to the chief prieſts and elders, and ſaid, We have bound ourſelves under a great curſe, that we will eat nothing until we have ſlain Paul.

15 Now, therefore, ye with the council ſignify to the chief captain, that he bring him down unto you to-morrow, as though ye would enquire ſomething more perfectly concerning him; and we, or ever he come near, are ready to kill him.

16 And when Paul's ſiſter's ſon heard of their lying in wait, he went and entered into the caſtle, and told Paul.

17 Then Paul called one of the centurions unto him, and ſaid, Bring this young man unto the chief captain, for he hath a certain thing to tell him.

18 So he took him, and brought him to the chief captain, and ſaid, Paul the priſoner called me unto him, and prayed me to bring this young man unto thee, who hath ſomething to ſay unto thee.

19 Then the chief captain took him by the hand, and went with him aſide privately, and aſked him, What is that thou haſt to tell me?

20 And he ſaid, The Jews have agreed to deſire thee, that thou wouldeſt bring down Paul to-morrow into the council, as though they would enquire ſomewhat of him more perfectly.

21 But do not thou yield unto them: for there lie in wait for him of them more than forty men, which have bound themſelves with an oath, that they will neither eat nor drink, till they have killed him: and now are they ready, looking for a promiſe from thee.

22 So the chief captain then let the young man depart, and charged him, See thou tell no man that thou haſt ſhewed theſe things to me.

23 ¶ And he called unto him two centurions, ſaying, Make ready two hundred ſoldiers to go to Ceſarea, and horſemen threeſcore and ten, and ſpearmen two hundred, at the third hour of the night;

24 And provide them beaſts, that they may ſet Paul on, and bring him ſafe unto Felix the governor.

25 And he wrote a letter after this manner:

26 Claudius Lyſias, unto the moſt excellent governor Felix, ſendeth greeting.

27 This man was taken of the Jews, and ſhould have been killed of them: then came I with an army and reſcued him, having underſtood that he was a Roman.

28 And when I would have known the cauſe wherefore they accuſed him, I brought him forth into their council;

29 Whom I perceived to be accuſed of queſtions of their law, but to have nothing laid to his charge worthy of death, or of bonds.

30 And when it was told me how that the Jews laid wait for the man, I ſent ſtraightway to thee, and gave commandment to his accuſers alſo to ſay before thee what they had againſt him. Farewell.

31 Then the ſoldiers, as it was commanded them, took Paul, and brought him by night to Antipatris.

32 On the morrow they left the horſemen to go with him, and returned to the caſtle;

33 Who, when they came to Ceſarea, and delivered the epiſtle to the governor, preſented Paul alſo before him.

34 And when the governor had read the letter, he aſked of what province he was. And when he underſtood that he was of Cilicia;

35 I will hear thee, ſaid he, when thine accuſers are alſo come. And he commanded him to be kept in Herod's judgment-hall.

contrary to the law of nature, as well as that of Moſes. Our bleſſed Saviour makes uſe of a compariſon of the ſame nature, when he calls the Scribes and Phariſees whited ſepulchres; and we need but look into the hiſtory of the ancient prophets, and there obſerve with what an air of authority Elijah and Eliſha ſpeak to the kings of Iſrael, and with what boldneſs Iſaiah, Jeremiah and Ezekiel reproach the prieſt, the princes and the people of Judah, with their tranſgreſſions, to juſtify our apoſtle, in taking the ſame freedom with this proud pontiff, who belied his character by his unjuſt proceedings. It ſhould however be obſerved, in vindication of St. Paul, that his words, God ſhall ſmite thee, are a prediction, not an imprecation; and a prediction which Joſephus tells us was fulfilled in a ſhort time: for when his ſon Eleazar, during the government of Florus, placed himſelf at the head of a party of mutineers, who, having made themſelves maſters of the temple, would permit no ſacrifice to be offered for the emperor, and, being joined by a company of aſſaſſins, compelled perſons of the firſt quality to fly for ſafety into ſinks and vaults. Ananias, and his brother Hezekias, were both drawn out of one of theſe places, and murdered.

6 He cried out in the council, Men and brethren, I am a Phariſee, &c.) The apoſtle here makes uſe of an innocent policy for his own preſervation, by throwing a bone of contention between the Sadducees, who denied a reſurrection, and the Phariſees who owned it: and obliged the Phariſees, in that particular at leaſt, to take his part, and ſo, by pious prudence, turned their oppoſition againſt him upon one another, that, by ſetting his enemies at variance, he might eſcape their unjuſt and malicious intentions.

26 The moſt excellent governor Felix.) Claudius Felix, who, in Tacitus, is likewiſe called Antonius, becauſe he was a ſlave both to the emperor Claudius and his mother Antonia, was the brother of Pallas the freedman and firſt favourite of the emperor, by whoſe intereſt he obtained the government of Judea, but in the adminiſtration of it he practiſed all manner of violence, avarice, and luſt. The above-cited hiſtorian tells us, that "He made his will the law of his government, and ruled the province with all the authority of a king, and the inſolence of a free ſlave, whom neither ſhame nor fear could reſtrain." He ſtuck at no manner of cruelty or injuſtice, having cauſed Jonathan the high-prieſt to be aſſaſſinated merely becauſe he ſometimes reminded him of his mal-adminiſtration; with many other enormous crimes, too tedious to relate here.

CHAP. XXIV.

CHAP. XXIV.

1 Paul accuſed by Tertullus, 10 anſwereth for himſelf.
24 He preacheth Chriſt to the governor and his wife.
27 He is left in priſon.

AND after five days Ananias the high prieſt deſcended with the elders, and with a certain orator, named Tertullus, who informed the governor againſt Paul.

2 And when he was called forth, Tertullus began to accuſe him, ſaying, Seeing that by thee we enjoy great quietneſs, and that very worthy deeds are done unto this nation by thy providence,

3 We accept it always, and in all places, moſt noble Felix, with all thankfulneſs.

4 Notwithſtanding, that I be not further tedious unto thee, I pray thee that thou wouldeſt hear us of thy clemency a few words.

5 For we have found this man a peſtilent fellow, and a mover of ſedition among all the Jews throughout the world, and a ringleader of the ſect of the Nazarenes:

6 Who alſo hath gone about to profane the temple; whom we took, and would have judged according to our law:

7 But the chief captain Lyſias came upon us, and with great violence took him away out of our hands,

8 Commanding his accuſers to come unto thee; by examining of whom, thyſelf mayeſt take knowledge of all theſe things whereof we accuſe him.

9 And the Jews alſo aſſented, ſaying, That theſe things were ſo.

10 ¶ Then Paul, after that the governor had beckoned unto him to ſpeak, anſwered, Foraſmuch as I know that thou haſt been of many years a judge unto this nation, I do the more cheerfully anſwer for myſelf:

11 Becauſe that thou mayeſt underſtand that there are yet but twelve days ſince I went up to Jeruſalem for to worſhip.

12 And they neither found me in the temple diſputing with any man, neither raiſing up the people, neither in the ſynagogues, nor in the city:

13 Neither can they prove the things whereof they now accuſe me.

14 But this I confeſs unto thee, that, after the way which they call hereſy, ſo worſhip I the God of my fathers, believing all things which are written in the law and in the prophets;

15 And have hope toward God, which they themſelves alſo allow, that there ſhall be a reſurrection of the dead, both of the juſt and unjuſt.

16 And herein do I exerciſe myſelf, to have always a conſcience void of offence toward God and toward men.

17 Now, after many years I came to bring alms to my nation, and offerings.

18 Whereupon certain Jews from Aſia, found me purified in the temple, neither with multitude nor with tumult.

19 Who ought to have been here before thee, and object, if they had ought againſt me.

20 Or elſe let theſe ſame here ſay, if they have found any evil-doing in me, while I ſtood before the council,

21 Except it be for this one voice, that I cried ſtanding among them, Touching the reſurrection of the dead I am called in queſtion by you this day.

22 And when Felix heard theſe things, having more perfect knowledge of that way, he deferred them, and ſaid, When Lyſias the chief captain ſhall come down, I will know the uttermoſt of your matter.

23 And he commanded a centurion to keep Paul, and to let him have liberty, and that he ſhould forbid none of his acquaintance to miniſter or come unto him.

24 ¶ And after certain days, when Felix came with his wife Druſilla, which was a Jeweſs, he ſent for Paul, and heard him concerning the faith in Chriſt.

25 And as he reaſoned of righteouſneſs, temperance, and judgment to come, Felix trembled; and anſwered, Go thy way for this time: when I have a convenient ſeaſon I will call for thee.

26 He hoped alſo that money ſhould have been given him of Paul, that he might looſe him: wherefore he ſent for him the oftener, and communed with him.

27 ¶ But after two years Porcius Feſtus came into Felix' room: and Felix willing to ſhew the Jews a pleaſure, left Paul bound.

CHAP. XXV.

Paul, accuſed before Feſtus, appealeth unto Ceſar.

NOW when Feſtus was come into the province, after three days he aſcended from Ceſarea to Jeruſalem.

2 Then the high prieſt, and the chief of the Jews, informed him againſt Paul, and beſought him,

3 And deſired favour againſt him, that he would ſend for him to Jeruſalem, laying wait in the way to kill him.

4 But Feſtus anſwered, that Paul ſhould be kept at Ceſarea, and that he himſelf would depart ſhortly thither.

5 Let them, therefore, ſaid he, which among you are able, go down with me, and accuſe this man, if there be any wickedneſs in him.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXIV.

5 A ringleader of the ſect of the Nazarenes.) This is the only place in ſcripture wherein the Chriſtians are called Nazarenes, tho' the great Author and Founder of their religion was frequently ſtiled Jeſus of Nazareth, from a city of Galilee of that name, where he was brought up.

12 They neither found me in the temple diſputing with any man, &c.) Our apoſtle, being accuſed of three notorious crimes, namely, ſedition, hereſy, and profanation of the temple, anſwers to every one of them. With regard to the firſt, he proved that he was ſo far from being guilty of ſedition, that he came up to the temple to worſhip the God of his fathers, and bring alms to the poor of his nation. Nor had he ſo much as diſputed with any man, either in the temple, the ſynagogue, or the city; and challenged his accuſers to prove the contrary.

24 When Felix came with his wife Druſilla, &c.) Druſilla was a daughter of Herod Agrippa, and brought up in the Jewiſh religion; but her virtue was far below her beauty: ſhe being one of the fineſt women of that age, Felix fell in love with her, and perſuaded her to forſake her huſband, Azizus king of Emeſſa, and be married to himſelf, though a Pagan.

26 He hoped alſo that money ſhould have been given him of Paul, &c.) Felix might the rather hope for a good boon from Paul, conſidering that he had lately collected from the Chriſtians a large ſupply for the poor at Jeruſalem, (ver. 17.) and that perhaps the whole of it might not be as yet diſpoſed of; or, if it were, that the ſame friends who entruſted him with that, both could and would raiſe a conſiderable ſum for the releaſe of one who ſtood ſo high in their eſteem, and was ſo important to them.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXV.

1 Now when Feſtus was come into the province.) Joſephus tells us, that when Feſtus came into Judea, he found all in the greateſt deſolation and diſtreſs: the country laid waſte; the people forced from their habitations; their houſes expoſed to fire and pillage: and lying at the mercy of a brutal band of vagabond free-booters, who, in great numbers, ravaged up and down the country at pleaſure. There was alſo at this time a famous impoſtor, with a train of credulous rabble at his heels, whom he had deluded into an opinion, that if they would but follow him into the wilderneſs, no harm ſhould ever befal them. Both theſe the governor endeavoured to ſuppreſs, and the latter he did effectually; but he he had not time wholly to free the country from the ravages of the banditti, dying within two years after he came to the government, and was ſucceeded in the province by Albinus,

6 And when he had tarried among them more than ten days, he went down unto Cesarea; and the next day, sitting in the judgment-seat, commanded Paul to be brought.

7 And when he was come, the Jews which came down from Jerusalem stood round about, and laid many and grievous complaints against Paul, which they could not prove;

8 While he answered for himself, Neither against the law of the Jews, neither against the temple, nor yet against Cesar, have I offended any thing at all.

9 But Festus, willing to do the Jews a pleasure, answered Paul, and said, Wilt thou go up to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these things before me.

10 Then said Paul, I stand at Cesar's judgment-seat, where I ought to be judged: to the Jews have I done no wrong, as thou very well knowest.

11 For if I be an offender, or have committed any thing worthy of death, I refuse not to die: but if there be none of these things whereof these accuse me, no man may deliver me unto them. I appeal unto Cesar.

12 Then Festus, when he had conferred with the council, answered, Hast thou appealed unto Cesar? unto Cesar shalt thou go.

13 And after certain days king Agrippa and Bernice came unto Cesarea to salute Festus.

14 And when they had been there many days, Festus declared Paul's cause unto the king, saying, There is a certain man left in bonds by Felix?

15 About whom, when I was at Jerusalem, the chief priests and the elders of the Jews informed me, desiring to have judgment against him.

16 To whom I answered, It is not the manner of the Romans to deliver any man to die before that he which is accused have the accusers face to face, and have licence to answer for himself concerning the crime laid against him.

17 Therefore, when they were come hither, without any delay, on the morrow I sat on the judgment-seat, and I command the man to be brought forth;

18 Against whom, when the accusers stood up, they brought none accusation of such things as I supposed:

19 But had certain questions against him of their own superstition, and of one Jesus which was dead, whom Paul affirmed to be alive.

20 And because I doubted of such manner of questions, I asked him whether he would go to Jerusalem, and there be judged of these matters.

21 But when Paul had appealed to be reserved unto the hearing of Augustus, I commanded him to be kept till I might send him to Cesar.

22 Then Agrippa said unto Festus, I would also hear the man myself. To-morrow, said he, thou shalt hear him.

23 And on the morrow, when Agrippa was come, and Bernice, with great pomp, and was entered into the place of hearing, with the chief captains and principal men of the city, at Festus' commandment Paul was brought forth.

24 And Festus said, King Agrippa, and all men which are here present with us, ye see this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews have dealt with me, both at Jerusalem, and also here, crying, that he ought not to live any longer.

25 But when I found that he had committed nothing worthy of death, and that he himself hath appealed to Augustus, I have determined to send him.

26 Of whom I have no certain thing to write unto my lord. Wherefore I have brought him forth before you, and specially before thee, O king Agrippa, that, after examination had, I might have somewhat to write.

27 For it seemeth to me unreasonable to send a prisoner, and not withal to signify the crimes laid against him.

CHAP. XXVI.

1 Paul before Agrippa declareth his life, 12 and his conversion. 24 Festus chargeth him to be mad.

THEN Agrippa said unto Paul, Thou art permitted to speak for thyself. Then Paul stretched forth the hand, and answered for himself.

2 I think myself happy, king Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee, touching all the things whereof I am accused of the Jews;

3 Especially, because I know thee to be expert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews: wherefore I beseech thee to hear me patiently.

4 My manner of life from my youth, which was at the first among mine own nation at Jerusalem, know all the Jews;

5 Which knew me from the beginning, (if they would testify,) that, after the most straitest sect of our religion, I lived a Pharisee.

6 And now I stand and am judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers:

11 I appeal unto Cesar.) This manner of appealing was very common among the Romans, and introduced to secure the lives and fortunes of the populace from the unjust incroachments and over-rigorous severities of the magistrates; whereby it was lawful, in cases of oppression, to appeal to them for redress and rescue; a privilege more than once settled by the Valerian laws. These appeals were generally made in writing by the appellatory libels given into the court, and contained an account of the appellant, the person against whom, and from whose sentence he did appeal. But where it was done in open court, it was enough for the prisoners to declare verbally, that he did appeal. St. Paul well knew that he should have no fair and equitable dealings at the hands of the governor, when swayed by the Jews, his sworn and inveterate enemies, and therefore appealed from him to the emperor; nor could Festus deny his demand.

13 King Agrippa and Bernice came unto Cesarea, to salute Festus.) Herod Agrippa, who slew the apostle James with the sword, (chap. xii. 1, 2.) appeared to be a zealous Jew, and educated his children in the Jewish religion. The emperors Claudius and Nero made this Agrippa, his son, king of the tetrarchy which formerly belonged to Philip, (Luke iii. 1.) as also of Lysania, and part of Galilee, &c. And, by permission of the emperor, he had the direction of the sacred treasure, the government of the temple, and the right of nominating the high priest, and was himself a zealous observer of the Jewish religion, and an excellent prince, of great generosity and clemency. Bernice was one of the daughters of Herod Agrippa; but a lady of no good character.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXVI.

6 Now I stand, and am judged for the hope of the promise, &c.) It appears from ver. 8. that the apostle here speaks of the resurrection; and the connection of ver. 9. with that verse, seems to intimate that he meant the resurrection of Christ, for otherwise, what he there says about the things which he once thought he ought to do contrary to the name of Jesus, seems to be brought in too abruptly. It likewise appears from chap. xxiv. 15. that he included a resurrection of the righteous to eternal life, which was the object of his hope; and as the resurrection of Christ was a grand article, which ran through the apostle's ministry, we cannot but suppose, that he mentioned their resurrection, as the fruit and consequence of his. When therefore he represents the great benefit hoped for, as a matter of promise, he seems to intend, that it was either the upshot of all the promises, or of some eminent and comprehensive promise made to the fathers, such as that given to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, that God would be their God: from whence our Lord inferred the resurrection of the dead, (Matt. xxii. 31, 32.) and, with respect to which, God is said to have prepared them a city, Heb. xi. 16. or the promise to Abraham, that in his seed all nations should be blessed, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come: and this promise of the Messiah included his own resurrection, (Ps. xvi. 10.) and the resurrection of others to eternal life through him: for they that be of faith could not otherwise be blessed with faithful Abraham, and, as Abraham's seed, be heirs according to the promise, as the apostle says they are, Gal. iii. 9, 29. Accordingly Dr.

7 Unto

7 Unto which promiſe our twelve tribes, inſtantly ſerving God day and night hope to come: for which hope's ſake, king Agrippa, I am accuſed of the Jews.

8 Why ſhould it be thought a thing incredible with you that God ſhould raiſe the dead?

9 I verily thought with myſelf, that I ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jeſus of Nazareth.

10 Which thing I alſo did in Jeruſalem: and many of the ſaints did I ſhut up in priſon, having received authority from the chief prieſts; and when they were put to death, I gave my voice againſt them.

11 And I puniſhed them oft in every ſynagogue, and compelled them to blaſpheme; and being exceedingly mad againſt them, I perſecuted them even unto ſtrange cities.

12 ¶ Whereupon, as I went to Damaſcus with authority and commiſſion from the chief prieſts, 13 At mid-day, O king! I ſaw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightneſs of the ſun, ſhining round about me, and them which journeyed with me.

14 And when we were all fallen to the earth, I heard a voice ſpeaking unto me, and ſaying in the Hebrew tongue, Saul, Saul why perſecuteſt thou me? It is hard for thee to kick againſt the pricks.

15 And I ſaid, Who art thou, Lord? And he ſaid, I am Jeſus whom thou perſecuteſt.

16 But riſe, and ſtand upon thy feet: for I have appeared unto thee for this purpoſe, to make thee a miniſter and a witneſs both of theſe things which thou haſt ſeen, and of thoſe things in the which I will appear to thee.

17 Delivering thee from the people, and from the Gentiles unto whom now I ſend thee.

18 To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkneſs to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveneſs of ſins, and inheritance among them which are ſanctified by faith that is in me.

19 Whereupon, O king Agrippa, I was not diſobedient unto the heavenly viſion:

20 But ſhewed firſt unto them of Damaſcus, and at Jeruſalem, and throughout all the coaſts of Judea, and then to the Gentiles, that they ſhould repent and turn to God, and do works meet for repentance.

21 For theſe cauſes the Jews caught me in the temple, and went about to kill me.

22 Having, therefore, obtained help of God, I continue unto this day, witneſſing both to ſmall and great, ſaying none other things than thoſe which the prophets and Moſes did ſay ſhould come;

23 That Chriſt ſhould ſuffer, and that he ſhould be the firſt that ſhould riſe from the dead, and ſhould ſhew light unto the people, and to the Gentiles.

24 ¶ And as he thus ſpake for himſelf, Feſtus ſaid with a loud voice, Paul, thou art beſide thyſelf; much learning doth make thee mad.

25 But he ſaid, I am not mad, moſt noble Feſtus: but ſpeak forth the words of truth and ſoberneſs.

26 For the king knoweth of theſe things, before whom alſo I ſpeak freely: for I am perſuaded that none of theſe things are hidden from him; for this thing was not done in a corner.

27 King Agrippa, believeſt thou the prophets? I know that thou believeſt.

28 Then Agrippa ſaid unto Paul, Almoſt thou perſuadeſt me to be a Chriſtian.

29 And Paul ſaid, I would to God, that not only thou, but alſo all that hear me this day, were both almoſt, and altogether ſuch as I am, except theſe bonds.

30 And when he had thus ſpoken, the king roſe up, and the governor, and Bernice, and they that ſat with them.

31 And when they were gone aſide, they talked between themſelves, ſaying, This man doeth nothing worthy of death or of bonds.

32 Then ſaid Agrippa unto Feſtus, This man might have been ſet at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Ceſar.

CHAP. XXVII.

1 Paul ſhipping toward Rome, 10 foretelleth the danger of the voyage, 11 but is not believed.

AND when it was determined that we ſhould ſail into Italy, they delivered Paul, and certain other priſoners, unto one named Julius, a centurion of Auguſtus' band.

2 And entering into a ſhip of Adramyttium, we launched, meaning to ſail by the coaſts of Aſia, one Ariſtarchus, a Macedonian of Theſſalonica, being with us.

3 And the next day we touched at Sidon. And Julius courteouſly entreated Paul, and gave him liberty to go unto his friends to refreſh himſelf.

4 And when we had launched from thence, we ſailed under Cyprus, becauſe the winds were contrary.

5 And when we had ſailed over the ſea of Cilicia and Pamphylia, we came to Myra, a city of Lycia.

6 And there the centurion found a ſhip of Alexandria ſailing into Italy; and he put us therein.

7 And when we had ſailed ſlowly many days, and

Whitby obſerves from Maimonides, that it was one of the fundamental articles of the Jews, that their Meſſiah ſhould raiſe the dead, and bring them into paradiſe: and as it was expreſsly foretold, Dan. xii. 2. that of them that ſleep in the duſt of the earth, ſome ſhall awake to everlaſting life; ſo we are aſſured, (Heb. xi. 35, 39.) that ſome of the ancient worthies were tortured, not accepting deliverance, that they might obtain a better reſurrection; and that theſe all having obtained a good report, through faith, received not the promiſe.

17 Delivering thee from the people, &c.) The people, evidently mean the Jews, in diſtinction from the Gentiles, as they are alſo diſtinguiſhed, ver. 23. Accordingly after the people, the Syriac verſion and ſome manuſcripts read of the Jews.

28 Almoſt thou perſuadeſt me to be a Chriſtian.) This ſeems to imply, that from the time they took the name of Chriſtians upon themſelves at Antioch, it was become their common appellation.

32 This man might have been ſet at liberty, if he had not appealed unto Ceſar.) There was at preſent no law of the empire that could affect Paul; for Claudius' edict, chap. xviii. 2. which baniſhed the Jews (and perhaps included the Chriſtians) from Rome, died with him: and Nero did not begin to perſecute the Chriſtians, till the tenth year of his reign, which was at leaſt four, ſome ſay double, that number of years, after this time; and therefore it was high prudence in Paul to appeal to Ceſar, that he might be judged by the imperial laws, rather than be delivered up to the Jews, as in chap. xxv. 10, 11. It is generally agreed that, by the Roman law, no judge of an inferior court could diſcharge, any more than condemn a priſoner, after an appeal to Ceſar, in caſe the proſecutors joined iſſue upon the appeal, and conſented to it. But ſome are of opinion, that unleſs the proſecutors did ſo, the appeal was not abſolutely binding: and that therefore Agrippa and Feſtus, being unwilling to diſoblige the Jews, by ſetting Paul at liberty, made this ſerve for an excuſe of their continuing him in cuſtody, when they themſelves knew that they might have juſtified the diſcharging him.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXVII.

2 One Ariſtarchus, a Macedonian, &c.) The laſt we heard of the hiſtorian Luke, and of Ariſtarchus, was when Paul went to Jeruſalem, and was ſeized in the temple, (chap. xxi.) That Ariſtarchus went with him thither, muſt be ſuppoſed, becauſe he was one of the meſſengers of the church at Theſſalonica, to accompany him in carrying their charitable contributions to the poor Chriſtians there, chap. xx. 4. And that Luke travelled with him thither, appears from his ſpeaking of himſelf as one of Paul's company, when he arrived at Jeruſalem, chap. xxi. 17. And as we now find both theſe perſons with Paul at his going a ſhip-board, it is reaſonable to conclude that they either went with him, or ſoon followed him from Jeruſalem to Ceſarea, and, probably, attended him all the time of his confinement there.

ſcarce were come over againſt Cnidus, the wind not ſuffering us, we ſailed under Crete, over againſt Salmone;

8 And hardly paſſing it, came unto a place which is called The Fair Havens, nigh whereunto was the city of Laſea.

9 Now, when much time was ſpent, and when ſailing was now dangerous, becauſe the faſt was now already paſt, Paul admoniſhed them,

10 And ſaid unto them, Sirs, I perceive that this voyage will be with hurt and much damage, not only of the lading and ſhip, but alſo of our lives.

11 ¶ Nevertheleſs, the centurion believed the maſter and the owner of the ſhip more than thoſe things which were ſpoken by Paul.

12 And becauſe the haven was not commodious to winter in, the more part adviſed to depart thence alſo, if by any means they might attain to Phenice, and there to winter; which is an haven of Crete, and lieth toward the ſouth-weſt and north-weſt.

13 And when the ſouth wind blew ſoftly, ſuppoſing that they had obtained their purpoſe, looſing thence, they ſailed cloſe by Crete.

14 ¶ But not long after there aroſe againſt it a tempeſtuous wind, called Euroclydon.

15 And when the ſhip was caught, and could not bear up into the wind, we let her drive.

16 And running under a certain iſland which is called Clauda, we had much work to come by the boat;

17 Which, when they had taken up, they uſed helps, undergirding the ſhip; and, fearing leſt they ſhould fall into the quickſands, ſtrake ſail, and ſo were driven.

18 And we being exceedingly toſſed with a tempeſt, the next day they lightened the ſhip;

19 And the third day we caſt out with our own hands the tackling of the ſhip.

20 And when neither ſun nor ſtars in many days appeared, and no ſmall tempeſt lay on us, all hope that we ſhould be ſaved was then taken away.

21 ¶ But after long abſtinence, Paul ſtood forth in the midſt of them, and ſaid, Sirs, ye ſhould have hearkened unto me, and not have looſed from Crete, and to have gained this harm and loſs.

22 And now I exhort you to be of good cheer: for there ſhall be no loſs of any man's life among you, but of the ſhip.

23 For there ſtood by me this night the angel of God, whoſe I am, and whom I ſerve, 24 Saying, Fear not, Paul; thou muſt be brought before Ceſar: and, lo, God hath given thee all them that ſail with thee.

25 Wherefore, ſirs, be of good cheer; for I believe God, that it ſhall be even as it was told me.

26 Howbeit, we muſt be caſt upon a certain iſland.

27 But when the fourteenth night was come, as we were driven up and down in Adria, about midnight the ſhipmen deemed that they drew near to ſome country;

28 And ſounded, and found it twenty fathoms: and when they had gone a little further, they ſounded again, and found it fifteen fathoms.

29 Then, fearing leſt we ſhould have fallen upon rocks, they caſt four anchors out of the ſtern, and wiſhed for the day.

30 And as the ſhipmen were about to flee out of the ſhip, when they had let down the boat into the ſea, under colour as though they would have caſt anchors out of the foreſhip,

31 Paul ſaid to the centurion, and to the ſoldiers, Except theſe abide in the ſhip, ye cannot be ſaved.

32 Then the ſoldiers cut off the ropes of the boat, and let her fall off.

33 And while the day was coming on, Paul beſought them all to take meat, ſaying, This day is the fourteenth day that ye have tarried, and continued faſting, having taken nothing.

34 Wherefore I pray you to take ſome meat; for this is for your health: for there ſhall not an hair fall from the head of any of you.

35 And when he had thus ſpoken, he took bread, and gave thanks to God in preſence of them all, and when he had broken it, he began to eat.

36 Then were they all of good cheer, and they alſo took ſome meat.

37 And we were in all in the ſhip two hundred threeſcore and ſixteen ſouls.

38 And when they had eaten enough, they lightened the ſhip, and caſt out the wheat into the ſea.

39 And when it was day, they knew not the land: but they diſcovered a certain creek with a ſhore, into the which they were minded, if it were poſſible, to thruſt in the ſhip.

40 And when they had taken up the anchors, they committed themſelves unto the ſea, and looſed the rudder-bands, and hoiſted up the main ſail to the wind, and made toward ſhore.

41 And falling into a place where two ſeas met, they ran the ſhip aground: and the fore-part ſtuck faſt, and remained unmoveable, but the hinder-part was broken with the violence of the waves.

42 And the ſoldiers counſel was to kill the priſoners, leſt any of them ſhould ſwim out, and eſcape.

43 But the centurion, willing to ſave Paul, kept them from their purpoſe, and commanded that they which could ſwim ſhould caſt themſelves firſt into the ſea, and get to land;

44 ¶ And the reſt, ſome on boards, and ſome on broken pieces of the ſhip: and ſo it came to paſs, that they eſcaped all ſafe to land.

CHAP. XXVIII.

1 Paul is entertained by the barbarians. 8 He healeth many in the iſland. 11 They depart towards Rome. 30 He preacheth there two years.

AND when they were eſcaped, then they knew that the iſland was called Melita.

8 The Fair Havens.) This place ſtill retains that name in the iſland of Crete, which is now called Candia, in the Mediterranean ſea.

9 The faſt was now already paſt, &c.) This, without all controverſy was the great annual faſt of expiation for the ſins of the people of Iſrael, (Lev. xvi. 29.) which began on the tenth day of the month Tizri, which anſwers to the 25th of our September. This was the commencement of the civil year; and therefore 'tis no wonder, that St. Luke ſhould make uſe of this epocha, the faſt being already paſt, to denote a particular part of the year, ſince he wrote his goſpel for the uſe of Chriſtians, who at this time were chiefly Jewiſh converts; and conſequently no ſtrangers to this ſort of language.

27 Adria.) This is ſuppoſed not to be meant of the gulf of Venice which is now called the Adriatic ſea, but of that part of the Mediterranean which lay between Crete and Sicily, together with the lower parts of Italy.

38 The wheat.) It ſeems this was a ſhip of Alexandria, which carried corn from thence to Rome.

40 Looſed the rudder-bands.) Ships, it ſeems, in thoſe times had often two rudders, which were faſtened by bands or chains, one on each ſide the ſhip; when thoſe bands were looſened, or lengthened out, the rudders ſunk deeper into the water, and by their weight preſerved the ſhip from being overſet by the winds. Theſe mariners ſeem to have bound the rudders as tight as they could, while they lay at anchor, leſt they ſhould be broke off by the violence of the ſtorm; but now they looſened their bands, that they might the better uſe them in ſteering the veſſel, and it might move the more ſteadily and ſafely toward the ſhore.

2 And the barbarous people ſhewed us no little kindneſs: for they kindled a fire, and received us every one, becauſe of the preſent rain, and becauſe of the cold.

3 And when Paul had gathered a bundle of ſticks, and laid them on the fire, there came a viper out of the heat, and faſtened on his hand.

4 And when the barbarians ſaw the venomous beaſt hang on his hand, they ſaid among themſelves, No doubt this man is a murderer, whom, though he hath eſcaped the ſea, yet vengeance ſuffereth not to live.

5 And he ſhook off the beaſt into the fire, and felt no harm.

6 Howbeit, they looked when he ſhould have ſwollen, or fallen down dead ſuddenly: but after they had looked a great while, and ſaw no harm come to him, they changed their minds, and ſaid that he was a god.

7 In the ſame quarters were poſſeſſions of the chief man of the iſland, whoſe name was Publius, who received us, and lodged us three day courteouſly.

8 ¶ And it came to paſs, that the father of Publius lay ſick of a fever, and of a bloody flux: to whom Paul entered in, and prayed, and laid his hands on him, and healed him.

9 So when this was done, others alſo which had diſeaſes in the iſland came and were healed;

10 Who alſo honoured us with many honours: and and when we departed, they laded us with ſuch things as were neceſſary.

11 ¶ And after three months we departed in a ſhip of Alexandria, which had wintered in the iſle, whoſe ſign was Caſtor and Pollux.

12 And landing at Syracuſe, we tarried there three days.

13 And from thence we fetched a compaſs, and came to Rhegium: and after one day the ſouth wind blew, and we came the next day to Puteoli;

14 Where we found brethren, and were deſired to tarry with them ſeven days; and ſo we went toward Rome.

15 And from thence, when the brethren heard of us, they came to meet us as far as Appii Forum and The Three Taverns: whom when Paul ſaw, he thanked God, and took courage.

16 And when we came to Rome, the centurion delivered the priſoners to the captain of the guard: but Paul was ſuffered to dwell by himſelf, with a ſoldier that kept him.

17 And it came to paſs, that after three days Paul called the chief of the Jews together: and when they were come together, he ſaid unto them, Men and brethren, though I have committed nothing againſt the people or cuſtoms of our fathers, yet was I delivered priſoner from Jeruſalem into the hands of the Romans:

18 Who, when they had examined me, would have let me go, becauſe there was no cauſe of death in me.

19 But when the Jews ſpake againſt it, I was conſtrained to appeal unto Ceſar; not that I had ought to accuſe my nation of.

20 For this cauſe, therefore, have I called for you, to ſee you, and to ſpeak with you: becauſe that for the hope of Iſrael I am bound with this chain.

21 And they ſaid unto him, We neither received letters out of Judea concerning thee, neither any of the brethren that came ſhewed or ſpake any harm of thee.

22 But we deſire to hear of thee what thou thinkeſt: for as concerning this ſect, we know that every where it is ſpoken againſt.

23 And when they had appointed him a day, there came many to him into his lodging; to whom he expounded and teſtified the kingdom of God, perſuading them concerning Jeſus, both out of the law of Moſes, and out of the prophets, from morning till evening.

24 And ſome believed the things which were ſpoken, and ſome believed not.

25 And when they agreed not among themſelves, they departed, after that Paul had ſpoken one word, Well ſpake the Holy Ghoſt, by Eſaias the prophet, unto our fathers,

26 Saying, Go unto this people, and ſay, Hearing ye ſhall hear, and ſhall not underſtand; and ſeeing ye ſhall ſee, and not perceive:

27 For the heart of this people is waxed groſs, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes have they cloſed; leſt they ſhould ſee with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and underſtand with their heart, and ſhould be converted, and I ſhould heal them.

28 Be it known, therefore, unto you, that the ſalvation of God is ſent unto the Gentiles, and that they will hear it.

29 And when he had ſaid theſe words the Jews departed, and had great reaſoning among themſelves.

30 ¶ And Paul dwelt two whole years in his own hired houſe, and received all that came in unto him, 31 Preaching the kindom of God, and teaching thoſe things which concern the Lord Jeſus Chriſt with all confidence, no man forbidding him.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXVIII.

3 There came a viper out of the heat and faſtened on his hand.) A ſort of ſerpent ſo called, which brings forth its young alive, it is but a ſmall creature, the largeſt of them not being above half an ell long, and an inch thick; but ſo very poiſonous, that the bite of it will ſometimes kill a perſon in a moment, or cauſe a ſudden inflammation all over the body; as the people of Malta, we ſee, expected of St. Paul, ver. 6. The people of that iſland, however have a tradition, that ever ſince the time that the apoſtle was bitten, by one, whatever vipers are found there, have no venom; and that ſome of them, which out of curioſity, were carried into Sicily, became as poiſonous as others: but when brought back to Malta again, loſe all their venomous quality. Nay, they add farther, that as there are great numbers of petrified vipers and other ſerpents in this iſland, ſuch as carry pieces of theſe about them will be preſerved from the biting of any venomous animal. And that thoſe who, for want of them, chance to be bitten, may certainly be cured, by taking ſome of the powder of one of the petrefactions mingled in a little water.

11 Caſtor and Pollux) Theſe images were carved or painted in the form of two young men, mounted on two ſtately white horſes, each of them holding a javelin in his hand, and were reputed by the idolatrous Gentiles, to be the twin-ſons of Jupiter and Leda, and to be propitious to mariners; ſo that they expected the protection from theſe fictitious deities, which entirely depends on the good providence of the only true God, who made the heavens, earth and ſea, and whoſe kingdom rules over all.

21 We neither received letters, &c.) It is highly probable that Paul, having appealed to Ceſar, the Jews durſt not follow him to that court, leſt they ſhould render themſelves obnoxious to Nero, the then reigning emperor, who already had no great favour for them, though as yet he ſuffered them to live at Rome. And therefore they of Judea had ſent no informations, and thoſe of Rome would not venture to appear in a judicial proceſs againſt him; and ſo Paul gained his end of getting out of their hands by his appeal, chap. xxv. 11.

30 Paul dwelt two whole years, &c.) Paul had been two years a priſoner under Felix at Ceſarea, (chap. xxiv 27.) and, as is generally allowed, was kept in bonds, at leaſt another year, under Feſtus, and in his tedious voyage, before he arrived at Rome; ſo that the whole of his impriſonment was five years. But as Providence now gave him greater liberty, and better opportunities, for ſervice, than in the former part of his confinement; ſo it is commonly concluded, and appears from Eph. iii. 1. Col. iv. 18. Phil. i. 7, 13, 16. that he wrote all thoſe epiſtles during this his firſt impriſonment at Rome. Chryſoſtom tells us, that St. Paul converted one of Nero's concubines, which ſo incenſed that cruel prince, that he put him to death; probably after an impriſonment, in which the ſecond epiſtle to Timothy was written. It is univerſally agreed that he was beheaded at Aquæ Salviæ, three miles from Rome.

The EPISTLE of PAUL the APOSTLE,

TO THE ROMANS.

THE ARGUMENT.

The apoſtle Paul wrote this epiſtle while he was at Corinth, as appears from his ſending it by Phœbe, a ſervant of the church at Cenchrea, which was a ſea port belonging to Corinth: and is ſtill further evident from the ſalutations he ſent from Gaius his hoſt, and Eraſtus the chamberlain of the city, both which were inhabitants of Corinth: and it is generally ſuppoſed to have been wrote about the year of our Lord 57, when the apoſtle was preparing to go by Troas to Jeruſalem; (Acts xx. 2, 3, &c.)

CHAP. I.

1 Paul's calling commended. 16 What his goſpel is. 18 God's anger at ſin. 21 The Gentiles' ſin.

PAUL a ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, called to be an apoſtle, ſeparated unto the goſpel of God,

2 Which he had promiſed afore by his prophets in the holy ſcriptures,

3 Concerning his Son Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, which was made of the ſeed of David according to the fleſh,

4 And declared to be the Son of God with power; according to the ſpirit of holineſs by the reſurrection from the dead:

5 By whom we have received grace and apoſtleſhip for obedience to the faith among all nations for his name:

6 Among whom are ye alſo the called of Jeſus Chriſt:

7 To all that be in Rome, beloved of God, called to be ſaints: Grace to you and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

8 Firſt, I thank my God through Jeſus Chriſt for you all, that your faith is ſpoken of throughout the whole world.

9 For God is my witneſs, whom I ſerve with my ſpirit in the goſpel of his Son, that without ceaſing, I make mention of you always in my prayers;

10 Making requeſt, if by any means now at length I might have a proſperous journey by the will of God, to come unto you.

11 For I long to ſee you, that I may impart unto you ſome ſpiritual gift, to the end ye may be eſtabliſhed;

12 That is that I may be comforted together with you by the mutual faith both of you and me.

13 Now I would not have you ignorant, brethren, that oftentimes I purpoſed to come unto you (but was let hitherto,) that I might have ſome fruit among you alſo, even as among other Gentiles.

14 I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the Barbarians: both to the wiſe and to the unwiſe.

15 So, as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the goſpel to you that are at Rome alſo.

16 ¶ For I am not aſhamed of the goſpel of Chriſt: for it is the power of God unto ſalvation for every one that believeth, to the Jew firſt, and alſo to the Greek.

17 For therein is the righteouſneſs of God revealed from faith to faith; as it is written, The juſt ſhall live by faith.

18 ¶ For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven againſt all ungodlineſs and unrighteouſneſs of men, who hold the truth in unrighteouſneſs.

19 Becauſe that which may be known of God is manifeſt in them: for God hath ſhewed it unto them.

20 For the inviſible things of him from the creation

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

2 An apoſtle.) Apoſtles ſignify perſons ſent; and the apoſtles of our Lord were the prime miniſters of his kingdom, who were ſent immediately by himſelf at his firſt ſetting it up in the world. There never were, nor ever can be any ſucceſſors to their ſpecial characters, privileges, and powers, in after-ages of the church: for they were only ſuch, as had ſeen and heard the Lord after he was riſen from the dead; and were ſent to teſtify his reſurrection, as eye and ear-witneſſes, and to publiſh the whole ſcheme of the goſpel under an immediate inſpiration of his Spirit, and they were furniſhed with miraculous powers, for confirming and vindicating the doctrines they preached, and conferring the gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, by laying their hands on thoſe that believed. And as Paul was made the great apoſtle of the Gentiles, he had all theſe qualifications for his office: he had ſeen the Lord after his reſurrection, and heard him ſpeak from heaven, 1 Cor. ix. 1. xv. 8. and Acts ix. 4. He received his authority not from men, but immediately from Chriſt himſelf, who ſent him to the Gentiles, and revealed to him what he was to preach to them, Acts xxii. 17, 18, 21. and xxvi. 16—18. Gal. i. 1, 11—16, and Eph. iii. 1—8. And he was endued with all apoſtolic powers, inſomuch that he was not a whit behind the very chieſeſt apoſtles, 2 Cor. xi. 5.

13 I oftentimes purpoſed to come unto you, but was let hitherto.) The apoſtle's being let hitherto ſeems principally to refer to the full employment, which the providence of God had called him to, in other places among the Gentiles, where the goſpel had never been preached by any one elſe, which he particularly takes notice of, chap. xv. 19—22. At other times he was prevented, by the ſpecial direction of the Spirit, and extraordinary viſion, contrary to his own deſign, as in Acts xvi. 6—10. And at others, by the oppoſition and troubles he met with in Aſia and Greece, Acts xiii, xiv, &c. and ſo Satan hindered him, by ſtirring up evil inſtruments againſt him, as he had ſaid in another caſe, 1 Theſſ. ii, 18.

of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse:

21 ¶ Because that when they knew God, they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations, and their foolish heart was darkened.

22 Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools:

23 And changed the glory of the uncorruptible God into an image made like to corruptible man, and to birds, and four-footed beasts, and creeping things.

24 Wherefore God also gave them up to uncleanness through the lust of their own hearts, to dishonour their own bodies between themselves:

25 Who changed the truth of God into a lie, and worshipped and served the creature more than the Creator, who is blessed for ever. Amen.

26 For this cause God gave them up unto vile affections: for even their women did change the natural use into that which is against nature:

27 And likewise also the men leaving the natural use of the woman, burned in their lust one toward another, men with men working that which is unseemly, and receiving in themselves that recompence of their error which was meet.

28 And even as they did not like to retain God in their knowledge, God gave them over to a reprobate mind, to do those things which are not convenient;

29 Being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity, whisperers.

30 Backbiters, haters of God, despiteful, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents.

31 Without understanding, covenant breakers, without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful:

32 Who knowing the judgment of God, that they which commit such things are worthy of death, not only do the same, but have pleasure in them that do them.

CHAP. II.

They that condemn sin in others, and yet sin, are inexcusable, whether Jews or Gentiles.

THEREFORE thou art inexcusable, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for, wherein thou judgest another thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest doest the same things.

2 But we are sure that the judgment of God is according to truth against them which commit such things.

3 And thinkest thou this, O man, that judgest them which do such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?

4 Or despisest thou the riches of his goodness, and forbearance, and long-suffering; not knowing that the goodness of God leadeth thee to repentance?

5 But, after thy hardness and impenitent heart, treasurest up unto thyself wrath against the day of wrath, and revelation of the righteous judgment of God;

6 Who will render to every man according to his deeds:

7 To them who, by patient continuance in well-doing, seek for glory, and honour, and immortality, eternal life:

8 But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, indignation and wrath,

9 Tribulation and anguish upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile:

10 But glory, honour, and peace, to every man that worketh good; to the Jew first, and also to the Gentile:

11 For there is no respect of persons with God.

12 For as many as have sinned without law, shall also perish without law; and as many as have sinned in the law, shall be judged by the law,

13 (For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified.

14 For, when the Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves:

15 Which shew the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience also bearing witness, and their thoughts the mean while accusing, or else excusing, one another.)

16 In the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ, according to my gospel.

17 Behold, thou art called a Jew, and restest in the law, and makest thy boast of God,

18 And knowest his will, and approvest the things that are more excellent, being instructed out of the law;

19 And art confident that thou thyself art a guide of the blind, a light of them which are in darkness,

20 An instructor of the foolish, a teacher of babes, which hast the form of knowledge and of the truth in the law.

21 Thou, therefore, which teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preachest a man should not steal, dost thou steal?

22 Thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou commit sacrilege?

23 And changed the glory of the uncorruptible God unto an image made like to corruptible man, &c.) The apostle here manifestly refers to the idolatry of several heathen nations among which we are told, that the Syrians worshipped fishes; and that the Egyptians worshipped, not only deified men; but doves, and various kinds of beasts, such as oxen, dogs, cats, griffins, and apes, and creeping things, such as serpents and crocodiles.

31 Without natural affection.) The custom of exposing new born infants, even among polite nations, is a striking proof of the truth of this assertion. We have in this chapter a melancholy and astonishing description of the corrupted state of the heathens; enough to make the ears of every one that hears it tingle: but in the 32d verse there is a worse circumstance still behind. It was not enough, it seems, to sin with an high hand themselves against plain knowledge, and the clear dictates of conscience, but they must propagate their vices, make proselytes to their abominable practices, and place their great pleasure and satisfaction in making others as bad and corrupted as themselves: they lent their hearts, their hands, and their example to the furtherance of this accursed work.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

6 Who will render to every man according to his deeds,) This relates to the kind or quality, and proportion of his deeds; and so is a description of the rule of God's proceedings in judgment, and of the persons that shall receive its different awards: for though it is true, that impenitent unbelievers shall be rewarded for, as well as according to their works, and the scripture often speaks of their sins as the deserving cause of their punishment; yet it never uses such language with respect to the rewards of the righteous: and the word here used, signifies delivering or giving in a way of favour, as well as in a way of desert. (See Matt. xxvii. 58. Luke ix. 42, and 2 Tim. iv. 8) However, as the reward of grace is founded in justice, on account of what Christ has done and suffered, God being just, and the justifier of him who believes in Jesus, (chap. iii 26) so the final retribution to the righteous as well as to the wicked, will be a revelation of the righteous judgment of God; because it will be managed in an exactly impartial manner, with regard to Jews and Gentiles at the last day, according as it shall appear by their deeds, that one or other of these characters belongs to them; and will proceed on the ground of Christ's righteousness toward the believer, as well as on the ground of personal demerit towards others.

23 Thou that makeſt thy boaſt of the law, through breaking the law, diſhonoureſt thou God?

24 For the name of God is blaſphemed among the Gentiles through you, as it is written.

25 For circumciſion verily profiteth, if thou keep the law: but if thou be a breaker of the law, thy circumciſion is made uncircumciſion.

26 Therefore, if the uncircumciſion keep the righteouſneſs of the law, ſhall not his uncircumciſion be counted for circumciſion?

27 And ſhall not uncircumciſion, which is by nature, if it fulfil the law, judge thee, who by the letter and circumciſion doſt tranſgreſs the law?

28 For he is not a Jew which is one outwardly; neither is that circumciſion which is outward in the fleſh.

29 But he is a Jew which is one inwardly: and circumciſion is that of the heart, in the ſpirit, and not in the letter; whoſe praiſe is not of men, but of God.

CHAP. III.

1 The Jews prerogative. 20 None juſtified by law, but all by faith.

WHAT advantage then hath the Jew? or, what profit is there of circumciſion?

2 Much every way: chiefly, becauſe that unto them were committed the oracles of God.

3 For what if ſome did not believe? ſhall their unbelief make the faith of God without effect?

4 God forbid: yea, let God be true, but every man a lyar; as it is written, That thou mighteſt be juſtified in thy ſayings, and mighteſt overcome when thou art judged.

5 But if our unrighteouſneſs commend the righteouſneſs of God, what ſhall we ſay? Is God unrighteous who taketh vengeance? (I ſpeak as a man.)

6 God forbid: for then how ſhall God judge the world?

7 For if the truth of God hath more abounded through my lye unto his glory; why yet am I alſo judged as a ſinner?

8 And not rather, (as we be ſlanderouſly reported, and as ſome affirm that we ſay,) Let us do evil, that good may come? whoſe damnation is juſt.

9 What then? are we better than they? No, in no wiſe: for we have before proved both Jews and Gentiles, that they are all under ſin;

10 As it is written, There is none righteous, no, not one:

11 There is none that underſtandeth, there is none that ſeeketh after God.

12 They are all gone out of the way; they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one.

13 Their throat is an open ſepulchre; with their tongues they have uſed deceit; the poiſon of aſps is under their lips:

14 Whoſe mouth is full of curſing and bitterneſs:

15 Their feet are ſwift to ſhed blood:

16 Deſtruction and miſery are in their ways:

17 And the way of peace have they not known:

18 There is no fear of God before their eyes.

19 Now we know, that what things ſoever the law ſaith, it ſaith to them who are under the law; that every mouth may be ſtopped, and all the world may become guilty before God.

20 Therefore by the deeds of the law there ſhall no fleſh be juſtified in his ſight: for by the law is the knowledge of ſin.

21 But now the righteouſneſs of God without the law is manifeſted, being witneſſed by the law and the prophets;

22 Even the righteouſneſs of God, which is by faith of Jeſus Chriſt unto all, and upon all them that believe; for there is no difference:

23 For all have ſinned, and come ſhort of the glory of God;

24 Being juſtified freely by his grace, through the redemption that is in Chriſt Jeſus:

25 Whom God hath ſet forth to be a propitiation through faith in his blood, to declare his righteouſneſs for the remiſſion of ſins that are paſt, through the forbearance of God;

26 To declare, I ſay, at this time his righteouſneſs: that he might be juſt, and the juſtifier of him which believeth in Jeſus.

27 Where is boaſting then? It is excluded. By what law? of works? Nay; but by the law of faith.

28 Therefore we conclude, that a man is juſtified by faith without the deeds of the law.

29 Is he the God of the Jews only? is he not alſo of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles alſo:

---

25 For verily circumciſion profiteth, &c.) For, as to circumciſion, which you chiefly glory in and have the greateſt dependence upon, as though it were ſufficient to ſecure you from condemnation, this indeed during the Old Teſtament diſpenſation, was one of your principal privileges, as it was the token of God's covenant, (Gen. xvii 11) and a ſeal of the righteouſneſs of faith, (Rom. iv 11) and ſo was an aſſuring pledge of his covenant grace and faithfulneſs to his people, and as it was an inſtituted ſign of deliverance from the guilt and power of their original corruption; and in that view it might have been eſteemed as an advantage to you, on ſuppoſition that, like the true children of Abraham, you were circumciſed in heart, and eſpecially in caſe, according to the obligation of that ſacred rite, (Gal. v. 3) you ſhould have perfectly obeyed, not only the ceremonial but alſo the moral law, which among other things forbids the ſtealing, adultery, and ſacrilege, as well as the idolatry before-mentioned, ver 20, 21, 22. But if you are a tranſgreſſor of the law, and live in ſin, your having been circumciſed in the fleſh will ſtand you in no more ſtead, nor give you any more acceptance with God, than if you were a mere uncircumciſed heathen.

COMMENTARY ON Chap. III.

19 That every mouth may be ſtopped, &c.) The meaning is, when God ſhall finally judge the ſecrets of all hearts he ſhall be juſtified in his ſentence, even ſinners themſelves being judges; and every mouth ſhall be ſtopped before him, not by the force of arbitrary and irreſiſtible power, but by the undeniable evidence of the juſtice, equity, and righteouſneſs of his judgments.

20 Therefore by the deeds of the law there ſhall no fleſh be juſtified.) Fleſh is here put for man, as it is expreſſed, Pſal. cxliii. 2. from whence this is quoted; and the apoſtle might chuſe, in this place, to uſe the term fleſh, to intimate the original corruption of human nature, by reaſon of which it is become incapable of keeping the law, according to the ſenſe in which he, after our Lord himſelf, (John iii. 6.) often uſes it in this epiſtle, as in chap. vii. 5, 18, 25: and chap. viii. 1, 3.

27 By what law? of works? Nay; but by the law of faith.) Any doctrine of God, whether conſiſting of precepts or free promiſes, may be ſtyled a law; becauſe, upon its being made known, it binds the conſcience, by divine authority to receive it; and when it relates to the goſpel conſtitution, it ſets out the order of God's actings in a way of grace towards us, together with our obligations to act towards him in a way of duty. Thus the term law is often uſed in a lax ſenſe for the whole of God's revealed will, and ſometimes chiefly, or at leaſt inclusively, with reſpect to his promiſes and the doctrines of grace, as in Pſal. i. 2. and xix. 7. and xciv. 12. and cxix. 18, 77, 92, 97, 165. Iſa. ii. 3. and Mich. iv. 2. And it ſeems neceſſary to underſtand it in one branch of this verſe, as ſignifying a doctrine of pure grace: becauſe that, which is here called the law of faith, is directly oppoſed to the law of works: and is ſuch a doctrine as excludes all boaſting, neither of which is conſiſtent with the ſuppoſition of faith's being a good work, by, and for the performance of which, in obedience to a law, we are intitled to eternal life: For then it would be a law of works, and would leave room for boaſting.

30 Seeing it is one God which ſhall juſtify the circumciſion by faith, and uncircumciſion through faith.

31 Do we then make void the law through faith? God forbid: yea, we eſtabliſh the law.

CHAP. IV.

1 Abraham's faith was imputed to him for righteouſneſs, 24 and ſo ſhall ours.

WHAT ſhall we ſay then that Abraham our father as pertaining to the fleſh hath found?

2 For if Abraham were juſtified by works, he hath whereof to glory, but not before God.

3 For what ſaith the ſcripture? Abraham believed God, and it was counted unto him for righteouſneſs.

4 Now to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt.

5 But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteouſneſs.

6 Even as David alſo deſcribeth the bleſſedneſs of the man unto whom God imputeth righteouſneſs without works,

7 Saying, Bleſſed are they whoſe iniquities are forgiven, and whoſe ſins are covered.

8 Bleſſed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute ſin.

9 Cometh this bleſſedneſs then upon the circumciſion only, or upon the uncircumciſion alſo? for we ſay that faith was reckoned to Abraham for righteouſneſs.

10 How was it then reckoned? when he was in circumciſion, or in uncircumciſion? not in circumciſion, but in uncircumciſion.

11 And he received the ſign of circumciſion, a ſeal of the righteouſneſs of the faith which he had yet been uncircumciſed; that he might be the father of all them that believe, though they be not circumciſed, that righteouſneſs might be imputed unto them alſo;

12 And the father of circumciſion to them who are not of the circumciſion only, but who alſo walk in the ſteps of that faith of our father Abraham which he had being yet uncircumciſed.

13 For the promiſe that he ſhould be the heir of the world was not to Abraham, or to his ſeed, through the law, but through the righteouſneſs of faith.

14 For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promiſe made of none effect;

15 Becauſe the law worketh wrath. For where no law is, there is no tranſgreſſion.

16 Therefore it is of faith, that it might be by grace; to the end the promiſe might be ſure to all the ſeed, not to that only which is of the law, but to that alſo which is of the faith of Abraham; who is the father of us all,

17 (As it is written, I have made thee a father of many nations,) before him whom he believed even God, who quickeneth the dead, and calleth thoſe things which be not as though they were.

18 Who againſt hope believed in hope, that he might become the father of many nations: according to that which was ſpoken, So ſhall thy ſeed be;

19 And being not weak in faith, he conſidered not his own body now dead, when he was about an hundred years old, neither yet the deadneſs of Sarah's womb:

20 He ſtaggered not at the promiſe of God through unbelief; but was ſtrong in faith, giving glory to God:

21 And being perſuaded that what he had promiſed, he was able alſo to perform.

22 And therefore it was imputed to him for righteouſneſs.

23 Now it was not written for his ſake alone, that it was imputed to him;

24 ¶ But for us alſo, to whom it ſhall be imputed, if we believe on him that raiſed up Jeſus our Lord from the dead.

25 Who was delivered for our offences, and was raiſed again for our juſtification.

CHAP. V.

1 Being juſtified by faith we have peace with God. 12 Sin and death came by Adam, 17 righteouſneſs and life by Chriſt.

THEREFORE being juſtified by faith, we have peace with God, through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

2 By whom alſo we have acceſs by faith into this grace wherein we ſtand, and rejoice in hope of the glory of God.

3 And not only ſo, but we glory in tribulations alſo: knowing that tribulation worketh patience;

4 And patience, experience; and experience, hope;

5 And hope maketh not aſhamed, becauſe the love of God is ſhed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Ghoſt which is given unto us.

6 For when we were yet without ſtrength, in due time Chriſt died for the ungodly.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

7 Bleſſed are they whoſe iniquities are forgiven, &c.) In this and the next verſe, which are quoted as David's words, the apoſtle mentions only God's pardoning grace, under the notions of his forgiving ſin, as a debt and an offence; of his covering it, as an odious deformity; and of his not imputing it, as a law obligation to puniſhment. And therefore, when the apoſtle calls this (v. 6.) David's deſcribing the bleſſedneſs of the man to whom God imputes righteouſneſs without works; he plainly intimates, that an imputation of righteouſneſs is ſuppoſed, or implied, as the ground of forgiveneſs, or the non-imputation of ſin: For imputing righteouſneſs, evidently includes that, though it is more than barely not imputing ſin. And, unleſs we take in this thought, the apoſtle's reaſoning ſeems not very clear from the imputation of righteouſneſs in the caſe of Abraham, to the non-imputation of ſin, in David's account of bleſſedneſs.

10 Reconciled to God by the death of his Son, &c.] The former part of this verſe, ſeems to relate to Chriſt's having worked out our reconciliation, or completed all, in a way of merit by his death, that was neceſſary to appeaſe the wrath of God, and make way for the riches of his grace to be communicated to us, in full conſiſtence with the honour of all his perfections, and of his law and government, which the apoſtle had called, (ver. 6, and 8.) Chriſt's dying for the ungodly, and dying for us: But being reconciled, in the laſt clauſe of the verſe, ſeems to relate to the reconciliation's taking effect upon us; or to our being brought into a ſtate of actual reconciliation and peace with God, and juſtification in his ſight, through faith in Chriſt's blood, which the apoſtle had ſpoken of, ver. 1, 9. and which in the verſe after this (ver. 11.) he calls our receiving the atonement.

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

6 For when we were yet without ſtrength, &c.) We were all ſunk into the deepeſt abyſs of ſin, as well as miſery: yet even while we were in this deplorable condition, through the fall, utterly inſufficient to help or recover ourſelves, and unable to reſiſt or appeaſe God's wrath, which we lay expoſed to, or to do any thing acceptable to him: yet while we were not only impotent, but impious and profane, in our unmindfulneſs and contempt of God and religion, and of his government and glory; even then Chriſt, in the fulneſs of time, according to God's eternal appointment, and frequent predictions, types, and promiſes; and at the moſt ſeaſonable time, which the Divine Wiſdom had fixed upon, when things were come to their worſt among both Jews and Gentiles, and when our need was greateſt, and the glory of God's grace would be moſt of all diſplayed, with evidence and endearment, in raiſing up a Saviour: in this beſt and propereſt time of all others, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt freely died in the room and ſtead of ſuch impotent, contemptible, and ungodly creatures as we are. Aſtoniſhing inſtance of matchleſs love and grace, infinitely ſurpaſſing all that can be found in the moſt affectionate lovers that ever appeared among mankind!

7 For ſcarcely for a righteous man will one die: yet peradventure for a good man ſome would even dare to die.

8 But God commendeth his love towards us, in that while we were yet ſinners Chriſt died for us.

9 Much more then, being now juſtified by his blood, we ſhall be ſaved from wrath through him.

10 For if when we were enemies we were reconciled to God by the death of his Son, much more being reconciled we ſhall be ſaved by his life.

11 And not only ſo, but we alſo joy in God through our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by whom we have now received the atonement.

12 ¶ Wherefore as by one man ſin entered into the world, and death by ſin; and ſo death paſſed upon all men, for that all have ſinned.

13 For until the law ſin was in the world; but ſin is not imputed when there is no law.

14 Nevertheleſs death reigned from Adam to Moſes, even over them that had not ſinned after the ſimilitude of Adam's tranſgreſſion, who is the figure of him that was to come.

15 But not as the offence ſo alſo is the free gift: for if through the offence of one many be dead, much more the grace of God, and the gift by grace, which is by one man, Jeſus Chriſt, hath abounded unto many.

16 And not as it was by one that ſinned ſo is the gift. For the judgment was by one to condemnation, but the free gift is of many offences unto juſtification.

17 ¶ For if by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteouſneſs ſhall reign in life by one, Jeſus Chriſt.

18 Therefore as by the offence of one judgment came upon all men to condemnation, even ſo by the righteouſneſs of one the free gift came upon all men unto juſtification of life.

19 For as by one man's diſobedience many were made ſinners, ſo by the obedience of one ſhall many be made righteous.

20 Moreover, the law entered that the offence might abound. But where ſin abounded, grace did much more abound:

21 That as ſin hath reigned unto death: even ſo might grace reign through righteouſneſs unto eternal life by Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

CHAP. VI.

1 We muſt not live in ſin, 12 nor let ſin reign in us, 23 Death is the wages of ſin.

WHAT ſhall we ſay then? Shall we continue in ſin that grace may abound?

2 God forbid. How ſhall we that are dead to ſin, live any longer therein?

3 Know ye not that ſo many of us as were baptized into Jeſus Chriſt were baptized into his death?

4 Therefore we are buried with him by baptiſm into death; that like as Chriſt was raiſed up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even ſo we alſo ſhould walk in newneſs of life.

5 For if we have been planted together in the likeneſs of his death, we ſhall be alſo in the likeneſs of his reſurrection:

6 Knowing this, that our old man is crucified with him, that the body of ſin might be deſtroyed, that henceforth we ſhould not ſerve ſin.

7 For he that is dead is freed from ſin.

8 Now if we be dead with Chriſt, we believe that we ſhall alſo live with him:

9 Knowing that Chriſt being raiſed from the dead, dieth no more; death hath no more dominion over him.

10 For in that he died, he died unto ſin once: but in that he liveth, he liveth unto God.

11 Likewiſe reckon ye alſo yourſelves to be dead indeed unto ſin, but alive unto God through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

12 ¶ Let not ſin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye ſhould obey it in the luſts thereof.

13 Neither yield ye your members as inſtruments of unrighteouſneſs unto ſin: but yield yourſelves unto God as thoſe that are alive from the dead, and your members as inſtruments of righteouſneſs unto God.

14 For ſin ſhall not have dominion over you: for ye are not under the law, but under grace.

15 What then? ſhall we ſin, becauſe we are not under the law, but under grace? God forbid.

16 Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourſelves ſervants to obey, his ſervants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of ſin unto death, or of obedience unto righteouſneſs?

17 But God be thanked that ye were the ſervants of ſin; but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you.

18 Being then made free from ſin, ye became the ſervants of righteouſneſs.

19 I ſpeak after the manner of men, becauſe of the infirmity of your fleſh. For as ye have yielded your members ſervants to uncleanneſs and to iniquity unto iniquity; even ſo now yield your members ſervants to righteouſneſs, unto holineſs.

20 For when ye were the ſervants of ſin, ye were free from righteouſneſs.

21 What fruit had ye then in thoſe things whereof ye are now aſhamed? for the end of thoſe things is death.

22 But now being made free from ſin, and become ſervants to God, ye have your fruit unto holineſs, and the end everlaſting life.

23 ¶ For the wages of ſin is death: but the gift of God is eternal life through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

---

10 How was it then reckoned? when he was in circumciſion, &c.) Iſhmael was conceived after Abraham had the promiſe of a ſeed, and believed in the Lord, who counted it to him for righteouſneſs, as appears from Gen. xv. 5, 6. compared with chap. xvi. 4 11. and Iſhmael was thirteen years old when, upon the inſtitution of circumciſion, Abraham and he were circumciſed, Gen. xvii. 25, 26. And its being ſaid, that Abraham received the ſign of circumciſion, a ſeal of the righteouſneſs of the faith which he had, being yet uncircumciſed, ſhews, that the covenant made with him, Gen. xvii. 1.—14. is, for ſubſtance at leaſt, the ſame with that in Gen. xii, 2, 3. and xv. 5, 6. For circumciſion was a ſeal of the righteouſneſs of faith which he had in the promiſe of the Meſſiah made to him, and which was counted to him for righteouſneſs, before he was circumciſed.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

1, 2 What ſhall we ſay then? &c.) St. Paul begins this chapter with an objection that ſome might be ready to make againſt the doctrine delivered in the preceding chapter. If, ſay they, the riches of grace be thus manifeſted in the pardon of ſin, let us take the greater liberty of ſinning, becauſe grace ſo exceedingly abounds in the pardon of it. This unjuſt inference the apoſtle rejects with the greateſt deteſtation and abhorrence. What! did the bleſſed Jeſus ſhed his blood to expiate our guilt; and ſhall we make that a plea for increaſing it? God forbid. Surely there is forgiveneſs with God, that he may be feared, not be the more abuſed. And from hence we ſhould do well to remember, that to take any encouragement to live in ſin, from the conſideration of the rich mercy and free grace of the Almighty towards ſinners, is an abſurd, abominable, and blaſphemous, impiety, and offering the moſt abominable ingratitude, both to the Father and the Son.

16 Servants to obey, &c.) In this and the following verſes, the apoſtle alludes to a common and well-known cuſtom in thoſe days, with regard to ſervants, that where the property of their maſters, who, at their pleaſure, either kept them for life, or turned them over to another maſter, or made them free.

CHAP. VII.

1 No law hath power over a man longer than he liveth. 7 The law is not ſin, 12 but holy juſt, and good.

KNOW ye not, brethren, (for I ſpeak to them that know the law,) how that the law hath dominion over a man as long as he liveth?

2 For the woman which hath an huſband is bound by the law to her huſband ſo long as he liveth: but if the huſband be dead, ſhe is looſed from the law of her huſband.

3 So then, if while her huſband liveth ſhe be married to another man, ſhe ſhall be called an adultereſs: but if her huſband be dead, ſhe is free from that law; ſo that ſhe is no adultereſs, though ſhe be married to another man.

4 Wherefore my brethren, ye alſo are become dead to the law by the body of Chriſt; that ye ſhould be married to another, even to him who is raiſed from the dead, that we ſhould bring forth fruit unto God.

5 For when we were in the fleſh, the motions of ſins, which were by the law, did work in our members to bring forth fruit unto death.

6 But now we are delivered from the law, that being dead wherein we were held; that we ſhould ſerve in newneſs of ſpirit, and not in the oldneſs of the letter.

7 What ſhall we ſay then? Is the law ſin? God forbid. Nay, I had not known ſin but by the law: for I had not known luſt, except the law had ſaid, Thou ſhalt not covet.

8 But ſin, taking occaſion by the commandment, wrought in me all manner of concupiſcence. For without the law ſin was dead.

9 For I was alive without the law once: but when the commandment came, ſin revived, and I died.

10 And the commandment, which was ordained to life, I found to be unto death.

11 For ſin, taking occaſion by the commandment, deceived me, and by it ſlew me.

12 Wherefore the law is holy, and the commandment holy, and juſt, and good.

13 Was then that which is good made death unto me? God forbid. But ſin, that it might appear ſin, working death in me by that which is good; that ſin, by the commandment might become exceeding ſinful.

14 For we know that the law is ſpiritual, but I am carnal, ſold under ſin.

15 For that which I do I allow not: for what I would, that do I not; but what I hate, that do I.

16 If then I do that which I would not, I conſent unto the law that it is good.

17 Now then, it is no more I that do it, but ſin that dwelleth in me.

18 For I know that in me (that is, in my fleſh) dwelleth no good thing: for to will is preſent with me; but how to perform that which is good I find not.

19 For the good that I would I do not: but the evil which I would not that I do.

20 Now, if I do that I would not, it is no more I that do it, but ſin that dwelleth in me.

21 I find then a law, that when I would do good, evil is preſent with me.

22 For I delight in the law of God after the inward man.

23 But I ſee another law in my members warring againſt the law of my mind, and bringing me into captivity to the law of ſin which is in my members.

24 O wretched man that I am! who ſhall deliver me from the body of this death?

25 I thank God, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord. So then, with the mind I myſelf ſerve the law of God; but with the fleſh the law of ſin.

CHAP. VIII.

1 Who are free from condemnation. 5, 13 What harm cometh of the fleſh, 6, 14 and what good of the Spirit, 17 and what of being God's children.

THERE is therefore now no condemnation to them which are in Chriſt Jeſus, who walk not after the fleſh, but after the Spirit.

2 For the law of the Spirit of life in Chriſt Jeſus hath made me free from the law of ſin and death.

3 For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the fleſh, God ſending his own Son in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, and for ſin, condemned ſin in the fleſh:

4 That the righteouſneſs of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the fleſh, but after the Spirit.

5 ¶ For they that are after the fleſh do mind the things of the fleſh: but they that are after the Spirit, the things of the Spirit.

6 For to be carnally minded is death; but to be ſpiritually minded is life and peace:

7 Becauſe the carnal mind is enmity againſt God: for it is not ſubject to the law of God, neither indeed can be.

8 So then they that are in the fleſh cannot pleaſe God.

9 But ye are not in the fleſh, but in the Spirit, if ſo be that the Spirit of God dwell in you. Now if any man have not the Spirit of Chriſt, he is none of his.

10 And if Chriſt be in you, the body is dead becauſe of ſin, but the Spirit is life becauſe of righteouſneſs.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VII.

1 For I ſpeak to them which know the law, &c.) The apoſtle here directs his diſcourſe moſt immediately to the believing Jews that belonged to the church at Rome, as appears by his appealing unto them as perſons that knew the law. And as their prejudices were ſo ſtrong for the law, and againſt ſalvation by mere grace thro' Jeſus Chriſt, it was proper to deal particularly with them upon theſe points.

4 That we ſhould bring forth fruit unto God, &c.) The apoſtle, with admirable addreſs, varies the perſon; and puts we for ye, that he might ſoften what he was going to ſay in the next verſe, about their former vile and guilty circumſtances; and might take of the odium of it, by including himſelf; and, at the ſame time, might the more plainly ſhew that he is here ſpeaking particularly of the Jews.

12 Wherefore the law is holy, &c.) It is with inimitable judgment and dexterity, that in all this diſcourſe the apoſtle ſoothes, and ingratiates himſelf with the Jew, by diſplaying the honour of the law in the equity and excellence of its demands and deſigns; even while his chief view is to ſhew that it is incapable of relieving and ſaving a tranſgreſſor.

24 Who ſhall deliver me from the body of this death.) By theſe words, the apoſtle might mean, either the body of ſin, which tended to death; or his fleſhly body, which became mortal by reaſon of ſin, (chap. viii. 10.) and in which original corruption was ſo interwoven, that, like the fretting leproſy under the law, (Lev. xiv. 44, 45.) it could never be perfectly purged out, till the earthly houſe of this tabernacle itſelf ſhould be pulled down.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VIII.

3 God ſending his own Son in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh.) Chriſt was attended with all the natural human infirmities of infancy and weakneſs, pain and poverty, hunger and thirſt, mortality and death, which are the fruits of ſin; and with external appearances of depravity in his circumciſion, legal purification, baptiſm, and reproachful ſufferings under the curſe of the law.

11 But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead shall also quicken your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you.

12 Therefore, brethren, we are debtors, not to the flesh, to live after the flesh.

13 ¶ For if ye live after the flesh, ye shall die: but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the deeds of the body ye shall live.

14 ¶ For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God.

15 For ye have not received the spirit of bondage again to fear; but ye have received the Spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father.

16 The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God.

17 ¶ And if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ: if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified together.

18 For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us.

19 For the earnest expectation of the creature waiteth for the manifestation of the sons of God.

20 For the creature was made subject to vanity, not willingly, but by reason of him who hath subjected the same in hope:

21 Because the creature itself also shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption into the glorious liberty of the children of God.

22 For we know that the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together until now;

23 And not only they, but ourselves also which have the first-fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body.

24 For we are saved by hope. But hope that is seen is not hope: for what a man seeth, why doth he yet hope for?

25 But if we hope for that we see not, then do we with patience wait for it.

26 Likewise the Spirit also helpeth our infirmities. For we know not what we should pray for as we ought: but the Spirit itself maketh intercession for us with groanings which cannot be uttered.

27 And he that searcheth the hearts knoweth what is the mind of the Spirit because he maketh intercession for the saints according to the will of God.

28 And we know that all things work together for good to them that love God, to them who are the called according to his purpose.

29 For whom he did foreknow, he also did predestinate to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first-born among many brethren.

30 Moreover, whom he did predestinate, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified.

31 What shall we then say to these things? If God be for us, who can be against us?

32 He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things?

33 Who shall lay any thing to the charge of God's elect? It is God that justifieth.

34 Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea; rather, that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us.

35 Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? shall tribulation? or distress? or persecution? or famine? or nakedness? or peril? or sword?

36 As it is written, For thy sake we are killed all the day long; we are accounted as sheep for the slaughter.

37 Nay, in all these things we are more than conquerors through him that loved us.

38 For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come.

39 Nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature shall be able to separate us from the love of God which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

CHAP. IX.

1 Paul's sorrow for the Jews. 7 All Abraham's seed were not the children of the promise. 25 The calling of the Gentiles, and rejection of the Jews.

I SAY the truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience also bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost.

2 That I have great heaviness and continual sorrow in my heart.

3 For I could wish that myself were accursed from Christ for my brethren, my kinsmen according to the flesh:

4 Who are Israelites; to whom pertaineth the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises;

5 Whose are the fathers, and of whom as concerning the flesh Christ came, who is over all, God blessed for ever. Amen.

6 Not as though the word of God hath taken none effect, for they are not all Israel which are of Israel:

7 ¶ Neither because they are the seed of Abraham, are they all children: but in Isaac shall thy seed be called.

11 But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus, &c.) The Father, Son, and Spirit, are here distinguished from each other by personal characters: and though Christ is spoken of, in his human nature, as raised from the dead; yet he, in his original nature, and the Holy Spirit, as well as the Father, are divine persons, undivided in essence and operation, and exerting one and the same power of the Godhead, with joint concurrence in raising the dead; as may be fairly concluded, because the resurrection of Christ and of believers is sometimes ascribed to God the Father, 1 Cor. vi. 14. at other times to Christ himself, John ii. 19, 21. and v. 28, 29. and at others to the Holy Ghost, as here, and 1 Pet. iii. 18. And that quickening our mortal bodies is meant of raising them to eternal life.

15 Abba, Father.) Abba is a word of that Hebrew dialect which was commonly used in the apostle's days, and signifies Father. Accordingly it was pronounced in that language, by our Lord in his agony, Mark xvi. 36. and the evangelist, writing in Greek, very probably gave the interpretation of it. But as the apostle had no occasion of using this term in a different language, his here mentioning it, and giving its signification in Greek, and at the same time changing the person from ye to we, may possibly intimate, that believing Jews and Gentiles have a like interest in, and pay a like regard, in their fervent addresses to God, as their Father.

30 Moreover whom he did predestinate them he also called; &c.) All this is spoken of as already done in the gracious purpose of God, which has inseparably connected these happy effects together, to be accomplished in their proper order; and because, by virtue of his eternal decree, there an infallible certainty of these great events, with respect to every appointed heir of salvation, they are mentioned as if they were already past: but it can no more be inferred from hence, that they were actually and personally justified, than that they were actually and personally called and glorified, from eternity.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IX.

2 That I have great heaviness and continual sorrow in my heart.) The original word signifies such sorrow as is found with women in travail: a continual sorrow affecting his heart, and afflicting his spirit for his countrymen and kinsmen the Jews, on account of their obstinate infidelity, hardness of heart, and spirit of slumber which was fallen upon them, and had provoked God to resolve to cast them off; to reject their nation: and scatter them up and down throughout the world.

8 That is, They which are the children of the fleſh, theſe are not the children of God: but the children of the promiſe are counted for the ſeed.

9 For this is the word of promiſe, At this time will I come, and Sarah ſhall have a ſon.

10 And not only this: but when Rebecca alſo had conceived by one, even by our father Iſaac;

11 For the children being not yet born, neither having done any good or evil, that the purpoſe of God according to election might ſtand, not of works, but of him that calleth;

12 It was ſaid unto her, The elder ſhall ſerve the younger.

13 As it is written, Jacob have I loved, but Eſau have I hated.

14 What ſhall we ſay then? Is there unrighteouſneſs with God? God forbid.

15 For he ſaith to Moſes, I will have mercy on whom I will have mercy, and I will have compaſſion on whom I will have compaſſion.

16 So then it is not of him that willeth, nor of him that runneth, but of God that ſheweth mercy.

17 For the ſcripture ſaith unto Pharaoh, Even for this ſame purpoſe have I raiſed thee up, that I might ſhew my power in thee, and that my name might be declared throughout all the earth.

18 Therefore hath he mercy on whom he will have mercy, and whom he will he hardeneth.

19 Thou wilt ſay then unto me, Why doth he yet find fault? For who hath reſiſted his will?

20 Nay but, O man, who art thou that replieſt againſt God? ſhall the thing formed ſay to him that formed it, Why haſt thou made me thus?

21 Hath not the potter power over the clay, of the ſame lump to make one veſſel unto honour, and another unto diſhonour?

22 What if God, willing to ſhew his wrath, and to make his power known, endured with much long-ſuffering the veſſels of wrath fitted to deſtruction:

23 And that he might make known the riches of his glory on the veſſels of mercy which he had afore prepared unto glory.

24 Even us, whom he hath called, not of the Jews only, but alſo of the Gentiles?

25 ¶ As he ſaith alſo in Oſee, I will call them, My people, which were not my people; and her, Beloved, which was not beloved.

26 And it ſhall come to paſs, that in the place where it was ſaid unto them, Ye are not my people; there ſhall they be called, The children of the living God.

27 Eſaias alſo crieth concerning Iſrael, Though the number of the children of Iſrael be as the ſand of the ſea, a remnant ſhall be ſaved.

28 For he will finiſh the work, and cut it ſhort in righteouſneſs; becauſe a ſhort work will the Lord make upon the earth.

29 And as Eſaias ſaid before, Except the Lord of Sabaoth, had left us a ſeed, we had been as Sodom, and been made like unto Gomorrah.

30 What ſhall we ſay then? That the Gentiles, which followed not after righteouſneſs, have attained to righteouſneſs, even the righteouſneſs which is of faith.

31 But Iſrael, which followed after the law of righteouſneſs, hath not attained to the law of righteouſneſs.

32 Wherefore? Becauſe they ſought it not by faith, but as it were by the works of the law. For they ſtumbled at that ſtumbling-ſtone:

33 As it is written, Behold, I lay in Zion a ſtumbling-ſtone, and rock of offence: and whoſoever believeth on him ſhall not be aſhamed.

CHAP. X.

5 The difference of the righteouſneſs of the law and that of faith. 11 No believer ſhall be confounded, whether Jew or Gentile.

BRETHREN, my heart's deſire and prayer to God for Iſrael is, that they might be ſaved.

2 For I bear them record, that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge.

3 For they, being ignorant of God's righteouſneſs, and going about to eſtabliſh their own righteouſneſs, have not ſubmitted themſelves unto the righteouſneſs of God.

4 For Chriſt is the end of the law for righteouſneſs to every man that believeth.

5 For Moſes deſcribeth the righteouſneſs which is of the law, That the man which doeth thoſe things ſhall live by them.

6 But the righteouſneſs which is of faith, ſpeaketh on this wiſe; Say not in thine heart, Who ſhall aſcend into heaven? (that is, to bring Chriſt down from above;)

7 Or, who ſhall deſcend into the deep? (that is, to bring up Chriſt again from the dead.)

8 But what ſaith it? the word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is the word of faith which we preach;

9 That if thou ſhalt confeſs with thy mouth the Lord,

12 The elder ſhall ſerve the younger.) This was fulfilled in a ſpiritual and myſtical ſenſe in their own perſons, when the birthright and the ſpiritual bleſſings pertaining to it were transferred from Eſau to Jacob: when Eſau was cut off from God's covenant, and Jacob continued in it; and when Eſau loſt, and Jacob got the promiſe of Canaan, that eminent type of the heavenly inheritance: and ſo whilſt Eſau's being doomed to ſervitude was a badge of the curſe upon him, (Gen. iii. 16, 19. and ix. 25.) Jacob's title to the promiſed land was an emblem of his being enrolled in the general aſſembly and church of the firſt-born which are written in heaven, Heb. xii. 23. And it was likewiſe fulfilled in a literal ſenſe, in their reſpective diſtant poſterity, when in after ages the Iſraelites, that deſcended from Jacob, ſubdued the Edomites that were of Eſau's race, 2 Sam. viii. 14. and 2 Chron. xxv. 11, 12. But the covenant-right to all this was primarily made over to Jacob himſelf, Gen. xxvii. 37.

17 Even for this purpoſe have I raiſed thee up.) What is here alledged in a quotation from Exod. ix. 16. about God's raiſing Pharaoh up for this purpoſe, that he might ſhew his power in him, relates not to God's creating him, or bringing him into being: but to his raiſing him to the throne of Egypt, and continuing him in that exalted ſtation, for ſome length of time, in the midſt of all his cruelties and oppreſſions on one hand, and of the various judgments which were ineffectual to reclaim him on the other.

20 Why haſt thou made me thus?) This paſſage is to be underſtood not with relation to God's creating man, but to his diſpenſations towards him, and diſpoſals of him for happineſs or miſery, in conſequence of the fall, appears from the whole current of the preceding and following context, which ſpeaks, not of God's bringing perſons into being, but of his giving ſome up, in his awful righteouſneſs, to the wilful hardneſs of their own hearts, and having mercy upon others; and of his making ſome veſſels of wrath, and others veſſels of mercy. Accordingly it is illuſtrated in the next verſe by the power of the potter over the clay, which in its own nature was antecedently fit to be formed into different ſhapes, and for different uſes, ſome of the more noble, and others of the more ignoble kind.

COMMENTARY on Chap. X.

9 If thou ſhalt confeſs with thy mouth the Lord Jeſus, &c.) "Juſtification is here expreſsly aſcribed to faith, and that not as including works, but as being that principle, which, when it is cordial and ſincere, will certainly produce them: I ſay, not as including all thoſe works which by the goſpel are required to ſalvation; for then the righteouſneſs of faith muſt be deſcribed as is the righteouſneſs of the law, (viz.) That the man who doth theſe things ſhall live in them, which is contrary to the words of the apoſtle, ver. 5, 6."

Jeſus, and ſhalt believe in thine heart that God hath raiſed him from the dead, thou ſhalt be ſaved.

10 For with the heart man believeth unto righteouſneſs; and with the mouth confeſſion is made unto ſalvation.

11 For the ſcripture ſaith, Whoſoever believeth on him ſhall not be aſhamed.

12 For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek; for the ſame Lord over all is rich unto all that call upon him.

13 For whoſoever ſhall call upon the name of the Lord ſhall be ſaved.

14 How then ſhall they call on him whom they have not believed? and how ſhall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how ſhall they hear without a preacher?

15 And how ſhall they preach except they be ſent? as it is written, How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the goſpel of peace, and bring glad tidings of good things!

16 But they have not all obeyed the goſpel: for Eſaias ſaith, Lord, who hath believed our report?

17 So then, faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God.

18 But I ſay, Have they not heard? Yes, verily, their ſound went into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world.

19 But I ſay; Did not Iſrael know? Firſt, Moſes ſaith, I will provoke you to jealouſy by them that are no people, and by a fooliſh nation I will anger you.

20 But Eſaias is very bold, and ſaith, I was found of them that ſought me not; I was made manifeſt unto them that aſked not after me.

21 But to Iſrael he ſaith, All day long I have ſtretched forth my hands unto a diſobedient and gainſaying people.

CHAP. XI.

1 God hath not caſt off all Iſrael. 7 Some were elected, though the reſt were hardened. 18 The Gentiles may not inſult upon them.

I SAY then, Hath God caſt away his people? God forbid. For I alſo am an Iſraelite of the ſeed of Abraham, of the tribe of Benjamin.

2 God hath not caſt away his people which he foreknew. Wot ye not what the ſcripture ſaith of Elias? how he maketh interceſſion to God againſt Iſrael, ſaying,

3 Lord, they have killed thy prophets, and digged down thine altars, and I am left alone, and they ſeek my life.

4 But what ſaith the anſwer of God unto him? I have reſerved to myſelf ſeven thouſand men who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal.

5 Even ſo then at this preſent time alſo there is a remnant according to the election of grace.

6 And if by grace, then is it no more of works: otherwiſe grace is no more grace. But if it be of works, then is it no more grace: otherwiſe work is no more work.

7 ¶ What then? Iſrael hath not obtained that which he ſeeketh for; but the election hath obtained it, and the reſt were blinded.

8 According as it is written, God hath given them the ſpirit of ſlumber, eyes that they ſhould not ſee, and ears that they ſhould not hear, unto this day.

9 And David ſaith, Let their table be made a ſnare, and a trap, and a ſtumbling-block, and a recompence unto them.

10 Let their eyes be darkened that they may not ſee, and bow down their back alway.

11 I ſay then, Have they ſtumbled that they ſhould fall? God forbid: but rather through their fall ſalvation is come unto the Gentiles, for to provoke them to jealouſy.

12 Now if the fall of them be the riches of the world, and the diminiſhing of them the riches of the Gentiles; how much more their fulneſs.

13 For I ſpeak to you Gentiles, inaſmuch as I am the apoſtle of the Gentiles, I magnify mine office;

14 If by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my fleſh, and might ſave ſome of them.

15 For if the caſting away of them be the reconciling of the world what ſhall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?

16 For if the firſt-fruit be holy, the lump is alſo holy: and if the root be holy, ſo are the branches.

17 And if ſome of the branches be broken off, and thou being a wild olive-tree were graffed in among them, and with them partakeſt of the root and fatneſs of the olive-tree;

18 Boaſt not againſt the branches. But if thou boaſt, thou beareſt not the root, but the root thee.

19 Thou wilt ſay, then, The branches were broken off that I might be graffed in.

18 But I ſay, have they not heard? Yes, verily, &c.] It was no leſs than a miracle, that the goſpel, in the ſpace of a few years, ſhould be preached to all nations, and planted in the remoteſt parts of the world; and yet this it was, which makes St. Paul here apply that to the preaching of the apoſtles, which the pſalmiſt David applies to the preaching of the heavens. Pſal. xix. 4. The goſpel of Chriſt, like the ſun in the firmament, caſts its beautiful and glorious beam, over all the world: for, upon the commiſſion given out by Chriſt to his apoſtles to go into all the world and preach the goſpel to every creature, the apoſtles divided themſelves into the ſeveral quarters of the world, for the ſpeedy performance of the ſervice; namely, the carrying of the light of the goſpel, as the ſun doth his light, unto all the nations of the earth: as if St. Paul had here ſaid, "Like as the voice of the heavens are gone through the world; ſo is the voice of Chriſt, and the light of his goſpel, which much more declares the glory of God, than the ſun and the moon in the heavens can do." Some obſerve, that there was hardly any one conſiderable nation in the world, but within forty years after Chriſt's aſcenſion, had the glad tidings of the goſpel preached to it.

19 And by a fooliſh nation I will anger you, &c.) How ſadly this prophecy was verified, with reſpect to the rage and envy of the Jews at the converſion of the Gentiles, may be ſeen in Acts xiii. 45. and xvii. 5, 13. and xxii. 21, 22.

21 I have ſtretched forth my hands, &c.) Here is an alluſion, either to the engaging behaviour of an affectionate mother who opens her arms to embrace a froward child, and encourage its coming to her; or, an alluſion to the lively action of an orator, who moves and extends his arms, in token of his deſiring audience and of the vehemence of his addreſs.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XI.

3 Digged down thine altars.) Theſe altars could not include the altar at Jeruſalem; for that was out of the reach of the ten tribes, who are here ſpoken of: but they ſeem to be thoſe which Samuel had erected before the building of the temple, (1 Sam. vii. 17. xi. 15. and xvi. 2, 5.) and that which Elijah repaired, (1 Kings xviii. 30.) The ten tribes might probably, by God's ſpecial diſpenſation, offer ſacrifices upon theſe altars, when their kings reſtrained them from going to Jeruſalem, and when they nevertheleſs would not ſacrifice to the calves at Dan and Bethel, which God had forbid: and as the continuance of theſe altars was a public teſtimony againſt the prevailing idolatry in Ahab's days, he and the generality of the people joined in pulling them down, and even in digging up the very foundations, that there might be no remaining traces of them to preſerve their memory.

4 Not bowed the knee to Baal.) Baal was an idol of the Sidonians which Ahab ſet up and worſhipped on his marriage with Jezebel, the daughter of their king, and to which the generality of the people paid their adorations, after the example, and in obedience to the authority of that wicked Ahab and his queen, as may be gathered from 1 Kings xvi. 31, 32, 33, and xviii. 21.

20 Well; becauſe of unbelief they were broken off, and thou ſtandeſt by faith. Be not high-minded, but fear:
21 For if God ſpared not the natural branches, take heed leſt he alſo ſpare not thee.
22 Behold therefore the goodneſs and ſeverity of God: on them which fell, ſeverity; but toward thee, goodneſs, if thou continue in his goodneſs: otherwiſe, thou alſo ſhalt be cut off.
23 And they alſo, if they abide not in unbelief, ſhall be graffed in. For God is able to graff them in again.
24 For if thou wert cut out of the olive-tree, which is wild by nature, and wert graffed contrary to nature into a good olive-tree; how much more ſhall theſe which be the natural branches, be graffed into their own olive-tree?
25 For I would not, brethren, that ye ſhould be ignorant of this myſtery, leſt ye ſhould be wiſe in your own conceits, that blindneſs in part is happened to Iſrael, until the fulneſs of the Gentiles be come in.
26 And ſo all Iſrael ſhall be ſaved: as it is written, There ſhall come out of Sion the deliverer, and ſhall turn away ungodlineſs from Jacob.
27 For this is my covenant unto them, when I ſhall take away their ſins.
28 As concerning the goſpel, they are enemies for your ſakes: but as touching the election, they are beloved for the fathers' ſakes.
29 For the gifts and calling of God are without repentance.
30 For as ye in times paſt, have not believed God, yet have now obtained mercy through their unbelief;
31 Even ſo have theſe alſo now not believed, that through your mercy they alſo may obtain mercy.
32 For God hath concluded them all in unbelief, that he might have mercy upon all.
33 O the depth of the riches both of the wiſdom and knowledge of God! how unſearchable are his judgments, and his ways paſt finding out!
34 For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counſellor?
35 Or who hath firſt given to him, and it ſhall be recompenſed unto him again?
36 For of him, and through him, and to him are all things. To whom be glory for ever. Amen.

CHAP. XII.

1 God's mercies muſt move us to love God.

I BESEECH you, therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye preſent your bodies a living ſacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reaſonable ſervice.
2 And be not conformed to this world: but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good, and acceptable, and perfect will of God.
3 For I ſay, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himſelf more highly than he ought to think; but to think ſoberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the meaſure of faith.
4 For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the ſame office;
5 So we, being many, are one body in Chriſt, and every one members one of another.
6 Having then gifts, differing according to the grace that is given to us, whether prophecy, let us propheſy according to the proportion of faith;
7 Or miniſtry, let us wait on our miniſtering; or he that teacheth, on teaching;
8 Or he that exhorteth, on exhortation: he that giveth, let him do it with ſimplicity; he that ruleth, with diligence; he that ſheweth mercy, with cheerfulneſs.
9 Let love be without diſſimulation. Abhor that which is evil, cleave to that which is good.
10 Be kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love; in honour preferring one another;
11 Not ſlothful in buſineſs; fervent in ſpirit; ſerving the Lord;
12 Rejoicing in hope; patient in tribulation; continuing inſtant in prayer;
13 Diſtributing to the neceſſity of ſaints; given to hoſpitality.
14 Bleſs them which perſecute you: bleſs and curſe not.
15 Rejoice with them that do rejoice, and weep with them that weep.
16 Be of the ſame mind one toward another. Mind not high things, but condeſcend to men of low eſtate. Be not wiſe in your own conceits.
17 Recompenſe to no man evil for evil. Provide things honeſt in the ſight of all men.
18 If it be poſſible, as much as lieth in you, live peaceably with all men.
19 Dearly beloved, avenge not yourſelves, but ra-

33 O the depth of the riches, &c.) Lo, theſe are parts of God's ways; but how little a portion is heard of him! (Job xxvi. 14.) To ſearch further into theſe divine counſels and diſpenſations, would be to wade beyond my depth; ſuch knowledge is too wonderful for me, (Pſalm cxxxix. 6.) I adore and acquieſce in what I cannot comprehend; and inſtead of curiouſly prying into it, or cavilling at it, would cry out with ſolemn reverence, O the awful and delightful, the amazing, bottomleſs, and boundleſs abyſs of the riches of God's goodneſs and grace, in chuſing and calling both Jews and Gentiles, under circumſtances in which it was moſt unlikely that either of them ſhould be regarded with any favour! And O th eaſtoniſhing unfathomable depth of his manifold, excellent, and abundant wiſdom, and infinite underſtanding, who has an all-comprehending view of the whole compaſs of things at once; and who orders, diſpoſes, and overrules all events, for bringing about his glorious ends, in a manner worthy of himſelf, though unaccountable to us, as he has done in making the rejection of the Jews ſubſervient to the calling of the Gentiles! How impenetrable are the reaſons of the determinations of his infinite mind concerning particular perſons and nations, in a way of judgment as well as of mercy! and how untraceable are the methods of his providence, for accompliſhing his great deſigns, who is wonderful in counſel and excellent in working, whoſe way is in the ſea; whoſe path is in great waters, and whoſe footſteps are not known, Pſalm lxxvii. 19.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XII.

1 That ye preſent yourſelves a living ſacrifice, &c.) Here is a beautiful and inſtructive alluſion to the legal oblation of the bodies of beaſts, or birds, in repreſenting the ſpiritual ſacrifices that Chriſtians are called to offer in the ſolemn ſurrender of their own ſelves to the Lord. The bodies of creatures, that died of themſelves, were not to be eaten by the Iſraelites, (Deut. xiv. 21.) much leſs were they to be offered in ſacrifice; but ſuch only as were living, which the offerers preſented to the Lord, and brought to the prieſt to put them to death, (Lev. xvii. 5. and 2 Chron. xxix. 21, 22.) And therefore the apoſtle ſpeaks of believers, as preſenting their bodies a living ſacrifice, holy and acceptable to God, though their ſouls were, doubtleſs, to be included in the offering; for bodily exerciſe alone profits little, (1 Tim. iv. 8.) and in further explaining the nature of this living ſacrifice, the apoſtle immediately mentions their being transformed by the renewing of their mind, ver. 2.

11 Not ſlothful in buſineſs, &c.) Let them take heed of an indolent and careleſs, lazy and ſluggiſh temper and behaviour, with reſpect to the affairs of the civil and religious life; and with reſpect to their being uſeful in their ſeveral ſtations; as though they were to do nothing at all, becauſe they apprehend that they cannot do ſo much, or ſo well as others; but let them engage in every ſervice with an active vigorous ſpirit, and with all the fervours of love to God, and ſacred zeal for his glory, under the influence of the Holy Ghoſt, as doing the will of God from the heart, that whatſoever their hands find to do for God, themſelves, or others, they may do it with their might (Eccleſ. ix. 10.) as knowing that they are thereby ſerving the Lord Chriſt, in obedience to his commands, and for his honour and glory.

ther give place unto wrath: for it written, Vengeance is mine; I will repay, ſaith the Lord.

20 Therefore, if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirſt, give him drink: for in ſo doing thou ſhalt heap coals of fire on his head.

21 Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Of duties to magiſtrates. 8 Love is the fulfilling of the law. 11 Againſt gluttony, drunkenneſs, and the works of darkneſs.

LET every ſoul be ſubject unto the higher powers; for there is no power but of God; the powers that be, are ordained of God.

2 Whoſoever, therefore, reſiſteth the power, reſiſteth the ordinance of God; and they that reſiſt ſhall receive to themſelves damnation:

3 For rulers are not a terror to good works, but to the evil: Wilt thou then not be afraid of the power? Do that which is good, and thou ſhalt have praiſe of the ſame:

4 For he is the miniſter of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the ſword in vain; for he is the miniſter of God, a revenger to execute wrath upon him that doeth evil.

5 Wherefore ye muſt needs be ſubject, not only for wrath, but alſo for conſcience ſake.

6 For, for this cauſe pay ye tribute alſo: for they are God's miniſters, attending continually upon this very thing.

7 Render, therefore, to all, their dues: tribute, to whom tribute is due; cuſtom to whom cuſtom; fear, to whom fear; honour, to whom honour.

8 Owe no man any thing, but to love one another: for he that loveth another hath fulfilled the law.

9 For this, Thou ſhalt not commit adultery, Thou ſhalt not kill, Thou ſhalt not ſteal, Thou ſhalt not bear falſe witneſs, Thou ſhalt not covet; and if there be any other commandment, it is briefly comprehended in this ſaying, namely, Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thyſelf.

10 Love worketh no ill to his neighbour: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law.

11 And that, knowing the time, that now it is high time to awake out of ſleep: for now is our ſalvation nearer than when we believed.

12 The night is far ſpent, the day is at hand: let us, therefore, caſt off the works of darkneſs, and let us put on the armour of light.

13 Let us walk honeſtly as in the day; not in rioting and drunkenneſs, not in chambering and wantonneſs, not in ſtrife and envying:

14 But put ye on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and make not proviſion for the fleſh, to fulfil the luſts thereof.

CHAP. XIV.

3 Men may not contemn or condemn one another for things indifferent, 13 but take heed of offending them.

HIM that is weak in the faith, receive ye, but not to doubtful diſputations.

2 For one believeth that he may eat all things: another, who is weak, eateth herbs.

3 ¶ Let not him that eateth deſpiſe him that eateth not: and let not him which eateth not, judge him that eateth: for God hath received him.

4 Who art thou that judgeſt another man's ſervant? to his own maſter he ſtandeth or falleth. Yea, he ſhall be holden up, for God is able to make him ſtand.

5 One man eſteemeth one day above another: another eſteemeth every day alike. Let every man be fully perſuaded in his own mind.

6 He that regardeth the day, regardeth it unto the Lord; and he that regardeth not the day, to the Lord he doth not regard it. He that eateth, eateth to the Lord, for he giveth God thanks; and he that eateth not, to the Lord he eateth not, and giveth God thanks.

7 For none of us liveth to himſelf, and no man dieth to himſelf.

8 For whether we live, we live unto the Lord; and whether we die, we die unto the Lord: whether we live therefore, or die, we are the Lord's.

9 For to this end Chriſt both died and roſe, and revived, that he might be Lord both of the dead and living.

10 But why doſt thou judge thy brother? or why doſt thou ſet at naught thy brother? for we ſhall all ſtand before the judgment-ſeat of Chriſt.

11 For it is written, As I live, ſaith the Lord, every knee ſhall bow to me, and every tongue ſhall confeſs to God.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIII.

1 Let every ſoul be ſubject unto the higher powers, &c. The Jews having a proud conceit of themſelves, as the only people of God, pretended that they ought not to ſubmit to any civil governors, and pay tribute to them, unleſs they were of their own nation and religion, and were ſet over them by the ſpecial appointment of God, their ſupreme Lord and King; and ſo they were prejudiſed againſt the Roman power, as unlawful, becauſe it was both foreign, and heathen: and as the apoſtles and many Chriſtians in thoſe days were of the Jewiſh nation, they were ſtigmatized by the Romans as a rebellious people, that were enemies to the public peace and order of the civil government, Acts xvi 20, 21. In oppoſition therefore to this error of the Jews, and in vindication of Chriſtianity from all imputations of that kind, the apoſtle, with a ſpecial eye to Judaizers, repreſents the duty of all Chriſtians, owning and ſubmitting to any civil government, under which the providence of God caſt their lot, even though it were heathen, as the Roman empire then was, under which the people lived to whom the apoſtle now wrote. And leſt from what he himſelf had ſaid about Chriſtian liberty, and againſt perſons avenging themſelves, or rendering evil for evil, chap. xii. 17, 19. any ſhould infer that the civil magiſtrate ought not to avenge injuries nor be applied to, for the redreſſing of wrongs in a legal way; he inſiſts on the neceſſity of government for that, as well as other purpoſes, and enjoins Chriſtians to ſubmit themſelves conſcientiouſly and peaceably to it, as the ordinance of the God of nature and of providence, though it were not by ſo immediate and expreſs inſtitution, as the Jewiſh ſtate was of old under him, as their political ſovereign.

14 But put ye on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, &c.) But laying aſide all theſe abominations and enormities, let us put on the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, our great ſovereign and Saviour. Endeavour, my brethren, to obtain the greateſt conformity to his temper, and to appear as like him as poſſible, in every particular in which he can be the object of our imitation. For that ſhort precept will contain all that is neceſſary to adorn our profeſſion to its greateſt height. And whilſt ſo many are ſpending their time, thoughts, and ſubſtance, in thoſe low purſuits which regard only the meaner part of their nature, make not a ſolicitous proviſion for the fleſh, to fulfil its irregular deſires: nor be intent in pleaſing any of the ſenſes, even where their demands may not appear directly criminal. But labour to preſerve the ſuperiority of the immortal ſpirit; and to keep it continually under the diſcipline of ſo holy and ſo noble a religion.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIV.

2 Eateth herbs.) Some of the Jews uſed to eat no fleſh at all, and others looked upon it as a very high pitch of virtue, to abſtain from it in Gentile countries, leſt the fleſh which they might buy in the ſhambles ſhould have been offered to idols, or have contracted ſome pollution.

11 For it is written, As I live, ſaith the Lord, &c.) The apoſtle here plainly intimates, that what was ſaid in Iſai. xlv. 23. is to be applied to Chriſt. And if we look into the prophecy itſelf, we ſhall find that in the next preceding, and the two following verſes, the very perſon, who is brought in as making this ſolemn declaration, ſpeaks of himſelf in diſtinction from all idols, as the only true God, who ſays, to all the ends of the earth, Look unto me, and be ye ſaved; and is ſpoken of under the character of that 12 So then every one of us ſhall give account of himſelf to God.

13 ¶ Let us not, therefore, judge one another any more: but judge this rather, that no man put a ſtumbling-block or an occaſion to fall in his brother's way.

14 I know and am perſuaded by the Lord Jeſus, that there is nothing unclean of itſelf: but to him that eſteemeth any thing to be unclean, to him it is unclean.

15 But if thy brother be grieved with thy meat, now walkeſt thou not charitably. Deſtroy not him with thy meat for whom Chriſt died.

16 Let not then your good be ever ſpoken of:

17 For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink; but righteouſneſs, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghoſt.

18 For he that in theſe things ſerveth Chriſt is acceptable to God, and approved of men.

19 Let us therefore follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another.

20 For meat deſtroy not the work of God. All things indeed are pure: but it is evil for that man who eateth with offence.

21 It is good neither to eat fleſh, nor to drink wine, nor any thing whereby thy brother ſtumbleth, or is offended, or is made weak.

22 Haſt thou faith? have it to thyſelf before God. Happy is he that condemneth not himſelf in that thing which he alloweth.

23 And he that doubteth, is damned if he eat, becauſe he eateth not of faith; for whatſoever is not of faith is ſin.

CHAP. XV.

1 The ſtrong muſt bear with the weak. 2 We may not pleaſe ourſelves, but receive one another, as Chriſt did us all.

WE then that are ſtrong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to pleaſe ourſelves.

2 ¶ Let every one of us pleaſe his neighbour for his good to edification.

3 For even Chriſt pleaſed not himſelf: but, as it is written, The reproaches of them that reproached thee fell on me.

4 For whatſoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the ſcriptures might have hope.

5 Now the God of patience and conſolation grant you to be like-minded one toward another, according to Chriſt Jeſus:

6 That ye may with one mind and one mouth glorify God, even the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

7 ¶ Wherefore receive ye one another, as Chriſt alſo received us to the glory of God.

8 Now I ſay that Jeſus Chriſt was a miniſter of the circumciſion for the truth of God, to confirm the promiſes made unto the fathers:

9 And that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy: as it is written, For this cauſe I will confeſs to thee among the Gentiles, and ſing unto thy name.

10 And again he ſaith, Rejoice, ye Gentiles, with his people.

11 And again, Praiſe the Lord, all ye Gentiles, and laud him, all ye people.

12 And again Eſaias ſaith, There ſhall be a root of Jeſſe, and he that ſhall riſe to reign over the Gentiles; in him ſhall the Gentiles truſt.

13 Now the God of hope fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may abound in hope through the power of the Holy Ghoſt.

14 And I myſelf alſo am perſuaded of you, my brethren, that ye alſo are full of goodneſs filled with all knowledge, able alſo to admoniſh one another.

15 Nevertheleſs, brethren, I have written the more boldly unto you in ſome ſort, as putting you in mind becauſe of the grace that is given to me of God;

16 That I ſhould be the miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt to the Gentiles, miniſtering the goſpel of God, that the offering up of the Gentiles might be acceptable, being ſanctified by the Holy Ghoſt.

17 I have therefore whereof I may glory through Jeſus Chriſt in thoſe things which pertain to God.

18 For I will not dare to ſpeak of any of thoſe things which Chriſt hath not wrought by me, to make the Gentiles obedient, by word and deed,

19 Through mighty ſigns and wonders, by the power of the Spirit of God: ſo that from Jeruſalem and round about unto Illyricum I have fully preached the goſpel of Chriſt.

20 Yea, ſo have I ſtrived to preach the goſpel, not where Chriſt was named, leſt I ſhould build upon another man's foundation;

21 But as it is written, To whom he was not ſpoken of, they ſhall ſee: and they that have not heard ſhall underſtand.

22 For which cauſe alſo I have been much hindered from coming to you:

23 But now having no more place in theſe parts, and having a great deſire theſe many years to come unto you:

Jehovah in whom we have righteouſneſs and ſtrength, even in him to whom it is ſaid, Men ſhall come, and all that are incenſed againſt him ſhall be aſhamed; and in this Lord, or Jehovah, all the ſeed of Iſrael ſhall be juſtified, and ſhall glory. All which paſſages are ſo exactly anſwered in the New-Teſtament-account of the characters ſuſtained, and benefits brought in by Chriſt, and of the regards that are to be paid to him, as to leave no reaſonable ground to doubt but that they belong to him. And ſo, taking the whole together, we have here a ſtrong atteſtation to the proper divinity of this great Judge of the world, who ſwore by Himſelf, which is, in effect, the ſame thing as ſwearing by his life, or ſaying: As I live, unto me every knee ſhall bow, and every tongue ſhall ſwear; by way of confeſſion or acknowledgment of his abſolute ſovereignty and ſupreme dominion, that is, every one, either freely or by conſtraint, ſhall pay him divine homage, by bowing the knee, and ſwearing to him; and this will be moſt eminently, publickly, and completely verified in the univerſal ſubjection of all mankind to Chriſt at the day of judgment.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XV.

3 For even Chriſt pleaſed not himſelf, &c.) And ſurely we muſt be diſpoſed to act ſuch a part towards our brethren: for we all well know, that the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, our great and divine Maſter, though ſo infinitely exalted above us, pleaſed not himſelf. But when he vouchſafed in mercy to viſit this low world of ours, inſtead of ſtudying his own eaſe and pleaſure, he ſubmitted to an almoſt continual ſeries of ſelf-denial, mortification and trouble for our ſakes. He conſidered the weakneſs and infirmities of thoſe about him, that he might teach them and train them up for ſervice, as they were able to bear it. Yea, he even ſubmitted with the greateſt gentleneſs to much reproach and contempt; as it is written in Pſ. lxix. 9. in words which may well be applied to him: "The reproaches of thoſe who reproached thee, are fallen upon me."

8 Jeſus Chriſt was a miniſter of the circumciſion for the truth of God, &c.) Chriſt's having this title naturally ſuggeſts, that he has confirmed the covenant of promiſes which circumciſion was the ſign and ſeal of, and that this covenant had a relation to ſpiritual benefits, as included in the promiſes, that God would be a God to Abraham and his ſeed in their generations, (Gen. xvii. 7.) and that in his ſeed all the nations of the earth ſhould be bleſſed, (Gen. xii. 3, xviii. 18. and xxii. 18. which was repeated to Iſaac, chap. xxvi. 4. and to Jacob, xxviii. 14.) And theſe ſeem to have been the two grand promiſes of the covenant of grace, under that diſpenſation, which had circumciſion for its initiating ſign and ſeal.

19 Illyricum) This is a great country in Europe, between Panomia on the north, and the Adriatic ſea, now called the gulph of Venice, on the ſouth: and is moſtly comprehended under the name of Sclavonia or Dalmatia, bordering upon Hungary. And we have an account of the apoſtle's prodigious travels, labours, and ſucceſs in many of thoſe parts, Acts xiii. and ſeveral following chapters.

24 Whenſoever I take my journey into Spain, I will come to you, for I truſt to ſee you in my journey, and to be brought on my way thitherward by you, if firſt I be ſomewhat filled with your company.

25 But now I go unto Jeruſalem to miniſter unto the ſaints.

26 For it hath pleaſed them of Macedonia and Achaia to make a certain contribution for the poor ſaints which are at Jeruſalem.

27 It hath pleaſed them verily: and their debtors they are. For if the Gentiles have been made partakers of their ſpiritual things, their duty is alſo to miniſter unto them in carnal things.

28 When therefore I have performed this, and have ſealed to them this fruit, I will come by you into Spain.

29 And I am ſure that when I come unto you, I ſhall come in the fulneſs of the bleſſing of the goſpel of Chriſt.

30 Now I beſeech you, brethren, for the Lord Jeſus Chriſt's ſake, and for the love of the Spirit, that ye ſtrive together with me in your prayers to God for me;

31 That I may be delivered from them that do not believe in Judea: and that my ſervice which I have for Jeruſalem may be accepted of the ſaints;

32 That I may come unto you with joy by the will of God, and may with you be refreſhed.

33 Now the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

CHAP. XVI.

1 Paul ſendeth greeting to many. 25 And endeth with praiſe and thanks to God.

I COMMEND unto you Phebe our ſiſter, which is a ſervant of the church which is at Cenchrea;

2 That ye receive her in the Lord, as becometh ſaints, and that ye aſſiſt her in whatſoever buſineſs ſhe hath need of you: for ſhe hath been a ſuccouret of many, and of myſelf alſo.

3 Greet Priſcilla, and Aquila my helpers in Chriſt Jeſus;

4 (Who have for my life laid down their own necks: unto whom not only I give thanks, but alſo all the churches of the Gentiles.)

5 Likewiſe greet the church that is in their houſe. Salute my well-beloved Epenetus, who is the firſt-fruits of Achaia unto Chriſt,

6 Greet Mary, who beſtowed much labour on us.

7 Salute Andronicus and Junia my kinſmen, and my fellow-priſoners who are of note among the apoſtles, who alſo were in Chriſt before me.

8 Greet Amplias, my beloved in the Lord.

9 Salute Urbane, our helper in Chriſt, and Stachys my beloved.

10 Salute Apelles, approved in Chriſt. Salute them which are of Ariſtobulus' houſhold.

11 Salue Herodian my kinſman. Greet them that be of the houſhold of Narciſſus, which are in the Lord.

12 Salute Tryphena and Tryphoſa, who labour in the Lord. Salute the beloved Perſis which laboured much in the Lord.

13 Salute Rufus, choſen in the Lord, and his mother and mine.

14 Salute Aſyncritus, Phlegon, Hermas, Patrobas, Hermes, and the brethren which are with them.

15 Salute Philologus, and Julia, Nereus, and his ſiſter, and Olympas, and all the ſaints that are with them.

16 Salute one another with a holy kiſs. The churches of Chriſt ſalute you.

17 Now, I beſeech you, brethren, mark them which cauſe diviſions and offences, contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned, and avoid them.

18 For they that are ſuch ſerve not our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, but their own belly; and by good words and fair ſpeeches deceive the hearts of the ſimple.

19 For your obedience is come abroad unto all men. I am glad, therefore, on your behalf: but yet I would have you wiſe unto that which is good, and ſimple concerning evil.

20 And the God of peace ſhall bruiſe Satan under your feet ſhortly. The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you. Amen.

21 Timotheus my work-fellow, and Lucius, and Jaſon, and Soſipater, my kinſmen, ſalute you.

22 I Tertius, who wrote this epiſtle, ſalute you in the Lord.

23 Gaius mine hoſt, and of the whole church, ſaluteth you. Eraſtus, the chamberlain of the city, ſaluteth you, and Quartus a brother.

24 The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all. Amen.

25 Now, to him that is of power to ſtabliſh you according to my goſpel, and the preaching of Jeſus Chriſt, (according to the revelation of the myſtery which was kept ſecret ſince the world began,

26 But now is made manifeſt, and by the ſcriptures of the prophets, according to the commandment of the everlaſting God, made known to all nations for the obedience of faith;)

27 To God only wiſe, be glory through Jeſus Chriſt for ever. Amen.

¶ Written to the Romans from Corinthus, and ſent by Phebe, ſervant of the church at Cenchrea.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVI.

3 That ye aſſiſt her in whatſoever buſineſs ſhe hath need of you.) It is highly probable that Phebe went to Rome upon ſome ſecular buſineſs of her own, which was to be managed in the city, or at court; and ſo their aſſiſting her in what ſhe needed, may relate to their doing all they could, to be of ſervice to her in her temporal concerns, in diſtinction from their receiving her in the Lord, or into their Chriſtian friendſhip and fellowſhip for ſpiritual purpoſes.

16 Salute one another with a holy kiſs.) Saluting one another on the face, in token of reſpect and friendſhip, was an antient and common cuſtom among both Jews and Gentiles; and was continued for ſome time among the primitive Chriſtians in their religious aſſemblies, and particularly at the end of their prayers before the celebration of the Lord's ſupper, to teſtify their mutual love: and therefore it was called not only the holy kiſs here and elſewhere, to diſtinguiſh it from that which was of the wanton, or merely of the civil kind, but alſo the kiſs of charity, (1 Pet. v. 14.) to diſtinguiſh it from that which was only complimental, or was treacherous, like that of Judas. But ſome think that this religious kiſs was given by the men apart, and by the women apart; and that by this ſymbol they ſhewed that Chriſtians, as ſuch, were equal; becauſe among the Perſians, and other eaſtern nations, equals kiſſed one another's cheeks, but inferiors kiſſed only the hand of ſuperiors, as ſubjects do the hand of the prince at this day. However, as this cuſtom among the churches of Chriſt had no foundation in divine inſtitution, and was afterwards abuſed, it was gradually laid aſide, to prevent all appearance of indecency in looſer ages.

The First Epistle of PAUL the APOSTLE,

TO THE CORINTHIANS.

THE ARGUMENT.

The church of the Corinthians had been planted by St. Paul himself, who wrote this epistle to them between two and three years after he had left them. Corinth was a rich trading town, and the inhabitants Greeks; a people of quick parts and very inquisitive; but naturally vain and conceited of themselves. This epistle was not written at Philippi, as the Greek inscription has it; but at Ephesus, as appears from the eighth verse of the sixteenth chapter, where the apostle says he will tarry at Ephesus until Pentecost.

CHAP. I.

1 After salutation and thanksgiving, 10 he exhorteth to unity, 12 and reproveth their dissensions. 18 God destroyeth the wisdom of the wise.

PAUL, called to be an apostle of Jesus Christ, through the will of God, and Sosthenes our brother,

2 Unto the church of God which is at Corinth, to them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints, with all that in every place call upon the name of Jesus Christ our Lord, both theirs and ours:

3 Grace be unto you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ.

4 I thank my God always on your behalf, for the grace of God which is given you by Jesus Christ:

5 That in every thing ye are enriched by him, in all utterance and in all knowledge;

6 Even as the testimony of Christ was confirmed in you.

7 So that ye come behind in no gift, waiting for the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ:

8 Who shall also confirm you unto the end, that ye may be blameless in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of his son Jesus Christ our Lord.

10 ¶ Now, I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfectly joined together in the same mind, and in the same judgment.

11 For it hath been declared to me of you, my brethren, by them which are of the house of Chloe, that there are contentions among you.

12 ¶ Now this, I say, that every one of you saith, I am of Paul, and I of Apollos, and I of Cephas, and I of Christ.

13 Is Christ divided? was Paul crucified for you?

Commentary on Chap. I.

1 Paul called to be an apostle, &c.) The apostle Paul, in the inscription and preface of most of his Epistles, not only mentions his own name, but asserts his apostolic office; and it was the rather needful that he should do this, in his epistle to the Corinthians; because some among them had disputed, depreciated, and denied his authority: and as, in several other epistles, he associates Timothy with himself, not as joining with him in forming those epistles, but in the salutation; and as entirely concurring with him in sentiment and design: so he here mentions Sosthenes in like manner, that he might the better recommend and inforce this epistle to the Jewish converts at Corinth, on account of his acceptable character and reputation among them; he having been formerly a ruler in one of their synagogues. But immediately after the salutation, and in several other parts of the epistle, the apostle speaks of himself in the singular number, to intimate that he alone composed it, under divine inspiration, as an apostle of Christ. The like may be, more or less, observed in all the epistles that begin with Paul's and Timothy's name.

13 Is Christ divided? &c.) But, to convince you of the unreasonableness and absurdity of all this, let me first ask those of you, that pretend to be so much for Christ, as to be above all gospel ministrations and ordinances, Is the person of Christ to be separated from his offices; or his offices from his way of executing them by the ministry of his servants? Is he divided from Paul, Apollos, Cephas, or any other of his faithful ministers, whom he has promised to be with to the end of the world? Are they not all embarked in the same glorious cause of Christ? and don't they all preach by his authority, and according to his will, as the Head and Saviour of the whole church? Or are his gracious communications, by the Spirit, to be separated from the means of his own appoint-or were ye baptized in the name of Paul?

14 I thank God that I baptized none of you, but Criſpus and Gaius;

15 Leſt any ſhould ſay, that I had baptized in mine own name.

16 And I baptized alſo the houſhold of Stephanas: beſides, I know not whether I baptized any other.

17 For Chriſt ſent me not to baptize, but to preach the goſpel: not with wiſdom of words, leſt the croſs of Chriſt ſhould be made of none effect.

18 ¶ For the preaching of the croſs is to them that periſh, fooliſhneſs: but unto us which are ſaved, it is the power of God.

19 For it is written, I will deſtroy the wiſdom of the wiſe, and will bring to nothing the underſtanding of the prudent.

20 Where is the wiſe? where is the ſcribe? where is the diſputer of this world? hath not God made fooliſh the wiſdom of this world?

21 For after that in the wiſdom of God, the world by wiſdom knew not God, it pleaſed God by the fooliſhneſs of preaching to ſave them that believe.

22 For the Jews require a ſign, and the Greeks ſeek after wiſdom:

23 But we preach Chriſt crucified, unto the Jews a ſtumbling-block, and unto the Greeks fooliſhneſs;

24 But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Chriſt the power of God, and the wiſdom of God.

25 Becauſe the fooliſhneſs of God is wiſer than men; and the weakneſs of God is ſtronger than men.

26 For ye ſee your calling, brethren, how that not many wiſe men after the fleſh, not many mighty, not many noble are called.

27 But God hath choſen the fooliſh things of the world to confound the wiſe; and God hath choſen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty.

28 And baſe things of the world and things which are deſpiſed hath God choſen, yea, and things which are not, to bring to nought things that are:

29 That no fleſh ſhould glory in his preſence.

30 But of him are ye in Chriſt Jeſus, who of God is made unto us wiſdom, and righteouſneſs, and ſanctification, and redemption:

31 That according as it is written, He that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

CHAP. II.

Paul declareth that his preaching far excelleth all human wiſdom.

AND I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of ſpeech, or of wiſdom, declaring unto you the teſtimony of God.

2 For I determined not to know any thing among you ſave Jeſus Chriſt, and him crucified.

3 And I was with you in weakneſs, and in fear, and in much trembling.

4 And my ſpeech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wiſdom, but in demonſtration of the Spirit and of power:

5 That your faith ſhould not ſtand in the wiſdom of men, but in the power of God.

6 Howbeit, we ſpeak wiſdom among them that are perfect: yet not the wiſdom of this world, nor of the princes of this world, that come to nought:

7 But we ſpeak the wiſdom of God in a myſtery, even the hidden wiſdom which God ordained before the world unto our glory:

8 Which none of the princes of this world knew; for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory.

9 But as it is written, Eye hath not ſeen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him.

10 But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit ſearcheth all things, yea, the deep things of God.

11 For what man knoweth the things of a man, ſave the ſpirit of man which is in him? even ſo the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God.

12 Now we have received, not the ſpirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God; that we might know the things that are freely given to us of God.

13 Which things alſo we ſpeak, not in the words which man's wiſdom teacheth, but which the Holy Ghoſt teacheth; comparing ſpiritual things with ſpiritual.

14 But the natural man receiveth not the things of the Spirit of God: for they are fooliſhneſs unto him; neither can he know them, becauſe they are ſpiritually diſcerned.

15 But he that is ſpiritual judgeth all things, yet he himſelf is judged of no man.

16 For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may inſtruct him? but we have the mind of Chriſt.

CHAP. III.

1 Milk is fit for children. 16 Men the temples of God: 17 which muſt be kept holy.

AND I, brethren, could not ſpeak unto you as unto ſpiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Chriſt.

2 I have fed you with milk, and not with meat: for ment for conveying them? Is not a whole Chriſt, in every view of him, to be received according to the revelation he has made of himſelf by any of his ſervants to you? And permit me to aſk thoſe of you, that ſet up one or another miniſter as your Head, inſtead of Chriſt, and run down all others, Is Paul to be extolled by one party, Apollos by another, and Peter by a third, in the leaſt competition with Chriſt? I would, to prevent envy, expoſtulate this caſe a little with you, as to myſelf? Did Paul die to make atonement for your ſins? Or were ye baptized by the authority, and into the faith of Paul, that ye ſhould be diſciples to him, and dedicated to his ſervice?

25 Becauſe the fooliſhneſs of God is wiſer than men, &c.) That, which in the falſe, blind, and prejudiced opinion of the men of this world, is deemed the greateſt folly, with reſpect to God's way and work, in this method of ſalvation, infinitely excels the utmoſt wiſdom of all the boaſted rational ſchemes of the moſt prudent, ſagacious, and learned men upon earth: and that which they boldly and impiouſly cenſure, as weak and ineffectual to anſwer its end, eſpecially by ſuch mean inſtruments as are employed to preach the goſpel, is found, by undeniable experience, to be attended with the greateſt energy, for deſtroying the intereſts of ſin and Satan, and making a holy change upon the heart and life, incomparably beyond all that ever was done, or can be pretended to be done, by the power of any natural principles in men, to change their own hearts; or by the moſt forcible arts of perſuaſion, or exertions of human authority, to change the hearts of others: and this is brought to paſs among ſuch perſons, and by ſuch inſtruments, as may beſt ſhew, that the excellency of the power is of God, and not of man.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

8 Crucified the Lord of glory, &c.) Chriſt is here ſpoken of under the auguſt title of the Lord of glory, to raiſe our thoughts of his infinite dignity, as a divine perſon, in like manner as God the Father is ſtyled the Father of glory, (1 Pet. iv. 41.) The application of this title to all the ſacred Three, intimates, that the Father, Son, and Spirit, are the God of glory, as the only true God is called, Pſal. xxix. 3. and Acts vii. 2. and Chriſt's being mentioned under this character of Deity, when he is ſpoken of as crucified, ſhews that the divine and human natures were perſonally united in him; and that his death is of infinite dignity and merit, as he was God, who purchaſed the church with his own blood.

hitherto ye were not able to bear it, neither yet now are ye able.

3 For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying and ſtrife, and diviſions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men?

4 For while one ſaith, I am of Paul; and another I am of Apollos; are ye not carnal?

5 Who then is Paul, and who is Apollos, but miniſters by whom ye believed, even as the Lord gave to every man?

6 I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increaſe.

7 So then, neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God giveth the increaſe.

8 Now, he that planteth and he that watereth are one: and every man ſhall receive his own reward, according to his own labour.

9 For we are labourers together with God: ye are God's huſbandry, ye are God's building.

10 According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wiſe maſter-builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon.

11 For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jeſus Chriſt.

12 Now, if any man build upon this foundation, gold, ſilver, precious ſtones, wood, hay, ſtubble;

13 Every man's work ſhall be made manifeſt: for the day ſhall declare it, becauſe it ſhall be revealed by fire; and the fire ſhall try every man's work of what ſort it is.

14 If any man's work abide which he hath built thereupon, he ſhall receive a reward.

15 If any man's work ſhall be burnt, he ſhall ſuffer loſs: but he himſelf ſhall be ſaved, yet ſo as by fire.

16 Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?

17 If any man defile the temple of God, him ſhall God deſtroy: for the temple of God is holy, which temple ye are.

18 Let no man deceive himſelf. If any man among you ſeemeth to be wiſe in this world, let him become a fool, that he may be wiſe.

19 For the wiſdom of this world is fooliſhneſs with God: for it is written, He taketh the wiſe in their own craftineſs.

20 And again, The Lord knoweth the thoughts of the wiſe that they are vain.

21 Therefore let no man glory in men, for all things are yours;

22 Whether Paul, or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things preſent, or things to come; all are yours;

23 And ye are Chriſt's; and Chriſt is God's.

CHAP. IV.

1 How to account of miniſters. 7 We have nothing which we have not received. 15 The apoſtles are our fathers in Chriſt.

LET a man ſo account of us as of the miniſters of Chriſt, and ſtewards of the myſteries of God.

2 Moreover, it is required in ſtewards, that a man be found faithful.

3 But with me it is a very ſmall thing that I ſhould be judged of you, or of man's judgment: yea, I judge not mine own ſelf.

4 For I know nothing by myſelf; yet am I not hereby juſtified: but he that judgeth me is the Lord.

5 Therefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who both will bring to light the hidden things of darkneſs, and will make manifeſt the counſels of the hearts: and then ſhall every man have praiſe of God.

6 And theſe things, brethren, I have in a figure transferred to myſelf and to Apollos for your ſakes; that ye might learn in us not to think of men above that which is written, that no one of you be puffed up for one againſt another.

7 For who maketh thee to differ from another? and what haſt thou that thou didſt not receive? now, if thou didſt receive it, why doſt thou glory as if thou hadſt not received it?

8 Now ye are full, now ye are rich, ye have reigned as kings without us: and I would to God ye did reign, that we alſo might reign with you.

9 For I think that God hath ſet forth us the apoſtles laſt, as it were appointed to death: for we are made a ſpectacle unto the world, and to angels, and to men.

10 We are fools for Chriſt's ſake, but ye are wiſe in Chriſt: we are weak, but ye are ſtrong: ye are honourable, but we are deſpiſed.

11 Even unto this preſent hour, we both hunger, and thirſt, and are naked, and are buffeted, and have no certain dwelling-place;

12 And labour, working with our own hands: being reviled, we bleſs: being perſecuted we ſuffer it:

13 Being defamed, we entreat: we are made as the filth of the world, and are the off-ſcouring of all things unto this day.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

13 The day ſhall declare it, becauſe it ſhall be revealed by fire.) By the day and the fire here ſpoken of, ſome underſtand the goſpel day, and the clear and ſearching light of its doctrines; others, the day of Jeruſalem's deſtruction, when conſumed by fire. But it ſeems evident, that the apoſtle meant the day of judgment, and the all-ſearching diſcoveries, with their different events, that will then be made: for in the two next verſes he ſpeaks of it, as the day of trial and retribution, when every man ſhall receive his reward, and they that are built upon Chriſt, as their foundation, ſhall be ſaved; and he ſpeaks of this, (chap. iv 5.) as the time of the Lord's coming, when he will bring to light the hidden things of darkneſs, and every man ſhall have praiſe of God; and this is what he often calls, by way of eminence, that day, and the day of Chriſt.

23 Ye are Chriſt's, &c.) Ye are Chriſt's peculiar people, property, and ſubjects, ſpouſe and members, whom his Father has given to him, and he has purchaſed with his own blood; and who have yielded yourſelves up by faith to him, to be ſaved and governed by him as your head, Lord, and King, and to be filled with all the bleſſings of grace and glory which are treaſured up in him for you: and there is no doubt to be made of his being able and willing to anſwer all your dependencies on him, and to complete your happineſs; ſince in his divine nature, he is the eternal Son of God; and in his human nature, and official capacity, he is the Mediator and Saviour, of God the Father's own providing, that he may take effectual care of you, till he perfects all that concerns you, in ſuch a way and manner, as ſhall leave no room for glorying in men; but as ſhall be intirely to his own praiſe and his Father's glory through him, and to your own utmoſt ſatisfaction, as all that is in God and Chriſt is yours.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

9 For we are made a ſpectacle unto the world, &c.) This bears a ſtrong alluſion to the criminals, that in the public games were brought laſt upon the ſtage, and might be called men devoted to death; becauſe after the morning combatants (who were allowed armour to defend themſelves againſt the wild beaſts) had played their parts in the theatre, theſe were brought forth at noon, without any covering to protect them againſt the dangers they were expoſed to; and if they eſcaped with their lives one day they were reſerved for the next, and ſo on, till they were ſlain.

13 The off-ſcouring of all things unto this day.) The critics have generally obſerved, that the words here rendered the filth and off-ſcouring, allude to a known cuſtom among the heathens, who were wont to chuſe human victims out of the dregs of the people, to ſacrifice to their gods, by way of expiation; and when viſited with the plague, or other public calamity, uſed to offer one of the meaneſt, the vileſt, and the moſt ſordid of the people, for the luſtration of the city, to cleanſe it from the guilt which might be ſuppoſed to have brought the judgment upon it.

14 I write not theſe things to ſhame you, but, as my beloved ſons, I warn you.

15 For though ye have ten thouſand inſtructors in Chriſt, yet have ye not many fathers; for in Chriſt Jeſus I have begotten you through the goſpel.

16 Wherefore, I beſeech you, be ye followers of me.

17 For this cauſe have I ſent unto you Timotheus, who is my beloved ſon, and faithful in the Lord, who ſhall bring you into remembrance of my ways which be in Chriſt, as I teach every where, in every church.

18 Now ſome are puffed up, as though I would not come to you.

19 But I will come to you ſhortly, if the Lord will, and will know, not the ſpeech of them which are puffed up, but the power.

20 For the kingdom of God is not in word, but in power.

21 What will ye? ſhall I come unto you with a rod, or in love, and in the ſpirit of meekneſs?

CHAP. V.

1 The inceſtuous perſon. 7 The old leaven muſt be purged out. 10 Heinous offenders are to be avoided.

IT is reported commonly that there is fornication among you, and ſuch fornication as is not ſo much as named among the Gentiles, that one ſhould have his father's wife.

2 And ye are puffed up, and have not rather mourned, that he that hath done this deed might be taken away from among you.

3 For, I verily, as abſent in body, but preſent in ſpirit, have judged already, as though I were preſent, concerning him that hath ſo done this deed,

4 In the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, when ye are gathered together, and my ſpirit, with the power of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

5 To deliver ſuch an one unto Satan for the deſtruction of the fleſh, that the ſpirit may be ſaved in the day of the Lord Jeſus.

6 Your glorying is not good. Know ye not that a little leaven leaveneth the whole lump?

7 Purge out, therefore, the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened. For even Chriſt our paſſover is ſacrificed for us:

8 Therefore let us keep the feaſt, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedneſs; but with the unleavened bread of ſincerity and truth.

9 I wrote unto you in an epiſtle, not to company with fornicators.

10 Yet not altogether with the fornicators of this world, or with the covetous, or extortioners, or with idolaters; for then muſt ye needs go out of the world.

11 But now I have written unto you not to keep company, if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner; with ſuch an one no not to eat.

12 For what have I to do to judge them alſo that are without? do not ye judge them that are within?

13 But them that are without God judgeth. Therefore put away from among yourſelves that wicked perſon.

CHAP. VI.

1 Of going to law with the brethren. 15 Our bodies are Chriſt's members.

DARE any of you having a matter againſt another, go to law before the unjuſt, and not before the ſaints?

2 Do ye not know that the ſaints ſhall judge the world; and if the world ſhall be judged by you, are ye unworthy to judge the ſmalleſt matters?

3 Know ye not that we ſhall judge angels? how much more things that pertain to this life?

4 If then ye have judgment of things pertaining to this life, ſet them to judge who are leaſt eſteemed in the church.

5 I ſpeak to your ſhame: is it ſo, that there is not a wiſe man among you? no, not one that ſhall be able to judge between his brethren?

6 But brother goeth to law with brother, and that before the unbelievers.

7 Now therefore there is utterly a fault among you, becauſe ye go to law one with another. Why do ye not rather take wrong? why do ye not rather ſuffer yourſelves to be defrauded?

8 Nay ye do wrong and defraud, and that your brethren.

9 Know ye not that the unrighteous ſhall not inherit the kingdom of God? be not deceived: neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abuſers of themſelves with mankind,

10 Nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, ſhall inherit the kingdom of God.

11 And ſuch were ſome of you: but ye are waſhed, but ye are ſanctified, but ye are juſtified, in the name of the Lord Jeſus, and by the Spirit of our God.

12 All things are lawful unto me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but I will not be brought under the power of any.

13 Meats for the belly, and the belly for meats: but God ſhall deſtroy both it and them. Now the body is not for fornication, but for the Lord: and the Lord for the body.

14 And God hath both raiſed up the Lord, and will alſo raiſe up us by his own power.

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

1 That one ſhould have his father's wife.) It is not to be thought, that this was the man's own mother; for then the apoſtle would doubtleſs have called her ſo, rather than his father's wife, the more to aggravate the crime: but it ſeems as if the father were ſtill living, becauſe the apoſtle ſpeaks of his ſuffering wrong, on this account. 2 Cor. vii. 12. Whether the ſon had married her, or only uſed her as his concubine, is uncertain; but, which ever were the caſe, it was ſo abominable, that though impurities of this nature were found among ſome of the moſt barbarous nations; yet they were diſallowed of and abhorred, by the politer civilized heathens, ſuch as the Greeks and Romans.

9 I wrote unto you in an epiſtle, not to company with fornicators.) It is apprehended by ſome, that the apoſtle here refers to another epiſtle, which he wrote before to the Corinthians, though it be now loſt, as ſome other of his writings may be ſuppoſed to be, they never having been placed in the canon of the New Teſtament, which contains all that is neceſſary to the perfection of our rule of faith and practice, and that infinite wiſdom deſigned and has taken care ſhould be preſerved to poſterity, for the ſtanding uſe of the church. Others think that he refers to a letter which he had begun to write before, but upon the arrival of meſſengers to him from the church, he laid that aſide, and wrote this; or that he refers to what he had already ſaid in the epiſtle which he was now writing, and particularly in the former part of this chapter.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

14 And God hath both raiſed up the Lord, &c.) As the pledge, earneſt, and ſecurity of its glorious ſtate in the world to come, God the Father raiſed up the dead body of the Lord Jeſus, as the head of the church, and the firſt fruits of them that ſleep in him; and we may aſſuredly conclude from thence that, by the working of the ſame almighty power, he will raiſe up the dead bodies of every one of us, who are the living members of Chriſt, to a bleſſed and glorious immortality, after his likeneſs, Phil. iii. 21.

15 ¶ Know ye not that your bodies are the members of Chriſt? ſhall I then take the members of Chriſt, and make them the members of an harlot? God forbid.

16 What? know ye not, that he which is joined to an harlot, is one body? for two, ſaith he, ſhall be one fleſh.

17 But he that is joined unto the Lord is one ſpirit.

18 Flee fornication: every ſin that a man doeth is without the body; but he that committeth fornication ſinneth againſt his own body.

19 What? know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghoſt, which is in you, which ye have of God, and ye are not your own?

20 For ye are bought with a price: therefore glorify God in your body, and in your ſpirit which are God's.

CHAP. VII.

1 Of marriage. 4 'Tis a remedy againſt fornication, 10 and not lightly to be diſſolved.

NOW concerning the things whereof ye wrote unto me: It is good for a man not to touch a woman.

2 ¶ Nevertheleſs, to avoid fornication, let every man have his own wife, and let every woman have her own huſband.

3 Let the huſband render unto the wife due benevolence: and likewiſe alſo the wife unto the huſband.

4 ¶ The wife hath not power of her own body, but the huſband: and likewiſe alſo the huſband hath not power of his own body, but the wife.

5 Defraud ye not one the other, except it be with conſent for a time, that ye may give yourſelves to faſting and prayer: and come together again, that Satan tempt you not for your incontinency.

6 But I ſpeak this by permiſſion, and not of commandment.

7 For I would that all men were even as I myſelf. But every man hath his proper gift of God, one after this manner, and another after that.

8 I ſay therefore to the unmarried and widows, It is good for them if they abide even as I.

9 But if they cannot contain, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn.

10 ¶ And unto the married I command, yet not I, but the Lord, Let not the wife depart from her huſband:

11 But and if ſhe depart, let her remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her huſband: and let not the huſband put away his wife.

12 But to the reſt ſpeak I, not the Lord: If any brother hath a wife that believeth not, and ſhe be pleaſed to dwell with him, let him not put her away.

13 And the woman which hath an huſband that believeth not, and if he be pleaſed to dwell with her, let her not leave him.

14 For the unbelieving huſband is ſanctified by the wife, and the unbelieving wife is ſanctified by the huſband: elſe were your children unclean: but now are they holy.

15 And if the unbelieving depart, let him depart. A brother or a ſiſter is not under bondage in ſuch caſes: but God hath called us to peace.

16 For what knoweſt thou, O wife, whether thou ſhalt ſave thy huſband? or how knoweſt thou, O man, whether thou ſhalt ſave thy wife?

17 But as God hath diſtributed to every man as the Lord hath called every one, ſo let him walk. And ſo ordain I in all churches.

18 Is any man called being circumciſed? let him not become uncircumciſed. Is any called in uncircumciſion? let him not be circumciſed.

19 Circumciſion is nothing, and uncircumciſion is nothing, but the keeping of the commandments of God.

20 Let every man abide in the ſame calling wherein he was called.

21 Art thou called being a ſervant? care not for it: but if thou mayeſt be made free, uſe it rather.

22 For he that is called in the Lord, being a ſervant, is the Lord's free man: likewiſe alſo he that is called, being free, is Chriſt's ſervant.

23 Ye are bought with a price: be not ye the ſervants of men.

24 Brethren, let every man wherein he is called, therein abide with God.

25 Now concerning virgins I have no commandment of the Lord: yet I give my judgment as one that hath obtained mercy of the Lord to be faithful.

26 I ſuppoſe therefore that this is good for the preſent diſtreſs, I ſay, that it is good for a man ſo to be.

27 Art thou bound unto a wife? ſeek not to be looſed. Art thou looſed from a wife? ſeek not a wife.

18 Every ſin that a man doth is without the body, &c.) Every ſin here oppoſed to fornication, muſt be underſtood with a reſtriction to ſuch ſort of ſins as are committed merely againſt God and others: for though expoſitors commonly take notice of gluttony and drunkenneſs, as included in thoſe other ſins, becauſe they are an abuſe of food and drink; yet ſince they are likewiſe an abuſe of a man's own body, it can ſcarce be ſaid of them, that they are without the body, or are not ſins againſt a man's own body; and even fornication itſelf is an abuſe of other's, as well as of one's own body.

20 Glorify God in your body, &c.) As Chriſt is the Redeemer, who paid the price for us, we are certainly his, as well as God the Father's peculiar property; and as it is on the foot of his redemption that we are ſaid to be God's, it naturally follows, that Chriſt is included in the God, whoſe we are, and whom we ſhould glorify with our bodies and ſpirits, which are his; and as, in the preceding verſe, believers were ſaid to be the temple of the Holy Ghoſt, he alſo is to be conſidered together with the Father and Son, as the God, who has a peculiar property in us, and is to be glorified by us.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VII.

1 Now concerning the things whereof ye wrote unto me: &c.) It appears from the manner of the apoſtle's introducing this part of the epiſtle, that he had received a letter from ſuch members of the church at Corinth, as adhered to him, about ſeveral points of conſcience in debate among them, of which they deſired a ſolution, as what they would abide by: accordingly he ſets himſelf to anſwer them, in this and the following chapters, beginning with their queſtions about marriage, in an agreeable connection with what he had laſt been ſaying againſt fornication. Had we the letter before us, which they wrote to him, we might form a better judgment of the beauty and propriety of his thoughts on all thoſe points, than we now can, for want of knowing its contents, any further than may be gathered from his reply, and from the very ſcanty remains of the hiſtory of thoſe times. As to the article of marriage, which he conſiders in this chapter, it is probable that there were ſome of the Gentile converts, who inclined to the Pythagorean notion againſt that ordinance, as though it were an enemy to the intellectual life; and that there were others among the Jewiſh converts, who ſided with the doctrine of their ſchools, which taught, that every man at the age of twenty was bound to marry, and delivered various opinions about reſtraints from the marriage-bed.

12 If any brother hath a wife that believeth not, &c.) The Iſraelites marrying the daughters of idolatrous nations, was in direct contradiction to the well known, expreſs, and ſevere prohibition of God's law. Deut. vii. 3, 4. But the believer and unbeliever, ſpoken of by the apoſtle, are ſuppoſed to have been married, while they were both in a ſtate of heatheniſm, or of unbelief. That caſe, therefore, was very different from this, on the religious foot; and it was ſo, furthermore, on a political account, as the Jews, nationally conſidered, were under God's immediate government, as their king, and were to be kept entirely diſtinct from all the idolatrous nations round about them: and though it would be contrary to the duty, comfort, and edification of chriſtians to marry unbelievers, ver. 39. yet it would not make the marriage itſelf null and void.

28 But and if thou marry, thou haſt not ſinned; and if a virgin marry, ſhe hath not ſinned. Nevertheleſs, ſuch ſhall have trouble in the fleſh: but I ſpare you.

29 But this, I ſay, brethren, the time is ſhort: it remaineth that both they that have wives, be as though they had none.

30 And they that weep, as though they wept not; and they that rejoice, as though they rejoiced not: and they that buy, as though they poſſeſſed not;

31 And they that uſe this world, as not abuſing it; for the faſhion of this world paſſeth away.

32 But I would have you without carefulneſs. He that is unmarried careth for the things that belong to the Lord, how he may pleaſe the Lord:

33 But he that is married careth for the things that are of the world, how he may pleaſe his wife.

34 There is difference alſo between a wife and a virgin. The unmarried woman careth for the things of the Lord, that ſhe may be holy both in body and in ſpirit; but ſhe that is married careth for the things of the world, how ſhe may pleaſe her huſband.

35 And this I ſpeak for your own profit; not that I may caſt a ſnare upon you, but for that which is comely. And that ye may attend upon the Lord without diſtraction.

36 But if any man think that he behaveth himſelf uncomely towards his virgin, if ſhe paſs the flower of her age, and need ſo require, let him do what he will, he ſinneth not: let them marry.

37 Nevertheleſs, he that ſtandeth ſtedfaſt in his heart, having no neceſſity but hath power over his own will, and hath ſo decreed in his heart that he will keep his virgin, doeth well.

38 So then he that giveth her in marriage doeth well; but he that giveth her not in marriage doeth better.

39 The wife is bound by the law as long as her huſband liveth: but if her huſband be dead, ſhe is at liberty to be married to whom ſhe will; only in the Lord.

40 But ſhe is happier if ſhe ſo abide, after my judgment: and I think alſo that I have the Spirit of God.

CHAP. VIII.

1 To abſtain from meat offered to idols. 9 We muſt not abuſe our chriſtian liberty.

NOW, as touching things offered unto idols, we know that we all have knowledge. *Knowledge puffeth up, but charity edifieth.

2 And if any man think that he knoweth any thing, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know.

3 But if any man love God, the ſame is known of him.

4 As concerning, therefore, the eating of thoſe things that are offered in ſacrifice unto idols, we know that an idol is nothing in the world, and that there is none other God but one.

5 For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many, and lords many,)

6 But to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him; and one Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by whom are all things, and we by him.

7 Howbeit, there is not in every man that knowledge: for ſome, with conſcience of the idol unto this hour, eat it as a thing offered unto an idol; and their conſcience being weak is defiled.

8 But meat commendeth us not to God: for neither, if we eat, are we the better; neither if we eat not, are we the worſe.

9 But take heed, leſt by any means this liberty of yours become a ſtumbling-block to them that are weak.

10 For if any man ſee thee which haſt knowledge ſit at meat in the idols temple, ſhall not the conſcience of him which is weak be emboldened to eat thoſe things which are offered to idols;

11 And through thy knowledge ſhall the weak brother periſh for whom Chriſt died?

12 But when ye ſin ſo againſt the brethren, and wound their weak conſcience, ye ſin againſt Chriſt.

13 Wherefore, if meat make my brother to offend, I will eat no fleſh while the world ſtandeth, leſt I make my brother to offend.

CHAP. IX.

1 He ſheweth his liberty, and that the miniſters ought to live by the goſpel. 24 Our life is like unto a race.

AM I not an apoſtle? am I not free? have I not ſeen Jeſus Chriſt our Lord? are not ye my work in the Lord.

2 If I be not an apoſtle unto others, yet doubtleſs I am to you: for the ſeal of mine apoſtleſhip are ye in the Lord.

3 Mine anſwer to them that do examine me is this;

4 Have we not power to eat and to drink?

5 Have we not power to lead about a ſiſter, a wife, as well as other apoſtles, and as the brethren of the Lord, and Cephas?

6 Or I only and Barnabas, have not we power to forbear working?

---

40 I think alſo that I have the Spirit of God.) As the apoſtle was ſo well acquainted with God's way of revealing his mind and will to him, by the Spirit, he muſt needs have known wherein he was, or was not inſpired; otherwiſe there would be the greateſt uncertainty, as to his own, and our dependance on what he wrote, but it can't be ſuppoſed that he would intimate any thing, that looked like the leaſt doubt in himſelf, whether he were under the guidance of the Spirit in his deciſions of caſes put to him; ſince that would have been to have given his adverſaries the greateſt advantage againſt him, whilſt he was labouring, all along, to aſſert his apoſtolic authority, in oppoſition to them; and therefore when he ſays, I think that I have the Spirit of God, he is to be underſtood, as ſpeaking, not with heſitation, but with entire confidence; in which ſenſe the word here uſed is ſometimes to be taken, as in Luke xvii. 9. Acts xv. 25, 28. and xxvi. 9. And he herein ſeems to refer, not merely to the laſt mentioned caſe; but to all that he had been ſaying, by way of addition to what our Lord himſelf had ſettled in his perſonal miniſtry.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VIII.

1 Now, as touching things offered to idols, &c) It was cuſtomary among Pagan idolaters to offer oxen, ſheep, and other animals, that were fit for food, in ſacrifice to their gods. Part of theſe ſacrifices were conſumed on the altar, and the remainder was divided, in various ſhares, between the prieſt and the offerers, who feaſted on them, and invited their friends to the entertainment, ſometimes in the Idol temple, and at others in their own houſes; and what was not thus diſpoſed of was often ſold in the market. Now, as appears from ver. 4, 10. ſome of the Corinthians pleaded, that, ſince an idol is nothing, it could not defile the meats which were offered to it; and that therefore it was not unlawful, but rather ſhewed a contempt of the imaginary god, to eat of them in the Heathen temples, as well as in the private families of their friends, or when they had been ſold in the market: but as they carried that matter too far, the apoſtle, in this chapter, ſets himſelf to oppoſe ſuch an unguarded uſe of their liberty therein, as, even though ſuppoſed to be lawful in itſelf, would be injurious and miſleading to others, who could not diſtinguiſh, as they themſelves might, between a civil-act, and a veneration of the idol.

7 Who goeth a warfare any time at his own charges? who planteth a vineyard, and eateth not of the fruit thereof? or, who feedeth a flock, and eateth not of the milk of the flock?

8 Say I theſe things as a man? or ſaith not the law the ſame alſo?

9 For it is written in the law of Moſes, Thou ſhalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen?

10 Or ſaith he it altogether for our ſakes? for our ſakes, no doubt, this is written: that he that ploweth ſhould plow in hope; and that he that threſheth in hope ſhould be partaker of his hope.

11 If we have ſown unto you ſpiritual things, is it a great thing if we ſhall reap your carnal things?

12 If others be partakers of this power over you, are not we rather? Nevertheleſs, we have not uſed this power; but ſuffer all things, leſt we ſhould hinder the goſpel of Chriſt.

13 Do ye not know, that they which miniſter about holy things live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar?

14 Even ſo hath the Lord ordained, that they which preach the goſpel ſhould live of the goſpel.

15 But I have uſed none of theſe things; neither have I written theſe things that it ſhould be ſo done unto me: for it were better for me to die than that any man ſhould make my glorying void.

16 For though I preach the goſpel, I have nothing to glory of: for neceſſity is laid upon me; yea, woe is unto me if I preach not the goſpel!

17 For if I do this thing willingly I have a reward: but if againſt my will, a diſpenſation of the goſpel is committed unto me.

18 What is my reward then? Verily, that, when I preach the goſpel, I may make the goſpel of Chriſt without charge, that I abuſe not my power in the goſpel.

19 For though I be free from all men, yet have I made myſelf ſervant unto all, that I might gain the more.

20 And unto the Jews I became as a Jew, that I might gain the Jews; to them that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain them that are under the law;

21 To them that are without law, as without law, (being not without law to God, but under the law to Chriſt,) that I might gain them that are without law.

22 To the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak: I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means ſave ſome.

23 And this I do for the goſpel's ſake, that I might be partaker thereof with you.

24 Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run that ye may obtain.

25 And every man that ſtriveth for the maſtery is tempered in all things. Now, they do it to obtain a corruptible crown, but we an incorruptible.

26 I therefore ſo run, not as uncertainly; ſo fight I not as one that beateth the air;

27 But I keep under my body, and bring it into ſubjection; leſt that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myſelf ſhould be a caſtaway.

CHAP. X.

1 The Jews' ſacraments, 6 types of ours: and their puniſhments, 11 our examples. 21 We muſt not make the Lord's table the table of devils.

MOREOVER, brethren, I would not that ye ſhould be ignorant how that all our fathers were under the cloud, and all paſſed through the ſea;

2 And were all baptized unto Moſes in the cloud and in the ſea;

3 And did all eat the ſame ſpiritual meat;

4 And did all drink the ſame ſpiritual drink; (for they drank of that ſpiritual Rock that followed them; and that Rock was Chriſt:)

5 But with many of them God was not well pleaſed; for they were overthrown in the wilderneſs.

6 Now, theſe things were our examples, to the intent we ſhould not luſt after evil things, as they alſo luſted.

7 Neither be ye idolaters, as were ſome of them; as it is written, The people ſat down to eat and drink, and roſe up to play.

8 Neither let us commit fornication, as ſome of them committed, and fell in one day three and twenty thouſand.

9 Neither let us tempt Chriſt, as ſome of them alſo tempted, and were deſtroyed of ſerpents.

10 Neither murmur ye, as ſome of them alſo murmured, and were deſtroyed of the deſtroyer.

11 Now, all theſe things happened unto them for enſamples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come.

12 Wherefore, let him that thinketh he ſtandeth, take heed leſt he fall.

24 Know ye not that they which run in a race, &c.) Among the famous games of Greece, thoſe that were kept at the Iſthmus of Corinth, were called the Iſthmian games. Theſe the apoſtle here, and in the three following verſes alludes to, as well known among the Corinthians; and particularly to the racing, wreſtling, and boxing or cuffing, uſed on thoſe occaſions, which, together with leaping and quoiting, were the principal exerciſes in thoſe games.

27 Leſt that by any means, when I have preached to others, &c.) It is not reaſonable to think that the apoſtle had any doubt in himſelf whether he ſhould be eternally ſaved, or not: for he had ſaid, juſt before, that he did not run as uncertainly, and always ſpoke with an entire confidence as to his own ſalvation. But as he well knew that God did not deſign his own, or any other perſon attaining it, without the uſe of proper means, which are connected with the end, both in the divine purpoſe, and in the conſtitution and fulfilment of the new covenant; ſo he excited himſelf, by theſe conſiderations, to the utmoſt diligence in mortifying the corruptions of nature, which, on a ſuppoſition that he were careleſs in ſubduing them, and ſhould live under the power of them, would be inconſiſtent with his aſſured hopes of eternal life: but it by no means follows from hence, that he was under any apprehenſions of his being ſuffered to do ſo inconſiſtent a thing, and of thereby miſcarrying, and being eventually rejected as a falſe profeſſor, or unfaithful miniſter, in the great day of account. And he ſeems, according to his wonted admirable wiſdom, to have tranſferred theſe things, as it were in a figure, to himſelf, to ſhew the inſeparable connection between the means and the end, and ſo to ſtir up all other profeſſing Chriſtians, and miniſtring ſervants, to like care and diligence; and particularly to pave the way for the Corinthians receiving his awful admonitions without offence, which immediately follow at the beginning of the next chapter.

Commentary on Chap. X.

2 And were all baptized unto Moſes in the cloud, &c.) It is probable, ſays Eſtius, that they were ſprinkled here and there, with drops of water from the ſea, which ſtood upright on both ſides, as they paſſed along, and from the cloud that was ſpread over them; by which the ſacrament of baptiſm might be the more evidently ſignified. And if it be ſuppoſed, that here is any alluſion to the mode of baptiſm, one would think it refers rather to an adminiſtration of it by ſprinkling, than by immerſion; ſince the Egyptians, that were drowned in the ſea, were baptized by the waters covering them, rather than the Iſraelites, that went on dry land, and could be no other way waſhed than with drops that might fall from the cloud and the daſhings of the waves.

11 Upon whom the ends of the world are come.) The Jews divided the time of the world's continuance into three ages; the firſt, before the law; the ſecond, under the law, and the third, after the law; and as the age under the law, which was the concluſion of the Jewiſh ages, was then expired, and the age after the law, under the Meſſiah, which was the laſt age of the whole world, had then commenced, the ends of the world, may reſpect both the expiration of divine diſpenſations under the two Jewiſh ages, and the introduction of the the third and laſt, as the concluding period, that ſhould abide to the end of the world.

13 There hath no temptation taken you, but ſuch as is common to man: but God is faithful, who will not ſuffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation alſo make a way to eſcape, that ye may be able to bear it.

14 Wherefore, my dearly beloved, flee from idolatry.

15 I ſpeak as to wiſe men: judge ye what I ſay.

16 The cup of bleſſing which we bleſs, is it not the communion of the blood of Chriſt? the bread which we break is it not the communion of the body of Chriſt?

17 For we, being many, are one bread, and one body; for we are all partakers of that one bread.

18 Behold Iſrael after the fleſh. Are not they which eat of the ſacrifices partakers of the altar?

19 What ſay I then? that the idol is any thing? or that which is offered in ſacrifice to idols is any thing?

20 But I ſay, that the things which the Gentiles ſacrifice, they ſacrifice to devils, and not to God: and I would not that ye ſhould have fellowſhip with devils.

21 Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord and the cup of devils: ye cannot be partakers of the Lord's table and of the table of devils.

22 Do we provoke the Lord to jealouſy? are we ſtronger than he?

23 All things are lawful for me, but all things are not expedient: all things are lawful for me, but all things edify not.

24 Let no man ſeek his own, but every man another's wealth.

25 Whatſoever is ſold in the ſhambles, that eat, aſking no queſtion for conſcience ſake.

26 For the earth is the Lord's, and the fulneſs thereof.

27 If any of them that believe not bid you to a feaſt, and ye be diſpoſed to go; whatſoever is ſet before you, eat, aſking no queſtion for conſcience ſake.

28 But if any man ſay unto you, This is offered in ſacrifice unto idols, eat not, for his ſake that ſhewed it, and for conſcience ſake: for the earth is the Lord's, and the fulneſs thereof.

29 Conſcience, I ſay, not thine own, but of the other; for why is my liberty judged of another man's conſcience?

30 For if I by grace be a partaker, why am I evil ſpoken of for that for which I give thanks?

31 Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatſoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.

32 Give none offence, neither to the Jews nor to the Gentiles, nor to the church of God.

33 Even as I pleaſe all men in all things, not ſeeking mine own profit, but the profit of many, that they may be ſaved.

CHAP. XI.

1 Of covering heads in praying. 21 Of profaning the Lord's ſupper: 23 the apoſtle's account of the inſtitution of it.

BE ye followers of me, even as I alſo am of Chriſt.

2 Now I praiſe you, brethren, that you remember me in all things, and keep the ordinances as I delivered them to you.

3 But I would have you know that the head of every man is Chriſt; and the head of the woman is the man; and the head of Chriſt is God.

4 Every man praying or propheſying having his head covered, diſhonoureth his head.

5 But every woman that prayeth or propheſieth with her head uncovered, diſhonoureth her head: for that is even all one as if ſhe were ſhaven.

6 For if the woman be not covered, let her alſo be ſhorn: but if it be a ſhame for a woman to be ſhorn or ſhaven, let her be covered.

7 For a man indeed ought not to cover his head, foraſmuch as he is the image and glory of God: but the woman is the glory of the man.

8 For the man is not of the woman: but the woman of the man.

9 Neither was the man created for the woman; but the woman for the man.

10 For this cauſe ought the woman to have power on her head, becauſe of the angels.

11 Nevertheleſs, neither is the man without the woman, neither the woman without the man in the Lord.

12 For as the woman is of the man, even ſo is the man alſo by the woman: but all things of God.

13 Judge in yourſelves: is it comely that a woman pray unto God uncovered?

14 Doth not even nature itſelf teach you, that if a man have long hair it is a ſhame unto him?

15 But if a woman have long hair, it is a glory to her, for her hair is given her for a covering.

16 But if any man ſeem to be contentious, we have no ſuch cuſtom, neither the churches of God.

17 Now in this that I declare unto you I praiſe you not, that ye come together not for the better, but for the worſe.

18 For firſt of all, when ye come together in the church, I hear that there be diviſions among you; and I partly believe it.

19 For there muſt be alſo hereſies among you, that they which are approved may be made manifeſt among you.

20 When ye come together therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's ſupper.

22 Do we provoke the Lord to jealouſy?) Here ſeems to be a direct reference to the firſt and ſecond commandments, and as Chriſt is undoubtedly the Lord meant in the foregoing verſe, which ſpeaks of his cup and his table, it is moſt natural to conſider him, as the Lord intended in this verſe, whom we ought not to provoke to jealouſy; and, by conſequence, as included at leaſt, in the God, who declared himſelf to be a jealous God, in the ſecond commandment; particularly with reſpect to worſhipping him alone.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XI.

4 Every man praying or propheſying having his head covered, &c.) For underſtanding the following diſcourſe and reaſoning to ver. 15. it is proper to obſerve, that though amongſt us, in the weſtern part of the world, wearing the hat when men appear in public, is a token of ſuperiority; and being uncovered is a token of inferiority; yet among the antient eaſtern nations, women's wearing a veil was a token of modeſty and ſubjection, as in the caſe of Rebecca, Gen. xxiv. 65. and men's going unveiled was a token of the ſuperiority of the male to the female ſex; and therefore for women to throw off their veils and to appear open-faced in public aſſemblies, even though ſuppoſed to ſpeak under divine inſpiration, was deemed, by the cuſtom of thoſe times and places, to be aſſuming an air of authority, which belongs only to the man, and an inverting the order, in which the God of nature has placed the two ſexes. This is what the apoſtle argues againſt, and inſiſts that all proper, and eſpecially ſignificative ſigns of diſtinction are to be preſerved by the woman; even ſuppoſing that ſhe prays, or propheſies, which ſome think here ſignifies uttering ſacred hymns in public aſſemblies, under an immediate afflatus of the ſpirit; and that this gives no diſpenſation to the contrary: and it is plain that he here refers only to women's publicly praying or propheſying by inſpiration; becauſe he reckons theſe among the extraordinary gifts of the ſpirit, in chap. xii. 10. and xiv. 1——32. and becauſe, in the ordinary courſe of things, at leaſt, he forbids women's ſpeaking in the church, and that for the ſame reaſon, as he here orders that when they ſpeak by a ſupernatural gift, it ſhould be with their veils on, viz. to maintain the natural ſubordination of their ſex to the man's, that they might not behave as if they were on a level with him.

21 ¶ For in eating every one taketh before other his own ſupper: and one is hungry, and another is drunken.

22 What, have ye not houſes to eat and to drink in? or deſpiſe ye the church of God, and ſhame them that have not? What ſhall I ſay to you? ſhall I praiſe you in this? I praiſe you not.

23 ¶ For I have received of the Lord that which alſo I delivered unto you, That the Lord Jeſus, the ſame night in which he was betrayed, took bread.

24 And when he had given thanks, he brake it, and ſaid, Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you; this do in remembrance of me.

25 After the ſame manner alſo he took the cup, when he had ſupped, ſaying, This cup is the New Teſtament in my blood; this do ye as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me.

26 For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye do ſhew the Lord's death till he come.

27 Wherefore, whoſoever ſhall eat this bread and drink this cup of the Lord unworthily, ſhall be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord.

28 But let a man examine himſelf, and ſo let him eat of that bread, and drink of that cup.

29 For he that eateth and drinketh unworthily, eateth and drinketh damnation to himſelf, not diſcerning the Lord's body.

30 For this cauſe many are weak and ſickly among you, and many ſleep.

31 For if we would judge ourſelves, we ſhould not be judged.

32 But when we are judged we are chaſtened of the Lord, that we ſhould not be condemned with the world.

33 Wherefore, my brethren, when ye come together to eat, tarry one for another.

34 And if any man hunger, let him eat at home; that ye come not together unto condemnation. And the reſt will I ſet in order when I come.

CHAP. XII.

1 Spiritual gifts are divers, 7 yet all to profit withal.
12 Chriſtians, as the members of the body natural, are one.

NOW concerning ſpiritual gifts, brethren, I would not have you ignorant.

2 Ye know that ye were Gentiles carried away unto theſe dumb idols, even as ye were led.

3 Wherefore I give you to underſtand that no man ſpeaking by the Spirit of God calleth Jeſus accurſed: and that no man can ſay that Jeſus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghoſt.

4 Now there are diverſities of gifts, but the ſame Spirit.

5 And there are differences of adminiſtrations, but the ſame Lord.

6 And there are diverſities of operations, but it is the ſame God which worketh all in all.

7 ¶ But the manifeſtation of the Spirit is given to every man to profit withal.

8 For to one is given by the Spirit the word of wiſdom; to another, the word of knowledge by the ſame Spirit;

9 To another, faith by the ſame Spirit; to another, the gifts of healing by the ſame Spirit;

10 To another, the working of miracles; to another, prophecy; to another, diſcerning of ſpirits; to another, divers kinds of tongues; to another, the interpretation of tongues;

11 But all theſe worketh, that one and the ſelf-ſame Spirit, dividing to every man ſeverally as he will.

12 ¶ For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of that one body, being many, are one body: ſo alſo is Chriſt.

13 For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be bond or free: and have been all made to drink into one Spirit.

14 For the body is not one member, but many.

15 If the foot ſhall ſay, Becauſe I am not the hand, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body?

16 And if the ear ſhall ſay, Becauſe I am not the eye, I am not of the body; is it therefore not of the body?

17 If the whole body were an eye, where were the hearing? if the whole were hearing, where were the ſmelling?

18 But now hath God ſet the members every one of them in the body, as it hath pleaſed him.

19 And if they were all one member, where were the body?

20 But now are they many members, yet but one body.

21 And the eye cannot ſay unto the hand, I have no need of thee: nor again, the head to the feet, I have no need of you.

22 Nay, much more, thoſe members of the body which ſeem to be more feeble are neceſſary.

23 And thoſe members of the body which we think to be leſs honourable, upon theſe we beſtow more abundant honour; and our uncomely parts have more abundant comelineſs.

24 For our comely parts have no need: but God hath 21 One is hungry, and another is drunken.) As the word ſometimes ſignifies only to drink ſo freely as to cheer the ſpirits, and is rendered well drunk, John ii. 10. and is uſed by the ſeventy much in the ſame ſenſe, (Gen. xliii. 34. and Cant. v. 1.) there is no neceſſity of thinking that any of the Corinthians uſed to make themſelves drunk at the Lord's ſupper but they allowed themſelves in too great a liberty of drinking there; and perhaps took encouragement to it, becauſe the Jews were wont to do ſo at the paſſover, and the heathens at their feaſts on their ſacrifices; and yet their Chriſtian principles and profeſſion might reſtrain them from thoſe ſhameful exceſſes, which both Jews and heathens ran into, on thoſe occaſions.

30 Many are weak and ſickly among you, &c.) It is not improbable but that, as ſome have apprehended, Corinth was then viſited with an epidemical and mortal diſeaſe; and that the apoſtle might know, by immediate revelation, that the ſins of God's people here, particularly in their horrid prophanations of the Lord's ſupper, greatly contributed to the bringing down of that judgment upon them, and upon their city.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XII.

3 No man can ſay that Jeſus is the Lord, but by the Holy Ghoſt.) The Jewiſh nation denied that the Holy Ghoſt was given to the Gentiles, or dwelt upon any out of the land of Iſrael; and their exorciſts were enemies to Chriſt, and pretended to be themſelves endued with the Holy Ghoſt. What the apoſtle therfore ſays in this verſe, ſeems deſigned to confute the vain boaſts of the exorciſts; and to take off the prejudices of the believing Jews againſt the Gentile converts: and yet, as ſome of the Heathens pretended to inſpirations, why may we not ſuppoſe, that he intended to diſtinguiſh the operations of the Spirit from thoſe deluſions alſo?

13 For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body, &c.) For all of us, who are endued with the gifts and graces of one and the ſelf-ſame Spirit, (ver. 11.) are thereby incorporated into one ſpiritual body, according to what was ſignified by our being baptized with water, and that without any preference of one to another, whether we be Jewiſh or Gentile believers; and whatever our civil ſtation be in the world, whether that of maſters, or ſervants, and bond-ſlaves: for we are all one in Chriſt Jeſus, alike entitled to all the privileges and benefits of his church, as Abraham's ſeed, and heirs according to the promiſe, (Gal. iii. 28, 29.) and we have all been nouriſhed and refreſhed by further participations of that one divine Spirit, who invigorates, ſtrengthens, and comforts us, and cauſes us to be of one heart and ſoul, in things pertaining to God, according to what is ſignified by our viſible communion with Chriſt, and with each other, as one body, in our drinking of the cup of bleſſing at the Lord's ſupper, chap. x. 16, 17.

hath tempered the body together, having given more abundant honour to that part which lacked:

25 That there ſhould be no ſchiſm in the body; but that the members ſhould have the ſame care one for another.

26 And whether one member ſuffer, all the members ſuffer with it; or one member be honoured, all the members rejoice with it.

27 Now ye are the body of Chriſt, and members in particular.

28 And God hath ſet ſome in the church, firſt apoſtles, ſecondarily prophets, thirdly teachers, after that miracles, then gifts of healings, helps, governments, diverſities of tongues.

29 Are all apoſtles? are all prophets? are all teachers? are all workers of miracles?

30 Have all the gifts of healings? do all ſpeak with tongues? do all interpret?

31 But covet earneſtly the beſt gifts: and yet ſhew I unto you a more excellent way.

CHAP. XIII.

1 All gifts, how excellent ſoever, are nothing worth without charity. 4 The praiſes thereof.

THOUGH I ſpeak with the tongues of men and of angels, and have not charity, I am become as ſounding braſs, or a tinkling cymbal.

2 And though I have the gift of prophecy, and underſtand all myſteries, and all knowledge, and though I have all faith, ſo that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing.

3 And though I beſtow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.

4 ¶ Charity ſuffereth long, and is kind; charity envieth not; charity vaunteth not itſelf, is not puffed up;

5 Doth not behave itſelf unſeemly, ſeeketh not her own, is not eaſily provoked, thinketh no evil;

6 Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth.

7 Beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things.

8 Charity never faileth: but whether there be prophecies they ſhall fail; whether there be tongues, they ſhall ceaſe; whether there be knowledge, it ſhall vaniſh away.

9 For we know in part, and we propheſy in part.

10 But when that which is perfect is come, then that which is in part ſhall be done away.

11 When I was a child I ſpake as a child, I underſtood as a child, I thought as a child: but when I became a man I put away childiſh things.

12 For now we ſee through a glaſs darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then ſhall I know even as alſo I am known.

13 And now abideth faith, hope, charity, theſe three; but the greateſt of theſe is charity.

CHAP. XIV.

1 Prophecy is commended, 2, 3, 4 and preferred before ſpeaking with tongues, 7 by a compariſon drawn from muſical inſtruments: 12 both muſt be referred to edification, 22 as to their true and proper end: 26 the true uſe of each is taught, 29 and the abuſe taxed. 34 Women are forbidden to ſpeak in the church.

FOLLOW after charity, and deſire ſpiritual gifts, but rather that ye may propheſy.

2 For he that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue ſpeaketh not unto men but unto God: for no man underſtandeth him; howbeit in the ſpirit he ſpeaketh myſteries.

3 But he that propheſieth, ſpeaketh unto men to edification, and exhortation, and comfort.

4 He that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue edifieth himſelf; but he that propheſieth edifieth the church.

5 I would that ye all ſpake with tongues, but rather that ye propheſied: for greater is he that propheſieth than he that ſpeaketh with tongues, except he interpret, that the church may receive edifying.

6 Now, brethren, if I come unto you, ſpeaking with tongues, what ſhall I profit you, except I ſhall ſpeak to you either by revelation, or by knowledge, or by propheſying, or by doctrine.

7 And even things without life giving ſound, whether pipe or harp, except they give a diſtinction in the the ſounds, how ſhall it be known what is piped or harped?

8 For if the trumpet give an uncertain ſound, who ſhall prepare himſelf to the battle?

9 So likewiſe ye, except ye utter by the tongue words eaſy to be underſtood, how ſhall it be known what is ſpoken? for ye ſhall ſpeak into the air.

10 There are, it may be, ſo many kinds of voices in the world, and none of them is without ſignification.

11 Therefore, if I know not the meaning of the voice, I ſhall be unto him that ſpeaketh a barbarian, and he that ſpeaketh ſhall be a barbarian unto me.

---

29 Are all apoſtles? &c.) In the conſtitution of ſuch a body as the church of Chriſt, even in its firſt erection is it reaſonable to ſuppoſe, that all its members, or officers ſhould be apoſtles? or that they all ſhould be prophets? or all preachers? or all workers of every kind of miracle? or is it to be ſuppoſed, that all ſhould have the gift of healing bodily diſeaſes? or all ſhould be able to ſpeak foreign languages? or all ſhould have the faculty of interpreting them? this would be as abſurd, as to imagine that the whole natural body were to conſiſt of only one ſort of members, each of which is fitted for every uſe, and ſo renders the reſt needleſs; but they are all, as variouſly diſtributed, valuable and important, in their reſpective places, capacities, and order, to perform different ſervices for the good of the whole; ſo that no one ought to envy another for his ſuperior gifts and ſtation; nor ought any one to deſpiſe another, or account him uſeleſs, becauſe he may not be capable of ſerving ſo high and excellent purpoſes, and to ſo great a degree as himſelf.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIII.

1 Sounding braſs or a tinkling cymbal.) Various are the conjectures of the learned about the tinkling cymbal. Some think that by the ſounding braſs, is meant the ſounding trumpet, and by tinkling cymbal, the high ſounding cymbal, both of which are mentioned in Pſal. cl. 3, 5. and that the cymbal, as well as the trumpet, was a wind inſtrument of braſs or ſilver. Others think that a tinkling cymbal was, when two hollow balls of braſs were ſtruck one againſt another, without any meaſure, or tone of muſic, but with a rude, inartificial, and hollow ſound. But others with the greateſt probability, ſuppoſe that a cymbal conſiſted of two large hollow plates, or ſmall deep diſhes of braſs with broad brims, which were ſtruck one againſt the other, to fill up the ſymphony in great concerts of muſic, and made a great deep ſound, but had ſcarce any variety of muſical notes.

12 For now we ſee through a glaſs darkly, &c) Here ſeems to be a double alluſion, one to a glaſs, which preſents an object to the eye, though with ſome obſcurity; and is to be underſtood, not of a proſpective, ſuch ſort of glaſſes being a modern invention; but of a mirrour, or looking-glaſs, which anciently conſiſted of ſome poliſhed metal, ſuch as copper or braſs, ſteel or gold; Exod. xxxviii. 8. Job xxxvii. 18. and Rev. xxi. 18. which did not give ſo clear a view of the object, as our looking-glaſſes do. The other is an alluſion to a riddle, which is an obſcure way of repreſenting things to the underſtanding, and requires the labour of the mind to find them out.

12 Even ſo ye, foraſmuch as ye are zealous of ſpiritual gifts, ſeek that ye may excel to the edifying of the church.

13 Wherefore, let him that ſpeaketh in an unknown tongue pray that he may interpret.

14 For, if I pray in an unknown tongue, my ſpirit prayeth, but my underſtanding is unfruitful.

15 What is it then? I will pray with the ſpirit, and I will pray with the underſtanding alſo; I will ſing with the ſpirit, and I will ſing with the underſtanding alſo.

16 Elſe, when thou ſhalt bleſs with the ſpirit, how ſhall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned ſay Amen, at thy giving of thanks, ſeeing he underſtandeth not what thou ſayeſt?

17 For thou, verily, giveſt thanks well, but the other is not edified.

18 I thank my God, I ſpeak with tongues more than you all:

19 Yet in the church I had rather ſpeak five words with my underſtanding, that by my voice I might teach others alſo, than ten thouſand words in an unknown tongue.

20 Brethren, be not children in underſtanding: howbeit, in malice be ye children, but in underſtanding be men.

21 In the law it is written, With men of other tongues and other lips will I ſpeak unto this people; and yet for all that will they not hear me, ſaith the Lord.

22 Wherefore tongues are for a ſign, not to them that believe, but to them that believe not: but propheſying ſerveth not for them that believe not, but for them which believe.

23 If, therefore, the whole church be come together into one place, and all ſpeak with tongues, and there come in thoſe that are unlearned, or unbelievers, will not they ſay that ye are mad?

24 But if all propheſy, and there come in one that believeth not, or one unlearned, he is convinced of all, he is judged of all;

25 And thus are the ſecrets of his heart made manifeſt; and ſo, falling down on his face, he will worſhip God, and report that God is in you of a truth.

26 How is it then, brethren? when ye come together, every one of you hath a pſalm, hath a doctrine, hath a tongue, hath a revelation, hath an interpretation. Let all things be done unto edifying.

27 If any man ſpeak in an unknown tongue, let it be by two, or at the moſt by three, and that by courſe; and let one interpret.

28 But if there be no interpreter, let him keep ſilence in the church; and let him ſpeak to himſelf, and to God.

29 Let the prophets ſpeak two or three, and let the other judge.

30 If any thing be revealed to another that ſitteth by, let the firſt hold his peace.

31 For ye may all propheſy, one by one, that all may learn, and all may be comforted.

32 And the ſpirits of the prophets are ſubject to the prophets.

33 For God is not the author of confuſion, but of peace, as in all churches of the ſaints.

34 Let your women keep ſilence in the churches; for it is not permitted unto them to ſpeak; but they are commanded to be under obedience, as alſo ſaith the law.

35 And if they will learn any thing, let them aſk their huſbands at home; for it is a ſhame for women to ſpeak in the church.

36 What! came the word of God out from you? or came it unto you only?

37 If any man think himſelf to be a prophet, or ſpiritual, let him acknowledge that the things that I write unto you are the commandments of the Lord.

38 But if any man be ignorant, let him be ignorant.

39 Wherefore, brethren, covet to propheſy, and forbid not to ſpeak with tongues.

40 Let all things be done decently, and in order.

CHAP. XV.

3 By Chriſt's reſurrection, 12 he proveth the neceſſity of our reſurrection: 21 The fruit, 35 and manner thereof, 51 and of the change of them that ſhall be alive then.

MOREOVER, brethren, I declare unto you the goſpel which I preached unto you, which alſo ye have received, and wherein ye ſtand:

2 By which alſo ye are ſaved, if ye keep in memory

Commentary on Chap. XIV.

16 How ſhall he that occupieth the place of the unlearned ſay Amen.) This ſignifies the place of a private, as well as of an illiterate or ignorant perſon, alluding to the place where common hearers were wont to ſit in the congregation: and here ſeems to be a reference to the cuſtom of the Jewiſh church, when at the end of the miniſter's public thankſgiving and praiſe, all the people anſwered, Amen; Neh. viii. 6. and 1 Chron. xvi. 36. which was alſo practiſed in the primitive church particularly at the cloſe of euchariſtical prayers, when the people uſed to ſay with loud acclamation, Amen, in teſtimony of their concurrence and approbation.

27 And let one interpret.) Here, as Dr. Lightfoot obſerves, is a reference to the order of ſynagogue worſhip, in which one read the ſcripture in the Hebrew language; another interpreted, or preached, and another prayed.

34 Let your women keep ſilence in the churches.) As propheſying or preaching, by an extraordinary gift of the Spirit, is the main ſubject of the preceding verſes, that ſort of ſpeaking ſeems included, if not moſt directly intended, in what is here forbidden to women; and yet as Anna, the propheteſs, ſpoke publicly of Chriſt in the temple, Luke ii. 38; and as, on the famous day of Pentecoſt, God poured out of his ſpirit upon daughters and handmaidens, that they might propheſy, Acts ii. 16—18; and accordingly Philip's four daughters were ſaid to propheſy, Acts xxi. 9. the apoſtle meant not abſolutely to diſallow of women's ſpeaking in the church, when they evidently appeared to be under a divine afflatus: but probably there were ſome women in the church at Corinth, that pretended to ſpeak under immediate inſpiration, though, as far as appears, they were not really inſpired, and therefore as the apoſtle guarded againſt their unfemale like manner of uttering themſelves, under their pretended impulſes, in chap. xi. 5, 6. ſo he here, without any limitation, forbids their openly ſpeaking in the church in any way that is peculiar to the office of men; though they might join their voices with men, in ſinging the praiſes of God, and ſaying aloud Amen, as was cuſtomary at the end of public prayers; (See the note on ver. 16.) and might ſpeak in any way that did not interfere with the authority of the man. The great difficulty which ſo much encumbers the thoughts of commentators on this place, may be chiefly owing to our not having the letter, which the Corinthians wrote to the apoſtle, about diſorderly practices among them, (chap. vii. 1.) and which he anſwered in this epiſtle, intelligibly enough to thoſe who were fully acquainted with the ſubjects of complaint, and the true ſtate of things in that church. But if we admit of the eaſy ſuppoſition, that the preaching women in that church, notwithſtanding their pretences, were not really inſpired, the difficulty is relieved; and this paſſage is better reconciled with chap. xi. 5, 6. than in any other way.

35 Let them aſk their huſbands at home.) Here ſeems to be a reference to the cuſtom of the Jewiſh worſhip, in which perſons were allowed to aſk queſtions of the preacher, relating to what he had delivered, and in conformity to which, our bleſſed Lord, at twelve years old, ſat with the doctors aſking them queſtions, Luke ii. 45.

Commentary on Chap. XV.

1 I declare unto you the goſpel which I preached unto you.) As the Sadducees denied the reſurrection of the body, and the exiſtence of ſeparate ſpirits, and conſequently any future ſtate of rewards and puniſhments, (Mat. xxii. 23. and Acts xxiii. 8.) and the Greek philoſophers were buſy with their objections againſt the reſurrection, (Acts xvii. 18, 32.) ſo ſome of the Jewiſh converts ſeem to have what what I preached unto you, unleſs ye have believed in vain.

3 ¶ For I delivered unto you firſt of all that which I alſo received, how that Chriſt died for our ſins, according to the ſcriptures;

4 And that he was buried, and that he roſe again the third day according to the ſcriptures:

5 And that he was ſeen of Cephas, then of the twelve:

6 After that he was ſeen of above five hundred brethren at once; of whom the greater part remain unto this preſent, but ſome are fallen aſleep.

7 After that he was ſeen of James; then of all the apoſtles.

8 And laſt of all he was ſeen of me alſo, as of one born out of due time.

9 For I am the leaſt of the apoſtles, that am not meet to be called an apoſtle, becauſe I perſecuted the church of God.

10 But by the grace of God I am what I am: and his grace which was beſtowed upon me was not in vain: but I laboured more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me.

11 Therefore whether it were I or they, ſo we preach, and ſo ye believed.

12 ¶ Now if Chriſt be preached that he roſe from the dead, how ſay ſome among you that there is no reſurrection of the dead?

13 But if there be no reſurrection of the dead, then is Chriſt not riſen.

14 And if Chriſt be not riſen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is alſo vain.

15 Yea, and we are found falſe witneſſes of God; becauſe we have teſtified of God that he raiſed up Chriſt: whom he raiſed not up, if ſo be that the dead riſe not.

16 For if the dead riſe not, then is not Chriſt raiſed.

17 And if Chriſt be not raiſed, your faith is vain, ye are yet in your ſins.

18 Then they alſo which are fallen aſleep in Chriſt are periſhed.

19 If in this life only we have hope in Chriſt, we are of all men moſt miſerable.

20 But now is Chriſt riſen from the dead, and become the firſt-fruits of them that ſlept.

21 ¶ For ſince by man came death, by man came alſo the reſurrection of the dead.

22 For as in Adam all die, even ſo in Chriſt ſhall all be made alive.

23 But every man in his own order; Chriſt the firſt-fruits; afterward they that are Chriſt's at his coming.

24 Then cometh the end, when he ſhall have delivered up the kingdom to God even the Father: when he ſhall have put down all rule and all authority and power.

25 For he muſt reign till he hath put all enemies under his feet.

26 The laſt enemy that ſhall be deſtroyed is death.

27 For he hath put all things under his feet: but when he ſaith all things are put under him, it is manifeſt that he is excepted which did put all things under him.

28 And when all things ſhall be ſubdued unto him, then ſhall the Son alſo himſelf be ſubject unto him that put all things under him, that God may be all in all.

29 Elſe what ſhall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead riſe not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?

30 And why ſtand we in jeopardy every hour?

31 I proteſt by your rejoicing which I have in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, I die daily.

32 If after the manner of men I have fought with beaſts at Epheſus, what advantageth it me, if the dead riſe not? let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die.

33 Be not deceived: evil communications corrupt good manners.

34 Awake to righteouſneſs and ſin not: for ſome have not the knowledge of God. I ſpeak this to your ſhame.

35 ¶ But ſome man will ſay, How are the dead raiſed up? and with what body do they come?

36 Thou fool, that which thou ſoweſt is not quickened except it die:

37 And that which thou ſoweſt, thou ſoweſt not that body that ſhall be, but bare grain, it may chance of wheat, or of ſome other grain:

38 But God giveth it a body as it hath pleaſed him, and to every ſeed his own body.

39 All fleſh is not the ſame fleſh; but there is one kind of fleſh of men, another fleſh of beaſts, another of fiſhes, and another of birds.

40 There are alſo celeſtial bodies, and bodies terreſtial: but the glory of the celeſtial is one, and the glory of the terreſtial is another.

41 There is one glory of the ſun, and another glory of the moon, and another glory of the ſtars; for one ſtar differeth from another ſtar in glory.

42 So alſo is the reſurrection of the dead. It is ſown in corruption; it is raiſed in incorruption:

43 It is ſown in diſhonour; it is raiſed in glory: it is ſown in weakneſs; it is raiſed in power;

44 It is ſown a natural body; it is raiſed a ſpiritual body. There is a natural body, and there is a ſpiritual body.

45 And ſo it is written, The firſt man Adam was made a living ſoul; the laſt Adam was made a quickening ſpirit.

been entangled with the notions of the Sadducees, and ſome of the Gentile converts with the philoſophical ſpeculations of the Greeks: the apoſtle therefore ſets himſelf to confute the errors of both, about this important point, with admirable force and beauty, and with a variety of ſtriking arguments, and magnificent figures and eloquence.

7 After that he was ſeen of James.) Which James this was, and where, or on what occaſion this viſit was made to him, we are not told in the ſacred writings; but early antiquity ſays, it was James the Leſs, who was alſo called the Juſt; and the brother of our Lord. He is ſuppoſed to have been the firſt couſin, and ſo called the brother of our Lord, according to the Hebrew cuſtom, as he was the ſon of Cleophas, or Alpheus, (Mat. x. 3.) the brother of the virgin Mary, John xix. 25. And his being ſurnamed the Juſt, was on account of his great ſanctity and mortified life.

8 As of one born out of due time.) It may be called an abortive birth, as it was all on a ſudden, at unawares, with terrible pangs, and in a way very unlike the other apoſtles, who were wrought upon in the more uſual method of divine grace, and were gradually trained up to their office by perſonal attendance on Chriſt, while he was with them: and on theſe accounts, eſpecially conſidering what a wretch the apoſtle had been before, he thought himſelf to be as deſpicable as an abortive birth, and always remembered it to keep him humble.

24 Delivered up the kingdom to God, &c.) Chriſt's delivering up the kingdom to God the Father, no more proves that he will in all reſpects ceaſe to be a King, or have any further reign or dominion, than the Father's delivering the kingdom to the Son, proves that the Father himſelf then ceaſed to be a King, and parted with his own rule and dominion over all. Chriſt's natural and eſſential kingdom, which he has in common with the Father and Spirit, as God, will have no end; and he, in his human nature, will wear the honour of his office, and of all his mediatorial performances, and of their ſecure and abiding effects and conſequences; and will live in a ſtate of ſuperior authority and glory, like the head of the church, for ever and ever; and therefore in theſe reſpects, his throne and kingdom ſhall never paſs away, or be deſtroyed. Dan. vii. 14. Luke i. 33. Heb. i. 8. and Rev. xi. 15.

46 Howbeit, that was not first which is spiritual; but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual.

47 The first man is of the earth, earthy: the second man is the Lord from heaven.

48 As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy: and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly.

49 And as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly.

50 Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption.

51 ¶ Behold, I shew you a mystery, we shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed.

52 In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed.

53 For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality.

54 So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory.

55 O death where is thy sting? O grave where is thy victory?

56 The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law.

57 But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

58 Therefore my beloved brethren, be ye stedfast, unmoveable, always abounding in the work of the Lord; forasmuch as ye know that your labour is not in vain in the Lord.

CHAP. XVI.

1 The brethren's wants must be relieved. 10 Timothy commended. 13 Friendly admonitions, 19 and salutations.

NOW, concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye.

2 Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come.

3 And when I come, whomsoever ye shall approve by your letters, them will I send to bring your liberality unto Jerusalem.

4 And if it be meet that I go also, they shall go with me.

5 Now I will come unto you, when I shall pass through Macedonia: (for I do pass through Macedonia:)

6 And it may be that I will abide, yea, and winter with you, that ye may bring me on my journey whithersoever I go.

7 For I will not see you now by the way; but I trust to tarry a while with you if the Lord permit.

8 But I will tarry at Ephesus until Pentecost.

9 For a great door and effectual is opened unto me, and there are many adversaries.

10 Now, if Timotheus come, see that he may be with you without fear: for he worketh the work of the Lord, as I also do.

11 Let no man, therefore, despise him; but conduct him forth in peace, that he may come unto me: for I look for him with the brethren.

12 As touching our brother Apollos, I greatly desired him to come unto you with the brethren: but his will was not at all to come at this time; but he will come when he shall have convenient time.

13 Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong.

14 Let all your things be done with charity.

15 I beseech you, brethren, (ye know the house of Stephanas, that it is the first-fruits of Achaia, and that they have addicted themselves to the ministry of the saints,)

16 That ye submit yourselves unto such, and to every one that helpeth with us, and laboureth.

17 I am glad of the coming of Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus: for that which was lacking on your part they have supplied.

18 For they have refreshd my spirit and yours: therefore acknowledge ye them that are such.

19 The churches of Asia salute you. Aquila and Priscilla salute you much in the Lord, with the church that is in their house.

20 All the brethren greet you. Greet ye one another with an holy kiss.

21 The salutation of me Paul with mine own hand.

22 If any man love not the Lord Jesus Christ, let him be Anathema, Maran-atha.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you.

24 My love be with you all in Christ Jesus. Amen.

¶ The first Epistle to the Corinthians was written from Philippi, by Stephanas, and Fortunatus, and Achaicus, and Timotheus.

---

51 We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed.) We are not to suppose that by we, shall not all sleep, the apostle meant himself and the believers of that age; but he therein personates the whole church, or mystical body of Christ: for elsewhere, speaking of the Christians in those days, he says, their mortal bodies should be quickened by the Spirit of God which dwelt in them, (Rom. viii. 11.) and says, including himself, He that raised up the Lord Jesus, shall raise up us also by Jesus, 2 Cor. iv. 14. And he speaks of it as a great mistake in them, who thought, the day of Christ's second appearing was at hand; and calls those persons deceivers, that suggested any thing like it; he also tells the Thessalonians, that there must be a falling away, and that the man of sin must be first revealed, and that he had acquainted them with these things, while he was with them, before he wrote either of his epistles to them, 2 Thess. ii. 1, 6. and both these epistles are universally allowed to have been written before the first to the Corinthians.

Commentary on Chap. XVI.

12 As touching our brother Apollos, &c.) The reasons of Paul's desiring Apollos, and of Apollos' not choosing to go at that time, discover a most excellent and exemplary spirit in them both, as a mutual affection subsisted between them, and neither of them envied, was jealous of, or would detract from the other: how much soever different parties at Corinth might run down one and cry up the other: or perhaps, Apollos might have some work at Ephesus, or elsewhere, of too great moment for him to neglect just then.

22 Let him be Anathema, Maranatha.) Anathema, signifies a thing devoted to destruction, and Maranatha, is a Syriac word, which signifies the Lord comes; and so denotes the severest vengeance, that is to be executed at his coming to judgment.

24 My love be with you all in Christ.) It is with incomparable sweetness and prudent insinuation, that the apostle closes an epistle, in which he had so sharply reproved the Corinthians for their faults, with such an assurance of his love, as is not to be found at the end of any other of his epistles, that he might convince them of his good will in all that he had said; and might take off their prejudices against it, and give it the more easy access to their minds.

The SECOND EPISTLE of PAUL the APOSTLE,

TO THE CORINTHIANS.

THE ARGUMENT.

St. Paul having received an account by Titus of the ſucceſs of his former epiſtle, and of the repentance and ſubmiſſion of the Corinthian chriſtians, ſpeaks in this more freely of himſelf, and treats his oppoſers with more ſeverity than in the former.

The intention of the apoſtle is nearly the ſame in this epiſtle as in the former; namely, to put an end to the contentions and diſorders which had ariſen in the church of Corinth.

This epiſtle was written from Philippi, a city of Macedonia, about a year after the former, and delivered to the care of Titus, who was repairing to Corinth to forward the collection intended for the poor chriſtians in Judea.

CHAP. I.

1 The apoſtle encourageth them againſt troubles, 12 and ſheweth the ſincerity of his preaching. 15 He excuſeth his not coming to them.

PAUL, an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt by the will of God, and Timothy our brother, unto the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the ſaints which are in all Achaia:

2 Grace be to you, and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 ¶ Bleſſed be God, even the father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort:

4 Who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourſelves are comforted of God.

5 For as the ſufferings of Chriſt abound in us, ſo our conſolation alſo aboundeth by Chriſt.

6 And whether we be afflicted, it is for your conſolation and ſalvation, which is effectual in the enduring of the ſame ſufferings which we alſo ſuffer: or whether we be comforted, it is for your conſolation and ſalvation.

7 And our hope of you is ſtedfaſt, knowing that as ye are partakers of the ſufferings, ſo ſhall ye be alſo of the conſolation.

8 For we would not, brethren, have you ignorant of our trouble which came to us in Aſia, that we were preſſed out of meaſure, above ſtrength, inſomuch that we deſpaired even of life.

9 But we had the ſentence of death in ourſelves, that we ſhould not truſt in ourſelves, but in God which raiſeth the dead;

10 Who delivered us from ſo great a death, and doth deliver: in whom we truſt that he will yet deliver us;

11 Ye alſo helping together by prayer for us, that for the gift beſtowed upon us by the means of many perſons, thanks may be given by many on our behalf.

12 For our rejoicing is this, the teſtimony of our conſcience, that in ſimplicity and godly ſincerity, not with fleſhly wiſdom, but by the grace of God, we have had our converſation in the world, and more abundantly to you-ward.

13 For we write none other things unto you than

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

4 Who comforteth us in all our tribulation.) Inexpreſſibly great are the kind indulgencies of this gracious God and Father, who, by his ſpirit, word, and providence, ſupports, aſſiſts, and comforts me and my companions, in all our troubles and afflictions of every kind, and eſpecially for conſcience ſake; and he is pleaſed to do this in his infinite wiſdom and goodneſs, not only for our ſuccour; but likewiſe for the benefit of others, that we may be the better taught, diſpoſed, and qualified, by our own experience, to ſympathize with and adminiſter ſuitable words of encouragement and comfort to them, that are in any ſort of tribulation, relating to ſoul or body; and ſo may be inſtruments in his hand of raiſing their faith, and their hope of the like ſeaſonable refreſhments and deliverances, as God for Chriſt's ſake, has favoured us with.

8 Trouble which came to us in Aſia.) The 14th, 16th, and 19th chapters of the Acts, give us a large account of the great troubles the apoſtle met with in Aſia; and he ſpeaks in 1 Cor. xvi. 9. of many adverſaries, and xv. 32. (See the note there) of fighting with the beaſts at Epheſus, the Metropolis of that Province: But it is uncertain whether he here refers to thoſe, or ſome later troubles that befel him in Aſia, ſince he wrote his former epiſtle to the Corinthians: However, his manner of repreſenting them in this place ſhews, that they were exceeding dangerous and diſtreſſing.

what ye read or acknowledge; and I truſt ye ſhall acknowledge even to the end.

14 As alſo ye have acknowledged us in part, that we are your rejoicing, even as ye alſo are ours in the day of the Lord Jeſus.

15 ¶ And in this confidence I was minded to come unto you before, that ye might have a ſecond benefit.

16 And to paſs by you into Macedonia, and to come again out of Macedonia unto you, and of you to be brought on my way towards Judea.

17 When I therefore was thus minded, did I uſe lightneſs? or the things that I purpoſe, do I purpoſe according to the fleſh, that with me there ſhould be yea, yea, and nay, nay?

18 But as God is true, our word toward you was not yea and nay.

19 For the Son of God, Jeſus Chriſt, who was preached among you by us, even by me and Silvanus and Timotheus, was not yea and nay, but in him was yea.

20 For all the promiſes of God in him are yea, and in him, Amen, unto the glory of God by us.

21 Now he which eſtabliſheth us with you in Chriſt, and hath anointed us, is God;

22 Who hath alſo ſealed us, and given the earneſt of the Spirit in our hearts.

23 Moreover, I call God for a record upon my ſoul, that to ſpare you, I came not as yet unto Corinth.

24 Not for that we have dominion over your faith, but are helpers of your joy: for by faith ye ſtand.

CHAP. II.

1 The reaſons of his not coming unto them. 6 Of the excommunicated perſon. 14 The ſucceſs of his preaching in every place.

BUT I determined this with myſelf, that I would not come to you in heavineſs.

2 For, if I make you ſorry, who is he then that maketh me glad but the ſame which is made ſorry by me?

3 And I wrote this ſame unto you, leſt, when I came, I ſhould have ſorrow from them of whom I ought to rejoice; having confidence in you all, that my joy is the joy of you all.

4 For out of much affliction and anguiſh of heart I wrote unto you with many tears; not that ye ſhould be grieved, but that ye might know the love which I have more abundantly unto you.

5 But if any have cauſed grief, he hath not grieved me, but in part; that I may not overcharge you all.

6 Sufficient to ſuch a man is this puniſhment, which was inflicted of many.

7 So that, contrariwiſe, ye ought rather to forgive him, and comfort him, leſt perhaps ſuch a one ſhould be ſwallowed up with overmuch ſorrow.

8 Wherefore I beſeech you, that ye would confirm your love toward him.

9 For to this end alſo did I write, that I might know the proof of you, whether ye be obedient in all things.

10 To whom ye forgive any thing, I forgive alſo: for if I forgave any thing, to whom I forgave it, for your ſakes forgave I it in the perſon of Chriſt;

11 Leſt Satan ſhould get an advantage of us: for we are not ignorant of his devices.

12 Furthermore when I came to Troas to preach Chriſt's goſpel, and a door was opened unto me of the Lord,

13 I had no reſt in my ſpirit, becauſe I found not Titus my brother: but taking my leave of them, I went from thence into Macedonia.

14 Now thanks be unto God which always cauſeth us to triumph in Chriſt, and maketh manifeſt the ſavour of his knowledge by us in every place.

15 For we are unto God a ſweet ſavour of Chriſt, in them that are ſaved, and in them that periſh.

16 To the one we are the ſavour of death unto death; and to the other the ſavour of life unto life: and who is ſufficient for theſe things?

17 For we are not as many, which corrupt the word of God: but as of ſincerity, but as of God, in the ſight of God ſpeak we in Chriſt.

CHAP. III.

1 A commendation of Paul's miniſtry. 6 A compariſon between the law and the goſpel.

DO we begin again to commend ourſelves? or need we, as ſome others, epiſtles of commendation to you, or letters of commendation from you?

2 Ye are our epiſtle written in our hearts, known and read of all men:

3 Foraſmuch as ye are manifeſtly declared to be the epiſtle of Chriſt, miniſtered by us, written not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God; not in tables of ſtone, but in fleſhy tables of the heart.

4 And ſuch truſt have we through Chriſt to Godward:

5 Not that we are ſufficient of ourſelves to think any thing as of ourſelves; but our ſufficiency is of God;

6 Who alſo hath made us able miniſters of the new Teſtament; not of the letter, but of the ſpirit: for the letter killeth, but the ſpirit giveth life.

19 For the Son of God, Jeſus Chriſt.) For as to the eternal Son of God, who is the ſame yeſterday to-day, and for ever, (Heb. xiii. 8.) even Chriſt the only Saviour, who has preached in his perſon and offices, cruciſixion and benefits, among you by us his ſervants, even by himſelf and Silas, and Timothy, my dear companions in labour and travail: (Acts xv, 40, and xviii. 5.) He is not in himſelf, or in his word; and what we have ſaid concerning him was not now one thing, and then another of a contrary ſtrain: But the doctrine which we preached, and conſtantly ſtood to in all our miniſtrations, was founded on him, as a crucified and riſen Redeemer, and was, like himſelf, uniformly the ſame, with the higheſt demonſtration of truth and certainty, according to the tenor of the goſpel.

23 Moreover I call God for a record.) Here the apoſtle inſenſibly ſlides back into his vindication of himſelf, from which he had a little digreſſed, in the four preceding verſes, to give vent to ſome delightful thoughts on the ſtability of the promiſes of God, for helping his people's faith and joy.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

4 I wrote unto you with many tears, &c.) For when I wrote to you before, to proceed to an excommunication of ſuch, as were guilty of ſhameful miſcarriages, and as diſcovered a diſaffection to Chriſt and his goſpel, (1 Cor. v. 4. 5. and xvi. 22.) it was with great trouble and diſtreſs of ſpirit, which produced a flow of bitter tears, in reflection upon their deplorable and dangerous condition: I mention this now, not with a deſign of awakning any dolorous paſſions in you, with reſpect to things that are already mended; but only to let you ſee what an exceeding hearty love I bear to you, and what a touching concern I have for the good of the whole church, as well as for the humbling and reclaiming the notorious delinquents themſelves, to your comfort, and their own ſalvation.

12 Furthermore, when I came to Troas.) This journey to Troas, was not that mentioned in Acts xvi. 8. which was long before; nor was it that in Acts xx. 6. which was from Philippi in Macedonia; to Troas, whereas this was from Troas to Macedonia (ver. 13.) But the generality of interpreters think, that it was when the apoſtle paſſed from Epheſus, and took Troas in his way to Macedonia, Acts, xx. 1. And if it was not then, we have no other account, in the Acts of the Apoſtles, to which it can be referred.

7 But if the ministration of death, written and engraven in stones, was glorious, so that the children of Israel could not stedfastly behold the face of Moses for the glory of his countenance; which glory was to be done away;

8 How, shall not the ministration of the Spirit be rather glorious?

9 For if the ministration of condemnation be glory, much more doth the ministration of righteousness exceed in glory.

10 For even that which was made glorious had no glory in this respect, by reason of the glory that excelleth.

11 For if that which was done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious.

12 Seeing then that we have such hope, we use great plainness of speech;

13 And not as Moses which put a vail over his face, that the children of Israel could not stedfastly look to the end of that which is abolished:

14 But their minds were blinded: for until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away in the reading of the old Testament; which vail is done away in Christ.

15 But even unto this day, when Moses is read, the vail is upon their heart.

16 Nevertheless, when it shall turn to the Lord, the vail shall be taken away.

17 Now, the Lord is that Spirit: and where the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty.

18 But we all with open face beholding, as in a glass, the glory of the Lord, are changed into the same image, from glory to glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord.

CHAP. IV.

1 Paul's sincerity and diligence in preaching, 7 and his troubles for the same.

THEREFORE, seeing we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we faint not;

2 But have renounced the hidden things of dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, nor handling the word of God deceitfully; but, by manifestation of the truth, commending ourselves to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

3 But if our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost:

4 In whom the god of this world hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the image of God, should shine unto them.

5 For we preach, not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord; and ourselves your servants for Jesus' sake.

6 For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ.

7 But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of God, and not of us.

8 We are troubled on every side, yet not distressed; we are perplexed, but not in despair;

9 Persecuted, but not forsaken; cast down, but not destroyed;

10 Always bearing about in the body the dying of the Lord Jesus, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our body.

11 For we which live are alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life also of Jesus might be made manifest in our mortal flesh.

12 So then death worketh in us, but life in you.

13 We having the same spirit of faith, according as it is written, I believed, and therefore have I spoken; we also believe, and therefore speak;

14 Knowing that he which raised up the Lord Jesus, shall raise up us also by Jesus, and shall present us with you.

15 For all things are for your sakes, that the abundant grace might, through the thanksgiving of many, redound to the glory of God.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

14 For until this day remaineth the same vail untaken away,) The apostle manifestly speaks in this discourse of a double veil, which spread over the Israelites, and might be figuratively indicated by the veil on the face of Moses, ver. 13, one internal on their minds, as they were blinded; and the other external on the object itself, as that was hid under types and figures. The first of these is certainly intended, ver. 15, 16. and in the former part of this verse; but both may be included in the last clause, as also in ver. 13.

18 But we all with open face, &c.) As a shadow gives us a much more indistinct and imperfect representation of a person, than his image doth, the law is said to have a shadow of good things to come, and not the very image of them; (Heb. x. 1.) and as seeing a man's face in a looking glass gives us a vastly better idea of him, than any shadow in the world could do, the light of the gospel dispensation is here spoken of as beholding with open face in a glass; but as looking directly on a person's face gives us as much better notion of him, than merely seeing it in a glass, and is indeed the most exact and perfect way, in which he can be known; the light of heaven is set out, 1 Cor. xiii. 12. (see the note there) as seeing face to face, and knowing as we are known, and that in opposition to our seeing in a glass, which, compared with the heavenly vision, is but darkly; though, compared with the great obscurities of the legal dispensation, it is seeing with open face, and without a veil; and so this is a beautiful description of the light of the gospel as exceeding that of the law, but falling vastly short of that, which we shall have in heaven.—The connection of this with the foregoing verse naturally leads us to apprehend, that when the apostle says, we all with open face behold, &c. he don't mean only himself and other ministers, but all true believers, or all, whom he had been just speaking of, that turn to the Lord, have his spirit, and are let into the liberty of the gospel; and what he here affirms concerning this all is no more, than is included in this liberty, and belongs, as a common privilege and blessing, to every true believer under the gospel state.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

6 For God, who commanded the light to shine, &c.) For God, who in the creation of this world said, let there be light, and there was light, (Gen. i. 3.) and so by his own powerful and efficacious word, caused light to shine out of the dark chaos: this God, in the new creation, while the thickest darkness of a spiritual nature was spread over our own and others souls, has shone by a special illumination of his spirit in our hearts, as also in the hearts of all that believe, to enlighten us with discoveries of his glorious Being and perfections, counsels, and will, relating to the way of salvation, as they are manifestly displayed, with the brightest and most endearing lustre, in the person and mediation of Jesus Christ, who is the brightness of the Father's glory, and the express image of his person; [Heb. i. 3.] and in whom his glory is not covered under a veil, as that which shone in the face of Moses was; [Chap. iii. 13.] but is openly manifested in the clear representation, that is now made of it by the gospel.

14 Knowing, that he which raised up the Lord Jesus, &c.) Being well assured, that the God of peace, who brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant; [Heb. xiii. 20.] and who did this, in testimony, that divine justice was fully satisfied by his death, will also, at the consummation of all things, quicken our mortal bodies, and raise them up to a blessed immortality, for the sake of Jesus, our great Head and Redeemer, through the merit of his blood, and by the energy of his spirit; and will approve of us, together with you that believe, as accepted in the beloved, and will present both faithful ministers, and all his members, faultless before the presence of his glory, with exceeding joy. Jude ver. 24.

16 For which cauſe we faint not; but though our outward man periſh, yet the inward man is renewed day by day.

17 For our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory;

18 While we look not at the things, which are ſeen, but at the things which are not ſeen: for the things which are ſeen are temporal, but the things which are not ſeen are eternal.

CHAP. V.

1 In hope of immortal glory, 9 and in expectation of it, and of the general judgment, he laboureth to keep a good conſcience.

FOR we know that if our earthly houſe of this tabernacle were diſſolved, we have a building of God, an houſe not made with hands, eternal in the heavens.

2 For in this we groan, earneſtly deſiring to be clothed upon with our houſe which is from heaven.

3 If ſo be that being clothed we ſhall not be found naked.

4 For we that are in this tabernacle do groan, being burdened; not for that we would be unclothed, but clothed upon, that mortality might be ſwallowed up of life.

5 Now he that hath wrought us for the ſelf-ſame thing is God, who alſo hath given unto us the earneſt of the Spirit.

6 Therefore we are always confident, knowing that whilſt we are at home in the body, we are abſent from the Lord.

7 For we walk by faith, not by ſight:

8 We are confident, I ſay, and willing rather to be abſent from the body, and to be preſent with the Lord.

9 ¶ Wherefore we labour, that whether preſent or abſent we may be accepted of him.

10 For we muſt all appear before the judgment-ſeat of Chriſt, that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad.

11 Knowing therefore the terror of the Lord, we perſuade men; but we are made manifeſt unto God; and I truſt alſo are made manifeſt in your conſciences.

12 For we commend not ourſelves again unto you, but give you occaſion to glory on our behalf, that ye may have ſomewhat to anſwer them which glory in appearance, and not in heart.

13 For whether we be beſide ourſelves it is to God: or whether we be ſober, it is for your cauſe.

14 For the love of Chriſt conſtraineth us, becauſe we thus judge, that if one died for all, then were all dead:

15 And that he died for all, that they which live ſhould not henceforth live unto themſelves, but unto him which died for them, and roſe again.

16 Wherefore henceforth know we no man after the fleſh: yea, though we have known Chriſt after the fleſh, yet now henceforth know we him no more.

17 Therefore if any man be in Chriſt, he is a new creature; old things are paſſed away; behold all things are become new.

18 And all things are of God, who hath reconciled us to himſelf by Jeſus Chriſt, and hath given to us the miniſtry of reconciliation.

19 To wit, that God was in Chriſt reconciling the world unto himſelf, not imputing their treſpaſſes unto them; and hath committed unto us the word of reconciliation.

20 Now then we are ambaſſadors for Chriſt, as though God did beſeech you by us; we pray you in Chriſt's ſtead, be ye reconciled to God.

21 For he hath made him to be ſin for us, who knew no ſin, that we might be made the righteouſneſs of God in him.

CHAP. VI.

1 Paul's faithfulneſs in the miniſtry. 14 Exhortation to avoid idolaters.

WE then, as workers together with him, beſeech you alſo that ye receive not the grace of God in vain.

2 For he ſaith, I have heard thee in a time accepted,

---

17 For our light affliction, &c.) The beauty, ſublimity, and grandeur of theſe expreſſions, as deſcriptive of heavenly glory, and the oppoſition in which they are ſet to temporal afflictions, ſurpaſs all imagination, and are incapable of being preſerved, anſwerable to their dignity, in any tranſlation or paraphraſe, which, after all, ſink infinitely below the aſtoniſhing original, and the aggrandizing thoughts ſuggeſted by it. What a fulneſs of ſentiment, language, and tranſport is here!

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

1 For we know, that if our earthly houſe of this tabernacle, &c.) The apoſtle was ſo far from thinking that he, or his brethren in the miniſtry, any more than other Chriſtians, ſhould not die, that, on the contrary, he ſpeaks of their being abſent from the body, as well as others, (ver. 8.) and had expreſſed his confidence, (chap. iv. 14.) that he who raiſed up the Lord Jeſus, would raiſe them up alſo by Jeſus, and preſent them with the believing Corinthians: and therefore, If our earthly houſe were diſſolved, is not to be underſtood in a way of doubting, but of ſuppoſing what, ſooner or later, would be, much in the ſame manner as this particle If was uſed by our Lord, when he ſaid, If I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again, &c. (John xiv. 3.)

An houſe not made with hands.) This ſeems to ſignify the bleſſed manſions, to which the ſouls of believers ſhall go, to dwell with Chriſt, and with the ſpirits of the juſt made perfect, (Heb. xii. 22, 23.) in his Father's houſe, immediately after death: For the apoſtle ſpeaks of a happineſs in his preſence, which would commence inſtantly upon their being abſent from the body, and from which they were detained only by their being at home in the body, ver. 6, 8. And yet as the happineſs of the ſoul in heaven, will be followed and completed by the reſurrection of the body, he might alſo have that in his ultimate view.

20 As though God did beſeech you by us.) As the apoſtle had in the verſe, immediately before this, ſpoke of God's reconciling the world, inclusive of Gentiles, to himſelf, the words wanting in the Greek may very properly and eaſily be ſupplied thus, As though God did beſeech the world by us, we pray them, in Chriſt's ſtead, ſaying, Be ye reconciled to God; and ſo it ſeems to me, that the apoſtle was not here ſo directly addreſſing himſelf to the Corinthians, according to their then preſent character, who were ſuppoſed to be already actually reconciled to God, as giving them an account of the general tenor of his miniſtry according to what he preached to them, when he firſt came among them, as he likewiſe did to all others, in their ſtate of unregeneracy, where-ever he came, ſaying to them, Be ye reconciled to God. However, were we to ſuppoſe that he meant any of the Corinthians, when he ſaid, Be ye reconciled to God; we may conſider it as relating, not to the better part of the church, who were already brought into a ſtate of reconciliation and friendſhip with God through Chriſt, but to the worſt part of them, who had too much fondneſs for the falſe apoſtles, and had diſcovered too great diſaffection to the pure doctrine of ſalvation alone by Jeſus Chriſt: For he immediately after ſaid to theſe, [Chap. vi. 1.] We beſeech you, that ye receive not the grace of God, that is, the doctrine of his grace, in vain. And he told them, that he was jealous over them with godly jealouſy, leſt their minds ſhould be corrupted from the ſimplicity that is in Chriſt, [Chap. xi. 2, 3.]

21 For he hath made him to be ſin for us.) The word Sin, was commonly uſed in the Septuagint to ſignify a ſin-offering, in which the guilt of the offender was ceremonially transferred to the ſacrifice; in token whereof, he laid his hand upon its head, and it was killed before the Lord to make an atonement, Lev. iv. 22,—26. with a typical reference to the great atoning ſacrifice of Chriſt:

and

and in the day of ſalvation have I ſuccoured thee: behold, now is the accepted time; behold, now is the day of ſalvation.

3 Giving no offence in any thing, that the miniſtry be not blamed:

4 But in all things approving ourſelves as the miniſters of God, in much patience, in afflictions, in neceſſities, in diſtreſſes.

5 In ſtripes, in impriſonments, in tumults, in labours, in watchings, in faſtings,

6 By pureneſs, by knowledge, by long-ſuffering, by kindneſs, by the Holy Ghoſt, by love unfeigned,

7 By the word of truth, by the power of God, by the armour of righteouſneſs on the right hand and on the left,

8 By honour and diſhonour, by evil report and good report: as deceivers, and yet true.

9 As unknown, and yet well known; as dying, and behold, we live; as chaſtened, and not killed;

10 As ſorrowful, yet alway rejoicing; as poor, yet making many rich: as having nothing, and yet poſſeſſing all things.

11 O ye Corinthians, our mouth is open unto you, our heart is enlarged.

12 Ye are not ſtraitened in us, but ye are ſtraitened in your own bowels.

13 Now for a recompence in the ſame, (I ſpeak as unto my children) be ye alſo enlarged.

14 ¶ Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers. For what fellowſhip hath righteouſneſs with unrighteouſneſs? and what communion hath light with darkneſs?

15 And what concord hath Chriſt with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel?

16 And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols? for ye are the temple of the living God: as God hath ſaid, I will dwell in them, and walk in them, and I will be their God, and they ſhall be my people.

17 Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye ſeparate ſaith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you:

18 And will be a Father unto you, and ye ſhall be my ſons and daughters, ſaith the Lord Almighty.

CHAP. VII.

1 He exhorteth to purity, 3 and ſheweth what comfort he took in afflictions.

HAVING therefore theſe promiſes, dearly beloved, let us cleanſe ourſelves from all filthineſs of the fleſh and ſpirit, perfecting holineſs in the fear of God.

2 Receive us: we have wronged no man, we have corrupted no man, we have defrauded no man.

3 ¶ I ſpeak not this to condemn you: for I have ſaid before, that ye are in our hearts to die and live with you.

4 Great is my boldneſs of ſpeech toward you, great is my glorying of you, I am filled with comfort, I am exceeding joyful in all our tribulation.

5 For when we were come into Macedonia, our fleſh had no reſt, but we were troubled on every ſide: without were fightings, within were fears.

6 Nevertheleſs, God that comforteth thoſe that are caſt down, comforted us by the coming of Titus;

7 And not by his coming only, but by the conſolation wherewith he was comforted in you, when he told us your earneſt deſire, your mourning, your fervent mind toward me: ſo that I rejoiced the more.

8 For though I made you ſorry with a letter, I do not repent, though I did repent. For I perceive that the ſame epiſtle made you ſorry, though it were but for a ſeaſon.

9 Now I rejoice not that ye were made ſorry, but that ye ſorrowed to repentance. For ye were made ſorry after a godly manner, that ye might receive damage by us in nothing.

10 For godly ſorrow worketh repentance to ſalvation not to be repented of: but the ſorrow of the world worketh death.

11 For behold, this ſelf-ſame thing, that ye ſorrowed after a godly ſort, what carefulneſs it wrought in you, yea, what clearing of yourſelves, yea, what indignation, yea, what fear, yea, what vehement deſire, yea, what zeal, yea, what revenge! In all things ye have approved yourſelves to be clear in this matter.

12 Wherefore though I wrote unto you, I did it not for his cauſe that had done the wrong, nor for his cauſe that ſuffered wrong, but that our care for you in the ſight of God might appear unto you.

13 Therefore we were comforted in your comfort; yea, and exceedingly the more joyed we for the joy of Titus, becauſe his ſpirit was refreſhed by you all.

14 For if I have boaſted any thing to him of you, I am not aſhamed: but as we ſpeak all things to you in truth, even ſo our boaſting which I made before Titus, is found a truth.

15 And his inward affection is more abundant toward you, whilſt he remembereth the obedience of you all, how with fear and trembling ye received him.

and unleſs the guilt of our iniquities, or the law obligation to puniſhment for them, had been judicially charged upon him, he could not, by any rule of juſtice, have bore their puniſhment: For, in the order of juſtice, our ſins muſt firſt be ſuppoſed to be placed to his account to anſwer for them, before he could undergo the proper puniſhment due to them, ſince divine juſtice can no more puniſh the intirely, and in all reſpects, guiltleſs, than clear the guilty. Hence the ſcripture ſo often ſpeaks of Chriſt, as made under the law, as redeeming from the curſe of the law, (which contains all the puniſhment due to ſin) by his being made a curſe for us, and as bearing our ſins, and ſuffering for ſins, the juſt for the unjuſt, and the like. And as Chriſt was made ſin, not by infuſion or inheſion, but by imputation, that he might bear the puniſhment due to it: ſo we are made the righteouſneſs of God in him, for juſtification to eternal life, not by an inherent righteouſneſs, but by the imputation of his righteouſneſs to us, that being placed to our account, as our ſins were to his.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

15 And what concord hath Chriſt with Belial? &c.] And what harmony, or mutual conſent, can there be between thoſe that belong to Chriſt, as members of his myſtical body, and thoſe that are the children of the devil, that arch-rebel againſt God, who for his lawleſs wickedneſs, may be emphatically ſtiled Belial? Or what deſirable lot and portion can one that believes in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt have in common with an unbeliever that diſowns or practically rejects him?

COMMENTARY on Chap. VII.

8 I do not repent, though I did repent, &c.] It is not to be ſuppoſed that the apoſtle ever did properly repent of any thing that he had wrote under divine inſpiration; and therefore we are to underſtand what he here ſays about it, as ſignifying only ſuch a ſort of ſorrow as one would have, were he to repent of what he had done or only what would be natural for him to go into as he tenderly loved them, in caſe any irkſome meaſures which he had taken with them ſhould not anſwer their deſired end: Accordingly the original words are rendered by ſome critics, and the latitude of the ſenſe will bear it, I do not repent, tho' I ſhould have repented.

11 That ye ſorrowed after a godly ſort, &c.] It appears from what follows in this and the next verſes, that the godly ſorrow here ſpoken of, has a particular reference to its influence on the conduct of the church for the correcting of their ſin and error with reſpect to the inceſtuous perſon, while inſtead of continuing to be puffed up, and not to mourn on his account; (1 Cor. v. 2.) they now where deeply humbled in reflection upon his groſs miſcarriage and upon their former unconcernedneſs about it, and according had proceeded to paſs a proper cenſure upon him for it. And yet as in the preceding verſe, the apoſtle calls it godly ſorrow, which worketh repentance to ſalvation; we may likewiſe conſider his deſcription of it in this verſe, with a reference to that evangelical repentance which is unto ſalvation or unto life, as it is expreſſed, Acts xi. 18.

16 I rejoice therefore that I have confidence in you in all things.

CHAP. VIII.

1 He stirreth them up to contribute to the saints: 16 he commendeth Titus and others.

MOREOVER, brethren, we do you to wit of the grace of God bestowed on the churches of Macedonia.

2 How that in a great trial of affliction the abundance of their joy, and their deep poverty, abounded unto the riches of their liberality.

3 For to their power I bear record, yea, and beyond their power, they were willing of themselves;

4 Praying us with much intreaty that we should receive the gift, and take upon us the fellowship of the ministering to the saints.

5 And this they did not as we hoped, but first gave their ownselves to the Lord, and unto us by the will of God.

6 Insomuch that we desired Titus, that as he had begun, so he would also finish in you the same grace also.

7 Therefore as ye abound in every thing, in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all diligence, and in your love to us, see that ye abound in this grace also.

8 I speak not by commandment, but by occasion of the forwardness of others, and to prove the sincerity of your love.

9 For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sakes he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich.

10 And herein I give my advice: for this is expedient for you, who have begun before, not only to do, but also to be forward a year ago.

11 Now therefore perform the doing of it; that as there was a readiness to will, so there may be a performance also out of that which ye have.

12 For if there be first a willing mind, it is accepted according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not.

13 For I mean not that other men be eased, and ye burdened:

14 But by an equality, that now at this time your abundance may be a supply for their want, that their abundance also may be a supply for your want: that there may be equality:

15 As it is written, He that had gathered much had nothing over; and he that had gathered little had no lack.

16 ¶ But thanks be to God which put the same earnest care into the heart of Titus for you.

17 For indeed he accepted the exhortation; but being more forward, of his own accord he went unto you.

18 And we have sent with him the brother, whose praise is in the gospel throughout all the churches;

19 And not that only, but who was also chosen of the churches to travel with us with this grace which is administered by us to the glory of the same Lord, and declaration of your ready mind:

20 Avoiding this, that no man should blame us in this abundance which is administered by us:

21 Providing for honest things not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men.

22 And we have sent with them our brother, whom we have oftentimes proved diligent in many things, but now much more diligent upon the great confidence which I have in you.

23 Whether any do enquire of Titus, he is my partner and fellow helper concerning you: or our brethren be enquired of, they are the messengers of the churches, and the glory of Christ.

24 Wherefore shew ye to them, and before the churches, the proof of your love, and of our boasting on your behalf.

CHAP. IX.

1 He sheweth why he sent Titus, 6 and stirreth them up to be bountiful in alms, 10 which shall yield them a bountiful increase.

FOR as touching the ministering to the saints, it is superfluous for me to write to you:

2 For I know the forwardness of your mind, for which I boast of you to them of Macedonia, that Achaia was ready a year ago; and your zeal hath provoked very many.

3 Yet have I sent the brethren, lest our boasting of you should be in vain in this behalf: that, as I said, ye may be ready.

4 Lest haply if they of Macedonia come with me, and find you unprepared, we, (that we say not you,) should be ashamed of this same confident boasting.

5 Therefore I thought it necessary to exhort the brethren, that they would go before unto you, and make up beforehand your bounty, whereof ye had notice before, that the same might be ready, as a matter of bounty, and not as of covetousness.

6 ¶ But this I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VIII.

2 The riches of their liberality.) The apostle's mentioning the Macedonian poverty, to enhance their liberality, is very beautiful, and carries a genteel insinuation to the Corinthians, that they, who so much exceeded the Macedonians in riches, ought to exceed them also in bounty.

14 That there may be equality.) That there may be a proper proportion in your and their distributions to them that are in want, even such as is equal and fit for you severally to give, and for the poor to receive, that by this means, in the present situation of things, your affluence may afford a suitable and sufficient supply to their necessities: And this I desire of you now, in hope that if ever the providence of God should change hands, as it often does in the vicissitudes of this uncertain world by raising them up, and casting you down, he will also incline their hearts to return the favour in due season, when out of their greater abundance they may minister a proper relief to your wants; that so upon the whole, there may be an equality in beneficence on both sides, and yea and they may be equally beholden to the brotherly love and bounty one of another, and all may be well provided for in their turns, according to their respective occasions, as the Israelites were in the wilderness, by the wise and kind disposal of an immediate providence, for our instruction and imitation.

17 For indeed he accepted the exhortation, &c.) What Titus is here said to do of his own accord, God is said to have put into his heart, ver. 16; which shews that the way of God's working upon, and determining a man's heart, is so far from making any infringement upon the liberty of his will, that it rather strengthens and secures it.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IX.

10 Now he that ministereth seed to the sower, &c.) Some look upon these words as a prayer, others as a promise, that as Almighty God blesseth the increase of the earth so largely, that it sufficeth for the nourishment of men, and for seed to sow again; in like manner would he supply all their wants, and grant them ability to supply the wants of others, and plentifully reward them for all the fruits of their righteousness and mercy; and they being thus enriched by the goodness of God, and exercising all bountifulness towards their brethren, much thanksgiving and praise upon that occasion is given unto God. In these last words is couched an argument farther to press the Corinthians to this liberality; namely, that it would cause both the ministers of Christ, the dispensers of this charity, and also the poor saints, the receivers of it, to offer up incessant praises and thanksgivings to God for the same.

7 Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver.

8 And God is able to make all grace abound toward you; that ye always having all sufficiency in all things, may abound to every good work.

9 (As it is written, He hath dispersed abroad; he hath given to the poor: his righteousness remaineth for ever.

10 ¶ Now he that ministereth seed to the sower both minister bread for your food, and multiply your seed sown, and increase the fruits of your righteousness;)

11 Being enriched in every thing to all bountifulness, which causeth through us thanksgiving to God.

12 For the administration of this service not only supplieth the want of the saints, but is abundant also by many thanksgivings unto God;

13 Whiles by the experiment of this ministration they glorify God for your professed subjection unto the gospel of Christ, and for your liberal distribution unto them, and unto all men;

14 And by their prayer for you, which long after you for the exceeding grace of God in you.

15 Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift.

CHAP. X.

1 Paul's spiritual might and authority. 12 Not to stretch beyond our compass.

NOW I Paul myself beseech you by the meekness and gentleness of Christ, who in presence am base among you, but being absent am bold toward you.

2 But I beseech you, that I may not be bold when I am present, with that confidence, wherewith I think to be bold against some, which think of us as if we walked according to the flesh.

3 For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh.

4 (For the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strong holds;)

5 Casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ;

6 And having in a readiness to revenge all disobedience, when your obedience is fulfilled.

7 Do ye look on things after the outward appearance? if any man trust to himself that he is Christ's, let him of himself think this again, that as he is Christ's, even so are we Christ's.

8 For though I should boast somewhat more of our authority, which the Lord hath given us for edification, and not for your destruction, I should not be ashamed.

9 That I may not seem as if I would terrify you by letters.

10 For his letters (say they) are weighty and powerful; but his bodily presence is weak, and his speech contemptible.

11 Let such an one think this, that such as we are in word by letters when we are absent, such will we be also in deed when we are present.

12 ¶ For we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves; but they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves, are not wise.

13 But we will not boast of things without our measure, but according to the measure of the rule which God hath distributed to us, a measure to reach even unto you.

14 For we stretch not ourselves beyond our measure, as though we reached not unto you: for we are come as far as to you also in preaching the gospel of Christ:

15 Not boasting of things without our measure, that is, of other men's labours; but having hope when your faith is increased, that we shall be enlarged by you according to our rule abundantly,

16 To preach the gospel in the regions beyond you, and not to boast in another man's line of things made ready to our hand.

17 But he that glorieth, let him glory in the Lord.

18 For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth.

CHAP. XI.

Paul, being forced, entereth into a commendation of himself, and comparison with the other apostles.

WOULD to God ye could bear with me a little in my folly: and indeed bear with me.

2 For I am jealous over you with godly jealousy: for I have espoused you to one husband, that I may present you as a chaste virgin to Christ.

3 But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtilty, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ.

4 For if he that cometh, preacheth another Jesus whom we have not preached, or if ye receive another spirit, which ye have not received, or another gospel, which ye have not accepted, ye might well bear with him.

5 For I suppose I was not a whit behind the very chiefest apostles.

6 But though I be rude in speech, yet not in knowledge; but we have been thoroughly made manifest among you in all things.

---

15 Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift.) Here the apostle concludes his discourse upon this great argument, with a doxology, praising and blessing God for putting it into their hearts, in so liberal a manner, to relieve the necessities of the saints, by which so much glory did redound to God, and so much honour to the Christian religion. This he calls, not barely an admirable, but an unspeakable gift; because a gift by which God was so much glorified, the gospel adorned, the poor saints so much comforted, and they themselves so plentifully rewarded! Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift. But if the Corinthians charity was an unspeakable gift, what was the gift of Christ? the gift of God to a lost world, to whom this title of unspeakable doth best agree; who is the author and finisher of all grace, and particularly of this noble grace of charity in the hearts of his people; for he sends his holy Spirit, and pours into their hearts his most excellent grace of charity, the very bond of peace, and of all virtues, without which, whosoever liveth, is counted dead before him. Eternal thanks then be to Christ for this admirable gift of charity, and thanks be to God for the unspeakable gift of Christ.

COMMENTARY on Chap. X.

10 And his speech contemptible.) Our apostle here goes on, vindicating himself from the aspersions and reflections which the false teachers cast upon him. They told the Corinthians, that St. Paul's letters were indeed severe and authoritative, terrifying and affrighting: but his personal presence was weak, and his speech contemptible. Tradition tells us, that Paul (according to his name) was a man of a very little stature, and his voice answerably small; whence probably, the false apostles took occasion to raise this report of his presence and speech. St. Chrysostom saith, that St. Paul's stature was low, his body crooked, his head bald; and when it is added, that his speech was contemptible, it cannot be understood as it were so for want of eloquence, but it is thought, this refers rather to some infirmity, or natural impediment, which the apostle might have in his speech. The gift of knowledge and learning, and the gift of utterance and elocution, as they are distinct in their nature, so they are separable in their subject, and do not always go together; a person of the profoundest knowledge is not always happy in elocution and utterance.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XI.

6 But though I be rude in speech, yet not in knowledge, &c.) No good judges of true oratory, that have carefully read and consider-

7 Have

7 Have I committed an offence in abaſing myſelf that ye might be exalted, becauſe I have preached to you the goſpel of God freely?

8 I robbed other churches, taking wages of them, to do you ſervice.

9 And when I was preſent with you, and wanted, I was chargeable to no man; for that which was lacking to me the brethren which came from Macedonia ſupplied: and in all things I have kept myſelf from being burdenſome unto you, and ſo will I keep myſelf.

10 As the truth of Chriſt is in me, no man ſhall ſtop me of this boaſting in the regions of Achaia.

11 Wherefore? becauſe I love you not? God knoweth.

12 But what I do, that I will do, that I may cut off occaſion from them which deſire occaſion, that wherein they glory, they may be found even as we.

13 For ſuch are falſe apoſtles, deceitful workers, transforming themſelves into the apoſtles of Chriſt.

14 And no marvel; for Satan himſelf is transformed into an angel of light.

15 Therefore it is no great thing if his miniſters alſo be transformed as the miniſters of righteouſneſs; whoſe end ſhall be according to their works.

16 I ſay again, Let no man think me a fool; if otherwiſe, yet as a fool receive me, that I may boaſt myſelf a little.

17 That which I ſpeak, I ſpeak it not after the Lord, but as it were fooliſhly, in this confidence of boaſting.

18 Seeing that many glory after the fleſh, I will glory alſo.

19 For ye ſuffer fools gladly, ſeeing ye yourſelves are wiſe.

20 For ye ſuffer if a man bring you into bondage, if a man devour you, if a man take of you, if a man exalt himſelf, if a man ſmite you on the face.

21 I ſpeak as concerning reproach, as though we had been weak. Howbeit whereinſoever any is bold (I ſpeak fooliſhly,) I am bold alſo.

22 Are they Hebrews? ſo am I. Are they Iſraelites? ſo am I. Are they the ſeed of Abraham? ſo am I.

23 Are they miniſters of Chriſt? (I ſpeak as a fool) I am more; in labours more abundant, in ſtripes above meaſure, in priſons more frequent, in deaths oft.

24 Of the Jews five times received I forty ſtripes ſave one.

25 Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I ſtoned, thrice I ſuffered ſhipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep;

26 In journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderneſs, in perils in the ſea, in perils among falſe brethren:

27 In wearineſs and painfulneſs, in watchings often, in hunger and thirſt, in faſtings often, in cold and nakedneſs.

28 Beſides thoſe things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches.

29 Who is weak, and I am not weak? who is offended, and I burn not?

30 If I muſt needs glory, I will glory of the things which concern mine infirmities.

31 The God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which is bleſſed for evermore, knoweth that I lie not.

32 In Damaſcus the governor under Aretas the king kept the city of the Damaſcenes with a garriſon, deſirous to apprehend me:

33 And through a window in a baſket was I let down by the wall, and eſcaped his hands.

CHAP. XII.

1 He commendeth his apoſtleſhip, not by his revelations, 9 but by his infirmities, 11 blaming them for forcing this boaſting.

IT is not expedient for me, doubtleſs, to glory: I will come to viſions and revelations of the Lord.

2 I knew a man in Chriſt about fourteen years ago, (whether in the body, I cannot tell; or whether out of the body I cannot tell: God knoweth,) ſuch an one caught up to the third heaven.

3 And I knew ſuch a man, (whether in the body, or out of the body, I cannot tell, God knoweth,)

4 How that he was caught up into paradiſe, and heard unſpeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter.

5 Of ſuch an one will I glory: yet of myſelf I will not glory, but in mine infirmities.

6 For though I would deſire to glory, I ſhall not be a fool; for I will ſay the truth: but now I forbear, leſt any man ſhould think of me above that which he ſeeth me to be, or that he heareth of me.

7 And leſt I ſhould be exalted above meaſure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to me a thorn in the fleſh, the meſſenger of Satan to buffet me, leſt I ſhould be exalted above meaſure.

8 For this thing I beſought the Lord thrice, that it might depart from me.

ed the apoſtle Paul's ſpeeches and epiſtles, can think him a ſtranger to the art of perſuaſion, or the rules of rhetoric. But he purpoſely avoided the pomp of Greek eloquence, and the ſtudied arts of human oratory in his preaching, that our faith might not ſtand in the wiſdom of men, but in the power of God. (1 Cor. ii. 4, 5.) And therefore his being rude in ſpeech, is referred by ſome to a defect in his voice, which they ſuppoſe was ſmall and ſhrill, if not ſtammering: (See the note on chap. x. ver. 10.) and by others, to that plain inartificial way of ſpeaking which he choſe, but for which the wiſe and learned men of this world deſpiſed him.

24 Of the Jews five times received I forty ſtripes ſave one.) The reaſon, why the apoſtle Paul did not plead his privilege, as a Roman, when he was ſcourged by the Jews, as he did when the magiſtrates at Philippi, and Lyſias the chief captain at Jeruſalem, ordered him to be ſcourged, Acts xvi. 22, 37. and xxii. 24, 25. was, becauſe he profeſſed a ſubjection to the political laws of the Jews; and the Romans allowed them the uſe of their own laws.

25 Thrice was I beaten with rods, &c.) We have no relation, in the Acts of the greateſt part of the ſufferings which the apoſtle recites in theſe verſes, as being forced to it by his enemies. But they are not at all the leſs to be credited, as real facts: For Luke's hiſtory is very ſhort, and is principally of facts, which he himſelf was an eye-witneſs to; and it cannot be ſuppoſed, but that many troubles befel the apoſtle, which are not recorded in that hiſtory; tho' his modeſty concealed them, till he thought himſelf under a neceſſity of declaring them.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XII.

2 Whether in the body, I cannot tell, &c.) It is equally poſſible with God to preſent diſtant things to the imagination in the body, as if the ſoul were abſent from it, and preſent with them; or to tranſport both ſoul and body, for what time he pleaſes, to heaven; or to give the rational ſoul a ſeparate exiſtence in the celeſtial regions for a ſeaſon, and in the mean while to preſerve animal life, in a miraculous way, to the body. But ſince the apoſtle himſelf could not be poſitive whether his ſoul was in the body, or whether one or both, were actually in heaven or not, it would be vain curioſity for us to go about to determine it. However, we may be ſure, that he apprehended the ſoul to be a diſtinct ſubſtance from the body, capable of exiſting, with its thinking powers, in a ſeparate ſtate; otherwiſe he could not have been at any loſs to know, whether, in this divine viſion, his ſoul continued to be in the body or not.

7 There was given to me a thorn in the fleſh.) It is very uncertain what is meant by this thorn in the fleſh, and the meſſenger of 9 And he ſaid unto me, My grace is ſufficient for thee; for my ſtrength is made perfect in weakneſs. Moſt gladly, therefore, will I rather glory in my infirmities, that the power of Chriſt may reſt upon me.

10 Therefore I take pleaſure in infirmities, in reproaches, in neceſſities, in perſecutions, in diſtreſſes, for Chriſt's ſake: for when I am weak, then am I ſtrong.

11 I am become a fool in glorying; ye have compelled me: for I ought to have been commended of you; for in nothing am I behind the very chiefeſt apoſtles, though I be nothing.

12 Truly the ſigns of an apoſtle were wrought among you in all patience, in ſigns, and wonders, and mighty deeds.

13 For what is it wherein ye were inferior to other churches except it be that I myſelf was not burdenſome to you? forgive me this wrong.

14 Behold, the third time I am ready to come to you; and I will not be burdenſome to you; for I ſeek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children.

15 And I will very gladly ſpend and be ſpent for you; though the more abundantly I love you, the leſs I be loved.

16 But be it ſo, I did not burden you: nevertheleſs, being crafty, I caught you with guile.

17 Did I make a gain of you by any of them whom I ſent unto you?

18 I deſired Titus, and with him I ſent a brother: did Titus make a gain of you? walked we not in the ſame ſpirit? walked we not in the ſame ſteps?

19 Again, think ye that we excuſe ourſelves unto you? we ſpeak before God in Chriſt: but we do all things, dearly beloved, for your edifying.

20 For I fear, leſt, when I come, I ſhall not find you ſuch as I would, and that I ſhall be found unto you ſuch as would not; leſt there be debates, envyings, wraths, ſtrifes, backbitings, whiſperings, ſwellings, tumults.

21 And leſt, when I come again, my God will humble me among you, and that I ſhall bewail many which have ſinned already, and have not repented of the uncleanneſs, and fornication, and laſciviouſneſs, which they have committed.

CHAP. XIII.

1 He threateneth obſtinate ſinners. 5 he adviſeth them to a trial of their faith.

THIS is the third time I am coming to you. In the mouth of two or three witneſſes ſhall every word be eſtabliſhed.

2 I told you before, and foretell you, as if I were preſent the ſecond time, and being abſent, now I write to them which heretofore have ſinned, and to all other, that if I come again, I will not ſpare:

3 Since ye ſeek a proof of Chriſt ſpeaking in me, which to you-ward is not weak, but is mighty in you.

4 For though he was crucified through weakneſs, yet he liveth by the power of God: for we alſo are weak in him, but we ſhall live with him by the power of God in you.

5 Examine yourſelves whether ye be in the faith; prove your own ſelves: know ye not your own ſelves, how that Jeſus Chriſt is in you, except ye be reprobates?

6 But I truſt that ye ſhall know that we are not reprobates.

7 Now, I pray to God that ye do no evil; not that we ſhould appear approved, but that ye ſhould do that which is honeſt, though we be as reprobates.

8 For we can do nothing againſt the truth, but for the truth.

9 For we are glad when we are weak, and ye are ſtrong: and this alſo we wiſh, even your perfection.

10 Therefore I write theſe things, being abſent, leſt being preſent, I ſhould uſe ſharpneſs, according to the power which the Lord hath given me to edification, and not to deſtruction.

11 Finally, brethren, farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace ſhall be with you.

12 Greet one another with an holy kiſs.

13 All the ſaints ſalute you.

14 The grace of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the love of God, and the communion of the Holy Ghoſt, be with you all. Amen.

¶ The ſecond epiſtle to the Corinthians was written from Philippi, a city of Macedonia, by Titus and Lucas.

Satan: But, whatever it were, it ſeems to be ſomething that befel the apoſtle ſoon after the glorious revelations before-mentioned, to keep him humble; it cannot therefore refer to any bodily defect that naturally attended him. It rather ſeems to ſignify thoſe reproaches which his adverſaries loaded him with, on account of his great ſufferings, as though theſe were inconſiſtent with the high favour of God, and where tokens of his forſaking him; and ſomething of this kind might be permitted, in more than ordinary manner, to be caſt upon him, for keeping him humble, juſt after he had received ſuch peculiar manifeſtations of God's gracious regards to him: But as the apoſtle has not told us what this thorn in the fleſh, or meſſenger of Satan was, and it is of little importance for us to know it, we may well be contented to drop all curious inquiries about it.

21 And leſt when I come again, &c.) It ſeems from hence that, though the inceſtuous perſon was brought to repentance, there were others among them that had been guilty of impurities, to the ſcandal of their holy profeſſion, and had not yet been reclaimed.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIII.

11 Finally, Brethren, farewell, &c.) To conclude, my brethren, whom, after all, as to the generality of you, I eſteem as ſuch in the Lord, May all manner of proſperity and happineſs attend you! In order hereunto, ſet thoſe things to rights, which are amiſs and diſjointed among you, that the whole church may be reduced to a regular ſtate and knit together as one body; and let every one of you labour, in the ſtrength of Chriſt, to attain to the higheſt degrees of every grace and virtue, and if poſſible, to ſinleſs perfection: Encourage yourſelves in the Lord your God; and be exhorted, one by another, as well as all of you by me, to do every thing that is excellent, that ye may be filled with the joys of faith and of a good conſcience: join, as with one heart and ſoul, in your ſentiments of the great truths of the goſpel, in your zeal to promote them, and in your Chriſtian temper, one towards another: Study the things that make for peace and brotherly love, that there may remain no more party ſtrifes, or angry contentions, jars and ſchiſms among you: And, in caſe ye be helped to cultivate and abound in theſe things, ye may depend upon it, that the bleſſed God himſelf who is the fountain of love and peace, the author, giver, commander and approver of them, will take up his gracious and complacential abode with you; will manifeſt his ſpecial favour to you; and will make you to increaſe with all the increaſes of God. (Col. ii. 19.)

12 Greet one another with an holy kiſs.) He exhorts them, according to the cuſtom of thoſe eaſtern countries, to ſalute one another with a kiſs, as a token of mutual and ſincere love: And ſince it was become a practice in ſacred meetings and church aſſemblies, particularly before their receiving the holy communion, to kiſs each other, he adviſes them to uſe it innocently, chaſtely; let it not be a wanton, but an holy kiſs. However, afterwards, the piety and purity of the church degenerating and declining, it was laid aſide. That which is innocent in itſelf, and pious in its firſt intendment, may in time fall under ſuch abuſe, as to cauſe it wholly to be laid aſide.

THE

The EPISTLE of PAUL the APOSTLE,

TO THE GALATIANS.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Galatians, to whom St. Paul wrote this epiſtle, were deſcended from the ancient Gauls, who having invaded Aſia Minor, made a conqueſt of the country, ſettled in it, and called it Galatia, which in Greek ſignifies Gaul. St. Paul preached ſeveral times in their country, and planted a conſiderable church there. It is probable that he was the firſt who preached there to the Gentiles; but there is room to preſume that St. Peter had before preached there to the Jews, ſince his firſt epiſtle is directed to the Jews ſcattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, &c. And in all probability the Jews who had been converted by St. Peter, were the men who occaſioned thoſe diſturbances among the Gentile converts of the ſame nation, which induced St. Paul to write this epiſtle; wherein he endeavours principally to eſtabliſh his character of being an apoſtle, which was by ſome diſputed, with an intention to place him below St. Peter, who preached generally to the Jews only, and obſerved the ceremonies of the law. He afterwards ſhews the unprofitableneſs of theſe ceremonies, and of circumciſion; he oppoſes, with great reſolution, thoſe falſe teachers who endeavoured to diſparage him, and to deſtroy his authority; laſtly, he gives them ſeveral excellent precepts for the regulation of their manners, and the better maintaining the purity of Chriſtianity.

CHAP. I.

1 He wondereth that they have ſo ſoon left him and the goſpel, 11 which he learned not of men, but of God.

PAUL, an apoſtle, (not of men, neither by man, but by Jeſus Chriſt, and God the Father, who raiſed him from the dead;)

2 And all the brethren which are with me unto the churches of Galatia:

3 Grace be to you and peace from God the Father, and from our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

4 Who gave himſelf for our ſins, that he might deliver us from this preſent evil world, according to the will of God and our Father:

5 To whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

6 I marvel that ye are ſo ſoon removed from him that called you into the grace of Chriſt unto another goſpel.

7 Which is not another: but there be ſome that trouble you, and would pervert the goſpel of Chriſt.

8 But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other goſpel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accurſed.

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1 Neither by man, but by Jeſus Chriſt, &c.) Though Ananias foretold Paul, at his converſion, what uſe God would make of him, (Acts xxii. 14, 15.) yet he, being at moſt but a miniſter of inferior rank, could not ordain Paul to the apoſtleſhip; nor is there the leaſt appearance of his attempting any thing of that nature: and though the prophets and teachers in the church at Antioch ſeparated Paul and Barnabas to the work of the miniſtry, (ch. xiii. 2, 3) yet as it was the miniſtry to which Chriſt had already called them, and as theſe prophets and teachers were likewiſe officers of lower rank than apoſtles, Paul and Barnabas could not be ſuppoſed to receive their commiſſion from them, who only followed the expreſs order of the Holy Ghoſt in what they did.

4 Who gave himſelf for our ſins, &c.) Who, in his matchleſs condeſcenſion and love, freely ſurrendered his ſoul and body, that were infinitely dignified by their perſonal union with his divine nature, and gave up his great and glorious ſelf to the moſt painful and ſhameful ſufferings and death, as a propitiatory ſacrifice to make atonement for our ſins, who deſerved nothing but tribulation and wrath, that he, on the foot of righteouſneſs might by price, as well as power pluck us as brands out of the fire, and reſcue us, in his time and way, from the evil temper and oppreſſions, deſigns, and practices of the men of this world, from all the iniquities that abound in it, and from all the dangerous ſnares and depraved cuſtoms and faſhions of this degenerate age; as alſo from the Jewiſh conſtitution, which is incapable of giving us life, and is exceedingly corrupted by the men of this generation, and that he might at length, take us out of this miſerable and ſinful world itſelf to a better. All which he has done according to the eternal appointment and good pleaſure of God, even our Father, who is reconciled to us through the blood of his croſs, and who, on his account loves us, and deals with us as his children.

9 As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed.

10 For do I now persuade men, or God? or do I seek to please men? for if I yet pleased men I should not be the servant of Christ.

11 ¶ But I certify you, brethren, that the gospel which was preached of me is not after man.

12 For I neither received it of man, neither was I taught it, but by the revelation of Jesus Christ.

13 For ye have heard of my conversation in time past in the Jews' religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it:

14 And profited in the Jews' religion above many my equals in mine own nation, being more exceedingly zealous of the traditions of my fathers.

15 But when it pleased God, who separated me from my mother's womb, and called me by his grace,

16 To reveal his Son in me, that I might preach him among the heathen; immediately I conferred not with flesh and blood:

17 Neither went I up to Jerusalem to them which were apostles before me; but I went into Arabia, and returned again unto Damascus.

18 Then after three years I went up to Jerusalem to see Peter, and abode with him fifteen days.

19 But other of the apostles saw I none, save James the Lord's brother.

20 Now the things which I write unto you, behold, before God, I lie not.

21 Afterwards I came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia;

22 And was unknown by face unto the churches of Judea which were in Christ:

23 But they had heard only, That he which persecuted us in times past, now preacheth the faith which once he destroyed.

24 And they glorified God in me.

CHAP. II.

1 He sheweth when he went up again to Jerusalem, and why. 14 Of justification by faith, and not by works: 20 They that are so justified live not in sin.

THEN, fourteen years after, I went up again to Jerusalem with Barnabas, and took Titus with me also.

2 And I went up by revelation, and communicated unto them that gospel which I preach among the Gentiles, but privately to them which were of reputation, lest by any means I should run, or had run, in vain.

3 But neither Titus, who was with me, being a Greek, was compelled to be circumcised:

4 And that because of false brethren unawares brought in, who came in privily to spy out our liberty which we have in Christ Jesus, that they might bring us into bondage:

5 To whom we gave place by subjection, no, not for an hour, that the truth of the gospel might continue with you.

6 But of those who seemed to be somewhat, (whatsoever they were, it maketh no matter to me: God accepteth no man's person;) for they who seemed to be somewhat in conference added nothing to me:

7 But, contrariwise, when they saw that the gospel of the uncircumcision was committed unto me, as the gospel of the circumcision was unto Peter;

8 (For he that wrought effectually in Peter to the apostleship of the circumcision, the same was mighty in me toward the Gentiles;)

9 And when James, Cephas, and John, who seemed to be pillars, perceived the grace that was given unto me, they gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship, that we should go unto the heathen, and they unto the circumcision.

10 Only they would that we should remember the poor; the same which I also was forward to do.

11 But when Peter was come to Antioch, I withstood him to the face, because he was to be blamed.

12 For before that certain came from James, he did eat with the Gentiles: but when they were come, he withdrew and separated himself, fearing them which were of the circumcision.

13 And the other Jews dissembled likewise with him; insomuch that Barnabas also was carried away with their dissimulation.

14 But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the gospel, I said unto Peter before them all, If thou, being a Jew, livest after the manner of Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, why compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews?

15 We who are Jews by nature, and not sinners of the Gentiles,

---

20 Behold, before God, I lie not.) St. Paul, having to do with the false apostles and the seduced Galatians, who he had just cause to suspect, would not, (as they ought) give much credit to his word; he asserts the truth of what he affirmed, upon oath, appealing to the all-knowing and heart-searching God, as witness and judge of the truth of what he said: Behold, before God, I lie not. It is no new thing for the faithfullest and ablest ministers and servants of Christ to be looked upon as liars, unworthy to be trusted, and to have the truth of what they deliver, though in God's name, questioned and suspected. Our apostle's purging of himself here from lying, doth import, that some did suspect him for a liar. And if an inspired apostle be, what private minister may not be suspected? The mean which St. Paul makes use of, for purging himself from the imputation of falshood, was, by taking an oath in a solemn manner. Learn thence, That though rash swearing, false swearing, and upon every light occasion to take or multiply oaths, be a very great sin, yet to swear, and bear witness to the truth, and to take an oath upon due consideration, and for weighty reasons, and to swear by the name of God, is certainly a lawful, and sometimes a very necessary and important duty.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

1 I went up again to Jerusalem, &c.) This was not the apostle's second journey to Jerusalem, when, whilst he was praying in the temple, he was in a trance, and saw Christ in person; which he speaks of, Acts xxii. 17, 18, and when he probably received his apostolic commission to the Gentiles. But what he here speaks of is his third journey to Jerusalem, which he took with Barnabas on occasion of the dispute that had been raised at Antioch about circumcising the converted Gentiles, Acts xv. 1—4, which most probably was about fourteen years after his conversion, and consequently but eleven after his first journey thither, mentioned ch. i. 18. And though he had been at Jerusalem to carry alms thither, between these two journies, yet as he then saw none of the apostles, it was needless for him to take any notice of it here.

2 And I went up by revelation, &c.) It is understood by some to signify that the apostles went according to the special appointment of God as intimated by the Holy Ghost to the prophets of the church at Antioch and to himself, to comply with their desire of his going on their message to Jerusalem; but others take it to mean, that in this journey he acted suitable to the revelation which constituted him the apostle of the Gentiles, telling the church at Jerusalem what things he had done among the Gentiles in pursuance of it.

3 But neither Titus, who was with me, &c.) The reason why the apostle would not circumcise Titus, though he had before circumcised Timothy, was, because some false brethren crept in, would have taken advantage from it, to bring persons into bondage to the law of ceremonies, and plead conformity to circumcision as an obliged duty. Though the ceremonial law was certainly abolished by the death of Christ; yet Almighty God, partly with respect to it as his own ordinance, and partly in condescension to the weakness of the Jews, was pleased to tolerate the observation of some part of it, and particularly circumcision, as an indifferent action, though not as a part of religion, for some time; the ceremonial rites being dead, they were to be decently, not over hastily buried.

16 Knowing that a man is not juſtified by the works of the law, but by the faith of Jeſus Chriſt; even we have believed in Jeſus Chriſt, that we might be juſtified by the faith of Chriſt, and not by the works of the law: for by the works of the law ſhall no fleſh be juſtified.

17 But if, while we ſeek to be juſtified by Chriſt, we ourſelves alſo are found ſinners, is, therefore, Chriſt the miniſter of ſin? God forbid.

18 For if I build again the things which I deſtroyed, I make myſelf a tranſgreſſor.

19 For I through the law am dead to the law, that I might live unto God.

20 I am crucified with Chriſt: nevertheleſs I live; yet not I, but Chriſt liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the fleſh, I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himſelf for me.

21 I do not fruſtrate the grace of God: for if righteouſneſs come by the law, then Chriſt is dead in vain.

CHAP. III.

1 He aſketh what moved them to leave the faith, and hang upon the law. 6 They that believe are juſtified. 9 And bleſſed with Abraham: 10 and this he ſheweth by many reaſons.

O FOOLISH Galatians, who hath bewiched you that ye ſhould not obey the truth, before whoſe eyes Jeſus Chriſt hath been evidently ſet forth, crucified among you?

2 This only would I learn of you, Received ye the Spirit by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith?

3 Are ye ſo fooliſh? having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect by the fleſh?

4 Have ye ſuffered ſo many things in vain? if it be yet in vain.

5 He therefore that miniſtereth to you the Spirit, and worketh miracles among you, doeth he it by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith?

6 ¶ Even as Abraham believed God, and it was accounted to him for righteouſneſs.

7 Know ye therefore that they which are of faith, the ſame are the children of Abraham.

8 And the ſcripture foreſeeing that God would juſtify the heathen through faith, preached before the goſpel unto Abraham, ſaying, In thee ſhall all nations be bleſſed.

9 ¶ So then they which be of faith are bleſſed with faithful Abraham.

10 For as many as are of the works of the law, are under the curſe. For it is written, Curſed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them.

11 But that no man is juſtified by the law in the ſight of God, it is evident: for, The juſt ſhall live by faith.

12 And the law is not of faith: but, The man that doeth them ſhall live in them.

13 Chriſt hath redeemed us from the curſe of the law, being made a curſe for us: for it is written, Curſed is every one that hangeth on a tree:

14 That the bleſſing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jeſus Chriſt: that we might receive the promiſe of the Spirit through faith.

15 Brethren, I ſpeak after the manner of men; Though it be but a man's covenant, yet if it be confirmed no man diſannulleth, or addeth thereto.

16 Now to Abraham and his ſeed were the promiſes made. He ſaith not, And to ſeeds, as of many: but as of one, And to thy ſeed, which is Chriſt.

17 And this I ſay, That the covenant that was confirmed before of God in Chriſt, the law which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot diſannul, that it ſhould make the promiſe of none effect.

18 For if the inheritance be of the law, it is no more of promiſe; but God gave it to Abraham by promiſe.

19 Wherefore then ſerveth the law? It was added becauſe of tranſgreſſions, till the ſeed ſhould come to whom the promiſe was made: and it was ordained by angels in the hand of a mediator.

20 Now a mediator is not a mediator of one, but God is one.

21 Is the law then againſt the promiſes of God? God forbid: for if there had been a law given which could have given life, verily righteouſneſs ſhould have been by the law.

16 For by the works of the law ſhall no fleſh be juſtified, &c.) St. Paul having fully vindicated his own authority as an apoſtle, from the imputations of the falſe apoſtles, he comes next to vindicate his doctrine, namely, the evangelical doctrine of juſtification by faith in Chriſt, which he had formerly preached to the Galatians, and which, in his abſence, the falſe apoſtles had endeavoured to ſubvert and overthrow, urging the ſtrict obſervation of the ceremonial law, as neceſſary to juſtification and ſalvation. Our apoſtle, therefore, to ſtrike at the root of this dangerous error, excludes all works of our own from having any influence upon our juſtification. Now this he proveth, (1.) Becauſe they that were Jews by birth, and ſo federally the holy people of God, found it neceſſary to renounce the works of the law, in point of juſtification, and to ſeek righteouſneſs only through faith in Chriſt, as well as the prophane idolatrous ſinners, or the Gentiles, who were ſtrangers to the covenant of God; For by the works of the law ſhall no fleſh, neither Jew nor Gentile, be juſtified: that is, acquitted from the guilt of ſin, and diſcharged from obnoxiouſneſs to the wrath of God. Now, no obedience of ours can obtain this, becauſe of the great imperfection which cleaves to it, and becauſe God will have all boaſting excluded; Eph. ii. 8. By grace ye are ſaved, through faith; not of works, leſt any man ſhould boaſt: but that he that glorieth, ſhould glory in the Lord.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

7 The ſame are the children of Abraham, &c.) Here our apoſtle proceeds to a ſecond argument, to prove that perſons are juſtified by faith, and not by works; and that is drawn from the example of Abraham: And the argument lies thus: "As Abraham, the father of the faithful was juſtified; ſo muſt all believers, the children of faithful Abraham, be juſtified alſo. But though Abraham did abound in many virtues and good works, yet he was not juſtified by theſe, but by faith only; therefore by faith muſt all his children be juſtified alſo. Abraham believed God; that is, aſſented to, and relied upon the promiſe of God made unto him, That in him, that is, in the Meſſias, who was to deſcend from him, ſhould all the nations of the earth be bleſſed; and this faith of his was accounted, imputed, and reckoned to him for righteouſneſs; that is, was accepted of God for his juſtification." From whence the apoſtle doth infer, or draw this concluſion, that ſuch as ſeek juſtification by faith, as Abraham did, are the children of Abraham, as the Gentiles were; that is, the children of his faith; a far greater privilege than what the Jews gloried in, namely, that they were the children of his fleſh.

15—18 Brethren I ſpeak after the manner of men, &c.) The apoſtle proves, that as the covenant of God can never fail, in regard of the wiſdom and invariableneſs of him that made it; ſo it can never expire for want of parties that have intereſt in it, and advantage by it, for want of a ſeed to whom it is made; for as long as Chriſt hath a church and members upon earth, ſo long ſhall the promiſe be of force; not only to Abraham, but to his ſeed, were the promiſes made: not to ſeeds, as of many; but as of one, and to thy ſeed which is Chriſt; where, by one, we underſtand one miſtically, and in the aggregate; not only perſonally and individually: And by Chriſt, the whole church, conſiſting of head and members, believing Gentiles, as well as Jews. The apoſtle having confirmed the truth of his doctrine by arguments in the foregoing part of the chapter, comes now, in the latter part of it, to anſwer objections which ſome might be ready to make againſt his doctrine.

22 But the ſcripture hath concluded all under ſin, that the promiſe by faith of Jeſus Chriſt might be given to them that believe.

23 But before faith came, we were kept under the law, ſhut up unto the faith, which ſhould afterwards be revealed.

24 Wherefore the law was our ſchoolmaſter to bring us unto Chriſt, that we might be juſtified by faith.

25 But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a ſchoolmaſter.

26 For ye are all the children of God by faith in Chriſt Jeſus.

27 For as many of you as have been baptized into Chriſt, have put on Chriſt.

28 There is neither Jew nor Greek, there is neither bond nor free, there is neither male nor female: for ye are all one in Chriſt Jeſus.

29 And if ye be Chriſts, then are ye Abraham's ſeed, and heirs according to the promiſe.

CHAP. IV.

1 We were under the law till Chriſt came, 5 but Chriſt freed us. 22 We are the ſons of Abraham by the free woman.

NOW I ſay, That the heir, as long as he is a child, differeth nothing from a ſervant, though he be lord of all;

2 But is under tutors and governors, until the time appointed of the father.

3 Even ſo we, when we were children, were in bondage under the elements of the world:

4 But when the fulneſs of the time was come, God ſent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law,

5 To redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of ſons.

6 And becauſe ye are ſons, God hath ſent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father.

7 Wherefore thou art no more a ſervant but a ſon; and if a ſon, then an heir of God through Chriſt.

8 Howbeit then, when ye knew not God, ye did ſervice unto them which by nature are no gods.

9 But now after that ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, whereunto ye deſire again to be in bondage?

10 Ye obſerve days, and months, and times and years.

11 I am afraid of you, leſt I have beſtowed upon you labour in vain.

12 Brethren, I beſeech you, be as I am; for I am as ye are: ye have not injured me at all.

13 Ye know how through infirmity of the fleſh, I preached the goſpel unto you at the firſt.

14 And my temptation which was in my fleſh, ye deſpiſed not, nor rejected; but received me as an angel of God, even as Chriſt Jeſus.

15 Where is then the bleſſedneſs ye ſpake of? for I bear you record, that if it had been poſſible, ye would have plucked out your own eyes, and have given them to me.

16 Am I therefore become your enemy, becauſe I tell you the truth.

The firſt we have, ver. 17. This I ſay, that the covenant which was confirmed before of God in Chriſt, the law, which was four hundred and thirty years after, cannot diſannul. The objection lies thus: Some might ſay, "When two laws are made, whereof the one was expreſsly contradictory to the other, the latter doth, in common preſumption, abrogate and diſannul the former: But here we find, that four hundred and thirty years after the promiſe made to Abraham, there was a law publiſhed extremely contrary to that promiſe, a law without mercy or compaſſion, a law both impoſſible and inexorable, a law which can neither be obeyed nor endured, a law which denounces a terrible and ſevere curſe to the tranſgreſſors and breakers of it: therefore it ſhould ſeem as if ſome cauſe had happened, to make God repent and revoke his former covenant-promiſe made to Abraham." To obviate this objection, our apoſtle ſhews, firſt, What the purpoſe of the covenant-promiſe to Abraham was; namely, to give life and ſalvation by grace and promiſe. Secondly, What the purpoſe of the latter covenant by Moſes was not; namely, to give the ſame life by working, ſince, in thoſe reſpects, there would be a contradiction and inconſiſtency in the covenants, and ſo by conſequence, inſtability and unfaithfulneſs in him that made them. That, therefore, which the apoſtle here drives at, is this, That the coming of the law hath not voided the promiſe, and that the law is not of force towards the ſeed to whom the promiſe is made, in any ſuch ſenſe as carries contradiction to, or implies abrogation of, the promiſe before made; from whence it follows, if it be not to ſtand in contradiction to, it muſt ſtand in ſubordination to the goſpel, and ſo tend to evangelical purpoſes.—That although God might have dealt with mankind as an abſolute Lord and Sovereign, yet he doth not govern them barely by a law, but by a covenant, which has promiſes and threatenings annexed. That after the covenant of works, made with man, before the fall, was broken by Adam, God was pleaſed to enter into a covenant of grace with fallen man, to deliver him out of an eſtate of ſin and miſery, and to bring him into a ſtate of ſalvation by a Redeemer. That though the former and latter covenant did differ in ſome conſiderable circumſtances, yet they are one and the ſame in ſubſtance, and do fully agree in all the eſſential parts of both.

28 For ye are all one in Chriſt Jeſus.) There is now no diſtinction of nations, ranks or ſexes, with reſpect to goſpel acceptance, privileges and bleſſings; no difference between Jew and Gentile, or maſter and ſervant, or male and female; there is no prerogative or preference of one above another, on account of any external circumſtances, as there was in former diſpenſations: for the grace of God is ſo enlarged under the goſpel-ſtate, that all of you, who are true believers, whatever your religious or civil characters have been, are one holy body in Chriſt, who is equally and alike the head of every one of you, for all ſpiritual and ſaving purpoſes; and therefore circumciſion, which was peculiar to males, and deſigned to keep up a diſtinction between Jews and Gentiles, is of no further uſe in the church of Chriſt.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

4 But when the fulneſs of the time was come, &c.) But when the full time was come, which God the Father, who gave us our inheritance, had fore-appointed in his eternal decrees, and fore-told and marked out in ancient prophecies; and which, by reaſon of the general and great degeneracy on one hand, and expectations on the other amongſt the Jews, was high time for a reformation, and for introducing a more illuſtrious ſtate of light, liberty, and joy to the children of God, that they might live and appear like thoſe that ſtand in ſo near and dear a relation to him; he then, in the riches of his infinite wiſdom, love and grace, ſent his own eternally pre-exiſtent Son, in a way of ſpecial operation and manifeſtation, into our world, that he, by wonderful diſpenſation, might be conceived, and born of a virgin, (Matt. i. 18.—23.) and ſo might be emphatically and peculiarly the ſeed of the woman, miraculouſly made of her ſubſtance, without the concurrence of any man, according to the firſt promiſe of him, (Gen. iii. 15.) and that having voluntarily aſſumed human nature into perſonal union with himſelf, he, who was both God and man, might, by a judicial conſtitution be placed as a ſubject both under the precept and the curſe of the law, which we were bound to have obeyed, but had tranſgreſſed, and thereby incurred its penalty.

9 How turn ye again to the weak and beggarly elements, &c.) This cannot be underſtood as if they had been uſed to thoſe elements and that bondage before; becauſe, as appears from the foregoing verſe, they had been converted, not from Jewiſh proſelytiſm, but from idolatrous heatheniſm, and ſo never had been under the Moſaic law before; and therefore it ſeems neceſſary to underſtand the apoſtle to mean that, as they had been under heathen bondage, and inſlaved by the principles and practices of ſo mean and wretched a religion, from which they were now delivered, it was very ſtrange that they ſhould deſire to be circumciſed, and thereby obliged to obſerve the whole law of Moſes for juſtification, and ſo come again into bondage, which, though it was of a different nature from what they were under before; yet was really a ſtate of bondage, directly contrary to the light and liberty of the goſpel into which they had been brought.

17 They

17 They zealously affect you, but not well; yea, they would exclude you, that ye might affect them.

18 But it is good to be zealously affected always in a good thing, and not only when I am present with you.

19 My little children of whom I travail in birth again, until Christ be formed in you.

20 I desire to be present with you now, and to change my voice: for I stand in doubt of you.

21 Tell me, ye that desire to be under the law, do ye not hear the law?

22 ¶ For it is written that Abraham had two sons, the one by a bond-maid, the other by a free-woman.

23 But he who was of the bond-woman, was born after the flesh: but he of the free-woman was by promise.

24 Which things are an allegory. For these are the two covenants: the one from the mount Sinai, which gendereth to bondage, is Agar.

25 For this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia, and answereth to Jerusalem which now is, and is in bondage with her children.

26 But Jerusalem which is above, is free, which is the mother of us all.

27 For it is written, Rejoice, thou barren that bearest not: break forth and cry thou that travailest not: for the desolate hath many more children than she which hath an husband.

28 Now we, brethren, as Isaac was, are the children of promise.

29 But as then he that was born after the flesh, persecuted him that was born after the Spirit, even so it is now.

30 Nevertheless, what saith the scripture? Cast out the bond-woman and her son: for the son of the bond-woman shall not be heir with the son of the free-woman.

31 So then, brethren, we are not children of the bond-woman, but of the free.

CHAP. V.

1 He moveth them to stand in their liberty, 3 and not to observe circumcision, 13 but rather love. 19 The works of the flesh, 22 and fruits of the spirit.

STAND fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage.

2 Behold, I Paul, say unto you, that, if ye be circumcised, Christ shall profit you nothing.

3 ¶ For I testify again to every man that is circumcised, that he is a debtor to do the whole law.

4 Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law: ye are fallen from grace.

5 For we through the Spirit wait for the hope of righteousness by faith.

6 For in Jesus Christ neither circumcision availeth any thing, nor uncircumcision; but faith which worketh by love.

7 Ye did run well, who did hinder you, that ye should not obey the truth?

8 This persuasion cometh not of him that calleth you.

9 A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump.

10 I have confidence in you through the Lord, that ye will be none otherwise minded: but he that troubleth you, shall bear his judgment, whosoever he be.

11 And I, brethren, if I yet preach circumcision, why do I yet suffer persecution? then is the offence of the cross ceased.

12 I would they were even cut off which trouble you.

13 ¶ For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty: only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve one another.

14 For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this; Thou shalt love thy neighbour as thyself.

15 But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one of another.

16 This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfil the lust of the flesh.

17 For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other; so that ye cannot do the things that ye would.

18 But if ye be led of the Spirit, ye are not under the law.

19 ¶ Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these, adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness,

20 Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies,

21 Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

22 ¶ But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, 23 Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law.

23 But he who was of the bond-woman, was born after the flesh, &c.) But there was likewise this further difference between them, Ishmael, the son whom he had by Hagar the bond-slave, was born only according to the common law of natural generation, while both the parents were young enough to have children in the ordinary course of things; whereas Isaac, who was Abraham's son by Sarah his lawful wife, was given him in an extraordinary, and even miraculous manner, by virtue of a free and gracious promise, at an unexpected time of life, when both father and mother were past age, and naturally incapable of having any issue. (Gen. xviii. 10, 11.)

25 For this Agar is mount Sinai in Arabia, &c.) Sinai and Horeb were probably two tops of the same mountain in Arabia Petrea; or rather Horeb was a common name of the whole ridge of mountains on which Sinai was situated, and was called Horeb from the excessive dryness of it.

Commentary on Chap. V.

3 That he is a debtor to do the whole law.) He that urges the necessity of circumcision, is a debtor to the law in a double respect, namely, in regard of duty, and in regard of penalty: First, he is a debtor in regard of duty; because he that thinks himself bound to keep one part of the ceremonial law, circumcision, doth thereby oblige himself to keep the whole ceremonial law, yea, and the whole moral law too, without deficiency, and that under the penalty of condemnation. Again, Secondly, As he is a debtor in point of duty, so he must needs be a debtor in regard of penalty, because he is not able to keep any part of it perfectly. Hence we may infer, how endearing our obligations are to Christ, who as our Surety paid both these debts for us, namely, our debt of duty, and our debt of penalty to the law of God; by fulfilling all righteousness, he paid our debt of duty, and by suffering the punishment due to transgressors, he paid our debt of penalty. We may also infer, that as he that is circumcised, is bound to keep the whole law; so, he that is baptized, is obliged to obey all the commands of the gospel, to make conscience of the duties of both tables, as an argument of his sincerity, and as an ornament to his profession.

11 If I yet preach circumcision, why do I yet suffer persecution? &c.) The apostle here plainly intimates, that some to lessen and expose his character, had suggested as if he were an unstable man, preaching up circumcision in some places, though in others he preached it down. They might probably take occasion for this from his circumcising Timothy, to prevent offence to the Jews, and remove that obstruction to the usefulness of his ministry among them, and from his speaking for a charitable forbearance, as he often did, with regard to circumcision, when no stress was laid upon it, and yet Jewish prejudices remained in its favour.

20 Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, &c.) Some of the works, hereafter mentioned, arise principally, if not entirely from the mind, such as idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, wrath, heresies, and envyings: and yet are called the works of the flesh. We have there-

24 And they that are Chriſt's have crucified the fleſh with the affections and luſts.

25 If we live in the Spirit, let us alſo walk in the Spirit.

26 Let us not be deſirous of vain glory, provoking one another, envying one another.

CHAP. VI.

1 He willeth them to deal mildly with a brother that hath ſlipped, 2 and to bear one anothers burden; 6 to be liberal to their teachers, 9 and not to be weary of well-doing.

BRETHREN, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are ſpiritual reſtore ſuch an one in the ſpirit of meekneſs; conſidering thyſelf, leſt thou alſo be tempted.

2 Bear ye one anothers burdens, and ſo fulfill the law of Chriſt.

3 For if a man think himſelf to be ſomething, when he is nothing, he deceiveth himſelf.

4 But let every man prove his own work, and then ſhall he have rejoicing in himſelf alone, and not in another.

5 For every man ſhall bear his own burden.

6 Let him that is taught in the word communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things.

7 Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatſoever a man ſoweth, that ſhall he alſo reap.

8 For he that ſoweth to his fleſh, ſhall of the fleſh reap corruption: but he that ſoweth to the Spirit, ſhall of the Spirit reap life everlaſting.

9 And let us not be weary in well-doing: for in due ſeaſon we ſhall reap, if we faint not.

10 As we have, therefore, opportunity, let us do good unto all men, eſpecially unto them who are of the houſehold of faith.

11 Ye ſee how large a letter I have written unto you with mine own hand.

12 As many as deſire to make a fair ſhew in the fleſh, they conſtrain you to be circumciſed; only leſt they ſhould ſuffer perſecution for the croſs of Chriſt.

13 For neither they themſelves who are circumciſed keep the law; but deſire to have you circumciſed, that they may glory in your fleſh.

14 But God forbid that I ſhould glory, ſave in the croſs of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, by whom the world is crucified unto me, and I unto the world.

15 For in Chriſt Jeſus neither circumciſion availeth any thing, nor uncircumciſion, but a new creature.

16 And as many as walk according to this rule, peace be on them, and mercy, and upon the Iſrael of God.

17 From henceforth let no man trouble me; for I bear in my body the marks of the Lord Jeſus.

18 Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with your ſpirit. Amen.

¶ Unto the Galatians, written from Rome.

fore reaſon to conclude, that by the fleſh the apoſtle does not here mean the body and its ſenſitive appetites and inclinations only, but the corruption of human nature, as it ſpreads through and defiles all the powers of the ſoul, as well as all the members of the body, by which it diſcovers itſelf, and breaks out into overt acts.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

2 Bear ye one anothers burdens, &c.) This is a general precept, and requires us to ſympathize with our brethren in all their ſorrows and ſufferings, and to bear a part with them under the load and burden of oppreſſive wants and neceſſities; particularly, bearing with the weakneſſes and infirmities of our brethren, ſeems here to be recommended to our care and practice in this apoſtolical injunction. Bear ye one another's burdens. The encouragement to which duty follows, ſo ſhall we fulfil the law of Chriſt; that is, the law of love, the moral law, which enjoins us to love our neighbour as ourſelves. But why is this called the law of Chriſt, when it was long before Chriſt; yea, before Moſes, and as old as Adam himſelf, being part of the law of nature, which was written in Adam's heart before there was any written bible? In anſwer, the law of love is very properly called the law of Chriſt; becauſe he revived it, reſcued it, recommended and enforced it, frequently urged it upon his followers, and exemplified it in his own life and converſation, therefore called a new commandment, and his commandment: This is my commandment, &c. A new commandment I give you, that ye love one another, St. John xiii. 34. To have our ear, our heart, and our hand open to our brethren in diſtreſs, is a neceſſary Chriſtian duty: Our ear open to their mournful complaints, our heart open to ſympathize with, and mourn over them, our hand open to the relief of their neceſſities and wants. This is a burden which the law of Chriſt has laid upon us, Bear ye one another's burdens. To bear a part of our brethrens burdens with a compaſſionate heart, and helping hand, is a fulfilling of the law of Chriſt; becauſe much love, which is the fulfilling of the law, goes out, and is acted in the bearing of it; ſo fulfil the law of Chriſt.

11 Ye ſee how large a letter I have written unto you, &c.) It is very probable, that St. Paul ordinarily did only dictate, and that ſome other perſon wrote his epiſtles, as that to the Romans, wrote by Tertius, Rom. xvi. 22. Sometimes he only wrote the ſalutation, and ſubſcribed the epiſtle with his own hand, as 1 Cor. xvi. 22. but here he tells the Galatians, that he wrote this epiſtle to them all with his own hand, having never wrote ſo large an epiſtle wholly with his own hand to any church, as he did to them. This he did for two reaſons, (1.) To teſtify the fervency of his affections towards them, and to inſinuate how much he loved them. (2.) To evidence the ſincerity of his endeavours for their preſent and future happineſs: to accompliſh theſe ends, he judged no pains too great.

13 For neither they themſelves who are circumciſed keep the law, &c.) Theſe judaizing Chriſtians were zealous for circumciſion and all other ceremonial ordinances; and therefore when the apoſtle ſays, that they themſelves did not keep the law, he ſeems to have his eye principally on the moral law, in obedience to which they were ſadly defective, and yet were undoubtedly as much obliged by circumciſion to attend to, as they could be to external rites and ceremonies, if they would pretend to be juſtified by the works of the law: and as he mentions this by way of cenſure upon thoſe zealots, for not ſincerely acting up to their own pretences, it ſeems jejune to ſuppoſe, with ſome, that their not keeping the law only means that they, being in Galatia, could not regularly obſerve the Jewiſh feaſts, or offer ſacrifice, or cleanſe themſelves from their defilements by touching any thing that was unclean.

18 Brethren, the grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all. Amen.) Here our apoſtle cloſes his epiſtle with his accuſtomed valediction, moſt affectionately praying that the grace and favour of Chriſt, in the ſweet effects of it, and in the ſenſible apprehenſion of it, might remain in their ſouls, to enlighten, ſanctify, comfort, and quicken them more and more, that from thence they might derive and draw abiding conſolation both in life and death.

EPHESIANS.

THE ARGUMENT.

St. Paul being informed that the Chriſtians of Epheſus Stood firm in the faith (by which he means their confidence of the title to the privileges and benefits of the goſpel, without ſubmiſſion to the law) wrote this epiſtle to them; in which he congratulates their ſteadineſs and perſeverance; and prays that they may be enlightened, ſo as to be able to ſee the mighty things done for them, and the immenſe advantages they received by the goſpel.

As to the time when this epiſtle was wrote, it is concluded to be, as ſome think, about the year of our Lord 58 or 59, or as others 62. However, it is certain that this and the epiſtle to the Coloſſians are a ſort of twin-epiſtles, as they were dictated or wrote about the ſame time, and on much the ſame ſubjects, and ſo caſt light one upon the other; and both were wrote when the apoſtle was a priſoner at Rome.

CHAP. I.

4 Of election, 6 and adoption, 11 which is the fountain of man's ſalvation.

PAUL, an apoſtle, of Jeſus Chriſt by the will of God, to the ſaints which are at Epheſus, and to the faithful in Chriſt Jeſus:

2 Grace be to you and peace from God our father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt who hath bleſſed us with all ſpiritual bleſſings in heavenly places in Chriſt:

4 ¶ According as he hath choſen us in him before the foundation of the world, that we ſhould be holy and without blame before him in love.

5 Having predeſtinated us unto the adoption of children by Jeſus Chriſt to himſelf, according to the good pleaſure of his will.

6 ¶ To the praiſe of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the Beloved:

7 In whom we have redemption through his blood, the forgiveneſs of ſins, according to the riches of his grace;

8 Wherein he hath abounded towards us in all wiſdom and prudence,

9 Having made known unto us the myſtery of his will, according to his good pleaſure, which he hath purpoſed to himſelf:

10 That in the diſpenſation of the fulneſs of times he might gather together in one all things in Chriſt, both

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1 To the ſaints which are at Epheſus, &c.) Epheſus was the metropolis of the proconſular Aſia, which was a part of the province that went by the name of Aſia the Leſs. Here ſtood the celebrated temple of Diana, which was called one of the ſeven wonders of the world; and the inhabitants of this city were on the one hand eminent for human wiſdom and learning and on the other remarkably infamous for idolatry, laſciviouſneſs, and magical arts, as appears from chap. v. 5. and Acts xix. 19. And yet from among perſons of theſe characters, ſovereign grace raiſed a church, the greateſt part of which were Gentiles, by the miniſtry of the apoſtle Paul, who continued preaching to them about three years, Acts xx. 31.

3 Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, &c.) God's bleſſing us is his conferring all ſpiritual and heavenly bleſſings upon us in his peculiar love to us, which diſtinguiſhes it from his beſtowing only ſpiritual gifts and providential bounties, in a way of common goodneſs, which are not always bleſſings to thoſe that have them; but our bleſſing God is only paying our ſolemn, grateful, and honourable acknowledgments of him, and aſcribing glory to him, from the affection we bear to him, and the delight we have in him, on account of his own bleſſedneſs, and of the bleſſings which he confers upon us; and ſo our bleſſing him is not only diſtinguiſhed from his bleſſing us, but likewiſe from thoſe praiſes that redound or are offered to God, but do not proceed from love to him as the principle of them. Thus 'tis ſaid, Pſal. cxlv. 10, that all his works praiſe him, and his ſaints bleſs him, becauſe they only have ſuch a love to God as gives them pleaſure in the thoughts of his glory, and in their aſcriptions of it to him.

which are in heaven and which are on earth, even in him:

11 ¶ In whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will.

12 That we should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ.

13 In whom ye also trusted after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: in whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with that holy Spirit of promise.

14 Which is the earnest of our inheritance, until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory.

15 Wherefore I also, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus, and love unto all the saints,

16 Cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers:

17 That the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom, and revelation, in the knowledge of him:

18 The eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints.

19 And what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power:

20 Which he wrought in Christ when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places.

21 Far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come:

22 And hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church,

23 Which is his body, the fulness of ~~him that filleth~~ all in all.

CHAP. II.

1 What we were by nature, 5 what we are by grace.
10 We are made for good works.

AND you hath he quickened, who were dead in trespasses and sins.

2 Wherein in time past ye walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the power of the air, the spirit that now worketh in the children of disobedience:

3 Among whom also we all had our conversation in times past, in the lusts of our flesh, fulfilling the desires of the flesh, and of the mind; and were by nature the children of wrath even as others.

4 But God who is rich in mercy, for his great love wherewith he loved us,

5 ¶ Even when we were dead in sins hath quickened us together with Christ; by grace ye are saved;

6 And hath raised us up together, and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus:

7 That in the ages to come he might shew the exceeding riches of his grace, in his kindness towards us through Christ Jesus.

8 For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves; it is the gift of God:

9 Not of works, lest any man should boast.

10 ¶ For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them.

11 Wherefore remember that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands;

12 That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world:

13 But now in Christ Jesus, ye who sometimes were far off, are made nigh by the blood of Christ.

15 After I heard of your faith, &c.) What the apostle says about his hearing of their faith and love, is no proof, as some would have it, that he had not been the instrument of their conversion, or that he had never seen them; for though he speaks of the Thessalonians, as having received the gospel by his ministry, 1st epistle i. 5, 6, 9. yet he says to them, chap. iii. 6—10. "when Timotheus came from you to us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and charity—Therefore, beloved, we were comforted over you," &c. And writing to Philemon, whom he speaks of as owing even his own self to him, probably because he was his spiritual father, ver. 19. he says, ver. 4, 5. "I thank my God, making mention of thee always in my prayers, hearing of thy love and faith, which thou hast toward the Lord Jesus, and towards all his saints:" and so his hearing of the faith and love of these Ephesians, as well as of the Thessalonians and Philemon, most naturally relate to the accounts which he had received of their stedfastness, perseverance, and increase in faith and love, since he left them, and during the space of so many years as he had been absent from them: this epistle having been wrote, according to the lowest computation, about five years after the last time of his being at Ephesus, and his joy and praise on their account might be the greater because he then told them, by a prophetic spirit, of the danger they would be exposed to from corrupt teachers, which would spring up from among them. Acts xx. 29, 30.

17 The God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, &c.) These words give us a short, but a very comprehensive account of that affectionate prayer which St. Paul put up to God on the behalf of these Ephesians, newly converted to Christianity; in which, observe, 1. The person whom he prays unto, God, under a very endearing title, for the strengthening of his faith; he styles him, not as the Old Testament-saints, the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob; but in the language of the New Testament, The God of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the Father of glory. The God of our Lord Jesus Christ, as he is man and Mediator, commissioned of him and sent by him: And the Father of glory, as being in himself infinitely glorious; to whom all glory is and ought to be ascribed, and from whom alone it is communicated.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

3 Among whom also we all had our conversation in times past, &c.) As in the epistle to the Romans the apostle proved first that the Gentiles, and then that the Jews were all under sin, insomuch that they were no better than those, Rom. iii. 9. and did this to shew the necessity of justification and salvation merely by grace for one, as well as the other, so here, that he might magnify the exceeding riches of the grace of God to both these sorts of people, he having shewn in the two first verses that the Gentiles were in the most deplorable circumstances of sin and misery, goes on in this verse to shew the like concerning the Jews, including himself, before they were effectually called; and exactly parallel to this, he with the like view speaks of himself and Titus, who were Jews, (Tit. iii. 4, 5.) and the apostle Peter, writing to the scattered Jews, and putting himself in, speaks in like manner, 1 Pet. iv. 3.

7 He might shew the exceeding riches of his grace, &c.) As the apostle was himself much affected with the mercy of God to the Gentiles, and was gradually introducing his design of particularly enlarging upon that subject which he most directly and professedly enters upon, ver. 11. and continues to the end of chap. iii. that he might the more affect their hearts with it; so in the run of his thoughts on the riches of God's grace in the whole of salvation to all that are made partakers of it, he often intermingles applications of it in a special manner to the Gentiles, as he seems to do here; but to shew that the salvation of the Jews was also as entirely of grace, he includes them, as like objects of it, ver 7. where he expresses it by the exceeding riches of his grace, in his kindness towards us, through Jesus Christ, with reference to all that had been said before about it, as equally extended to both sorts of believers.

12 That at that time ye were without Christ, &c.) Christ was the great promise of the Old Testament, as he was characterized by the seed of the woman, and the seed of Abraham, of the tribe of Judah, and of the family of David; and as all the other promises

14 For

14 For he is our peace who hath made both one, and hath broken down the middle wall of partition between us.

15 (Having aboliſhed in his fleſh the enmity, even) the law of commandments contained in ordinances, for to make in himſelf of twain one new man, ſo making peace;

16 And that he might reconcile both unto God in one body, by the croſs, having ſlain the enmity thereby:

17 And came and preached peace to you which were afar off, and to them that were nigh.

18 For through him we both have acceſs by one ſpirit unto the Father.

19 Now therefore ye are no more ſtrangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the ſaints, and of the houſhold of God;

20 And are built upon the foundation of the apoſtles and prophets, Jeſus Chriſt himſelf being the chief corner ſtone.

21 In whom all the building fitly framed together groweth unto an holy temple in the Lord:

22 In whom ye alſo are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit.

CHAP. III.

The hidden myſtery that the Gentiles ſhould be ſaved.

FOR this cauſe, I Paul, the priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt for you Gentiles;

2 If ye have heard of the diſpenſation of the grace of God, which is given me to you-ward:

3 How that by revelation he made known unto me the myſtery, (as I wrote afore in few words;

4 Whereby when ye read ye may underſtand my knowledge in the myſtery of Chriſt,)

5 Which in other ages was not made known unto the ſons of men, as it is now revealed unto the holy apoſtles and prophets by the Spirit,

6 That the Gentiles ſhould be fellow-heirs, and of the ſame body, and partakers of his promiſe in Chriſt by the goſpel:

7 Whereof I was made a miniſter according to the gift of the grace of God given unto me by the effectual working of his power.

8 Unto me, who am leſs than the leaſt of all ſaints, is this grace given, that I ſhould preach among the Gentiles the unſearchable riches of Chriſt;

9 And to make all men ſee what is the fellowſhip of the myſtery which from the beginning of the world hath been hid in God, who created all things by Jeſus Chriſt:

10 To the intent that now unto the principalities and powers in heavenly places might be known by the church, the manifold wiſdom of God;

11 According to the eternal purpoſe which he purpoſed in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord:

12 In whom we have boldneſs and acceſs with confidence by the faith of him.

13 Wherefore I deſire that ye faint not at my tribulations for you, which is your glory.

14 For this cauſe I bow my knees unto the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt,

15 Of whom the whole family in heaven and earth is named,

16 That he would grant you according to the riches of his glory, to be ſtrengthened with might by his Spirit in the inner man:

17 That Chriſt may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye being rooted and grounded in love,

18 May be able to comprehend with all ſaints, what is the breadth, and length, and depth, and height; of the covenant of grace were ſumm'd up and centered in this, they are ſpoken of here, and Acts ii. 39. and vii. 17. and xiii. 32. and xxvi. 6—7. and Rom. iv. 14—16. and Gal. iii. 17—19. xxii. 19. in the ſingular number, as if they were but one promiſe: But as this promiſe was iſſued out under various editions and enlargements at ſeveral periods, viz. to Abraham, and to him and his ſeed, and after the giving of the law, it is called here, and Rom. ix. 4, in the plural number the covenants, though for ſubſtance it was one and the ſame covenant, which conſiſted of many promiſes, or was all made up of free and gracious promiſes, in oppoſition to the covenant of works; and, among others, that covenant of promiſe which was made with Abraham, and had the ſign of circumciſion annexed to it, is by no means to be excluded, but ſeems rather to be particularly referred to, becauſe the apoſtle had juſt before been ſpeaking of circumciſion, which was a peculiar privilege of the church of Iſrael, and the external token of their viſible covenant-relation to God, in which the Gentiles formerly had no ſhare or intereſt.

14 Hath broken down the middle wall of partition, &c.) That is, the ceremonial law, which made the enmity between them. The ceremonial law was the cauſe and continuer of that enmity which was betwixt Jew and Gentile. This is called, the law of commandments contained in ordinances; becauſe Almighty God did actually ſeparate the Jews from all the world, by giving them ordinances and commandments, judicial and ceremonial laws, containing many viſible and external obſervances, which forbade them to communicate with the Gentile world. Now Chriſt being come in the fleſh, all thoſe obſervances ceaſed, and thoſe legal ordinances vaniſhed away: all nations become bleſſed in Chriſt, and Jews and Gentiles become one church, both alike the people of God, both admitted equally into covenant, and both alike bleſſed. Here note, That the moral law, ſummarily compriſed and comprehended in the ten commandments, was no part of the partition-wall between Jew or Gentile; nor did the death of Chriſt abrogate this law, or is it at all aboliſhed; but it was the law of ceremonies only, which the ſufferings and death of Chriſt put an end unto; for when he died, they all vaniſhed; as the ſhadow diſappears when the ſubſtance is come.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

5 Which in other ages was not made known unto the ſons of men &c.) The goſpel had been indeed preached unto Abraham, and the calling of the Gentiles had been revealed in many ancient promiſes and prophecies of the Old Teſtament, as in Gen. xxii. 18. and xlix. 10. Pſal. ii. 8, and Iſa. xi. 10, and xlix. 6. But in what manner, by what means, and at what time, this ſalvation ſhould be accompliſhed, and extended to them, and that as they ſhould be one body and fellow-heirs with the unbelieving Jews, was little known or underſtood; and notwithſtanding the plain declarations of our Lord himſelf about it, (John x. 16, and xii. 20—33.) and his expreſs commiſſion and promiſe to his diſciples relating to it, Mat. xxviii. 19—20, and Mark xvi. 15—16. yet ſome of the apoſtles themſelves, as well as other converted Jews, were ſurprized and ſhocked at the thought of the Gentiles being made equal partakers of the bleſſings of the goſpel with themſelves, and that without their being circumciſed, and obſerving the law of Moſes, as appears from the ſcruples that Peter made about going in to the Gentiles, and the aſtoniſhment of the Jews at their receiving the Holy Ghoſt, Acts chap. x. and from the debates that aroſe in the council at Jeruſalem, upon Paul and Barnabas's reporting the converſion of the Gentiles by their miniſtry, Acts xv. 1—29. Theſe, and ſuch like, were the things that were not known before, as they were now revealed to the holy apoſtles and prophets, which is meant not of the Old Teſtament-prophets, but of the inſpired prophets of the New Teſtament, ſuch as are mentioned chap. iv. 11. and 1 Cor. xiv. 29—32. For what was now revealed to them is here ſpoken of, in oppoſition to what was not made known in former ages.

8 Unto me, who am leſs than the leaſt of all ſaints, &c.) Here are the nobleſt ſtrains of flowing eloquence, to paint out the exceeding low opinion the apoſtle had of himſelf, and his exalted thoughts of Chriſt, and of the fullneſs of the excellent bleſſings that are treaſured up in him, and diffuſed abroad by him. He ſeems to ſtretch the powers of language to ſet himſelf as low, and the riches of the grace of Chriſt as high, as poſſible.

18 May be able to comprehend with all ſaints, &c.) Our apoſtle here proceeds with affectionate ardour to pray for further ſpiritual

19 And to know the love of Chriſt which paſſeth knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fulneſs of God.

20 Now unto him that is able to do exceeding abundantly, above all that we aſk or think, according to the power that worketh in us.

21 Unto him be glory in the church by Chriſt Jeſus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen.

CHAP. IV.

1 He exhorteth to unity, 24 to put on the new man, 25 to caſt off lying, 29 and corrupt communication.

I THEREFORE, (the priſoner of the Lord,) beſeech you, that ye walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called,

2 With all lowlineſs and meekneſs, with long-ſuffering, forbearing one another in love;

3 Endeavouring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

4 There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling.

5 One Lord, one faith, one baptiſm,

6 One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all.

7 But unto every one of us is given grace, according to the meaſure of the gift of Chriſt.

8 Wherefore he ſaith, When he aſcended up on high, he led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men.

9 (Now, that he aſcended, what is it but that he alſo deſcended firſt into the lower parts of the earth?

10 He that deſcended is the ſame alſo that aſcended up far above all heavens, that he might fill all things.)

11 And he gave ſome, apoſtles; and ſome prophets; and ſome, evangeliſts; and ſome, paſtors and teachers;

12 For the perfecting of the ſaints; for the work of the miniſtry, for the edifying of the body of Chriſt:

13 Till we all ~~come in the~~ unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the meaſure of the ſtature of the fulneſs of Chriſt:

14 That we henceforth be no more children, toſſed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the ſleight of men, and cunning craftineſs, whereby they lie in wait to deceive;

15 But, ſpeaking the truth in love, may grow up into him in all things, which is the head, even Chriſt:

16 From whom the whole body fitly joined together, and compacted by that which every joint ſupplieth according to the effectual working in the meaſure of every part, maketh increaſe of the body, unto the edifying of itſelf in love.

17 This I ſay, therefore, and teſtify in the Lord, that ye henceforth walk not as other Gentiles walk, in the vanity of their mind;

18 Having the underſtanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them, becauſe of the blindneſs of their heart:

19 Who, being paſt feeling, have given themſelves over unto laſciviouſneſs, to work all uncleanneſs with greedineſs.

20 But ye have not ſo learned Chriſt;

21 If ſo be that ye have heard him, and have been taught by him, as the truth is in Jeſus:

22 That ye put off, concerning the former converſation, the old man, which is corrupt according to the deceitful luſts;

23 And be renewed in the ſpirit of your mind;

24 And that ye put on the new man, which after God is created in righteouſneſs and true holineſs.

25 Wherefore, putting away lying, ſpeak every man truth with his neighbour: for we are members one of another.

26 ~~Be ye angry and ſin not; let not the ſun go down upon your wrath;~~

bleſſings on the behalf of his beloved Epheſians; (1.) He prays that Chriſt may dwell in their hearts by his moſt holy faith. The phraſe of dwelling in us, imports a very cloſe and intimate union between Chriſt and believers; he dwells in them ſubjectively and effectively, by his gracious influences, by his powerful aſſiſtances, by his quickening impreſſions. The holy Spirit is the bond of union on Chriſt's part, and faith on our part. (2.) He prays that they may be rooted and grounded in love; that is, that they might be ſo deeply poſſeſſed with the ſenſe of God's love, that they might find their hearts inflamed with love to God, and one towards another; and that love might be the very habit of ſoul, and rooted nature in them. (3.) He prays that the Epheſians may comprehend what is the breadth, length, depth, and height of the love of God, and the myſteries of the goſpel, intimating to us, that we are not to content ourſelves with a ſuperficial view of God's free love in Chriſt, but to make an accurate inſpection into all the dimenſions of it; to view it in its breadth, as extending to all ages, Jewiſh and Chriſtian; in its length, as reaching from eternity to eternity; in its depth, as it ſtoops down to ſuccour and relieve the vileſt and the greateſt of ſinners; in its height, whereby it reaches up to heaven, and intitles us to the joy and felicity of the ſaints above. Verily, the love of God in Chriſt to a loſt world, is ſo vaſt and boundleſs, ſo rich and matchleſs, exceeding not only our comprehenſion, but conceptions alſo, that not only the natural man cannot underſtand it, but the renewed man alſo is unable to fathom it, but muſt be daily endeavouring to take dimenſions of it; for the love of Chriſt ſurpaſſingly tranſcends the knowledge of the moſt illuminated believer; it ſurpaſſes natural knowledge, apoſtolical knowledge, yea, angelical knowledge.

20 To do exceeding abundantly, above all that we aſk or think, &c.) This noble doxology is admirably adapted to encourage and ſtrengthen our faith, that it might not ſtagger at the great things which the apoſtle had been praying for, as though they were too much for God to give, or for his people to expect from him, whoſe thoughts and ways are as much above ours as the heavens are above the earth, and whoſe love exceeds all the dimenſions whereby we uſe to meaſure things.

A COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

8 He led captivity captive, and gave gifts unto men.) The gifts here intended moſt directly refer to thoſe extraordinary ones that were beſtowed upon the church in its officers, but may likewiſe be extended to all the gifts and graces of the Spirit, that private members, as well as church officers, whether ordinary or extraordinary, are favoured with: for the alluſion is to conquerors throwing their largeſſes among the common people; and the gifts here meant were received by Chriſt, as Man and Mediator, in order to his giving them to the rebellious, that the Lord God might dwell among them, as it is expreſſed, Pſal. lxviii. 18. to which this paſſage refers. Accordingly he aſcended that he might fill all things, ver. 10. and the edification of the body of Chriſt that many might be framed into it, and all its members might derive virtue from him, as their Head, ſeem to be included in theſe gifts, as the apoſtle afterwards explains himſelf, ver. 12—16.

16 From whom the whole body fitly joined together, &c.) Here is a manifeſt alluſion to the human body, which is compoſed of different joints and members, knit together by various ligaments, and furniſhed with nerves, tendons, and other veſſels of communication from the head to every part of the body, which, by theſe means, is nouriſhed, actuated, and invigorated, and arrives to its full ſtrength and ſtature.

25 Speak every man truth with his neighbour, &c.) It appears from ſeveral heathen-writers, that they thought it lawful to tell a lie, when it might be profitable for them; and that, in ſuch caſes, it was better than a hurtful truth.

26 Be ye angry and ſin not, &c.) This is not to be taken as an exhortation to anger, which, alas! we are naturally too prone of ourſelves: and yet it intimates, that all anger in its own nature is not ſinful: but may be allowable upon juſt occaſions, as it is in itſelf an innocent paſſion, planted in the original frame of human nature to be exerciſed in a proper and decent manner; and was ſo by the bleſſed and holy Jeſus himſelf. (Mark iii. 5.)

27 Neither

27 Neither give place to the devil.

28 Let him that ſtole ſteal no more: but rather let him labour, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth.

29 Let no corrupt communication proceed out of your mouth, but that which is good to the uſe of edifying, that it may miniſter grace unto the hearers.

30 And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, whereby ye are ſealed unto the day of redemption.

31 Let all bitterneſs, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil-ſpeaking, be put away from you, with all malice:

32 And be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Chriſt's ſake hath forgiven you.

CHAP. V.

1 He exhorteth to charity, 3 to flee fornication, 22 The duties of wives, 25 and of huſbands.

BE ye, therefore, followers of God as dear children.

2 And walk in love, as Chriſt alſo hath loved us, and hath given himſelf for us, an offering and a ſacrifice to God, for a ſweet-ſmelling ſavour.

3 But fornication, and all uncleanneſs, or covetouſneſs, let it not be once named among you, as becometh ſaints;

4 Neither filthineſs, nor fooliſh talking, nor jeſting, which are not convenient: but rather giving of thanks.

5 For this ye know, that no whoremonger, nor unclean perſon, nor covetous man, who is an idolater, hath any inheritance in the kingdom of Chriſt and of God.

6 Let no man deceive you with vain words: for becauſe of theſe things cometh the wrath of God upon the children of diſobedience.

7 Be not ye, therefore, partakers with them.

8 For ye were ſometimes darkneſs, but now are ye light in the Lord: walk as children of light;

9 (For the fruit of the Spirit is in all goodneſs, and righteouſneſs, and truth;

10 Proving what is acceptable unto the Lord.

11 And have no fellowſhip with the unfruitful works of darkneſs, but rather reprove them.

12 For it is a ſhame even to ſpeak of thoſe things which are done of them in ſecret.

13 But all things that are reproved are made manifeſt by the light: for whatſoever doth make manifeſt is light.

14 Wherefore he ſaith, Awake, thou that ſleepeſt, and ariſe from the dead, and Chriſt ſhall give thee light.

15 See then that ye walk circumſpectly, not as fools, but as wiſe,

16 Redeeming the time, becauſe the days are evil.

17 Wherefore be ye not unwiſe, but underſtanding what the will of the Lord is.

18 And be not drunk with wine, wherein is exceſs; but be filled with the Spirit;

19 Speaking to yourſelves in pſalms, and hymns, and ſpiritual ſongs, ſinging and making melody in your heart to the Lord;

20 Giving thanks always for all things, unto God and the Father, in the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt;

21 Submitting yourſelves one to another in the fear of God.

22 Wives, ſubmit yourſelves unto your own huſbands, as unto the Lord.

23 For the huſband is the head of the wife, even as

Let not the ſun go down upon your wrath.) ſeems to be a ſort of proverbial expreſſion, to ſignify things that ought to be done without delay, in alluſion to the law of God, which ordered the criminal, that was hanged upon a tree, to be buried the ſame day, and the hire of a poor ſervant not to be kept back till the ſun ſhould go down upon it, Deut. xxi. 22—23. and xxiv. 14—15. And even Pythagoras, a heathen philoſopher, injoined his diſciples, that after any quarrel, or contumelious behaviour through anger, they ſhould ſhake hands and become friends again before the ſun went down.

28 Let him that ſtole, ſteal no more, &c.) This the heathen nations counted no crime; they made no conſcience, either openly or fraudulently, to take away their neighbours goods. Therefore, ſays the apoſtle, let thoſe of you, who in the time of your paganiſm and unregeneracy, were given to ſtealing, now being converted to Chriſtianity, do ſo no more. Obſerve, the remedy preſcribed for the prevention of this ſin, and that is, diligence and labour in ſome honeſt calling; let him labour, working with his hands: idleneſs occaſions poverty, brings men to want, increaſes their neceſſities, and then they betake themſelves to indirect and unlawful means to ſupply them. One ſpecial reaſon why perſons ſhould labour in the way of their calling, that they might have to give to him that needeth; not only that they may have wherewith to relieve their own wants, but the wants of others.

32 Be ye kind one to another, &c.) That is, of a ſweet and loving diſpoſition, affable and courteous to each other; neither carrying it loftily nor moroſely, but affably and humbly; tender-hearted, having a compaſſionate ſenſe of the miſeries and infirmities of one another; forgiving one another, whatever has been matter of provocation in each other, according to the example of God, who for Chriſt's ſake has forgiven us. Chriſtians are obliged, by the laws of their holy religion, to forbear and forgive one another, they are obliged to forgive one another, as God, for Chriſt's ſake, hath forgiven them. As God forgives us univerſally, freely, heartily, and ſincerely, and when he has power in his hand to revenge, ſo ſhould we in like manner forgive one another, even as God for Chriſt's ſake, hath forgiven us.

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

4 Neither filthineſs, nor fooliſh talking, nor jeſting, &c.) Here our apoſtle adviſes chriſtians to guard againſt the ſins of the tongue, to avoid all filthy diſcourſe, and all fooliſh diſcourſe, all ſcurrilous and obſcene jeſting, all exceſs in drollery, which is nothing but the foam of a frothy wit: moderate mirth, by innocent and inoffenſive jeſting, is not here forbidden, but when we jeſt by tart reflections upon the way, geſture, natural imperfections of others, eſpecially when we furniſh out a jeſt in ſcripture attire, and in a jocular humour make light and irreverent applications of ſcripture phraſes. Lord! what an impious liberty do ſome men take, to bring forth ſcripture, as the Philiſtines brought forth Sampſon, only to make them ſport. Theſe men, ere long, will find Almighty God in earneſt, though they were in jeſt when they played the buffoon with the moſt ſerious things in the world. Obſerve farther, our apoſtle's argument to diſſuade from ſuch talk, is this, they are not convenient; not convenient in themſelves; not convenient for the ſpeaker, not convenient for the hearers; for they poiſon inſtead of profiting the company, and pollute both the minds and manners of the hearers. O, what a great and common inſtrument of ſin is the mouth or tongue of man! the tongue of a good man is his glory, the tongue of a ſinner is his ſhame; there is no member of the body that doth ſo much ſervice for the devil as the tongue, eſpecially in common converſation; then it is that men let their tongues run-riot, then they utter oaths and blaſphemies againſt God, cenſorious, opprobrious, ſlanderous words againſt their neighbours; to prevent all which, the apoſtle exhorts, in the laſt words of the verſe, that when we meet together, we ſhould rather recount the favours received from God, and bleſs him for them: but rather giving of thanks. As there is at all times, and in all places, cauſe of thankſgiving adminiſtered to us by God, ſo is it our duty to take all occaſions and fit opportunities to excite both ourſelves and others to the practice of it, who are naturally very averſe and backward to it.

18 And be not drunk with wine, &c.) Drunkenneſs was a reigning ſin at Epheſus, and a vice that the Gentiles were ſcandalouſly guilty of in ſome of their idolatrous feaſts, as particularly in that which they celebrated in honour of Bacchus, whom they eſteemed as the god of wine.

19 Speaking to yourſelves in pſalms and hymns, &c.) Some have obſerved, that though moſt of David's poetical compoſitions for the uſe of the church are called in their titles Pſalms; yet the word uſed in the title of Pſalm, cxlv. though rendered there a Pſalm, ſignifies alſo, and is ſometimes rendered by the Seventy, a hymn;

Chriſt

Chriſt is the head of the church: and he is the Saviour of the body.

24 Therefore, as the church is ſubject unto Chriſt, ſo let the wives be to their own huſbands in every thing.

25 Huſbands, love your wives, even as Chriſt alſo loved the church, and gave himſelf for it;

26 That he might ſanctify and cleanſe it with the waſhing of water by the word;

27 That he might preſent it to himſelf a glorious church, not having ſpot, or wrinkle, or any ſuch thing; but that it ſhould be holy, and without blemiſh.

28 So ought men to love their wives as their own bodies: he that loveth his wife loveth himſelf.

29 For no man ever yet hated his own fleſh; but nouriſheth and cheriſheth it, even as the Lord the church:

30 For we are members of his body, of his fleſh, and of his bones.

31 For this cauſe ſhall a man leave his father and mother, and ſhall be joined unto his wife, and they two ſhall be one fleſh.

32 This is a great myſtery: but I ſpeak concerning Chriſt and the church.

33 Nevertheleſs, let every one of you in particular ſo love his wife even as himſelf; and the wife ſee that ſhe reverence her huſband.

CHAP. VI.

1 The duty of children, 5 of ſervants. 10 Our life is a warfare. 13 The Chriſtian's armour.

CHILDREN, obey your parents in the Lord: for this is right.

2 Honour thy father and mother, (which is the firſt commandment with promiſe,)

3 That it may be well with thee, and thou mayeſt live long on the earth.

4 And ye fathers provoke not your children to wrath. But bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

5 ¶ Servants be obedient to them that are your maſters, according to the fleſh, with fear and trembling, in ſingleneſs of your heart, as unto Chriſt;

6 Not with eye ſervice, as men pleaſers, but as the ſervants of Chriſt, doing the will of God from the heart:

7 With good-will doing ſervice, as to the Lord, and not to men:

8 Knowing that whatſoever good thing any man doeth, the ſame ſhall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free.

9 And, ye maſters do the ſame things unto them forbearing threatening: knowing that your maſter alſo is in heaven, neither is there reſpect of perſons with him.

10 ¶ Finally, my brethren be ſtrong in the Lord, and in the power of his might.

11 Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to ſtand againſt the wiles of the devil.

12 For we wreſtle not againſt fleſh and blood, but againſt principalities, againſt powers, againſt the rulers of the darkneſs of this world, againſt ſpiritual wickedneſs in high places.

13 ¶ Wherefore take unto you the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to withſtand in the evil day, and having done all, to ſtand.

14 Stand, therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breaſt-plate of righteouſneſs;

15 And your feet ſhod with the preparation of the goſpel of peace;

16 Above all, taking the ſhield of faith, wherewith ye ſhall be able to quench the fiery darts of the wicked.

17 And take the helmet of ſalvation, and the ſword of the ſpirit, which is the word of God:

18 Praying always with all prayer and ſupplication in the Spirit, and watching thereunto with all perſeverance and ſupplication for all ſaints:

19 And for me, that utterance may be given unto me, that I may open my mouth boldly, to make known the myſtery of the goſpel,

20 For which I am an ambaſſador in bonds: that therein I may ſpeak boldly, as I ought to ſpeak.

21 But that ye alſo may know my affairs, and how I do, Tychicus, a beloved brother, and faithful miniſter in the Lord, ſhall make known to you all things;

22 Whom I have ſent unto you for the ſame purpoſe, that ye might know our affairs, and that he might comfort your hearts.

23 Peace be to the brethren, and love with faith from God the Father and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

24 Grace be with all them that love our Lord Jeſus Chriſt in ſincerity. Amen.

¶ Written from Rome unto the Epheſians by Tychicus.

and the titles of Pſ. cxx,—cxxiv. ſignify, and are rendered a ſong. But poſſibly the hymns and ſpiritual ſongs here meant, in diſtinction from pſalms, might ſignify ſuch divine odes, or poetic compoſitions, as our Lord is thought by ſome to have delivered at the inſtitution of his ſupper. Matth. xxvi. 30. and as the ſongs of Elizabeth, the virgin Mary, Zacharias, and others ſpoken of in 1 Cor. xiv. 26.

25 Huſbands, love your wives, &c.) The apoſtle having propounded the wife's duty firſt, recommends the huſband's duty next; Leis was the duty of ſubmiſſion, his of love and intire affection. This the apoſtle mentions, becauſe the huſband for want of love, is too ready to abuſe that ſovereignty and ſuperiority which God has given him over his wife, by proving rigorous and bitter unto her; therefore, ſays he, Huſbands, love your wives, that is, with a ſpecial, peculiar, conjugal love, ſuch as no other muſt ſhare in. This duty of love is very comprehenſive, and it includes a very affectionate regard to her, a tender care over her, cohabitation with her, contentment and ſatisfaction in her alone, a patient bearing with her weakneſſes, a prudential hiding of her infirmities, a providing a ſupply of her wants ſuitable to her rank, a readineſs to inſtruct and direct her, a willingneſs to pray for her, and with her: where true conjugal love is found, theſe duties included will be performed.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

3 That it may be well with thee, &c.) Though this promiſe had a primary reference to a long-continued enjoyment of all the plenty of the land of Canaan; yet it has a further reach, and is ordinarily fulfilled in providential favours to religiouſly dutiful children, under the goſpel-diſpenſation: For godlineſs is profitable unto all things, having the promiſe of the life that now is, and of that which is to come, (1 Tim. iv. 8) But the eye that mocketh at his father, and deſpiſeth to obey his mother, the ravens of the valley ſhall pick it out, and the young eagle ſhall eat it: he ſhall be expoſed to the judgments of God, to bring him to an untimely and ſhameful end. (Prov. xxx. 17. See alſo Matth. xv. 4.)

22 That he might comfort your hearts.) The tender love and affectionate regard which St. Paul bore to theſe Epheſians, in the midſt of his ſufferings, and during his impriſonment; he not only wrote, but ſent to them; no doubt, the apoſtle had but few, very few faſt friends with him at Rome, whom he could repoſe an entire confidence in, and receive great conſolation from; however, he will deny himſelf, to ſerve them: a faithful miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt, is ſo tenderly affectionate towards his flock, that he preſers their ſpiritual edification before his own private and particular advantage; though St. Paul was now a priſoner, and under a daily expectation of death, and had few to attend him, yet he ſends one of his moſt beloved friends away to them, chuſing rather himſelf to want an attender, than that they ſhould want a comforter.

The EPISTLE of PAUL the APOSTLE,

TO THE PHILIPPIANS.

THE ARGUMENT.

This epiſtle is a return of the apoſtle's thanks and congratulations to the Philippian Chriſtians, who had ſent Epaphroditus to viſit and ſalute him in their name, to carry him ſupplies for his ſupport during his confinement; and to aſſure him of their ſteady adherence to the Chriſtian faith, which he had planted among them about the year of our Lord 51. The apoſtle's deſign in this epiſtle (which is quite practical) ſeems to be, to comfort the Philippians under the concern they had expreſſed at the news of his imprisonment; to check a party-ſpirit, which appears to have broke out amongſt them, and to promote an entire union and harmony of affection; to guard them againſt being ſeduced from the purity of the Chriſtian faith, by judaizing teachers: to ſupport them under the trials with which they ſtruggled; and, above all to inſpire them with a concern to adorn their profeſſion, by the moſt eminent attainments in the divine life.

CHAP. I.

1 Paul's thankfulneſs and prayer to God for them. 21 His readineſs to ſuffer.

PAUL and Timotheus, the ſervants of Jeſus Chriſt, to all the ſaints in Chriſt Jeſus which are at Philippi, with the biſhops and deacons:

2 Grace be unto you and peace from God our Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

3 I thank my God upon every remembrance of you.

4 Always in every prayer of mine for you all making requeſt with joy,

5 For your fellowſhip in the goſpel from the firſt day until now:

6 Being confident of this very thing, that he which hath begun a good work in you will perform it until the day of Jeſus Chriſt:

7 Even as it is meet for me to think this of you all, becauſe I have you in my heart: inaſmuch as both in my bonds, and in the defence and confirmation of the goſpel, ye all are partakers of my grace.

8 For God is my record how greatly I long after you all in the bowels of Jeſus Chriſt.

9 And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge, and in all judgment;

10 That ye may approve things that are excellent; that ye may be ſincere and without offence till the day of Chriſt:

11 Being filled with the fruits of righteouſneſs, which are by Jeſus Chriſt, unto the glory and praiſe of God.

12 But I would ye ſhould underſtand, brethren, that the things which happened unto me have fallen out rather unto the furtherance of the goſpel;

13 So that my bonds in Chriſt are manifeſt in all the palace, and in all other places:

14 And many of the brethren in the Lord waxing

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1 To all the ſaints which are at Philippi, &c.) Philippi was a conſiderable city of Macedonia, and the firſt city of that province, with regard to its ſituation in the way from Thrace to Macedonia. It was called Philippi from Philip of Macedon, the father of Alexander the Great, who enlarged and fortified it, and gave it that name. And it was famous for the battles that was afterwards fought in its neighbouring fields, between Auguſtus and Mark Anthony on one ſide, and Brutus and Caſſius on the other, in which the former were victorious. The apoſtle Paul was called by a viſion to preach the goſpel at this city; and God ſucceeded his labours there to the converſion of Lydia and the jailor, Acts xvi. and in proceſs of time, many others, both Jews and Gentiles, were brought over to the faith of Chriſt, inſomuch that a famous church was erected, and completely furniſhed with proper officers, relating to its ſpiritual and temporal concerns.

2 For God is my record, &c.) Theſe words are expreſſive of that paſſionate degree of Chriſtian love which St. Paul bore to the Philippians; he durſt appeal to God, as to the ſincerity and fervency of it; God is my record, I call him to witneſs, and can appeal to him, as the ſearcher of hearts, how greatly I long after confident by my bonds, are much more bold to ſpeak the word without fear.

15 Some indeed preach Chriſt even of envy and ſtrife; and ſome alſo of good will.

16 The one preach Chriſt of contention, not ſincerely, ſuppoſing to add affliction to my bonds:

17 But the other of love, knowing that I am ſet for the defence of the goſpel.

18 What then? notwithſtanding every way, whether in pretence or in truth, Chriſt is preached: and I therein do rejoice, yea, and will rejoice.

19 For I know that this ſhall turn to my ſalvation through your prayer, and the ſupply of the Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt,

20 According to my earneſt expectation and my hope that in nothing I ſhall be aſhamed, but that with all boldneſs, as always, ſo now alſo Chriſt ſhall be magnified in my body, whether it be by life or by death.

21 ¶ For to me to live is Chriſt, and to die is gain.

22 But if I live in the fleſh, this is the fruit of my labour: yet what I ſhall chooſe, I wot not.

23 For I am in a ſtrait betwixt two, having a deſire to depart, and to be with Chriſt; which is far better;

24 Nevertheleſs, to abide in the fleſh is more needful for you.

25 And having this confidence, I know that I ſhall abide and continue with you all for your furtherance and joy of faith:

26 That your rejoicing may be more abundant in Jeſus Chriſt for me, by my coming to you again.

27 Only let your converſation be as it becometh the goſpel of Chriſt: that whether I come and ſee you, or elſe be abſent, I may hear of your affairs, that ye ſtand faſt in one ſpirit, with one mind, ſtriving together for the faith of the goſpel;

28 And in nothing terrified by your adverſaries; which is to them an evident token of perdition, but to you of ſalvation, and that of God.

29 For unto you it is given in the behalf of Chriſt, not only to believe on him, but alſo to ſuffer for his ſake;

30 Having the ſame conflict which ye ſaw in me, and now hear to be in me.

CHAP. II.

1 He exhorteth to unity and humility, 19 and to a careful proceeding in the way of ſalvation.

IF there be therefore any conſolation in Chriſt, if any comfort of love, if any fellowſhip of the Spirit, if any bowels and mercies,

2 Fulfil ye my joy, that ye be like minded, having the ſame love, being of one accord of one mind.

3 Let nothing be done through ſtrife, or vain glory, but in lowlineſs of mind let each eſteem other better than themſelves.

4 Look not every man on his own things, but every man alſo on the things of others.

5 Let this mind be in you, which was alſo in Chriſt Jeſus:

6 Who being in the form of God, thought it not robbery to be equal with God;

you; that is, how paſſionately and ſincerely I love you, with the moſt intenſe and hearty affection, in the bowels of Jeſus Chriſt. The expreſſion may denote both the efficient cauſe, and the exemplary cauſe of his love: (1.) That the author of this his love unto them was Chriſt, he was the ſpring and procurer of it; and conſequently, it was no carnal or ſelfiſh love, to ſerve his own ends and deſigns upon them, but truly ſpiritual. (2.) That Chriſt's love to him was the pattern and example, according to which he loved them, with no common love, but with an intire and intenſe affection, from the ground of the heart, and the moſt intimate bowels; no words can be more expreſſive of that fervent love and earneſt longing, which St. Paul had for the welfare of the Philippians; a love which not only exceeds the love of all relations; he doth not ſay, I long after you in the bowels of a Father, or in the bowels of an huſband, but in the bowels of Jeſus Chriſt; humbly comparing his love towards them to the love of Jeſus Chriſt; not for the degrees of it, not for the fruits and advantages of it, but for the truth and ſincerity of it.

19 For I know that this ſhall turn to my ſalvation, &c.) For I am perſuaded in an humble dependence upon the promiſes of God, yea, am fully aſſured, by the revelation of the Spirit, that even the worſt deſigns of my adverſaries, in their preaching the goſpel to diſtreſs me, ſhall be over-ruled by the good Providence of God, contrary to their hopes, for my enlargment and deliverance from my bonds, that I may be at liberty to preach the goſpel without reſtraint, (ver. 25.) and that all their malicious attempts againſt me ſhall be ſanctified to my own ſoul's benefit, as well as the good of others, and made ſubſervient, inſtead of being obſtructive, to my eternal ſalvation; as, by means of them, I ſhall be helped forward to it, and fitted for it with the brighter glory, (2 Cor. iv. 17.) through the prayers which ye are daily putting up, and I deſire may ſtill be continued for me; and through the rich communications of the Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt, whereby, in anſwer to your prayers, I am enabled to make a good improvement of all theſe diſpenſations, to his glory, the advantage of others, and the comfort of my own ſoul.

23 For I am in a ſtrait betwixt two, &c.) If the ſoul were to ſleep, or be in a ſtate of inſenſibility at death, till the general reſurrection of the body, the apoſtle could have hoped for no more advantage by dying ſoon, than if he were to have lived many years longer; and conſequently could have been in no ſtrait between a deſire of living here for the ſervice of Chriſt, or of dying, to enjoy the happineſs of being with him in his glory, nor could he have imagined, in this view of things, that it would have been exceedingly far better for himſelf to die out of hand, than to live longer on earth.

30 Having the ſame conflict which ye ſaw in me, &c.) Here is the laſt argument made uſe of by the apoſtle to encourage them unto patient ſuffering for the goſpel of Chriſt; as it would render them conformable to Chriſt their head, ſo to him their apoſtle, who ſuffered many hard things when he was at Philippi, as they had ſeen; and ſtood ready to ſuffer, not only bonds, but death itſelf, now he was at Rome, which they heard of. Chriſtian courage under ſufferings cannot be kept up without a mighty conflict: we muſt conflict with our enemies, with the rage of our perſecutors; we muſt conflict with ourſelves, and with our own ſpirits, to keep them from fainting under perſecution; and we muſt even conflict with God himſelf, wreſtle with him, by prayers, for extraordinary meaſures of ſtrength to ſupport us under ſufferings, and to enable us to glorify God in and by them. The prudent and patient ſufferings of the miniſters of Chriſt for the truth of the goſpel are, and ought to be, a powerful encouragement to all their people to conflict with the like difficulties and trials for the teſtimony of Chriſt; the captain goes firſt, leads the van, his miniſters follow, and their people bring up the rear; and, having ſuffered together, they ſhall be alſo glorified together; a ſuffering head, and ſuffering members, ſhall never be ſeparated.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

3 Let each eſteem other better than themſelves.) Though chriſtians of eminent gifts and graces may, and cannot but account their attainments to be ſuperior to others of the loweſt claſs, as the apoſtle ſpeaks of his own gifts and labours; yet, like him, they ought to be humble in aſcribing nothing to themſelves, but all to the grace of God, 1 Cor. xv. 9, 10. and 2 Cor. xii. 11. And, with reſpect to true religion, charity ſhould teach them to hope, that there may be ſomething more excellent, and leſs offenſive to God in the hearts of other believers, than they find in their own, who, on one account or another, are apt to think their own worſe than others; becauſe the more they know themſelves, the more they ſee the treachery and vileneſs of their own, than it is poſſible for them to ſee of the hearts of others, whoſe converſation is ſuch as becomes the goſpel of Chriſt.

6 Who being in the form of God, &c.) He is ſaid to appear in the likeneſs of ſinful fleſh, that is, in fleſh that had the marks and miſerable effects of ſin upon it: not that Chriſt aſſumed ſinful fleſh, or fleſh really defiled by ſin, but he aſſumed the human nature, attended with a whole troop of human infirmities, which ſin firſt let into that nature, as hunger and thirſt, wearineſs and pain, mortality and death: by reaſon of which, though he was not a ſinner, yet he looked like one, and they that converſed with him took him

7 But made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant, and was made in the likeness of men:

8 And being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross.

9 Wherefore God also hath highly exalted him, and given him a name which is above every name;

10 That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth;

11 And that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father.

12 Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have alway obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling.

13 For it is God which worketh in you, both to will and to do of his good pleasure.

14 Do all things without murmurings and disputings;

15 That ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke, in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shine as lights in the world:

16 Holding forth the word of life: that I may rejoice in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, neither laboured in vain.

17 Yea, and if I be offered upon the sacrifice and service of your faith, I joy, and rejoice with you all.

18 For the same cause also do ye joy, and rejoice with me.

19 But I trust in the Lord Jesus to send Timotheus shortly unto you, that I also may be of good comfort, when I know your state.

20 For I have no man like-minded, who will naturally care for your state.

21 For all seek their own, not the things which are Jesus Christ's.

22 But ye know the proof of him, that as a son with the father, he hath served with me in the gospel.

23 Him therefore I hope to send presently, so soon as I shall see how it will go with me.

24 But I trust in the Lord, that I also myself shall come shortly.

25 Yet I supposed it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus, my brother, and companion in labour, and fellow-soldier, but your messenger, and he that ministered to my wants.

26 For he longed after you all, and was full of heaviness, because that ye had heard that he had been sick.

27 For indeed he was sick nigh unto death: but God had mercy on him; and not on him only, but on me also, lest I should have sorrow upon sorrow.

28 I sent him therefore the more carefully, that when ye see him again, ye may rejoice, and that I may be the less sorrowful.

29 Receive him therefore in the Lord with all gladness, and hold such in reputation:

30 Because for the work of Christ he was nigh unto death, not regarding his life, to supply your lack of service toward me.

CHAP. III.

1 He warneth them of false teachers, and to decline the ways of carnal Christians.

FINALLY, my brethren, rejoice in the Lord. To write the same things to you, to me indeed is not grievous, but for you it is safe.

2 Beware of dogs, beware of evil workers, beware of the concision.

for one, seeing all these effects of sin upon him. Lord, what a stoop was this! to be made in the likeness of innocent flesh, had been much; but to be made in the likeness of sinful flesh, rebellious flesh, flesh though not defiled, yet miserably defaced by sin! O, what is this! and who can declare his humiliation?

15 That ye may be blameless and harmless, &c.) Here our apostle seems to resume the exhortation which he began to press before, namely, to love and concord, to unity and peace among themselves; he exhorts them as to do all things without contention, so without murmurings, and hot disputings, in which usually the laws of charity are violated, and the peace of the church, and quietness among Christians interrupted: and to provoke them thereunto, he discovers to them the many great and blessed advantages which would redound unto them by their unity and concord. (1.) Hereby they should be blameless and harmless, the sons of God without rebuke, that is, very inoffensive persons, or, as the Greek word renders it, that ye may be the spotless sons of God; not absolutely spotless, pure and perfect, but without such spots as are inconsistent with your sonship; there is a spot which is, and spot which is not, the spot of God's children. Deut. xxxii. 4. Sins of infirmity, are spots found upon the best of his children; sins of presumption, if at any time found upon you, they are not the spots of his children. (2.) Hereby they should shine as lights in the world, that is, in the Pagan world, and in the Christian church: this imports both the high dignity, and the special duty of Christians, to be as so many suns, to arise and shine like mighty luminaries in the firmament of the world, casting out their rays and beams in a holy and heavenly conversation. (3.) Hereby they would hold forth the word of life; not only hold it fast for their own comfort, but hold it forth for others benefit, that is, in their Christian practice and profession; the lives of Christians should publish the word of life, to the intent, that the enemies of it may fall in love with it. Perhaps, as many have been converted to Christianity, by holding forth the word of life in practice, as by holding it forth from the pulpit: an holy life is the loudest proclamation, and the best way of holding forth the word of life. (4.) Hereby he should have joy and rejoicing, as well as they reap benefit and advantage; that I may rejoice in the day of Christ, that I have not run in vain, nor laboured in vain; that is, that I have not preached the gospel unprofitably amongst you.

25 Yet I supposed it necessary to send to you, &c.) It is supposed, with great probability, that Epaphroditus was pastor of the church at Philippi: however, it is evident from the character the apostle here gives him, that he was a minister, and was sent as a messenger from that church to the apostle in his bonds; and he is supposed by many to be the same that is called Epaphras, Col. i. 7, and iv. 12, and Philemon, ver. 2.

27 But God had mercy on him; and not on him only, but on me also, &c.) As life and health are in themselves mercies, and sickness and death are the fruit of sin; it is in that view, a mercy, even to a good man, to be restored to health for the service of God, and the good of others, after a threatening illness; though in the view of the consequences of death, in a happy exchange of this frail and mortal life for a blessed immortality, it is better for himself to die, than to live in this troublesome and sinful world, (see chap. i. 23.) and though the apostle was so much affected with Epaphroditus's sickness; yet he seems to have made no attempt for healing him in the miraculous way; while he, doubtless, as well as others, prayed for his recovery. The reason of this might be, because he could not perform such miracles at all times, and whenever he pleased; there being no virtue in himself for it, as there was in our Lord, which was a glory and power peculiar to him, (Luke vi. 19. and viii. 46.) and because miraculous signs were for them that believe not, to confirm the gospel to them, as the apostle said of tongues, [1 Cor. xiv. 22.] But there seems not to have been any such occasion for working this miracle.

Commentary on Chap. III.

2 Beware of dogs, beware of evil-workers, &c.) The concision signifies the cutting off, in allusion to circumcision, which the judaizers glorified in, but which the apostle, to shew his contempt of what they so much boasted of, calls the concision; and he speaks of the circumcision, or of what had been signified by it, as the privilege and honour of real Christians, whether they had been circumcised in the flesh, or not, calling them the circumcision, [ver. 3.] meaning in a spiritual sense the circumcised, the abstract being here, as elsewhere, put for the concrete.

3 For

3 For we are the circumcision, which worship God in the Spirit, and rejoice in Christ Jesus, and have no confidence in the flesh:

4 Though I might also have confidence in the flesh. If any other man thinketh that he hath whereof he might trust in the flesh, I more:

5 Circumcised the eighth day of the stock of Israel, of the tribe of Benjamin, an Hebrew of the Hebrews; as touching the law, a Pharisee;

6 Concerning zeal, persecuting the church; touching the righteousness which is in the law, blameless.

7 But what things were gain to me, those I counted loss for Christ.

8 Yea, doubtless, and I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus my Lord: for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but dung, that I may win Christ,

9 And be found in him, not having mine own righteousness, which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith:

10 That I may know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death;

11 If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead.

12 Not as though I had already attained, either were already perfect: but I follow after, if that I may apprehend that for which I also am apprehended of Christ Jesus.

13 Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before,

14 I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus.

15 Let us, therefore, as many as be perfect, be thus minded: and if in any thing ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you.

16 Nevertheless, whereto we have already attained, let us walk by the same rule, let us mind the same thing.

17 Brethren, be followers together of me, and mark them which walk so, as ye have us for an ensample.

18 (For many walk, of whom I have told you often, and now tell you even weeping, that they are the enemies of the cross of Christ:

19 Whose end is destruction, whose god is their belly, and whose glory is in their shame, who mind earthly things.)

20 For our conversation is in heaven; from whence also we look for the Saviour, the Lord Jesus Christ:

21 Who shall change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body, according to the working whereby he is able even to subdue all things unto himself.

9 Not having mine own righteousness, &c.) His own righteousness, is any thing about him that can distinguish him from another man, as more fit for acceptance with God; any qualification or work of his, whereby he thinks to be entitled to the favour of God and eternal life, such as those things that were gain to him before he knew Christ, ver. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8. He excelled in these things, whereby, according to the law of Moses, he had a title to the national happiness and life in the land of Canaan, and he sought no other right or title to eternal life. And here he opposes, not only these things, but all things else wherein he could be supposed to excel, as his own righteousness to the righteousness which is by the faith of Christ.

But that which is through the faith of Christ.) This is that righteousness which the gospel testifies, and calls men to believe Christ hath wrought. It is the righteousness which is by the faith of the Son of God, Gal. ii. 20—21. by faith in his blood, Rom. iii. 24, 25, 26, and chap. v. 9, or by believing on him that raised up Jesus our Lord from the dead, who was delivered for our offences, and was raised again for our justification; or by the faith of his resurrection from the dead, as Rom. x. 3—8. 9—10. Now, as what comes by faith, or believing a testimony, must be in the truth testified, or in that which is believed; there must be a righteousness in the testimony concerning Christ which is believed, if righteousness come by that faith. And this is that righteousness which the gospel calls us to believe to have been finished by Christ in his death, and to have been rewarded in his resurrection. If we be found in Christ, it must be believing the sufficiency of this righteousness to justify us. And it is utterly inconsistent with this faith that unites us to Christ, to have any dependence on another righteousness. And so it is impossible to be found in Christ having our own righteousness. Therefore the apostle says, Gal. v. 4. Christ is become of no effect to you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace. If we be entitled to life by what we find ourselves to be, or by what we do through any assistance; this is our own righteousness. But if we have a right to life by what we believe Christ to be, and to have done: then it is by the faith of Christ that we are righteous. He opposes the righteousness which is of God, to that which is of the law. The law saith "The man that doth these things, shall live in them; and, "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things."—And this is the law of God. But it is impossible for this law to give life to any sinner. Though Paul once thought to live by it, yet when it convinced him of sin, he found it killed him, and could not make him live: therefore he says, Rom. iii. 20. "By the deeds of the law there shall no flesh be justified in his sight: for by the law is the knowledge of sin." It must therefore not be of the law, but of God, as God, i. e. Sovereign, and above the law, that any sinner is made righteous, and entitled to life: "For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and a sin-offering, condemned sin in the flesh: that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit," Rom. viii. 3—4. To set aside his law, and give the sinner life without satisfaction to its demand, would be to deny himself. But it is of his own Son in the place of sinners, and to make him under the law, to fulfil its righteousness for them, that they might live through him. And so it is proper to him, as Sovereign, and above the law, to do what the law could not do, by sending forth his Son, made under the law, to fulfil it in the sinner's name, and to recommend by his own obedience to the death; that because he lives, the sinner might live also. And this is the righteousness which is not of the law, but of God. For though the law be magnified, and made more honourable, by the Son of God his doing these things, and living in them, than ever it could have been otherwise; yet the cause not of the law, but of God's grace, as Sovereign, and above the law. To this agrees what is said by the apostle, Rom. iii. 21, 26. There we may see, that the grace whereby believers in Christ are justified, is the grace that proposed Christ Jesus a propitiation for the manifestation of the divine justice in justifying. And in the next verse observe, that to be justified through faith, is the same thing to the apostle with being justified through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, the propitiation of God's providing; and as he says, chap. v. 9. we are justified by his blood. And whereas he says, that the righteousness of God by faith of Jesus Christ is unto all, and upon all that believe: so he tells us here, that the righteousness which is by the faith of Christ, and which is of God, is upon faith. Agreeably to this, Rom. i. 17. may be thus rendered: For therein God's righteousness of faith is revealed unto faith. We know nothing of this righteousness, but by the divine testimony in the gospel. And it comes to us no otherwise, but as it is revealed there to be believed. So it becomes ours in believing that testimony. It is not upon our feeling or doing any thing to make us differ from others, as more fit for the divine favour; for there is no difference: but it is upon our believing God, that he sent his Son to work this righteousness for the ungodly, and hath raised him again from the dead, as having fully wrought it. Thus we live, not by our own labour, but by hearing God testifying that he is well pleased in his beloved Son.

18 That they are the enemies of the cross of Christ.) They were doctrinal enemies to the cross of Christ, as they did not depend upon his death alone for salvation, but made circumcision, and the observations of the whole law of Moses, necessary to it; and they were practical enemies to his cross, as they pleaded for Mosaic rites, to avoid reproach and persecution from the Jews, and to indulge their sensitive appetites, instead of crucifying the flesh, with the affections and lusts, in conformity to, and by virtue derived from, the crucifixion of Christ.

CHAP. IV.

CHAP. IV.

1 General exhortations: 10 his joy for their liberality toward him, and God's grace in them: 20 he concludeth with prayer and salutations.

THEREFORE, my brethren, dearly beloved and longed for, my joy and crown, so stand fast in the Lord, my dearly beloved.

2 I beseech Euodias, and beseech, Syntyche, that they be of the same mind in the Lord.

3 And I entreat thee also, true yoke-fellow, help those women which laboured with me in the gospel, with Clement also, and with other my fellow-labourers, whose names are in the book of life.

4 Rejoice in the Lord alway: and again I say, Rejoice.

5 Let your moderation be known unto all men. The Lord is at hand.

6 Be careful for nothing: but in every thing by prayer and supplication, with thanksgiving, let your requests be made known unto God.

7 And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall keep your hearts and minds through Christ Jesus.

8 Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honest, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things.

9 Those things which ye have both learned and received, and heard and seen in me, do: and the God of peace shall be with you.

10 But I rejoiced in the Lord greatly, that now at the last your care of me hath flourished again; wherein ye were also careful, but ye lacked opportunity.

11 Not that I speak in respect of want: for I have learned, in whatsoever state I am, therewith to be content.

12 I know both how to be abased, and I know how to abound: every where, and in all things, I am instructed both to be full and to be hungry, both to abound and to suffer need.

13 I can do all things through Christ which strengtheneth me.

14 Notwithstanding, ye have well done that ye did communicate with my affliction.

15 Now, ye Philippians, know also, that in the beginning of the gospel, when I departed from Macedonia, no church communicated with me, as concerning giving and receiving, but ye only.

16 For even in Thessalonica ye sent once and again unto my necessity.

17 Not because I desire a gift: but I desire fruit that may abound to your account.

18 But I have all, and abound: I am full, having received of Epaphroditus the things which were sent from you, an odour of a sweet smell, a sacrifice acceptable, well-pleasing to God.

19 But my God shall supply all your need, according to his riches in glory, by Christ Jesus.

20 Now, unto God and our Father be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

21 Salute every saint in Christ Jesus. The brethren which are with me greet you.

22 All the saints salute you, chiefly they that are of Cæsar's household.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

¶ It was written to the Philippians from Rome, by Epaphroditus.

Commentary on Chap. IV.

3 And I intreat thee also, true yoke-fellow, &c.) Who it was that the apostle calls true yoke-fellow, though well known to the church at Philippi, is variously conjectured, with great uncertainty, at this distance of time. Some suppose that it was the husband, or brother of one of the women before-mentioned; others, that it was some noted companion, or fellow-labourer of the apostle's, and others, that it really was his wife, they supposing him to be a married man. And it seems that the help which the apostle desired this person to give Euodias and Syntyche, related to a misunderstanding that was between them.

23 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.) By grace, we are to understand the free favour of God, as the fountain; and all good things, as so many streams flowing from that fountain: This is called the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, because purchased by his merit, and applied by his intercession. This grace he prays may be with them in the sweet effects of it, and in sensible apprehensions of it, to enlighten, sanctify, comfort, and quicken them more and more. Knowing then the exceeding riches of grace which we have in Christ Jesus our Lord, let us glorify him, eminently, abundantly; and as we have all things by him, let us do all things for him, and to his glory.

The EPISTLE of PAUL the APOSTLE TO the COLOSSIANS

THE ARGUMENT.

St. Paul had not planted the Christian faith in person in the city of the Colossians, but was nevertheless concerned on the conversion of the Colossians, by sending other persons to them for that purpose, particularly Epaphras. He therefore wrote this epistle to them, in which he expresses his great satisfaction at their constancy in the faith, and confirms them in it against those who endeavoured to persuade them, as they did all Christian converts, that there was a necessity of observing the Gentile ceremonial law; also to warn them against a mixture of Gentile philosophy with Christian principles.

CHAP. I.

1 He thanketh God for their faith, 9 prayeth for their increase in grace. 14 and describeth the true Christ.

1 PAUL, an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timotheus our brother,

2 To the saints and faithful brethren in Christ which are at Colosse: Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ.

3 We give thanks to God and the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying always for you,

4 Since we heard of your faith in Christ Jesus, and of the love which ye have to all the saints,

5 For the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, whereof ye heard before in the word of the truth of the gospel;

6 Which is come unto you, as it is in all the world, and bringeth forth fruit, as it doth also in you, since the day ye heard of it, and knew the grace of God in truth:

7 As ye also learned of Epaphras our dear fellowservant, who is for you a faithful minister of Christ;

8 Who also declared unto us your love in the Spirit.

9 For this cause, we also, since the day we heard it, do not cease to pray for you, and to desire that ye might be filled with the knowledge of his will, in all wisdom and spiritual understanding;

10 That ye might walk worthy of the Lord unto all pleasing, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God;

11 Strengthened with all might, according to his glorious power, unto all patience and long-suffering with joyfulness;

12 Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light:

13 Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son:

14 In whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins:

15 Who is the image of the invisible God, the firstborn of every creature.

16 For by him were all things created that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities,

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1 Paul an apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, &c.) The apostle asserts his being put into office by the will of God the Father, the more effectually to obviate the objections of the false apostles against it; and he joins Timothy with himself, not to add to his own authority, but to strengthen Timothy's among the Colossians; and he here with great modesty and prudence, calls him his brother rather than his son, that he might the better raise their regards to him.

5 For the hope which is laid up for you in heaven, &c.) St. Paul discovers the motive which excited the Colossians to such steadiness and constancy in the faith of Christ, and in love one to another; and that was the hope laid up for them in heaven; that is, the great and good things here hoped for, and there to be enjoyed. As the sinner's misery consists not in what he feels, but what he fears; so the believer's happiness lies not in what he has in hand, but in what he has in hope; the reward which encourages his perseverance in faith and love, is laid up in heaven; that is, safely and plentifully, as a parent lays up his treasures for the use of his children.

16 Whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, &c.) Thrones, dominions, principalities and powers are terms often used to signify the highest orders of angels; and, perhaps, may here most immediately design them: but as they are also used to signify the highest ranks of men, it still further widens the argument, and think there can be no impropriety in it, if we also include them.

or powers: all things were created by him, and for him.

17 And he is before all things, and by him all things consist.

18 And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the first-born from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence.

19 For it pleased the Father that in him should all fulness dwell:

20 And (having made peace through the blood of his cross) by him to reconcile all things unto himself; by him, I say, whether they be things in earth, or things in heaven.

21 And you that were sometimes alienated, and enemies in your mind in wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled.

22 In the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy and unblameable, and unreproveable in his sight:

23 If ye continue in the faith, grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel; which ye have heard, and which was preached to every creature which is under heaven; whereof I Paul am made a minister.

24 Who now rejoice in my sufferings for you, and fill up that which is behind of the affliction of Christ in my flesh, for his body's sake, which is the church:

25 Whereof I am made a minister according to the dispensation of God, which is given to me for you, to fulfil the word of God;

26 Even the mystery which hath been hid from ages and from generations, but now is made manifest to his saints:

27 To whom God would make known what is the riches of the glory of this mystery among the Gentiles; which is Christ in you, the hope of glory:

28 Whom we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom; that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus:

29 Whereunto I also labour, striving according to his working, which worketh in me mightily.

THE ARGUMENT.

1 He exhorteth them to constancy in Christ, 8 to beware of philosophy and vain traditions, 18 worshipping of angels, 20 and legal ceremonies.

FOR I would that ye knew what great conflict I have for you, and for them at Laodicea, and for as many as have not seen my face in the flesh:

2 That their hearts might be comforted, being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the full assurance of understanding to the acknowledgement of the mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ;

3 In whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge.

4 And this I say, lest any man should beguile you with enticing words.

5 For though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in the spirit, joying and beholding your order, and the stedfastness of your faith in Christ.

6 As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him:

7 Rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving.

8 ¶ Beware lest any man spoil you through philo-

That in him should all fulness dwell.) This all fulness which dwells in Christ, seems evidently to signify, not the original fulness of his deity, but his mediatorial dispensatory fulness which he received of his Father in his human nature and office-capacity; for his original fulness is equally necessary to him, and inseparable from him, as God, and does not depend upon the divine good will and pleasure of the Father; but the fulness here mentioned is what we are told it pleased the Father should dwell in him, and is placed amidst that part of the apostle's description of him which relates most immediately to his office-character; and the expressions used chiefly to signify the continuation of the mediatorial fulness is much stronger, and without any hint of will and pleasure as the cause of it, where it is said, In him dwelleth all the fulness of the Godhead bodily. (See the note there.)

By him to reconcile all things unto himself, &c.) This does not include the holy angels, who having never sinned, cannot be said to be reconciled to God; but relates only to all the saints, whether on earth or in heaven, who needed to be reconciled after the breach that sin had made between God and them. When the scripture speaks of reconciliation by Christ, or by his cross, blood, or death, it is commonly expressed by God's reconciling us to himself, and not by his being reconciled to us; the reason of which seems to be, because God is the offended party, and we are the offenders, who, as such, have need to be reconciled to him, and the price of reconciliation, by the blood of Christ, is paid to him, and not to us. Grotius observes, that in heathen authors, men's being reconciled to their gods, is always understood to signify appeasing the anger of their gods. Condemned rebels may be said to be reconciled to their sovereign, when he, on one consideration or another, pardons them; though, perhaps, they still remain rebels in their hearts against him: and when our Lord ordered the offending to go and be reconciled to his offended brother, (Matth. v. 23—24.) the plain meaning is, that he should go, and try to appease his anger, obtain his forgiveness, and regain his favour and friendship, by humbling himself to him, asking his pardon, or satisfying him for any injury that he might have done him.—God's reconciling us to himself by the cross of Christ, does signify a reconciliation that results from God's graciously providing and accepting an atonement for us, that he might not inflict the punishment upon us which we deserved, and the law condemned us to; but might be at peace with us, and receive us into favour, on Christ's account: for this reconciliation, by the cross of Christ, is in a way of atonement or satisfaction to divine justice for sin; and, with respect hereunto, we are said to be reconciled to God by the death of his Son, while we were enemies, which is of much the same import with Christ's dying for the ungodly, and while we were yet sinners, (Rom. v. 6—8—10.) and our being reconciled to God, by penitently and accepting of this method of reconciliation by Jesus Christ, and consequently turning to him, is distinguished from "his reconciling us to himself, and not imputing our trespasses to us," on account of Christ's having been made sin for us, that we might be made the righteousness of God in him." (2 Cor. v. 18—21.) This is called Christ's making reconciliation for iniquity, and making reconciliation for the sins of the people," (Dan. ix. 24. and Heb. ii. 17.) and answers to the ceremonial and typical reconciliation which was made by the blood of the sacrifices under the law, to make atonement and reconciliation for Israel, (2 Chron. xxix. 24. and Ezek. xlv. 15, 17.) and which was frequently stiled, making atonement for sin, and an atonement for their souls. Now as all the legal sacrifices of atonement, and the truly expiatory sacrifice of Christ were offered, not to the offenders, but to God, to reconcile him to them; what can reconciliation by the death, blood, or cross of Christ, mean, but that the law and justice of God were thereby satisfied, and all obstructions on his part to peace and friendship towards sinners are removed, that he might not pursue his righteous demands upon them, according to the holy resentments of his nature and will, and the threatenings of his law for their sins; but might mercifully forgive them, and take them into a state of favour with himself, upon their receiving the atonement or reconciliation, (Rom. v. 11.) by faith, after the offence that sin had given him, and the breach it had made upon the original friendship between him and them.

26 Even the mystery which hath been hid from ages, &c.) Mystery here, as in several other places, relates to the calling of the Gentiles, which was before, at least comparatively speaking, a mystery, but is now most clearly revealed: it cannot be said not to have been revealed before, though through mistaken prejudices, it was not generally understood, in its true sense and meaning: and therefore its being called a mystery seems, not only to carry the idea of its having lain under great obscurity before; but also of the unfathomable depths of wisdom and grace that are contained in the gospel, as now revealed in the plainest manner that it ever will be in this world, or that our faculties in this imperfect state are capable of taking in.

loſophy and vain deceit, after the tradition of men, after the rudiments of the world, and not after Chriſt:

9 For in him dwelleth all the fulneſs of the Godhead bodily:

10 And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power:

11 In whom alſo ye are circumciſed with the circumciſion made without hands, in putting off the body of the ſins of the fleſh, by the circumciſion of Chriſt:

12 Buried with him in baptiſm, wherein alſo ye are riſen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raiſed him from the dead.

13 And you, being dead in your ſins, and the uncircumciſion of your fleſh, hath he quickened together with him, having forgiven you all treſpaſſes,

14 Blotting out the handwriting of ordinances, that was againſt us, which was contrary to us, and took it out of the way, nailing it to his croſs:

15 And having ſpoiled principalities and powers, he made a ſhew of them openly, triumphing over them in it.

16 Let no man therefore judge you in meat or in drink, or in reſpect of an holy day, or of the new moon, or of the ſabbath-days.

17 Which are a ſhadow of things to come: but the body is of Chriſt.

18 ¶ Let no man beguile you of your reward in a voluntary humility, and worſhipping of angels, intruding into thoſe things which he hath not ſeen, vainly puffed up by his fleſhly mind.

19 And not holding the head, from which all the body by joints and bands having nouriſhment miniſtered, and knit together, increaſeth with the increaſe of God.

20 ¶ Wherefore if ye be dead with Chriſt from the rudiments of the world, why, as though living in the world, are ye ſubject to ordinances,

21 (Touch not, taſte not, handle not;

22 Which all are to periſh with the uſing) after the commandments and doctrines of men?

23 Which things have indeed a ſhew of wiſdom in will-worſhip, and humility, and neglecting of the body; not in any honour to the ſatisfying of the fleſh.

CHAP. III.

1 He ſheweth wherein to ſeek Chriſt. 5 He exhorteth to mortification, 12 to charity, humility, and ſundry general and particular duties.

IF ye then be riſen with Chriſt, ſeek thoſe things which are above, where Chriſt ſitteth on the right hand of God.

2 Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth.

3 For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Chriſt in God.

4 When Chriſt, who is our life ſhall appear, then ſhall ye alſo appear with him in glory.

5 ¶ Mortify therefore your members which are upon the earth, fornication, uncleanneſs, inordinate affection,

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

9 For in him dwelleth all the fulneſs of the Godhead bodily.) The Godhead, the fulneſs of the Godhead, and all the fulneſs of the Godhead, are as ſtrong expreſſions as can well be imagined, to denote that the divine nature, with not ſome only, but all its eſſential perfections, the very ſame as are in the Father himſelf, dwell ſubſtantially in Chriſt's human body, as the word may ſignify, either bodily, to intimate the perſonal union of the divine nature with the human body, as well as ſoul of our Lord, when he, the eternal Word, was made fleſh and dwelt among us, or really and ſubſtantially, in oppoſition to figuratively and emblematically, in types and ſhadows, in which ſenſe the apoſtle ſays the body is of Chriſt, (ver. 17.) and this is infinitely more than any thing that is ſaid of God's dwelling in his people, (2 Cor. vi. 16.) and of their being filled with all the fulneſs of God. (Eph. iii. 19.) His dwelling in them evidently ſignifies only his gracious preſence with them, in a way of ſpecial favour and relation, manifeſtation and operation; and their being filled with all the fulneſs of God, moſt naturally means, filled with all the gifts and graces that God is the author and giver of: but all the fulneſs of the Godhead is a quite different phraſe of inconceivably ſuperior ſignification: for Godhead is the one holy divine nature itſelf, by which God is what he is; and as all acts of divine goodneſs, wiſdom and power, and the like, are conſtantly aſcribed to God, and never to the Godhead, there ſeems to be a great impropriety of language in calling their effects the fulneſs of the Godhead. But the fulneſs, or perfection of Deity, is a natural idea of all that is comprehended in Godhead; and all that is ſaid to dwell in Chriſt.

16 Or of the new-moon, or of the ſabbath days.) Sabbath's ſeem to be here meant of the ſeventh day ſabbath, becauſe diſtinguiſhed from the anniverſary and monthly feſtivals of the Jews; and becauſe this is the common import of the word ſabbath in the New Teſtament, and is always ſo in the Old, when mentioned in conjunction with, or in contradiction to new-moons and feaſts. But then the caution againſt a religious regard to it is to be conſidered only with reference to the obligations that lay on the Jews to obſerve that particular day, during the Moſaic diſpenſation, and its attending ritual obſervances, which did not belong to the morality of the ſabbath, nor are obligatory upon Chriſtians any more than the ſeventh day itſelf, under the goſpel-ſtate: but the devoting of a ſeventh part of time in a holy manner to the Lord, belongs unchangeably to the moral nature and obligation of the fourth commandment, which is transferred in the New Teſtament, from the ſeventh to the firſt day of the week. To this it may not be amiſs to add the judicious note of Mr. Kenſicott in his diſſertation on the obligations of Cain and Abel, where he ſays, "The ſabbath, or "weekly day of holineſs, might be well called a ſign to the Jews," for the Jewiſh ſabbath was a ſign, as being founded on a double reaſon; the ſecond of which (the Egyptian deliverance) evidently diſtinguiſhed that people from all others, and was therefore as a ſign conſtantly to remind them of the particular care of heaven, and what uncommon returns of goodneſs they were to make for ſo ſignal a deliverance. But there is great reaſon to believe, that the ſabbath of the Iſraelites was altered with their year, at their coming forth from Egypt: and a ſhort intention to this point may not be here improper: the caſe then ſeems to be this: at the finiſhing of the creation God ſanctified the ſeventh day; this ſeventh day, being the firſt day of Adam's life, was conſecrated by way of firſt-fruits to God; and therefore Adam may reaſonably be ſuppoſed to have began his computation of the days of the week with the firſt whole day of his own exiſtence; thus the ſabbath became the firſt day of the week: but when mankind fell from the worſhip of the true God, they firſt ſubſtituted the worſhip of the Sun in his place, and preſerving the ſame weekly day of worſhip, but devoting it to the Sun, the ſabbath was called Sunday; for that Sunday was the firſt day of the week, and is ſo ſtill in the eaſt, is proved by Mr. Selden. Thus the ſabbath of the patriarchs continued to be the Sunday of the idolaters, till the coming up of the Iſraelites out of Egypt; and then, as God altered the beginning of their year, ſo he alſo changed the day of their worſhip from Sunday to Saturday; the firſt reaſon of which might be, that as Sunday was the day of worſhip among the idolaters, the Iſraelites would be more likely to join with them if they reſted on the ſame day, than if they were to work on that day, and ſerve their God upon another. But a ſecond reaſon certainly was, in order to perpetuate the memory of "their deliverance on that day from Egyptian ſlavery;" for Moſes, when he applies the fourth commandment to the particular caſes of his own people, Deut. v. 15. does not enforce it, as in Exod. xx. 11. by the conſideration of God's reſting on that day, which was the ſabbath of the patriarchs; but binds it upon them by ſaying, "Remember that thou waſt a ſervant in Egypt, and that the Lord "thy God brought thee out thence through a mighty hand, and "by a ſtretched-out arm; therefore the Lord thy God hath com-"manded thee to keep the ſabbath-day." Allowing then the preceding obſervations, we immediately ſee how the ſabbath naturally reverted to Sunday, after the abolition of judaiſm, without any expreſs command for the alteration.

evil concupiscence, and covetousness, which is idolatry:

6 For which things sake the wrath of God cometh on the children of disobedience:

7 In the which ye also walked sometime, when ye lived in them.

8 But now ye also put off all these; anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy communication out of your mouth.

9 Lie not one to another, seeing that ye have put off the old man with his deeds;

10 And have put on the new man, which is renewed in knowledge, after the image of him that created him:

11 Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision, nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bond nor free: but Christ is all, and in all.

12 Put on, therefore (as the elect of God, holy and beloved) bowels of mercies, kindness, humbleness of mind, meekness, long-suffering;

13 Forbearing one another, and forgiving one another, if any man have a quarrel against any; even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye.

14 And above all these things, put on charity, which is the bond of perfectness.

15 And let the peace of God rule in your hearts, to the which also ye are called in one body; and be ye thankful.

16 Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord.

17 And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God and the Father by him.

18 Wives, submit yourselves unto your own husbands, as it is fit in the Lord.

19 Husbands, love your wives, and be not bitter against them.

20 Children obey your parents in all things, for this is well-pleasing unto the Lord.

21 Fathers provoke not your children to anger, lest they be discouraged.

22 Servants, obey in all things your masters according to the flesh; not with eye-service, as men-pleasers, but in singleness of heart, fearing God:

23 And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily, as to the Lord, and not unto men:

24 Knowing, that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance: for ye serve the Lord Christ.

25 But he that doeth wrong, shall receive for the wrong which he hath done; and there is no respect of persons.

CHAP. IV.

He exhorteth them to be fervent in prayer, 5 and to walk wisely towards them that do not yet know Christ.

MASTERS, give unto your servants that which is just and equal; knowing that ye also have a Master in heaven.

2 Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving;

3 Withal praying also for us, that God would open unto us a door of utterance, to speak the mystery of Christ, for which I am also in bonds;

4 That I may make it manifest, as I ought to speak.

5 Walk in wisdom toward them that are without, redeeming the time.

6 Let your speech be alway with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man.

7 All my state shall Tychicus declare unto you, who is a beloved brother, and a faithful minister, and fellow-servant in the Lord:

8 Whom I have sent unto you for the same purpose, that he might know your estate, and comfort your hearts;

9 With Onesimus, a faithful and beloved brother, who is one of you. They shall make known unto you all things which are done here.

appear, as the judge of the whole world, in his own glory, and in the glory of his Father, and of all the holy angels. (Luke ix. 26.) then ye also, who are quickened by his Spirit, shall be glorified with him, and shine forth, in soul and body, with a glory resembling that in which he himself will be manifested as your Head and Saviour. (Phil. iii. 21.)

11 Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, &c.) Scythia was a vast country, that lay with great extent both in Asia and Europe, and was divided into several parts in the Asiatic and European districts: and the Scythians were an exceeding brutish, savage sort of people; a large account of whom, and of Scythia may be seen under this word, in Collier's great historical dictionary.

20 Children obey your parents in all things, &c.) In all things, must be understood here, with regard to children, and ver. 22. with regard to servants, under a limitation to all lawful things: for it could not be the duty of Christian children, or servants, to obey their heathen parents, or masters, were they to command them to renounce their faith in Christ, and profession of his name, and to worship idols, or commit any other iniquity: nor could it be the duty of those that were led into the liberty of the gospel, to obey their parents, or masters, in case they should command them to observe the rites and ceremonies of the Mosaic law: and therefore as wives are to subject themselves to their husbands, only so far as is fit in the Lord; (ver. 18.) so servants are to obey their masters according to the flesh, (ver. 22.) only in things that relate to the body and civil concerns, or that their own consciences approve of in religion.

21 Fathers, provoke not your children to anger, &c.) On the other side, it ought to be the conscientious and tender care of those of you that are parents, whether fathers or mothers, that ye study the tempers of your children, and endeavour to stabish your authority over them, and allure them to their duty, by prudent, kind, and gentle methods, and never sour their minds by furious, or opprobrious language, nor by unreasonable impositions, nor unmerciful corrections, to irritate their angry passions: take heed of all such harsh treatment, that their spirits may not be broke, and they disheartened, and filled with prejudice both against yourselves and against the gospel, which ye profess, but are far from recommending by such an ill temper and behaviour toward them.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

5 Walk in wisdom toward them that are without, &c.) By them without, are meant the Heathen, who are yet without the pale of the visible church: to walk in wisdom toward them, is a duty of great latitude, but imports particularly here, an endeavour to the utmost to promote their conversion and salvation, by begetting in them a due veneration for the gospel, and a love and liking to the Christian religion. Private Christians, by walking wisely before them that are yet unconverted effectually to Christianity, may be exceedingly helpful to promote the entertainment of the gospel amongst them. They may pray, and pray in faith, for their conversion, and the further spreading of the gospel, in order to that end. The ardent devotions and the holy conversations of private christians are excellent means to recommend the gospel and the Christian religion, and to represent them as most amiable and desirable.

9 With Onesimus a faithful and beloved brother, &c.) Onesimus was that runagate that had eloped from his master Philemon, and purloined his goods; but, straying to Rome, was converted by the apostle Paul there. He was of the city of Colosse, and some think he, by this time, was a member of that church; and others, that he was employed in the work of the ministry.

10 Aristarchus my fellow-prisoner saluteth you, and Marcus, &c.) Mark had before this time regain'd an interest in the apostle's affecreceived commandments: if he come unto you receive him;)

11 And Jesus, which is called Justus, who are of the circumcision. These only are my fellow-workers unto the kingdom of God which have been a comfort unto me.

12 Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ, saluteth you, always labouring fervently for you in prayers, that ye may stand perfect and complete in all the will of God.

13 For I bear him record that he hath a great zeal for you, and them that are in Laodicea, and them in Hierapolis.

14 Luke, the beloved physician, and Demas greet you.

15 Salute the brethren which are in Laodicea, and Nymphas, and the church which is in his house.

16 And when this epistle is read among you, cause that it be read also in the church of the Laodiceans; and that ye likewise read the epistle from Laodicea.

17 And say to Archippus, Take heed to the ministry which thou hast received in the Lord, that thou fulfil it.

18 The salutation by the hand of me Paul. Remember my bonds. Grace be with you. Amen.

tion and confidence, notwithstanding the great displeasure he formerly had against him, for leaving him and Barnabas at Pamphilia, (Acts xv. 38, 39.) which shews the excellence of the apostle's forgiving spirit. This Mark is supposed to have been the writer of the gospel that bears his name.

11 Who are of the circumcision, &c.) The apostle Peter is not mentioned with those of the circumcision, that sent their salutations and are said to be the only fellow-workers of the Jewish sort, and a comfort to the apostle Paul. It is therefore certain that either Peter was not then at Rome, or that he acted very unworthy of his character.

12 Epaphras, who is one of you, a servant of Christ, &c.) It is probable that Epaphras had been remarkably instrumental in forming, or building up these churches, and therefore had a peculiar affection to, and concern for them.

15 Salute the brethren which are in Laodicea, and Nymphas, &c.) We know no more of Nymphas than what is here said of him; but he seems to have been a noted man of eminent piety, and strict religion in the orders of his Christian family.

16 That ye likewise read the epistle from Laodicea.) Various have been the conjectures about this epistle, which is lost, unless it were that, which some very improbably have supposed, the apostle wrote from Laodicea to the Ephesians: it rather seems not to have been any epistle wrote by him, but wrote to him from Laodicea, relating to the state of affairs there, and in the neighbouring churches, which, perhaps might give occasion to, and cast some light upon this epistle to the Colossians; and therefore might be proper to be read in the church at Colosse, which, doubtless, knew what epistle is here referred to.

THE

The First Epistle of PAUL the APOSTLE,

TO THE THESSALONIANS.

THE ARGUMENT.

This epiſtle is addreſſed to the inhabitants of Theſſalonica, a large and populous city, the metropolis of Macedonia. It appears from the hiſtory of the Acts (chap. xvii. 1.) that the Chriſtian religion was planted here by St. Paul and Silas, ſoon after they had left Philippi. The apoſtle's deſign in this epiſtle is, in general, to confirm the Theſſalonians in their adherence to the Chriſtian faith, and to engage them, from the ſufferings they had already endured in that cauſe, and the extraordinary character they had hitherto maintained, to make ſtill greater advances in religion, and become yet more eminent in every branch of the Chriſtian temper.

CHAP. I.

1 He ſheweth his mindfulneſs of them in thankſgiving and prayer, 5 and perſuaſion of their ſincere faith and converſion.

PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Theſſalonians, which is in God the Father, and in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt. Grace be unto you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

2 We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers,

3 Remembering without ceaſing your work of faith, and labour of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, in the ſight of God and our Father:

4 Knowing, brethren beloved, your election of God.

5 For our goſpel came not unto you in word only, but alſo in power, and in the Holy Ghoſt, and in much aſſurance; as ye know what manner of men we were among you for your ſake.

6 And ye became followers of us and of the Lord, having received the word in much affliction, with joy of the Holy Ghoſt:

7 So that ye were enſamples to all that believe in Macedonia and Achaia.

8 For from you ſounded out the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but alſo in every place your faith to God-ward is ſpread abroad, ſo that we need not to ſpeak any thing.

9 For they themſelves ſhew of us what manner of entering in we had unto you, and how ye turned to God from idols, to ſerve the living and true God.

10 And to wait for his Son from heaven, whom he raiſed from the dead, even Jeſus which delivered us from the wrath to come.

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1 Paul and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Theſſalonians, &c.) Theſſalonica, which ſignifies the victory of Theſſalia, being rebuilt by the famous Philip of Macedon, was ſo called in memory of the conqueſt he obtained over the Theſſalians, and was the metropolis of Macedonia.

5 For our goſpel came not unto you in word only, &c.) "The "goſpel's coming in power and in the Holy Ghoſt" was more, than its coming with the atteſtation of miracles, as appears by its ſaving effects: for the "Theſſalonians thereupon became followers "of the apoſtles and of the Lord," and were eminent examples of faith and holineſs; and the idolatrous Gentiles among them, "turned from idols to ſerve the living and true God, with hope in "Chriſt for deliverance from the wrath to come," which carried an undeniable proof of an effectual and ſaving change upon their hearts and lives, by the power of the Holy Ghoſt, with which the goſpel came to them, as is repreſented in the following verſes to the end of the chapter.

8 For from you ſounded out the word of the Lord, &c.) The church of Theſſalonica was not the mother-church of Macedonia and Achaia where the firſt converts were made, and from whence the goſpel was firſt propagated in thoſe provinces, as that at Jeruſalem was of the Jews, and that at Antioch was of the Gentiles: for converts were made at Philippi in Macedonia before thoſe of Theſſalonica, as appears from the 16th and 17th chapters of Acts. But the goſpel went from Theſſalonica with the more evident and recommending demonſtrations of its excellence and power, on account of its eminently wonderful effects upon them, as appeared in their exemplary behaviour.

10 And to wait for his Son from heaven, &c.) As the firſt coming of Chriſt was the object of the faith, deſire and hope of the

CHAP. II.

1 How the gospel was preached unto them, and how they received it. 18 Why he was so desirous to see them.

FOR yourselves, brethren, know our entrance in unto you, that it was not in vain.

2 But even after that we had suffered before, and were shamefully intreated, as ye know, at Philippi, we were bold in our God to speak unto you the gospel of God with much contention.

3 For our exhortation was not of deceit, nor of uncleanness, nor in guile.

4 But as we were allowed of God to be put in trust with the gospel, even so we speak, not as pleasing men, but God, which trieth our hearts.

5 For neither at any time used we flattering words, as ye know, nor a cloak of covetousness: God is witness.

6 Nor of men sought we glory, neither of you, nor yet of others, when we might have been burdensome, as the apostles of Christ.

7 But we were gentle among you, even as a nurse cherisheth her children.

8 So, being affectionately desirous of you, we were willing to have imparted unto you, not the gospel of God only, but also our own souls, because ye were dear unto us.

9 For ye remember, brethren, our labour and travail: for labouring night and day because we would not be chargeable unto any of you, we preached unto you the gospel of God.

10 Ye are witnesses, and God also, how holily, and justly, and unblameably, we behaved ourselves among you that believe.

11 As ye know how we exhorted and comforted, and charged every one of you, (as a father doth his children,)

12 That ye would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto his kingdom and glory.

13 For this cause also thank we God without ceasing, because, when ye received the word of God which ye heard of us, ye received it not as the word of men but (as it is in truth) the word of God, which effectually worketh also in you that believe.

14 For ye, brethren, became followers of the churches of God, which in Judea are in Christ Jesus: for ye also have suffered like things of your own countrymen, even as they have of the Jews;

15 Who both killed the Lord Jesus and their own prophets, and have persecuted us; and they please not God, and are contrary to all men:

16 Forbidding us to speak to the Gentiles, that they might be saved, to fill up their sins alway: for the wrath is come upon them to the uttermost.

17 But we, brethren, being taken from you for a short time, in presence, not in heart, endeavoured the more abundantly to see your face with great desire.

18 ¶ Wherefore we would have come unto you (even I Paul) once and again; but Satan hindered us.

19 For what is our hope, or joy, or crown of rejoicing? Are not even ye in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?

20 For ye are our glory and joy.

CHAP. III.

2 Paul sendeth Timothy to them: 6. his joy for them, and desire to see them.

WHEREFORE, when we could no longer forbear, we thought it good to be left at Athens alone,

"Old Testament-church, who waited for the consolation of Israel, "and looked for redemption in Jerusalem," [Luke ii. 25—38.] so his second coming is of the New, who are "looking for the "blessed hope, and glorious appearing of the great God and our "Saviour Jesus Christ:" they firmly believe that he will certainly come again, though they know not when: and therefore continue waiting for it with such exercises of grace, and performances of duty, as may best encourage their hope, that when he "who is their life shall appear, they shall also appear with him in "glory." [Col. iii. 4.]

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

2 But even after that we had suffered before, &c.) Here St. Paul discovers to the Thessalonians the great difficulties and dangers which he broke through at his first entrance amongst them to preach the gospel; he acquaints them with the reproach and disgrace he underwent at their neighbouring city, Philippi, and the sufferings there endured for the gospel, which are recorded, Acts xvi. 23. But nothing of that nature could discourage him, but that he rather waxed more bold in spirit, resolving to preach the gospel of God, though with much contention and opposition from the unbelieving Jews. Where mark, that the apostle calls his boldness, a boldness in God, because a boldness for God, and from God: it was not barely the fruit of a natural courage, but it was a zealous boldness in the cause of God, and proved a convincing, as well as a courageous boldness; it is one necessary requisite and qualification in the ministers of God, in order to the rendering their ministry fruitful and successful, that a wise, humble, zealous and convincing boldness be found with them in their delivering the truths of God unto their people; we were bold in our God to speak unto you the gospel of God.

9 For labouring night and day because we would not be chargeable unto any of you, &c.) Notwithstanding our apostle was free, wholly free, from all shadow and appearance of covetousness in the whole course of his ministry, yet it may seem as if some persons, probably the false apostles, did, though with the highest injustice, charge him with it; accordingly, to clear himself from that imputation, he here tells the Thessalonians, he laboured night and day in the business of his calling; making tents to maintain himself, that so he might not be chargeable or burdensome to any of them; or any ways retard or hinder the success of the gospel amongst them; labouring night and day, that we might not be chargeable unto any of you, we preached unto you the gospel of God freely. Yet observe, this was only a case of necessity; for at other times, and in other places, we find our apostle asserting his own right, and God's appointment, that every one that preacheth the gospel, should live of the gospel. [1 Cor. ix. 14.] Next our apostle calls upon them to remember his labour and travel, that is, his pains and diligence in preaching the gospel: the words signify labour unto weariness, and labour after weariness, his painfulness, both in his preaching, and in his secular calling; and from his calling upon the Thessalonians to remember this, he learns us this lesson of instruction, namely, that it is the standing duty of a people to keep in their constant remembrance the great labour and pains which the faithful ministers of Christ do take amongst them, that so they may be duly thankful, both to God and them, and put a just value upon that spiritual good, which, at any time, they have experienced and received from them; remember, brethren, our labour and travel. Observe again, having asserted his laboriousness in preaching to them, he next puts them in remembrance of his exemplariness in conversation amongst them, how holily, justly, and unblameably we behaved ourselves amongst you; that is, performing his duty with great integrity and uprightness towards God and man, so that none justly could blame him for neglect amongst them; and for the truth of this, he appeals to God as a judge, and to themselves as witnesses.

19 Are not even ye in the presence of our Lord Jesus Christ at his coming?) The saints of God in heaven will know one another there: why else doth St. Paul here comfort himself, that these Thessalonians, whom he converted to Christ, would be his crown of rejoicing in the day of Christ? Surely, this must needs suppose and imply his distinct knowledge of them in that day; if he did not know them, how could he rejoice in them? Doubtless we may allow, in that state, all that knowledge which is accumulative and perfective, whatever may heighten our felicity, and increase our satisfaction, as this must needs be allowed to do.

2 ¶ And ſent Timotheus our brother, and miniſter of God, and our fellow-labourer in the goſpel of Chriſt, to eſtabliſh you, and to comfort you concerning your faith;

3 That no man ſhould be moved by theſe afflictions: for yourſelves know that we are appointed thereunto.

4 For, verily, when we were with you, we told you before that we ſhould ſuffer tribulation; even as it came to paſs, and ye know.

5 For this cauſe, when I could no longer forbear, I ſent to know your faith, leſt by ſome means the tempter have tempted you, and our labour be in vain.

6 ¶ But now when Timotheus came from you unto us, and brought us good tidings of your faith and charity, and that ye have good remembrance of us always, deſiring greatly to ſee us, as we alſo to ſee you;

7 Therefore, brethren, we were comforted over you in all our affliction and diſtreſs by your faith:

8 For now we live, if ye ſtand faſt in the Lord.

9 For what thanks can we render to God again for you, for all the joy wherewith we joy for your ſakes before our God;

10 Night and day praying exceedingly that we might ſee your face, and might perfect that which is lacking in your faith?

11 Now, God himſelf and our Father, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, direct our way unto you.

12 And the Lord make you to increaſe and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward you:

13 To the end he may ſtabliſh your hearts unblameable in holineſs before God, even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt with all his ſaints.

CHAP. IV.

1 He exhorteth to go on in godlineſs, 7 to holineſs, 9 to love, 11 to quietneſs, 13 to moderate ſorrow for the dead. 17 Of the reſurrection, and of the laſt judgment.

FURTHERMORE, then, we beſeech you, brethren, and exhort you by the Lord Jeſus, that as ye have received of us how ye ought to walk, and to pleaſe God, ſo ye would abound more and more.

2 For ye know what commandments we gave you by the Lord Jeſus.

3 For this is the will of God, even your ſanctification, that ye ſhould abſtain from fornication:

4 That every one of you ſhould know how to poſſeſs his veſſel in ſanctification and honour;

5 Not in the luſt of concupiſcence, even as the Gentiles which know not God:

6 That no man go beyond and defraud his brother in any matter; becauſe that the Lord is the avenger of all ſuch, as we alſo have forewarned you and teſtified.

7 ¶ For God hath not called us unto uncleanneſs, but unto holineſs.

8 He, therefore, that deſpiſeth, deſpiſeth not man, but God, who hath alſo given unto us his Holy Spirit.

9 ¶ But as touching brotherly love, ye need not that I write unto you; for ye yourſelves are taught of God to love one another.

10 And indeed ye do it toward all the brethren which are in all Macedonia: but we beſeech you, brethren, that ye increaſe more and more;

11 ¶ And that ye ſtudy to be quiet, and to do your own buſineſs, and to work with your own hands, as we commanded you;

12 That ye may walk honeſtly toward them that are without, and that ye may have lack of nothing.

13 ¶ But I would not have you to be ignorant, brethren, concerning them which are aſleep, that ye ſorrow not, even as others which have no hope.

14 For if we believe that Jeſus died and roſe again, even ſo them alſo which ſleep in Jeſus will God bring with him.

15 For this we ſay unto you by the word of the Lord, That we which are alive, and remain unto the

Commentary on Chap. III.

2 And ſent Timotheus, our brother and miniſter of God, &c.) Though Silvanus or Silas and Timothy were with the apoſtle Paul at Corinth when he wrote this epiſtle from thence, chap. i. 1. yet Silas ſeems not to have been with him while he was at Athens; and ſo he was alone after he had ſent Timothy from thence to Theſſalonica, and though he ſtill ſpeaks in the plural number, he had given notice, chap. ii. 18. that what he was ſaying, in a way of concern for them, and deſire of ſeeing them, related in a peculiar manner to himſelf.

10 Praying exceedingly that we might ſee your face, &c.) So near do ye lye to our hearts, that in our ſtated addreſſes to God every evening and morning, and at all other ſeaſons of approaching him, our prayers are carried out to an extraordinary degree of importunity and fervour, that, if it be his bleſſed will, we might have an opportunity of making you a viſit once again; and of being farther inſtrumental, in his hand, for giving you a complete view of the doctrines of faith, which we could not do while we were with you, by reaſon of our being driven away from you before we were aware, (Acts xvii. 10.) and for eſtabliſhing, ſettling, and further building you up, in your moſt holy faith, and helping you againſt all the defects, which as to its extent, clearneſs, and lively exerciſe, ſtill attend that, and every other grace; as there will be ſomething of this kind of defect, in both theſe conſiderations of it, not only in young, though growing converts, but even in the moſt advanced Chriſtians upon earth.

12 The Lord make you to increaſe and abound in love, &c.) The apoſtle's praying that "the Lord would make them to increaſe and "abound in love one towards another, and his beſeeching them "to increaſe more and more therein," chap. iv. 10. ſuppoſe that they did already live in the practice of it; and he there expreſsly obſerves, to their commendation, that they "did it towards all "the brethren, which were in Macedonia."

Commentary on Chap. IV.

11 To work with your own hands, as we commanded you.) To work with their own hands was neceſſary for thoſe among them whoſe circumſtances called for it, and had a particular reſpect to the lower ranks of people, who in that trading city were to be employed in manufactures; but it may be carried into a general rule for diligence in diſcharging the duties of every ſtation, in ſuch a way as is ſuitable to it; ſince idleneſs is a deteſtable vice, as it is a diſhonourable waſte of our time and talents, renders us uſeleſs in the world, expoſes to many temptations, and defeats every valuable end of living; and the ſlothful is called a "wicked and unpro-"fitable ſervant, that ſhall be caſt into outer darkneſs, where ſhall "be weeping and gnaſhing of teeth," (Matth. xxv. 26—30.)

13 Concerning them which are aſleep, &c.) In thoſe days there were Jewiſh zealots that pretended to exclude all from future happineſs that were not of their own nation, or incorporated with them by being circumciſed; and the idolatrous heathens went into exceſſive howlings, and mournings over their dead, whom they looked upon as loſt for ever, and eſpecially with reſpect to the body, the reſurrection of which none of them had any notion of.

15 We which are alive, and remain unto the coming of the Lord, &c.) To ſuppoſe that the apoſtle thought, and ſuggeſted, as if any of the then preſent age would live upon earth till the Time of Chriſt's ſecond coming to judgment, is to overthrow all dependence upon his authority and inſpiration, when he tells us that what he here ſaid was by the word of the Lord; and it is evident that as he often ſpake of his own death, ſo he expected a reſurrection to eternal life, together with the believers of that generation, 2 Cor. iv. 14, and v. 1—4. and Phil. iii. 10, 11. and in his 2d epiſtle to the Theſſalonians, chap. ii. 1—8. he ſets himſelf to confute the notion of thoſe that ſuggeſted, through a miſtake of his meaning in what here had ſaid, as if the ſecond coming of Chriſt were then at hand: and he reminds them of what he had told them to the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep.

16 For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first.

17 ¶ Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air: and so shall we ever be with the Lord.

18 Wherefore comfort one another with these words.

CHAP. V.

1 He sheweth Christ's second coming to judgment, 16 and giveth divers precepts, 23 and so concludeth.

BUT of the times and the seasons, brethren, ye have no need that I write unto you.

2 For yourselves know perfectly that the day of the Lord so cometh as a thief in the night.

3 For when they shall say, Peace and safety; then sudden destruction cometh upon them, as travail upon a woman with child; and they shall not escape.

4 But ye, brethren, are not in darkness, that that day should overtake you as a thief.

5 Ye are all the children of light, and the children of the day: we are not of the night, nor of darkness.

6 Therefore, let us not sleep, as do others; but let us watch and be sober.

7 For they that sleep, sleep in the night: and they that be drunken, are drunken in the night.

8 But let us, who are of the day, be sober, putting on the breast-plate of faith and love; and for an helmet the hope of salvation.

9 For God hath not appointed us to wrath, but to obtain salvation by our Lord Jesus Christ,

10 Who died for us, that, whether we wake or sleep, we should live together with him.

11 Wherefore, comfort yourselves together, and edify one another, even as also ye do.

12 And we beseech you, brethren, to know them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you;

13 And to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake. And be at peace among yourselves.

14 Now we exhort you, brethren, warn them that are unruly, comfort the feeble-minded, support the weak, be patient toward all men.

15 See that none render evil for evil unto any man; but ever follow that which is good, both among yourselves, and to all men.

16 ¶ Rejoice evermore.

17 Pray without ceasing.

18 In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you.

19 Quench not the Spirit.

20 Despise not prophesyings.

21 Prove all things: hold fast that which is good.

22 Abstain from all appearance of evil.

23 ¶ And the very God of peace sanctify you wholly: and I pray God your whole spirit, and soul, and body, be preserved blameless unto the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ.

24 Faithful is he that calleth you, who also will do it.

25 Brethren, pray for us.

26 Greet all the brethren with an holy kiss.

27 I charge you by the Lord, that this epistle be read unto all the holy brethren.

28 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

¶ The first epistle unto the Thessalonians was written from Athens.

contrary, when he was with them, which was before he wrote either of his epistles to them. But as believers of all ages and nations make up but one collective body, church, or household of faith, all that belong to that body may, with propriety enough, speak of themselves, as parts of it in the first person plural, relating to the future, as well as present time. In this manner the apostle speaks on this very subject, saying, Behold, "I shew you a mystery, we "shall not all sleep; but we shall all be changed: the dead shall be "raised incorruptible, and we shall be changed:" and in common language among ourselves, when we speak of a nation, or any company of which we are a part, we often say we shall be very happy, or miserable, whenever such and such events come to pass, whether we may ever live to see them or not.

16 With the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God, &c.) As the trump of God seems most immediately to allude to the voice of the trumpet exceeding loud, when the Lord or Jehovah delivered the law at mount Sinai; so, the trump of God, which is not to be understood in a literal sense, may possibly signify the voice of Christ, which he says "all that are in their graves shall hear, and "and shall come forth, they that have done good to the resurrec-"tion of life, and they that have done evil to the resurrection of "damnation. (John v. 28, 29.)

17 To meet the Lord in the air, &c.) It is very probable that Christ's seat of judgment will be in the air; since he is so often spoken of as appearing in the clouds, and in the clouds of heaven, and no place of this earth can scarce be thought capacious enough for the innumerable multitude of the righteous and the wicked, from the beginning to the end of the world, to appear before his throne: and the wicked cannot be supposed to be summoned before it in heaven.

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

3 As travail upon a woman with child, &c.) The pains of a woman in travail, which are some of the sharpest agonies of nature, are frequently spoken of as emblems of great distress, as in Psalm xlviii. 6. Jer. vi. 24. and xiii. 21. and xxii. 23. and l. 43. It is therefore with great propriety that the apostle represents the exquisite torments of the wicked at the great day by those pains, with regard to the extreme anguish, as well as the unexpected suddenness of them: and it may carry a further information, that as a woman's hour of sorrow is the fruit of her being with child, so the cause of the sinner's miseries lies in himself, whose own iniquities procure them.

23 Your whole spirit, and soul, and body, be preserved blameless, &c.) And may that God himself, who is reconciled to you by the blood of Christ, and is the author, giver, and approver of peace one with another, and in your own consciences, and of all manner of prosperity; may he throughly purge your whole persons from all iniquity, and make you eminently partakers of his holiness. And I earnestly beg of him, that all the powers and faculties of your rational and immortal souls; and the whole frame of your animal spirits, sensitive appetites, and natural tempers; and all the members of your bodies may be cured of every sinful irregularity and disorder, in their propensions and operations, and may be continually kept unreprovable, as to any predominant vice, until, and may be found entirely free from all defects, at the second appearing of our Lord Jesus Christ, when he will present you to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing. (Ephes. v. 27.)

THE

The SECOND EPISTLE of PAUL the APOSTLE, TO THE THESSALONIANS.

THE ARGUMENT.

This second epistle to the Thessalonians is generally, and most probably, thought to have been wrote, in less than two years after the former, by the apostle Paul from Corinth, where he still continued; and, as seems from chap. i. 3, and ii. 2, and iii. 11, had received some further account of the state of their affairs; and thereupon wrote this epistle to commend, encourage, and comfort them under their sufferings for the gospel; and to rectify their misconstruction of what he had said in his former epistle about the coming of Christ, as if he meant that his second glorious appearing to judgment were just at hand; as also to correct the disorders of some among them, that were too much inclined to an idle life, and might, possibly, grow more and more negligent of secular affairs from their misteken notion, as though the end of all things were at hand, and might be tempted to reject the whole gospel, as a forgery, when they should live to see themselves disappointed of the expectation which they had built upon one of its supposed prophecies of so important an event.

CHAP. I.

1 He honoureth their good opinion of their faith, love and patience: and comforteth them against persecution.

PAUL, and Silvanus, and Timotheus, unto the church of the Thessalonians in God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ:

2 Grace unto you, and peace, from God our Father, and the Lord Jesus Christ:

3 We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly, and the charity of every one of you all toward each other aboundeth;

4 So that we ourselves glory in you in the churches of God, for your patience and faith in all your persecutions and tribulations that ye endure:

5 Which is a manifest token of the righteous judgment of God, that ye may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God, for which ye also suffer:

6 Seeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you;

7 And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels,

8 In flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ:

9 Who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power;

10 When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe (because our testimony among you was believed) in that day.

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

3 We are bound to thank God always for you, &c. We should reflecting on what we have further heard of the grace of God toward you, feel ourselves to be sweetly constrained unto continual thankful acknowledgements of it for his glory; and to bless his holy name on your behalf, dear brethren, as it becomes us, and we are bound in duty to do; because your faith, which his Spirit wrought in you by means of our ministry, [1 Epist. i. 5. and ii. 1.] is carried on, and exceedingly improved, by his continued aid and influence, in its light, strength, and lively exercise; and your brotherly love, as the fruit of this remarkably growing faith is proportionably increasing in its fervor, and all suitable expressions and demonstrations of it, in every one of you towards each other.

10 When he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe, &c.) That is, he will do such things for believers, as will be to their own and others admiration; things that will not only exceed their belief, but their faith too. Plainly thus, the Lord Jesus, on the great day, will put such glory upon believers, as never was expected, either by themselves or others, and consequently shall be admired, greatly admired, eternally admired by all beholders. But, Lord, if the glory put upon thy saints shall be thus admired, how much more shall thyself be admired, the best flower of that rich and transcendent glory? the glory of thy justice in the damnation of the wicked will be admired, but not comparably with the glory of thy mercy in the salvation of believers. Oh! how will this strike the adoring angels into an extasy of holy admiration, and transport thy admiring saints into an eternal rapture, when thou shalt come to be glorified in thy saints, and admired in all them that believe!

11 ¶ Wherefore

11 ¶ Wherefore alſo we pray always for you, that our God would count you worthy of this calling, and fulfil all the good pleaſure of his goodneſs, and the work of faith with power.

12 That the name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt may be glorified in you, and ye in him, according to the grace of our God, and of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

CHAP. II.

1 He willeth them to continue ſtedfaſt in the truth received, 3 ſhewing that there ſhall be a departure from the faith, 9 and a diſcovery of antichriſt before the day of the Lord come.

NOW we beſeech you, brethren, by the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and by our gathering together unto him.

2 That ye be not ſoon ſhaken in mind, or be troubled, neither by ſpirit, nor by word, nor by letter, as from us, as that the day of Chriſt is at hand.

3 ¶ Let no man deceive you by any means. For that day ſhall not come, except there come a falling away firſt, and that man of ſin be revealed, the ſon of perdition;

4 Who oppoſeth and exalteth himſelf above all that is called God, or that is worſhipped: ſo that he as God ſitteth in the temple of God, ſhewing himſelf that he is God.

5 Remember ye not, that when I was yet with you, I told you theſe things?

6 And now ye know what withholdeth, that he might be revealed in his time.

7 For the myſtery of iniquity doth already work: only he who now letteth, will let, until he be taken out of the way.

8 And then ſhall that Wicked be revealed, whom the Lord ſhall conſume with the ſpirit of his mouth, and ſhall deſtroy with the brightneſs of his coming:

9 ¶ Even him whoſe coming is after the working of Satan, with all power and ſigns, and lying wonders,

10 And with all deceivableneſs of unrighteouſneſs, in them that periſh; becauſe they received not the love of the truth, that they might be ſaved.

11 And for this cauſe God ſhall ſend them ſtrong deluſion that they ſhould believe a lie.

12 That they all might be damned who believed not the truth, but had pleaſure in unrighteouſneſs.

13 But we are bound to give thanks alway to God for you, brethren, beloved of the Lord, becauſe God hath from the beginning choſen you to ſalvation thro' ſanctification of the Spirit, and belief of the truth:

14 Whereunto he called you by our goſpel, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

15 Therefore, brethren, ſtand faſt, and hold the traditions which ye have been taught, whether by word, or our epiſtle.

16 Now our Lord Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, and God even our Father, which hath loved us, and hath given us everlaſting conſolation, and good hope through grace, 17 Comfort your hearts, and ſtabliſh you in every good word and work.

CHAP. III.

1 He craveth their prayers, 4 teſtifieth his confidence in them, 6 giveth them divers precepts, eſpecially to ſhun idleneſs and ill company.

FINALLY, brethren, pray for us, that the word of the Lord may have free courſe, and be glorified, even as it is with you;

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

1 By the coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, &c.) That this coming of Chriſt relates, not to his coming to the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, but to the final judgment, is very evident, becauſe this is the ſenſe in which the apoſtle all along ſpeaks of his coming in this and his former epiſtle. See firſt epiſtle ii. 19. and iii. 13.

4 So that he as God, ſitteth in the temple of God, &c.) All theſe characters of the man of ſin are plainly applicable to, and exemplified in popery, inclusive of the hierarchy of Rome, with the Pope at the head of it, in ſucceſſive generations; and fully agree to none that has appeared in the world beſides them: for they are monſters of wickedneſs, that are guilty of, and patronize cruel perſecutions, perfidious breaches of faith, and idolatrous worſhip of ſaints, angels, and images; and that encourage all manner of iniquity, by pretended pardons, and indulgences, and licencing houſes of debauchery; and they, though not profeſſedly, yet really oppoſe Chriſt in all his offices; in his prophetic office, by teaching for doctrines the commandments of men; in his prieſtly office, by the doctrine of merit, the ſacrifice of the maſs, and joining ſaints and angels, as interceſſors with Chriſt: and in his kingly office, by diſpenſing with his laws, and ſetting up the Pope, as the ſupreme head of the church. And ſome of their Popes have treated kings and emperors with inſolent contempt, as their vaſſals, to be depoſed, or enthroned at their pleaſure; have excommunicated them, and abſolved their ſubjects from allegiance to them: others have trod on the necks of emperors, kicked off their crowns with their feet, and ſet them on with their feet again, and obliged them to hold the Pope's ſtirrup, when he alighted from, or mounted his horſe.—Theſe haughty eccleſiaſtical tyrants have ſet themſelves in the place of God, by aſſuming authority over the ſouls and conſciences of men, and admitting of blaſphemous adorations, under the titles of a "God on earth, and the Lord God the Pope;" and they have exhalted themſelves even above God himſelf, by not only repealing his laws, but making the whole authority of his word to depend on the authority of the church. Theſe, and ſuch like things, are notorious in the church of Rome; and the deſcription here given of her, ſtands in good agreement with the repreſentation that is made of the Romiſh anti-chriſtian power in the Revelation, under the figures of "Myſtery, Babylon, the great whore that ſits on "many waters."

5 I told you theſe things?) The apoſtle here refers to what he had ſaid to the Theſſalonians in his perſonal miniſtry and converſation, in which it is reaſonably ſuppoſed, that he had delivered more things, relating to thoſe points, to which he here appeals, than are to be found, or were proper to be wrote, in his firſt epiſtle to them: accordingly he ſpeaks, ver. 15. of the traditions they had received by word, as well as by his epiſtle.

15 And hold the traditions which ye have been taught, &c.) This holding the traditions relates only to ſuch doctrines as the apoſtle and his fellow-labourers had delivered to them, pertaining to the only rule of faith, worſhip, and obedience, by their perſonal preaching and converſation, or by the writing of this and the former epiſtle; and therefore it cannot give the leaſt countenance to the oral traditions of the Papiſts, which they pretend have been handed down through many hundreds of years; but are really ſtuffed with ſuch rediculous and incredible ſtories as neither agree with the ſcripture nor with common ſenſe: and as, by all theſe traditions, they cannot point out ſo much as one of the particulars that were delivered to the Theſſalonians by word of mouth from the apoſtle, any farther than they are recorded in the New Teſtament, or may be gathered from thence, it is time enough for us to attend to their traditions, when they can produce teſtimonies to them as authentic and well-known to us, as theſe were to the Theſſalonians; or can prove them by the word of God.

16 Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt himſelf, and God, even our Father, &c.) Our Lord Jeſus Chriſt is here conſidered as the object of religious worſhip, and the author of the bleſſings that are, implicitly at leaſt, prayed for from him, in the ſame manner equally, and together with the Father, which ſuppoſes his proper divinity, according to the eſtabliſhed and unchangeable law of worſhip, as recited by himſelf, Matth. iv. 10. and his being mentioned in this manner, even before the Father, takes off all pretences of his inferiority, either in Deity or worſhip, on account of the Father's being at other times mentioned before him.

2 And that we may be delivered from unreasonable and wicked men; for all men have not faith.

3 But the Lord is faithful, who shall stablish you, and keep you from evil.

4 ¶ And we have confidence in the Lord touching you, that ye both do, and will do the things which we command you.

5 And the Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ.

6 ¶ Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which he received of us.

7 For yourselves know how ye ought to follow us; for we behaved not ourselves disorderly among you;

8 Neither did we eat any man's bread for nought, but wrought with labour and travail night and day, that we might not be chargeable to any of you;

9 Not because we have not power, but to make ourselves an ensample unto you to follow us.

10 For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, that if any would not work, neither should he eat.

11 For we hear that there are some which walk among you disorderly, working not at all, but are busy bodies.

12 Now them that are such, we command and exhort by our Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread.

13 But ye, brethren, be not weary in well-doing.

14 And if any man obey not our word by this epistle, note that man, and have no company with him, that he may be ashamed.

15 Yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother.

16 Now the Lord of peace himself give you peace always by all means. The Lord be with you all.

17 The salutation of Paul with mine own hand, which is the token in every epistle: so I write.

18 The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, be with you all. Amen.

¶ The second epistle to the Thessalonians was written from Athens.

Commentary on Chap. III.

7 We behaved not ourselves disorderly among you.) In this verse, the apostle plainly intimates, whom he meant by disorderly brother mentioned in the foregoing verse: it is the idle person, called disorderly, for this reason, because Almighty God having stated man for, and ordained him to labour, he that will not do it, deserts the order in which God has placed him, and thus renders himself disorderly. To condemn which practice, St. Paul propounds his own example to their consideration and imitation; declaring, that he did not eat any man's bread before he earned it, but wrought with his own hands in the day-time, and sometimes part of the night, at his trade of tent-making, that he might not be chargeable to any of them; not but that he had power to demand maintenance for his ministry, but he chose rather to depart from his right, and to labour in his calling, to excite others to do the like.

16 The Lord be with you all.) Now may the Lord Jesus himself, our only peace-maker with God, and the author, purchaser, and giver of all manner of peace and happiness, make you prosperous in all grace and holiness, and fill you with all joy and peace in believing, that ye may have peace in your own souls, and one with another, and may be a harmonious and flourishing church, at all times, and by all manner of means, that are suited, by divine appointment, to promote it! and that the means, used for this purpose, may be effectual, we earnestly beg that this blessed Lord, who commands and loves peace, and delights in the prosperity of his servants, would afford all and every one of you his special presence, in a way of providence and grace, to protect and guide, assist, comfort, and perfect all that concerns you, in whatsoever relates to you severally, and altogether as a church!

The EPISTLE of PAUL the APOSTLE,

TO

THE ARGUMENT.

This epiſtle ſeems principally intended to direct Timothy in managing the affairs of the church, while he abode at Epheſus; and particularly to inſtruct him in chuſing proper perſons to be employed in the miniſtry; another part of the apoſtle's deſign, was to caution this young evangeliſt againſt the influence of thoſe judaizing teachers, who by their ſubtle diſtinctions, and endleſs controverſies, had corrupted the purity and ſimplicity of the goſpel. It muſt be remembered, that Timothy was a native of Lyſtra, a city of Lycaonia in the Leſſer Aſia; his father was a Greek, but his mother whoſe name was Eunice was a Jeweſs. He was ordained when he was very young, probably about twenty; and afterwards we find, he often attended the apoſtle in his travels, and aſſiſted him in preaching the goſpel.

CHAP. I.

1 Timothy is put in mind of the charge that was given unto him by Paul. 5 The end of the law. 11 Paul's calling to be an apoſtle.

PAUL, an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt by the commandment of God our Saviour, and Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which is our hope;

2 Unto Timothy my own ſon in the faith: Grace, mercy, and peace from God our Father, and Jeſus Chriſt our Lord.

3 As I beſought thee to abide ſtill at Epheſus when I went into Macedonia, that thou mighteſt charge ſome that they teach no other doctrine;

4 Neither give heed to fables, and endleſs genealogies, which miniſter queſtions, rather than godly edifying which is in faith; ſo do.

5 ¶ Now the end of the commandment is charity, out of a pure heart, and of a good conſcience, and of faith unfeigned:

6 From which ſome having ſwerved, have turned aſide unto vain jangling:

7 Deſiring to be teachers of the law, underſtanding neither what they ſay, nor whereof they affirm.

8 But we know that the law is good, if a man uſe it lawfully;

9 Knowing this, that the law is not made for a righteous man, but for the lawleſs and diſobedient, for the ungodly and for ſinners, for unholy and profane, for murderers of fathers, and murderers of mothers, for man-ſlayers,

10 For whoremongers, for them that defile themſelves with mankind, for men-ſtealers, for liars, for perjured perſons, and if there be any other thing that is contrary to ſound doctrine;

11 ¶ According to the glorious goſpel of the bleſſed God, which was committed to my truſt.

12 And I thank Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, who hath

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

2 Unto Timothy my own ſon in the faith, &c.) As the apoſtle called Timothy his own genuine ſon in the faith, and frequently ſtiled him his ſon Timothy, (ver. 18. 2 Tim. i. 2. and 1 Cor. iv. 7.) it ſeems probable that he had been the inſtrument of his converſion to the faith of Chriſt, as the Meſſiah ſpoken of in the Old Teſtament-prophecy, though we have no particular account of it in the ſhort hiſtory of the beginning of the apoſtle's acquaintance with him: for he commonly ſpeaks of thoſe under this ſpecial appellation to whom he had been ſo, as of Titus and Oneſimus, Tit. i. 4. and Philem. ver. 10. and ſpeaks of himſelf as a ſpiritual father and of thoſe as his children whom he had begotten by the goſpel, 1 Cor. iv. 14, 15.

4 Neither give heed to fables, and endleſs genealogies, &c.) Theſe genealogies were not any of the genealogies in ſcripture; but their long intricate pedigrees, that they ſtood upon to prove themſelves Jews, Levites, Prieſts, and the like: and to this we may add the genealogy and pedigree of their traditions, which they derived, by a long line of ſucceſſion, through the hands of many doctors.

9 The law is not made for a righteous man, but for the lawleſs and diſobedient, &c.) This evidently relates to its not being made to condemn him; becauſe it really is made for ſuch an one, as well as others, to be the rule of his obedience, and to reſtrain him for tranſgreſſing it: but ſince there is no man, that lives and ſins not, the righteous man, whom it is not made to condemn, is to be underſtood of one that is righteous in the eye of the law through the righteouſneſs of Chriſt received by faith: and that the moral law is enabled

enabled me, for that he counted me faithful, putting me into the ministry;

13 Who was before a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious. But I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief:

14 And the grace of our Lord was exceeding abundant with faith and love which is in Christ Jesus.

15 This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save sinners; of whom I am chief.

16 Howbeit, for this cause I obtained mercy, that in me first Jesus Christ might shew forth all long-suffering, for a pattern to them which should hereafter believe on him to life everlasting.

17 Now unto the King eternal, immortal, invisible, the only wise God, be honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen.

18 This charge I commit unto thee, son Timothy, according to the prophecies which went before on thee, that thou by them mightest war a good warfare.

19 Holding faith and a good conscience; which some having put away, concerning faith have made shipwreck;

20 Of whom is Hymeneus and Alexander; whom I have delivered unto Satan, that they learn not to blaspheme.

CHAP. II.

1 Prayers to be made for all men and the reason why. 9 How women should be attired. 12 They are not permitted to teach.

I EXHORT, therefore, that first of all, supplications, prayers, intercessions, and giving of thanks be made for all men.

2 For kings and for all that are in authority; that we may lead a quiet and peaceable life in all godliness and honesty.

3 For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Saviour;

4 Who will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth.

5 For there is one God, and one mediator between God and men, the man Christ Jesus.

6 Who gave himself a ransom for all, to be testified in due time.

7 Whereunto I am ordained a preacher, and an apostle, (I speak the truth in Christ, and lie not) a teacher of the Gentiles in faith and verity.

8 I will therefore that men pray every where, lifting up holy hands, without wrath and doubting:

9 ¶ In like manner also that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety: not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array;

10 But (which becometh women professing godliness) with good works.

11 Let the woman learn in silence with all subjection.

12 ¶ But I suffer not a woman to teach, nor to usurp authority over the man, but to be in silence.

13 For Adam was first formed, then Eve.

14 And Adam was not deceived, but the woman being deceived was in the transgression.

15 Notwithstanding she shall be saved in childbearing, if they continue in faith and charity and holiness with sobriety.

were intended, appears from the nature of the crimes specified, as subjecting persons to condemnation by it, which are manifestly such as were forbidden in the law of the ten commandments, and may be reduced to one or other of its precepts.

13 Because I did it ignorantly in unbelief, &c.) It is not to be supposed that the apostle by saying "because I did it ignorantly and in unbelief," meant that his ignorance and unbelief were alleadged, or were a proper cause of his obtaining mercy: for it would be wrong indeed to imagine, that there were any merit in an ignorance which was sinning to a wilful rejection of the clearest means of knowledge; and in unbelief, which is itself a heinous sin, with an entail of damnation upon it, under the light of the gospel; accordingly the apostle in the next words speaks with high admiration of "the grace of the Lord Jesus, as exceeding abundant towards him," who considered himself as the chief of sinners: but his ignorance and unbelief did not shut him out of the sphere of mercy, as it left him a capable subject of it, according to the grace of the gospel; whereas, had his blasphemy and persecutions been maliciously practised, contrary to his knowledge and belief of Christ's being the true Messiah, they would have amounted to the unpardonable sin.

20 Of whom is Hymeneus and Alexander, &c.) Hymeneus was, in all likelihood, the same that is spoken of, 2 Tim. ii. 17, 18, as a pernicious man, who denied the doctrine "of the resurrection, and overthrew the faith of some:" and Alexander seems to have been the coppersmith, mentioned 2 Tim. iv. 14, 15, "as having done the apostle much evil, and greatly withstood his words;" and was probably that Alexander whom the Jews stirred up to declaim against Paul, and fix an odium upon him, in the uproar at Ephesus.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

1 Supplications, prayers, intercessions, &c.) As the prejudices of the judaizing Christians are so strong against the Gentiles, and some among them reject the authority of heathen magistrates, I therefore, suitable to my character, as the apostle of the Gentiles, do in the first place exhort, that in every Christian assembly, and in family and secret worship, all manner of addresses, in a way of deprecation of evils, and of petitions and pleas for all needful mercies, and in a way of thanksgiving and praise for mercies received, be offered up to God, through Christ, for men of all sorts, whether they be Jews or Gentiles, and of all ranks and degrees, whether in higher or lower stations.

9 Not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array.) The adornings condemned here, and 1 Pet. iii. 4. are such as were overcurious and extravagant, rich and costly, above the rank, station and ability of those that wore them, and as tended to puff up the pride, levity and vanity of their own hearts, and to entice others to wantonness, by those ways of decking themselves; and they seem to be such adornings, as were chiefly, if not entirely, used as the attire of harlots; but that some adornings are lawful on proper occasions, according to peoples different stations, is evident from their having been worn by Rebecca and Queen Esther, Gen. xxiv. 22—30. and Esth. v. 1. and from the allusions that are made to them, with approbation, in setting forth the beauty and glory of the church, Psal. xlv. 9—13. Isa. lxi. 10. and Ezek. xvi. 10—14, 16. The caution therefore against these adornings, either relates to those, that were some way excessive, fantastical, luxurious, or indecent; or else to an affectation of outward dress, rather than the brighter ornaments of virtue, modesty and chastity, piety, holiness and good works, (chap. v. 16.) as those forms of expression are sometimes to be understood, not in an absolutely negative, but comparative sense, (see Exod. xvi. 8. Joel ii. 13. and Luke xiv. 12, 13.)

12 But I suffer not a woman to teach, &c.) The teaching here forbid to the woman relates to public preaching, but does not exclude her from engaging in private family instruction of children, or others, either by herself or with her husband, as Timothy's mother and grandmother most probably taught him the knowledge of the holy scriptures, 2 Tim. iii. 15. and as Priscilla joined with Aquila in privately expounding the way of God to Apollos, Acts xviii. 26.

15 Notwithstanding, she shall be saved in child bearing, &c.) She shall be saved, cannot relate personally to Eve, who was dead long before, whereas this is a promise for time to come: and therefore I take it to relate to women in general, that were involved with her in the sentence pronounced, Gen. iii. 16. and so she is a noun of multitude, including the whole sex; accordingly, by an analogy of number, frequent in such cases, it is expressed, in the latter part of this verse, by their continuing in faith.

CHAP. III.

1 How biſhops and deacons and their wives, ſhould be qualified, 14 and to what end ſaint Paul wrote to Timothy of thoſe things.

THIS is a true ſaying, If a man deſire the office of a biſhop, he deſireth a good work.

2 A biſhop then muſt be blameleſs, the huſband of one wife, vigilant, ſober, of good behaviour, given to hoſpitality, apt to teach;

3 Not given to wine, no ſtriker, not greedy of filthy lucre, but patient, not a brawler, not covetous;

4 One that ruleth well his own houſe, having his children in ſubjection with all gravity;

5 (For if a man know not how to rule his own houſe, how ſhall he take care of the church of God?)

6 Not a novice, leſt being lifted up with pride, he fall into the condemnation of the devil.

7 Moreover he muſt have a good report of them which are without; leſt he fall into reproach, and the ſnare of the devil.

8 Likewiſe muſt the deacons be grave, not double tongued, not given to much wine, not greedy of filthy lucre,

9 Holding the myſtery of the faith in a pure conſcience.

10 And let theſe alſo firſt be proved; then let them uſe the office of a deacon, being found blameleſs.

11 Even ſo muſt their wives be grave, not ſlanderers, ſober, faithful in all things,

12 Let the deacons be the huſbands of one wife, ruling their children, and their own houſes well.

13 For they that have uſed the office of a deacon well, purchaſe to themſelves a good degree, and great boldneſs in the faith which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

14 ¶ Theſe things write I unto thee, hoping to come unto thee ſhortly:

15 But if I tarry long, that thou mayeſt know how thou oughteſt to behave thyſelf in the houſe of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth.

16 And without controverſy, great is the myſtery of godlineſs: God was manifeſt in the fleſh, juſtified in the Spirit, ſeen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory.

CHAP. IV.

He foretelleth that in the latter times there ſhall be a departure from the faith.

NOW the Spirit ſpeaketh expreſly, that in the latter times ſome ſhall depart from the faith, giving heed to ſeducing ſpirits, and doctrines of devils;

2 Speaking lies in hypocriſy, having their conſcience ſeared with a hot iron:

3 Forbidding to marry, and commanding to abſtain

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

2 The huſband of one wife, vigilant, ſober, &c.) The huſband of one wife, neither means that a biſhop or paſtor is obliged to marry, nor that he ought never to marry a ſecond wife, the prohibition of which would be contrary to natural rights, and the deſign of the law of marriage itſelf, neither of which was ever intended to be ſet aſide by the goſpel-diſpenſation: but it is deſigned to guard againſt polygamy, and againſt divorces on frivolous occaſions, both which were frequent among the Jews, but condemned by our Lord, Mat. xix. 3—9. and therefore miniſters, of all others, ought to ſtand clear of either of thoſe ſins.

Given to hoſpitality.) That is, a friend to ſtrangers; and as inns for public entertainment were not very uſual in thoſe days, it was a becoming part of the character of biſhops to be open-hearted to poor chriſtians, that were ſtrangers, eſpecially to ſuch as were driven into their neighbourhoods by perſecutions, and to miniſters that went about from place to place to preach the goſpel.

13 Purchaſe to themſelves a good degree, &c.) The good degree which they purchaſe, or procure to themſelves, ſeems rather to relate to the honour they ſhould riſe to in the eſteem of the church, than to their advancement to the paſtoral office: for that office is a diſtinct order from the deacon's, and not a different degree of the ſame order; and the work of a deacon, being chiefly to attend the temporal affairs of the church in ſerving tables, has very little tendency to a preparation for the office of the miniſtry, which is of a ſpiritual nature, as it principally lyes in perſon "continually giving "themſelves to prayer, and to the miniſtry of the word." (Acts vi. 2, 3, 4) accordingly ſome conjecture, that this good degree, which ſignifies a ſtep, or a ſeat a little exalted in an aſſembly, to hear or ſpeak, alludes to the cuſtom of ſitting in the Jewiſh ſynagogues, which had ſome ſeats raiſed above others for perſons to ſit in, according to their dignity; and ſo it may metaphorically ſignify ſome place of eminence in a church-aſſembly, which is due to ſuch as have uſed the office of a deacon well, where, with boldneſs and confidence, they may aſſiſt in the management of the affairs of the church, as this belongs to a profeſſion of the faith which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

15 That thou mayeſt know how thou haughteſt to behave thyſelf, &c.) The pillar and ground of truth is referred by ſome to the church, and by others to Timothy and goſpel-miniſters. But the truth of the goſpel is more properly the pillar and ground of the church, than the church is of the truth, and the church cannot poſſibly be the pillar of truth any otherwiſe, than as it holds forth and maintains the truth, which itſelf is built upon; and though the apoſtles are called pillars, Gal. ii. 9. yet they cannot be ſaid to be ſo in their own perſons, but only as in their miniſtrations they ſupported the goſpel-doctrine concerning Chriſt, as the foundation of the church, 1 Cor. iii. 10, 11. which, on that account, is called "the "foundation of the apoſtles and prophets, Jeſus Chriſt himſelf be- "ing the chief corner-ſtone," (Epheſ. ii. 10.) and the doctrine of Peter's confeſſion, or Chriſt, whom he confeſſed is called "the rock on which he would build his church," (Mat. xvi. 18.) It therefore ſeems that, in oppoſition to the pillars and foundation of a material temple, which is here alluded to, the truth of the goſpel, or Chriſt as exhibited in the goſpel, is meant by the pillar and ground of truth on which the church ſtands, as its foundation and ſupport: accordingly this truth is ſpoken of under the appellation of the myſtery of godlineſs; and ſeveral articles of it are ſpecified in the following verſe.

16 Without controverſy, great is the myſtery of godlineſs, &c.) And it muſt be confeſſedly owned, that the true doctrine of the goſpel, which is according to godlineſs, (chap. vi. 2.) is a great, glorious, and incomprehenſible myſtery; ſome of the principal articles of which are theſe, namely, that the eternal Son of God, who is ſtrictly and properly God, together with the Father and Spirit, even God over all bleſſed for ever, (John i. 14. and Rom. ix. 5.) was manifeſted, for the moſt important purpoſes of redemption and ſalvation, in his incarnate ſtate; and ſo was Immanuel God with us: (Mat. i. 21—23.) and, having ſatisfied divine juſtice by his obedience, ſufferings and death, he was publicly acquitted and accepted of God, as the righteous head of the church, and was cleared of all the vile reproaches of his enemies, in is reſurrection, by a concurrence of the Holy Spirit, with his own power, as a divine perſon; and ſo he was raiſed again for our juſtification from all the offences for which he was delivered to death, (Rom. iv. 25.) he was after that ſeen of angels, and honourably witneſſed unto in his aſcenſion, [Acts i. 10.] vaſt multitudes of which ſurrounded him, as his adoring ſervants and courtiers, in his triumphal entrance into heaven, [Pſ. lxviii. 17.] and in conſequence of all this, he was preached, as the atoning, riſen, and exalted Saviour to the Gentiles, as well as Jews; and was believed on by abundantly more Gentiles than Jews; and ſo was received in a glorious manner by them, who flock'd in crowds to him, under the glorious diſpenſation of the Spirit, which he ſhed down abundantly from on high; and they were wrought upon to embrace him with alacrity and joy, and to make an open and honourable profeſſion of him in all the glory of his perſon, mediation, and exaltation.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

1 Giving heed to ſeducing ſpirits, and doctrines of devils.) The ſpirit, principles and practices of the antichriſtian church of Rome from from meats which God hath created to be received with thankſgiving of them which believe and know the truth.

4 For every creature of God is good, and nothing to be refuſed, if it be received with thankſgiving:

5 For it is ſanctified by the word of God, and prayer.

6 If thou put the brethren in remembrance of theſe things, thou ſhalt be a good miniſter of Jeſus Chriſt, nouriſhed up in the words of faith, and of good doctrine, whereunto thou haſt attained.

7 But refuſe profane and old wives' fables, and exerciſe thyſelf rather unto godlineſs.

8 For bodily exerciſe profiteth little: but godlineſs is profitable unto all things, having promiſe of the life that now is, and of that which is to come.

9 This is a faithful ſaying, and worthy of all acceptation.

10 For therefore we both labour, and ſuffer reproach, becauſe we truſt in the living God, who is the Saviour of all men, ſpecially of thoſe that believe.

11 Theſe things command and teach.

12 Let no man deſpiſe thy youth, but be thou an example of the believers, in word, in converſation, in charity, in ſpirit, in faith, in purity.

13 Till I come, give attendance to reading, to exhortation, to doctrine.

14 Neglect not the gift that is in thee, which was given thee by prophecy, with the laying on of the hands of the preſbytery.

15 Meditate upon theſe things, give thyſelf wholly to them; that thy profiting may appear to all.

16 Take heed unto thyſelf, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou ſhalt both ſave thyſelf, and them that hear thee.

CHAP. V.

Rules to be obſerved in reproving.

REBUKE not an elder, but intreat him as a father, and the younger men as brethren:

2 The elder women as mothers, the younger as ſiſters, with all purity.

3 Honour widows that are widows indeed.

4 But if any widow have children or nephews, let them learn firſt to ſhew piety at home, and to requite their parents: for that is good and acceptable before God.

5 Now ſhe that is a widow indeed, and deſolate, truſteth in God, and continueth in ſupplications and prayers night and day.

6 But ſhe that liveth in pleaſure, is dead while ſhe liveth.

7 And theſe things give in charge, that they may be blameleſs.

8 But if any provide not for his own, and eſpecially for thoſe of his own houſe, he hath denied the faith, and is worſe than an infidel.

9 Let not a widow be taken into the number, under threeſcore years old, having been the wife of one man,

10 Well reported of for good works: if ſhe have brought up children, if ſhe have lodged ſtrangers, if ſhe have waſhed the ſaints' feet, if ſhe have relieved the afflicted, if ſhe have diligently followed every good work.

11 But the younger widows refuſe: for when they have begun to wax wanton againſt Chriſt, they will marry:

12 Having damnation becauſe they have caſt off their firſt faith.

13 And withal they learn to be idle, wandering about from houſe to houſe; and not only idle, but tattlers alſo and buſy-bodies, ſpeaking things which they ought not.

14 I will therefore that the younger women marry, bear children, guide the houſe, give none occaſion to the adverſary to ſpeak reproachfully.

15 For ſome are already turned aſide after Satan.

16 If any man or woman that believeth have widows, let them relieve them, and let not the church be charged; that it may relieve them that are widows indeed.

ſo exactly match with the deſcription given in this and the two next verſes, of theſe ſeducers, and their corruptions, that any one may eaſily read their character in it: for they have moſt notoriouſly apoſtatized from the primitive faith of the goſpel: their doctrine of worſhipping angels and departed ſaints, and making uſe of them as mediators, is apparently the doctrine of Demons, in the neareſt affinity to that, which was found among the heathens; their methods of propagating their religion, by ſpurious legends, forged miracles, and fabulous ſtories, under hypocritical pretences of zeal for God, while intereſt is their principal aim; their aſtoniſhing hardneſs, and inſenſibility of any moral evil, in the moſt vile, criminal, and murderous methods for extirpating what they call hereſy, and ſerving the church; their forbidding prieſts, monks, and nuns to marry, and enjoining abſtinence from fleſh in Lent, and on Wedneſdays and Fridays, all the year round, ſo evidently anſwer the apoſtle's diſtinguiſhing characters of their apoſtacy, that there need no plainer marks to warrant an application of them to that antichriſtian-church.

15 Meditate upon theſe things, &c.) Let the things that I have been mentioning, as the ſubject of your miniſtry and rule of conduct, and what I have now been ſaying about reading the ſcriptures, and the extraordinary gifts of the Spirit, which you are favoured with, be frequently and ſeriouſly reflected upon, to affect your own heart with them, and to excite your diligence in improving them; and meditate cloſely and ſeriouſly upon the holy ſcriptures, as well as read them: let your attention to theſe things, and your miniſtrations of them, and prayer for a bleſſing upon them, be the entire buſineſs of your life, without entangling yourſelf with the affairs of this world, (2 Tim. ii. 4.) and let your whole ſoul be in them, as in your proper ſphere and delightful element, that your proficiency in wiſdom, gifts and grace, and in experience of God's being with you, may evidently appear, in all things, to all about you.

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

1 Rebuke not an elder, &c.) An elder here ſeems moſt directly to mean, not one that is ſo by office, as it does, ver. 17; but old or elderly men. For it is in this place oppoſed, not to private members of the church, but to young men, as elderly women alſo are to the younger in the next verſe: and yet as, in the reaſon of things, they that are elders by office are to be treated in as reſpectful a manner, at leaſt, as is here directed, we may very well include them. But the rebuke here intended ſeems to relate to the leſſer infirmities that older and younger Chriſtians are liable to, rather than to infamous and notorious crimes. For, whatſoever a perſon's age or ſtation be, Timothy was ſolemnly charged publicly to rebuke ſuch ſinners, ver. 20; and yet, even in this caſe, a prudent decency was doubtleſs to be exerciſed in reproving them, ſuitable to their years and ſtations in the church.

3 Honour widows that are widows indeed.) It appears from ver. 4. and 8, that the honour here meant relates to the allowance, which was to be made to theſe widows of things needful and convenient for their ſubſiſtence; and the word is uſed in the ſame ſenſe, ver. 17. as is evident from what follows in that and this next verſe, accordingly our Lord, ſpeaking of the corrupt traditions of the Jews, which diſcharged children from contributing to the ſupport of their poor parents, in caſe they had devoted to God what was neceſſary for their relief, takes it as a breach of the commandment to "honour their father and mother," Mat. xv. 4, 5, 6. and Mark vii. 10—13; and the apoſtle calls the generous benevolence of the people at Malta, their honouring him and his companions with many honours. Acts xxviii. 10.

9 Let not a widow be taken into the number, &c.) The apoſtle's inſiſting on a widow's being "three-ſcore years old, before ſhe be taken into the number," leads us to conſider him as ſpeaking here,

17 Let the elders that rule well, be counted worthy of double honour, eſpecially they who labour in the word and doctrine.

18 For the ſcripture ſaith thou ſhalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn. And the labourer is worthy of his reward.

19 Againſt an elder receive not an accuſation, but before two or three witneſſes.

20 Them that ſin rebuke before all, that others alſo may fear.

21 I charge thee before God, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the elect angels, that thou obſerve theſe things, without preferring one before another, doing nothing by partiality.

22 Lay hands ſuddenly on no man, neither be partaker of other men's ſins: keep thyſelf pure,

23 Drink no longer water, but uſe a little wine for thy ſtomach's ſake, and thine often infirmities.

24 Some men's ſins are open beforehand, going before to judgment; and ſome men they follow after.

25 Likewiſe alſo the good works of ſome are manifeſt beforehand, and they that are otherwiſe cannot be hid.

CHAP. VI.

1 Servants' duties. 3 To avoid new-fangled teachers. 6 The gain of godlineſs.

LET as many ſervants as are under the yoke count their own maſters worthy of all honour, that the name of God, and his doctrine be not blaſphemed.

2 And they that have believing maſters, let them not deſpiſe them, becauſe they are faithful and beloved, partakers of the benefit. Theſe things teach and exhort.

3 ¶ If any man teach otherwiſe, and conſent not to wholeſome words, even the words of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and to the doctrine which is according to godlineſs,

4 He is proud, knowing nothing, but doting about queſtions, and ſtrifes of words, whereof cometh envy, ſtrife, railings, evil ſurmiſings,

5 Perverſe diſputings of men of corrupt minds, and deſtitute of the truth, ſuppoſing that gain is godlineſs: from ſuch withdraw thyſelf.

6 ¶ But godlineſs with contentment is great gain.

7 For we brought nothing into this world, and it is certain we can carry nothing out.

8 And having food and raiment, let us be therewith content.

9 But they that will be rich, fall into temptation, and a ſnare, and into many fooliſh and hurtful luſts, which drown men in deſtruction and perdition.

10 For the love of money is the root of all evil: which, while ſome coveted after, they have erred from the faith, and pierced themſelves through with many ſorrows.

11 But thou, O man of God! flee theſe things; and follow after righteouſneſs, godlineſs, faith, love, patience, meekneſs.

12 Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life, whereunto thou art alſo called, and haſt profeſſed a good profeſſion before many witneſſes.

13 I give thee charge in the ſight of God, who quickeneth all things, and before Chriſt Jeſus, who before Pontius Pilate witneſſed a good confeſſion,

14 That thou keep this commandment without ſpot, unrebukeable, until the appearing of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt:

15 Which in his times he ſhall ſhew, who is the bleſſed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords;

16 Who only hath immortality, dwelling in the light which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath ſeen, nor can ſee: to whom be honour and power everlaſting. Amen.

17 Charge them that are rich in this world, that they be not high-minded, nor truſt in uncertain riches, but in the living God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy;

18 That they do good, that they be rich in good works, ready to diſtribute, willing to communicate;

19 Laying up in ſtore for themſelves a good foundation againſt the time to come, that they may lay hold on eternal life.

20 O Timothy, keep that which is committed to thy truſt, avoiding profane and vain babblings, and oppoſitions of ſcience falſely ſo called:

21 Which ſome profeſſing, have erred concerning the faith. Grace be with thee. Amen.

¶ The firſt to Timothy was written from Laodicea, which is the chiefeſt city of Phrygia Pacatiana.

not merely of taking them into the number of thoſe that were to be maintained by the church, but of thoſe that were alſo to be employed as deaconeſſes in it: for younger widows might be ſo poor and infirm, as to be proper objects of the church's charity, though not fit for the office of a deaconeſs, which, in the early ages of Chriſtianity, might be very convenient, for preventing ſcandal among heathen neighbours, and relations of ſuch converted women, whether young or old, as on account of poverty, or ſickneſs, and other occaſions, the officers of the church were obliged to be very converſant with; as well as for performing the family-ſervices of women in attending miniſters that uſually travelled about to preach the goſpel; or were driven from place to place by perſecution; but theſe reaſons now ceaſing, there is not the like occaſion for deaconeſſes in the preſent age: and as we do not find any inſtitution of them or preſcription of their duty, as there was of deacons, Acts vi. 1, 2, &c. it appears to be matter of mere prudence in the church to commit ſuch offices to women, or not, as circumſtances require.

22 Lay hands ſuddenly on no man, &c.) Though conveying the gifts of the Spirit was ordinarily by the apoſtle's laying on their hands; yet, conſidering what an extraordinary evangeliſt Timothy was, according to ſpecial foregoing prophecies concerning him, which the apoſtle takes particular notice of, and ſeems to lay a great ſtreſs upon, once and again, chap. i. 12. and iv. 14. it need not be thought improbable, but that ſome more remarkable eminent powers were conferred upon him, than upon other evangeliſts: and why might not this of communicating the gifts of the Spirit at ordination, by laying on of his hands, be one of them?

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

1 Let as many ſervants as are under the yoke, &c.) As the Jewiſh Rabbies thought it unlawful for an Iſraelite to be ſold for a ſervant to heathens; it is highly probable from ver. 3. of this chapter, that ſome Judaizer inſiſted on the ſame for Chriſtian-converts: but as this would have been to break in upon the civil rights, properties and poſſeſſions, which Chriſtianity leaves, as it found them; and would have been a ſtrong prejudice in the minds of heathens againſt embracing the goſpel, the apoſtle takes occaſion to lay down the duty of Chriſtian ſlaves, and therein of all other believing ſervants, to pay due honour and obedience to their maſters, whatſoever their religious character be.

The SECOND EPISTLE of PAUL the APOSTLE,

TO

THE ARGUMENT.

It is generally agreed that this epiſtle was dated from Rome, during the apoſtle's ſecond confinement under Nero, and not long before his martyrdom. The deſign of St. Paul ſeems to be to prepare Timothy for thoſe ſufferings to which he foreſaw he would be expoſed; to forewarn him of the fatal apoſtacy that was beginning to appear in the church; and at the ſame time to animate him, from his own example, and the great motives of Chriſtianity, to the moſt vigorous and reſolute diſcharge of every part of the miniſterial office.

CHAP. I.

1 Paul's love to Timothy, and Timothy's faith. 8 Paul giveth divers exhortations. 15 Of Phygellus and Hermogenes.

PAUL, an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt by the will of God, according to the promiſe of life which is in Chriſt Jeſus,

2 To Timothy, my dearly beloved ſon: Grace, mercy, and peace, from God the Father, and Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.

3 I thank God, whom I ſerve from my forefathers with pure conſcience, that without ceaſing I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day;

4 Greatly deſiring to ſee thee, being mindful of thy tears, that I may be filled with joy;

5 When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt firſt in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am perſuaded that in thee alſo.

6 Wherefore I put thee in remembrance, that thou ſtir up the gift of God which is in thee by the putting on of my hands;

7 For God hath not given us the ſpirit of fear; but of power, and of love, and of a ſound mind.

8 ¶ Be not thou, therefore, aſhamed of the teſtimony of our Lord, nor of me his priſoner: but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the goſpel according to the power of God;

9 Who hath ſaved us, and called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpoſe and grace, which was given us in Chriſt Jeſus before the world began;

10 But is now made manifeſt by the appearing of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, who hath aboliſhed death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the goſpel:

11 Whereunto I am appointed a preacher, and an apoſtle, and a teacher of the Gentiles.

12 For the which cauſe I alſo ſuffer theſe things:

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

3 I have remembrance of thee in my prayers night and day.) This ſeems moſt immediately to relate to the morning and evening prayers which uſed to be offered up by the Jews at the time of their morning and evening ſacrifice, Exod. xxix. 38, 39. compared with Luke i. 10 and theſe are undoubtedly proper ſeaſons of ſtated ſolemn addreſſes to God with thankſgivings for the mercies of the night, or of the day paſt, and with ſome humble ſupplications, and commitments of ourſelves and all our own and others concerns to the Lord, for the mercies of the day, or of the night, that is coming on. And yet they are not to be reſtrained to theſe ſtated ſeaſons; but are likewiſe to be preſented to God on all ſuitable occaſions, and eſpecially in important circumſtances and turns of life, relating to ſpiritual and temporal things.

4 Being mindful of thy tears, &c.) Theſe tears were manifeſtly thoſe which Timothy ſhed at the apoſtle's laſt parting with him; and it is thought by many, that he refers to that melting leave which the Epheſian elders took of the apoſtle, Acts xx. 37, 38. among whom Timothy is ſuppoſed to have been preſent, and wept moſt abundantly: but as it is uncertain whether he was in that company or not; and as that ſeems to have been about nine or ten years before the writing of this epiſtle, the apoſtle had probably ſeen him ſince that time; and therefore the parting, here referred to, was in all likelihood on ſome later occaſion, though the hiſtory of the Acts, which is ſuppoſed to have ended ſix or ſeven years before this epiſtle was wrote, gives us no account of it.

nevertheleſs I am not aſhamed; for I know whom I have believed, and I am perſuaded that he is able to keep that which I have committed unto him againſt that day.

13 Hold faſt the form of ſound words, which thou haſt heard of me, in faith and love which is in Chriſt Jeſus.

14 That good thing which is committed unto thee, keep by the Holy Ghoſt which dwelleth in us.

15 ¶ This thou knoweſt, that all they which are in Aſia be turned away from me; of whom are Phygellus and Hermogenes,

16 The Lord give mercy unto the houſe of Oneſiphorus; for he oft refreſhed me, and was not aſhamed of my chain:

17 But when he was in Rome he ſought me out very diligently, and found me.

18 The Lord grant unto him that he may find mercy of the Lord in that day: and in how many things he miniſtered unto me at Epheſus thou knoweſt very well.

CHAP. II.

1 Timothy exhorted to conſtancy and perſeverance, 15 and to ſhew himſelf approved.

THOU, therefore, my ſon, be ſtrong in the grace that is in Chriſt Jeſus.

2 And the things that thou haſt heard of me among many witneſſes, the ſame commit thou to faithful men, who ſhall be able to teach others alſo.

3 Thou, therefore, endure hardneſs, as a good ſoldier of Jeſus Chriſt.

4 No man that warreth entangleth himſelf with the affairs of this life that he may pleaſe him who hath choſen him to be a ſoldier.

5 And if a man alſo ſtrive for maſteries, yet is he not crowned except he ſtrive lawfully.

6 The huſbandman that laboureth muſt be firſt partaker of the fruits.

7 Conſider what I ſay; and the Lord give thee underſtanding in all things.

8 Remember that Jeſus Chriſt, of the ſeed of David, was raiſed from the dead, according to my goſpel:

9 Wherein I ſuffer trouble as an evil-doer, even unto bonds; but the word of God is not bound.

10 Therefore I endure all things for the elect's ſake, that they may alſo obtain the ſalvation which is in Chriſt Jeſus with eternal glory.

11 It is a faithful ſaying, For if we be dead with him, we ſhall alſo live with him:

12 If we ſuffer, we ſhall alſo reign with him: if we deny him, he alſo will deny us:

13 If we believe not, yet he abideth faithful; he cannot deny himſelf.

14 Of theſe things put them in remembrance, charging them before the Lord, that they ſtrive not about words to no profit, but to the ſubverting of the hearers.

15 ¶ Study to ſhew thyſelf approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be aſhamed, rightly dividing the word of truth.

16 But ſhun profane and vain babblings; for they will increaſe unto more ungodlineſs.

17 And their word will eat as doeth a canker: of whom is Hymeneus and Philetus;

18 Who concerning the truth have erred, ſaying, That the reſurrection is paſt already: and overthrow the faith of ſome.

19 Nevertheleſs, the foundation of God ſtandeth ſure, having this ſeal, The Lord knoweth them that that are his. And, Let every one that nameth the name of Chriſt depart from iniquity.

20 But in a great houſe there are not only veſſels of gold and of ſilver, but alſo of wood and of earth; and ſome to honour, and ſome to diſhonour.

21 If a man, therefore purge himſelf from theſe, he ſhall be a veſſel unto honour, ſanctified and meet for the maſter's uſe, and prepared unto every good work.

22 Flee alſo youthful luſts: but follow righteouſneſs, faith, charity, peace with them that call on the Lord out of a pure heart.

23 But fooliſh and unlearned queſtions avoid, knowing that they do gender ſtrifes.

12 That which I have commited to him againſt that day.) This is underſtood by ſome to mean the goſpel-doctrine, and by others the church of Chriſt, which was committed to the apoſtle's truſt. But, how great and important a truth ſoever there be in either of theſe ſentiments, they do not ſeem fully to agree with the apoſtle's deſign in this place, nor with the form of expreſſion here uſed: for he propoſes this, as an encouragement to Timothy, not to be "aſhamed of the teſtimony of our Lord, nor of his priſoner," but to ſubmit cheerfully to ſufferings for Chriſt and the goſpel's ſake, ver. 8. and a conſideration of the bleſſed advantage that he ſhould have from Chriſt at the great day, was much more proper to inforce this, than a conſideration that Chriſt would take care of his own church or cauſe, whether Timothy laboured in it, or ſuffered for it, or not: and the apoſtle calls it his own depoſitum, which he committed to Chriſt, that he might receive it again with ſafety: but the goſpel and the church of Chriſt are not the property of, nor are to be given back again to, any miniſter or apoſtle as his own; and the apoſtle's act of faith here, amidſt troubles and dangers, and near proſpects of death and eternity, was like that which our Lord himſelf exerciſed towards his Father, in his expiring moments, ſaying, (Luke xxiii. 46.) "Father, into thine hand I commend my Spirit," and was ſuch an act of faith as the apoſtle Peter ſpeaks of, (1 Epiſt. iv. 19.) "let them that ſuffer according to the will of God, commit the keeping of their ſouls to him in well-doing, as to a faithful Creator." This commitment of the ſoul to Chriſt againſt that day, evidently means againſt the day of judgment, when the life and immortality, which the apoſtle had been ſpeaking of, ver. 10. ſhall be enjoyed in all perfection and glory, which will be at Chriſt's ſecond appearing, Col. iii. 4. and Heb. ix. 28. This is the day that the apoſtle had in view, and refers to again and again, in this epiſtle, under the apprehenſions of the near approach of death, as in ver. 18. and chap. ii. 10, 11, 12. and iv. 1, 8—18. This is ſometimes called, by way of emphaſis, the day of Chriſt, (Phil. i. 6—10.) the day, (1 Cor. iii. 13.) and that day here, and in ſeveral other places, and the great day, (Jude ver. 6.) and the day of judgment very often.

16 The Lord give mercy unto the houſe of Oneſiphorus, &c.) It ſeems from ver. 18. compared with chap. iv. 19. that Oneſiphorus was an inhabitant of Epheſus, as the place of his uſual abode where his family dwelt, but from which he was now abſent, being very probably ſtill at Rome, for which reaſon his family, without mentioning him, is ſpoken of here, and ſaluted, chap. iv. 17.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

4 That he may pleaſe him who hath choſen him to be a ſoldier.) In this and the next verſe, there is a plain alluſion to the Roman law of arms, and to that of the Grecian games; according to "the firſt" of which, the ſoldier was not to engage in civil occupations, and according to "the laſt" the combatant was to keep ſtrictly to the rules of the game, without which he could not be crowned with a garland, as a conqueror.

18 That the reſurrection is paſt already, &c.) All conjectures about the ſenſe in which Hymeneus and Philetus held "that the reſurrection is paſt already," are ſo exceeding uncertain, without any ſufficient foundation to ſupport them, that we cannot pretend to ſay particularly what it was; only it ſeems evident in the nature of things, that they reſted on ſome figurative, political, or ſpiritual, and myſtical meaning, which they put upon the words, to ſupplant; and evade the notion of a proper reſurrection of the body.

24 And the servant of the Lord must not strive; but be gentle unto all men, apt to teach, patient;

25 In meekness instructing those that oppose themselves: if God peradventure will give them repentance to the acknowledging of the truth.

26 And that they may recover themselves out of the snare of the devil, who are taken captive by him at his will.

CHAP. III.

1 He advertiseth him of the times to come, 6 describeth the enemies of the truth, 16 and commendeth the holy scriptures.

THIS know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come.

2 For men shall be lovers of their ownselves, covetous, boasters, proud, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy.

3 Without natural affection, truce breakers, false accusers, incontinent, fierce, despisers of those that are good,

4 Traitors, heady, high-minded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God;

5 Having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof. From such turn away.

6 ¶ For of this sort are they which creep into houses, and lead captive silly women laden with sins, led away with divers lusts,

7 Ever learning, and never able to come to the knowledge of the truth.

8 Now as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, so do these also resist the truth; men of corrupt minds, reprobate concerning the faith.

9 But they shall proceed no further: for their folly shall be manifest unto all men, as theirs also was.

10 But thou hast fully known my doctrine, manner of life, purpose, faith, long-suffering, charity, patience,

11 Persecutions, afflictions, which came unto me at Antioch, at Iconium, at Lystra; what persecutions I endured: but out of them all the Lord delivered me.

12 Yea, and all that will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution.

13 But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving, and being deceived.

14 But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and hast been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them.

15 And that from a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation, through faith which is in Christ Jesus.

16 ¶ All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness:

17 That the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.

CHAP. IV.

1 Paul exhorteth Timothy. 9 He willeth him to come to him, and to bring Mark, and other things which he wrote for.

I CHARGE thee therefore before God, and the Lord Jesus Christ, who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his kingdom;

2 Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine.

3 For the time will come when they will not endure sound doctrine: but after their own lusts shall they heap to themselves teachers, having itching ears;

4 And they shall turn away their ears from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables.

5 But watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist make full proof of thy ministry.

6 For I am now ready to be offered, and the time of my departure is at hand.

7 I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith:

8 Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord the righteous judge shall

---

24 And the servant of the Lord must not strive, &c.) But it is no way becoming any servant of the Lord Jesus, where he only a private Christian, much less if he be a minister of the gospel of peace, to engage in any disputes with a quarrelsome and litigious spirit; since the wrath of man works not the righteousness of God, (James i. 20.) but on the contrary, he ought to be kind and courteous in his behaviour towards persons of all characters; should go into the most inoffensive and least provoking manner of conveying the truth to them in love, and with clear scriptural evidence; and he should keep his temper with all patience and long-suffering, in bearing not only the infirmities of the weak, but even the prejudices and untractableness of those, that do not immediately embrace the doctrines of the gospel.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

8 Now as Jannes and Jambres withstood Moses, &c.) The names of Jannes and Jambres are not mentioned in any part of the Old Testament; but are found, with a little variation of spelling, in several antient Jewish writers, and are spoken of as the princes or chiefs of the magicians: and so the apostles, as may be supposed, takes these instances from Jewish writings, and argues from their own authors, that were currently received by that people.

11 Persecutions, afflictions which came to me at Antioch, at Iconium, at Lystra, &c.) As Timothy was an inhabitant of Lystra, where Paul met with him, Acts xvi. i. it is very probable that he was an eye-witness of the people's stoning the apostle there, 'till they thought he had been dead, and of his wonderfully reviving afterwards; or at least, he could not be ignorant of those notorious facts in his own town; and the apostle here appeals to him about his troubles, not only at Lystra, but also at Antioch and Iconium, as to one that had fully known them upon the surest testimony, if not by ocular demonstration.

15 And that from a child, &c.) The scriptures which Timothy knew from a child, in all likelihood through the care and pains of his good mother and grandmother, must relate to the "Old Testament-scriptures; because none of the New Testament-writings were then extant: and yet these were sufficient to make him wise to salvation, through faith in the Messiah that was to come, 'till he was revealed; and when the New Testament was added to the Old, which Timothy by this time was acquainted with, they were sufficient to make him wise to salvation thro' faith in Jesus Christ, as the true Messiah, who had actually appeared, and fulfilled all the parts of his office on earth, that pertained to him as such: and if, during the state of the Old Testament-church, their scriptures were sufficient to make them wise to salvation, thro' faith in the promised saviour; much more, thro' faith in the "actually exhibited" Saviour, must all the inspired writings, taken together under the gospel-state, be so; most of the New Testament-writings having been extant before this epistle was sent to Timothy. Though therefore gospel-light undoubtedly far exceeds all that ever went before it; and though it cannot be said, that "every part" of scripture is "absolutely necessary" to be known in order to salvation; yet they are all profitable in their places, as infallible and inspired writings for excellent and important purposes: ver. 16. and now "the whole cannon of scripture" is compleated, under divine inspiration of the New, as well as of the Old Testament, there can be no need of the addition of any doctrines, or precepts, to direct our faith, or practice, that are not contained in them.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

6 And the time of my departure is at hand.) The apostle speaks with confidence of his "departure as at hand," and might be fully satisfied, either by immediate revelation, or by what he had observed of Nero's temper and behaviour in his first apology, ver. 16. or had heard since, that he would be condemned to death, when he should be called forth to take his second trial.

give me at that day: and not to me only, but unto all them alſo that love his appearing.

9 ¶ Do thy diligence to come ſhortly unto me.

10 For Demas hath forſaken me, having loved this preſent world, and is departed unto Theſſalonica; Creſcens to Galatia, Titus unto Dalmatia.

11 Only Luke is with me. Take Mark and bring him with thee; for he is profitable to me for the miniſtry.

12 And Tychicus have I ſent to Epheſus.

13 The cloke that I left at Troas with Carpus, when thou comeſt bring with thee, and the books, but eſpecially the parchments.

14 Alexander the copperſmith did me much evil, the Lord reward him according to his works.

15 Of whom be thou ware alſo: for he hath greatly withſtood our words.

16 At my firſt anſwer no man ſtood with me; but all men forſook me: I pray God that it may not be laid to their charge.

17 Notwithſtanding, the Lord ſtood with me, and ſtrengthened me; that by me the preaching might be fully known, and that all the Gentiles might hear: and I was delivered out of the mouth of the lion.

18 And the Lord ſhall deliver me from every evil work, and will preſerve me unto his heavenly kingdom: to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

19 Salute Priſca and Aquila, and the houſhold of Oneſiphorus.

20 Eraſtus abode at Corinth: but Trophimus have I left at Miletum ſick.

21 Do thy diligence to come before winter. Eubulus greeteth thee, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brethren.

22 The Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with thy ſpirit. Grace be with you. Amen.

¶ The ſecond epiſtle unto Timotheus, ordained the firſt biſhop of the church of the Epheſians, was written from Rome, when Paul was brought before Nero the ſecond time.

10 For Demas hath forſaken me, &c.) The apoſtle calls Demas his "fellow-labourer," (Philem. ver. 24.) and ſpeaks of his joining in a ſalutation with Luke the beloved phyſician, (Col. iv. 14.) he therefore appears to have been a miniſter of ſome eſteem formerly with the apoſtle, but a man of ſo timorous and worldly a ſpirit, as to forſake him in his difficult circumſtance, under an apprehenſion of danger to himſelf, as the diſciples did our Lord in the time of his extremity: however, we cannot certainly conclude concerning him any more than concerning them, that he turned utter apoſtate, tho' he, as well as they, acted a moſt unbecoming, unworthy and criminal part, under the power of temptation, and of too ſtrong an attachment to to this life and its concerns; accordingly the apoſtle ſets a black mark upon him, in diſtinction from Creſcens and Titus, of whom he only ſays, they were gone, one to Galatia, a province of the leſſer Aſia, and the other to Dalmatia, a country in the ſouthern part of Illyricum, to which places he probably had ſent them on ſome meſſages, or other buſineſs of conſiderable conſequence. Who Creſcens was is quite uncertain, we having no other account of him: but as he is here mentioned juſt in the ſame manner with Titus, it is probable he was a miniſter, and ſtood well in the apoſtle's eſteem.

13 The cloke that I left at Troas, &c.) By a cloke, ſome think is meant the pallium, that belonged to the apoſtle, as a Roman citizen; or an upper garment which he uſually wore at inclement ſeaſons, and would need in a cold priſon; as the winter was coming on, others take this word to ſignify "a roll," and others a "a bag, book-caſe, box, or cheſt," or ſome repoſitory in which Paul's books and parchments were kept. And as the ancients had two ſorts of books, one in the form of leaves and pages of parchment, or of paper made of the Egyptian Papyrus; and the other of like materials, rolled up when laid aſide, and unrolled when opened for uſe. The books here mentioned ſeem to have been "the firſt, and parchments the ſecond" of theſe ſorts of books, which, becauſe rolled up, were called volumes. What was contained in them is both a curious and fruitleſs inquiry, that neither needs, nor can be ſatisfied: but as the apoſtle laid ſo particular an emphaſis on the parchments, ſome have conjectured, that they might be the volumes of the Old Teſtament; others the copy of his freedom as a Roman, which might have been of uſe to him in his trial; others, the originals of the epiſtles, that he had ſent to, or received from ſeveral churches, which he would leave in Timothy's cuſtody. The apoſtle therefore ordered him to bring theſe things, that then lay in the hands of Carpus at Troas. As this is the only place were Carpus is mentioned, we know little of his character; but he ſeems to have been the apoſtle's hoſt at Troas, and a faithful brother, in whom he placed ſo much confidence, as to leave things, for which he had ſo great a value, under his care.

14 Alexander the copper-ſmith did me much evil, &c.) The apoſtle probably knew by immediate revelation, that Alexander was a malicious, obſtinate, and incorrigible enemy to Chriſtianity, whom God had given up to hardneſs of heart: and therefore if he imprecated a due reward of his iniquity upon him, that is no rule for us to do the like on perſons of whom we cannot have the ſame aſſurance: but ſome good copies read the Lord "will reward him according to his works;" and ſo it is to be conſidered, not as an imprecation, much leſs as what the apoſtle deſired; but a prediction of what would certainly befall him.

18 And the Lord ſhall deliver me from every evil work, &c.) The apoſtle cannot be ſuppoſed here to mean, that the Lord would deliver him from ſufferings unto death, becauſe he had ſaid, with an aſſurance of his dying a martyr, that "the time of his departure was at hand:" (ver. 6.) but he was confident that the Lord would deliver him from doing any ſinful, unbecoming thing, contrary to faith and a good conſcience, to preſerve his life, or eſcape ſufferings for Chriſt.

THE

The EPISTLE of PAUL

TO

THE ARGUMENT.

The occaſion of the apoſtle's writing this epiſtle to Titus was much the ſame with that of the two epiſtles to Timothy. The naturally bad diſpoſition of the Cretians, was made worſe by the Jewiſh zealots, who abounded in that iſland; againſt whoſe ignorant and malicious prejudices the apoſtle levels all the characters he gives of a good biſhop, church governor, or paſtor; and the ſeveral directions for the conduct of perſons of both ſexes, according to their reſpective ages, ſtations, and degrees.

CHAP. I.

1 Why Titus was left in Crete. 6 How miniſters ſhould be qualified. 10 Of evil doers.

PAUL, a ſervant of God, and an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, according to the faith of God's elect, and the acknowledging of the truth, which is after godlineſs:

2 In hope of eternal life, which God that cannot lie, promiſed before the world began;

3 But hath in due times manifeſted his word through preaching, which is committed unto me, according to the commandment of God our Saviour:

4 To Titus mine own ſon after the common faith: Grace, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt our Saviour.

5 For this cauſe left I thee in Crete, that thou ſhouldeſt ſet in order the things that are wanting, and ordain elders in every city, as I had appointed thee;

6 ¶ If any be blameleſs, the huſband of one wife, having faithful children, not accuſed of riot, or unruly.

7 For a biſhop muſt be blameleſs, as the ſteward of God; not ſelf-willed, not ſoon angry, not given to wine, no ſtriker, not given to filthy lucre;

8 But a lover of hoſpitality, a lover of good men, ſober, juſt, holy, temperate;

9 Holding faſt the faithful word as he hath been taught, that he may be able by ſound doctrine, both to exhort and to convince the gainſayers.

10 ¶ For there are many unruly and vain talkers and deceivers, eſpecially they of the circumciſion:

11 Whoſe mouths muſt be ſtopped, who ſubvert whole houſes, teaching things which they ought not for filthy lucre's ſake.

12 One of themſelves, even a prophet of their own, ſaid, The Cretians are alway liars, evil beaſts, ſlow bellies.

13 This witneſs is true. Wherefore rebuke them ſharply, that they may be found in the faith;

14 Not giving heed to Jewiſh fables, and commandments of men, that turn from the truth.

15 Unto the pure all things are pure: but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conſcience is defiled.

16 They profeſs that they know God, but in works

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

5 Left I thee in Crete, &c.) Crete, which is now called Candia, from the name of its principal city, is one of the fineſt iſlands for ſize, air, and ſoil in the Mediterranean; but its antient natives were infamous to a proverb for lying; and were much addicted to ſeveral other vices, according to the account that Epimenides, one of their own celebrated poets, gave of them, which the apoſtle recites, and calls a true one, chap. i. 12. And as there were very active Judaizing Chriſtians among the converts of this iſland, it is not much to be wondered at, that a people of ſo bad a conſtitutional temper, and ſo lately brought to the faith of Chriſt, were in danger of being enſnared by their artful inſinuations.

11 Teaching things which they ought not, &c.) If, as is very probable, theſe deceivers themſelves were Cretians, the apoſtle with good reaſon ſeems to ſuggeſt, that they act like themſelves in all their ſelf-ſeeking and deluſive arts, and that the people they had to do with, were fit materials, prepared ready to their hands, for them to work upon, as appears from the following account of them.

16 They profeſs that they know God, &c.) They indeed make high profeſſions, and boaſt of their knowledge of the true God, and of the revelation of his mind and will, as though they herein

they

they deny him; being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate.

CHAP. II.

1 Directions given to Titus, both for his doctrine and life. 9 Of the duty of servants.

BUT speak thou the things which become sound doctrine:

2 That the aged men be sober, grave, temperate; sound in faith, in charity, in patience;

3 The aged women likewise, that they be in behaviour as becometh holiness, not false accusers, not given to much wine, teachers of good things;

4 That they may teach the young women to be sober, to love their husbands, to love their children,

5 To be discreet, chaste, keepers at home, good, obedient to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed.

6 Young men likewise exhort to be sober-minded.

7 In all things shewing thyself a pattern of good works, in doctrine shewing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity,

8 Sound speech that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of you.

9 ¶ Exhort servants to be obedient unto their own masters, and to please them well in all things; not answering again,

10 Not purloining, but shewing all good fidelity; that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Saviour in all things.

11 For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men,

12 Teaching us, that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world:

13 Looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ;

14 Who gave himself for us, that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works.

15 These things speak and exhort, and rebuke with all authority. Let no man despise thee.

CHAP. III.

1 Titus directed what to teach. 10 To reject obstinate heretics. 12 The conclusion.

PUT them in mind to be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates, to be ready to every good work,

2 To speak evil of no man, to be no brawlers, but gentle, shewing all meekness unto all men.

3 For we ourselves also were sometimes foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, and hating one another.

4 But after that the kindness and love of God our Saviour toward man appeared.

5 Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost;

6 Which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Saviour:

7 That being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life.

8 This is a faithful saying, and these things I will that thou affirm constantly, that they which have believed in God, might be careful to maintain good works: these things are good and profitable unto men.

9 But avoid foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, and strivings about the law; for they are unprofitable and vain.

10 ¶ A man that is an heretic after the first and second admonition reject.

11 Knowing that he that is such is subverted, and sinneth, being condemned of himself.

12 ¶ When I shall send Artemas unto thee, or Tychicus, be diligent to come unto me to Nicopolis: for I have determined there to winter.

13 Bring Zenas the lawyer and Apollos on their journey diligently, that nothing be wanting unto them.

14 And let ours also learn to maintain good works for necessary uses, that they be not unfruitful.

15 All that are with me salute thee. Greet them that love us in the faith. Grace be with you all. Amen.

¶ It was written to Titus ordained the first bishop of the church of the Cretians, from Nicopolis of Macedonia.

excelled all others; (Rom. ii. 17—20) but their practices are a direct contradiction to, and confutation of all such pretences: they, in effect, deny by their deeds, what they affirm in words, being in reality, most detestable enemies to God and godliness; and, giving no credit to the gospel-revelation, they are disobedient to his authority in it, and utterly injudicious, and unapt for the performance of any good work; and so are highly disapproved of God, and reprobate silver shall men call them, because the Lord hath rejected them. (Jer. vi. 30.)

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

2 That the aged men be sober, &c.) Some have thought that aged men and women, in this and the next verse, are meant of church officers, such as elders and deaconesses: but as young men and women, and not private Christians, are mentioned by way of distinction from them, ver. 4, 5, 6. the context determines the reference to elderly persons, as superiors; and elders in office had been described in the preceding chapter.

11 For the grace of God, that bringeth salvation, &c.) The gospel of the grace of God, particularly under the New Testament-dispensation of it, Ephes. iii. 2. which is the effect of his free favour, and reveals it to us; and is the means of working grace in our hearts, as it brings glad tidings of deliverance from sin and wrath, and of eternal happiness through Jesus Christ, and shows the way of obtaining this great salvation by faith in him, has now shone forth in all its light and glory, like the rising sun, upon all nations to whom he ordered it to be preached, Mat. xxviii. 19.—Mark xvi. 15. and upon all sorts of the sinful sons and daughters of men, whether Jews or heathens young or old, masters or servants, (ver. 2—9.)

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

12 Be diligent to come unto me at Nicopolis, &c.) This Nicopolis is most probably judged, by bishop Pearson, and others, to be, not, as the postscript of this epistle says, in Macedonia, but a town of that name upon the sea-coast of Epirus, a province of Greece, on the west towards Italy. But, wherever it was, it is plain that this epistle was not written from thence, as the postscript further makes it; for, had the apostle been then at Nicopolis, it would have been most proper for him to have said, I have determined to winter here, and not there. This also shows that he was then at liberty; and gives ground to think, that this epistle was wrote between his first and second imprisonment at Rome: and his desiring Titus to come to him at Nicopolis, and proposing to send Artemas, or Tychicus to supply his place at Crete, carries a strong intimation, that Titus was not, as some would have it, and the postscript avers, the first bishop of the church of the Cretians; but that he was an evangelist, who, according to the nature of that office, had no fixed residence; but travelled about, as occasion required, from place to place, to assist the apostles in their work, and come to them, or go on their messages, wherever they might send them. We have no certain account of this Artemas, nor of Zenas the lawyer, mentioned in the next verse, beyond what is here said of them; but Titus, no doubt, well knew them, at least by name, to be persons of worthy character; and Zenas being joined with Apollos, (ver. 13.) who was a Jew, is thought by some to have been an interpreter of the Jewish law; but Grotius supposes, that he might be a Roman lawyer, as not doubting but that many such became ministers of Christ; because they saw that all just and righteous precepts were eminently contained in his religion.

THE

The EPISTLE of PAUL

TO

PHILEMON.

THE ARGUMENT.

This epiſtle was written to a private perſon, and upon a private occaſion. Oneſimus, a ſervant to Philemon the Coloſſian, one of St. Paul's converts, had robbed his maſter, and run away from him. St. Paul, providentially meeting with him whilſt in his confinement at Rome, converted him to the Chriſtian faith; after which, for a time he miniſtered to Paul in priſon; but the apoſtle, underſtanding that he was another man's ſervant, and particularly his dear friend Philemon's, he ſent him back to his maſter, with this recommendatory letter, earneſtly deſiring Philemon to pardon and receive him into favour again.

Paul rejoiceth to hear of the faith and love of Philemon.

PAUL, a priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt, and Timothy our brother, unto Philemon our dearly beloved, and fellow-labourer.

2 And to our beloved Apphia, and Archippus, our fellow-ſoldier, and to the church in thy houſe:

3 Grace to you, and peace from God our Father, and the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

4 I thank my God, making mention of thee always in my prayers,

5 Hearing of thy love and faith which thou haſt toward the Lord Jeſus and toward all ſaints;

6 That the communication of thy faith may become effectual by the acknowledging of every good thing, which is in you in Chriſt Jeſus.

7 For we have great joy and conſolation in thy love, becauſe the bowels of the ſaints are refreſhed by thee, brother.

8 Wherefore though I might be much bold in Chriſt, to enjoin thee that which is convenient,

9 Yet for love's ſake I rather beſeech thee, being ſuch an one as Paul the aged, and now alſo a priſoner of Jeſus Chriſt.

10 I beſeech thee for my ſon Oneſimus, whom I have begotten in my bonds:

11 Which in time paſt was to thee unprofitable, but now profitable to thee, and to me:

12 Whom I have ſent again: thou therefore receive him, that is mine own bowels:

13 Whom I would have retained with me, that in thy ſtead he might have miniſtered unto me in the bonds of the goſpel.

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1 Unto Philemon, our dearly beloved and fellow-labourer.) Since the apoſtle intended to proceed, not on the foot of authority, but of "friendſhip and love," in his addreſs to Philemon, ver. 8, 9. his prefacing the epiſtle with "Paul, the priſoner of the Lord," was more ſuitable, decent, and melting, as well as condeſcending, and more likely to work upon a compaſſionate generous ſoul, and ſo to carry his point, than if he had begun with, "Paul the apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt," (which Philemon well knew him to be) as he uſually did other epiſtles, where any concerned in them either denied, or diſputed his authority.

2 And to our beloved Apphia, &c.) As to the perſons ſaluted in theſe two verſes, Philemon's being called a fellow-labourer may probably intimate, that he was engaged in the work of the miniſtry, but does not certainly prove it; becauſe any that were aſſiſtant to the apoſtles, though but in private ſtations, for helping forward the work of the Lord, were ſometimes ſpoken of under the character, as Aquila and Priſcilla were, and they that hoſpitably received the ſervants of Chriſt, are called fellow-labourers to the truth, 3 John, ver. 8.—Apphia is ſuppoſed by ſome of the antients to have been Philemon's wife; the epithet beloved is feminine, but the Alexandrian, Claremont, and other copies add ſiſter—Archippus was a miniſter of the church at Coloſſe, and Dr. Lightfoot inclined to think, that he was Philemon's ſon, or at leaſt a ſojourner in his houſe. The church in Philemon's houſe ſeems to take in the whole of his Chriſtian family. And ſo the apoſtle ſaluted all that were dear to him and dwelt with him, and ſpoke honourably and affectionately of them to ingratiate himſelf with them, and engage their intereſt with Philemon in favour of Oneſimus.

9 Yet for love's ſake I rather beſeech thee, &c.) In what a handſome manner does the apoſtle juſt hint, and immediately drop, the conſideration of his authority to command, and proceed in the moſt tender and moving ſtrain, upon the foot of love and friendſhip, to 14 But without thy mind would I do nothing; that thy benefit ſhould not be as it were of neceſſity, but willingly.

15 For perhaps he therefore departed for a ſeaſon, that thou ſhouldeſt receive him for ever;

16 Not now as a ſervant, but above a ſervant, a brother beloved, ſpecially to me, but how much more unto thee, both in the fleſh, and in the Lord?

17 If thou count me therefore a partner, receive him as myſelf.

18 If he hath wronged thee, or oweth thee ought, put that on mine account.

19 I Paul have written it with mine own hand, I will repay it; albeit I do not ſay to thee how thou oweſt unto me even thine own ſelf beſides.

20 Yea, brother, let me have joy of thee in the Lord; refreſh my bowels in the Lord.

21 Having confidence in thy obedience, I wrote unto thee, knowing that thou wilt alſo do more than I ſay.

22 But withal prepare me alſo a lodging: for I truſt that through your prayers I ſhall be given unto you.

23 There ſalute thee, Epaphras, my fellow-priſoner in Chriſt Jeſus:

24 Marcus, Ariſtarchus, Demas, Lucas, my fellow-labourers.

25 The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with your ſpirit. Amen.

¶ Written from Rome to Philemon, by Oneſimus a ſervant.

beſeech Philemon to hearken to him, as to "his friend, his aged friend, and priſoner, in the Lord," to work upon the veneration, compaſſion, and kind regards of one, whoſe generous ſoul he had juſt before warmed with the moſt pleaſing ſenſations that ariſe from doing good, by reciting, with joy and praiſe, the great love and liberality he had ſhewn to all the ſaints! ver. 4—7. And with what endearment, in the next verſe, does he call Oneſimus his ſon, before he ſo much as mentions his name; and as ſoon as he had mentioned it, leſt Philemon's reſentment ſhould riſe too high at the very hearing it, with what fine addreſs does he only juſt touch upon his former faults, and inſtantly paſs on to the happy change that was made upon him, to carry Philemon's thoughts off from what had been bad, to what now was good in him; and ſo diſpoſe him to attend to the apoſtle's requeſt, and to all the motives he was going to advance to enforce it, in Oneſimus's favour!

15 That thou ſhouldeſt receive him for ever.) This alludes, as ſome ſuppoſe, to Exod. xxi. 6. could be at moſt only to the end of the ſervant's life; nor can it be carried any further, if we ſuppoſe, with others, that the apoſtle referred to heathen-ſervants, that were bought by the Iſraelites to be their bond-men and bond-maids for ever, Lev. xxv. 44—46. but the argument is ſtill more touching, on ſuppoſition that the apoſtle had a further eye to their eternally dwelling together in heaven.

24 Demas, my fellow-labourers.) This is that Demas, who afterwards, in the apoſtle's ſecond impriſonment at Rome, forſook him in his troubles, "having loved this preſent world," 2 Tim. iv. 10. ſee the note there.

THE

The EPISTLE of PAUL the APOSTLE,

TO THE HEBREWS.

THE ARGUMENT.

This epiſtle to the Hebrews is moſt generally ſuppoſed, and that with the greateſt probability, to have been written by the apoſtle Paul before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem, while he was a priſoner at Rome about the year of our Lord ſixty-three; though on account of Jewiſh prejudices againſt him, as the apoſtle of the Gentiles, and a ſtrenuous aſſerter of juſtification alone through faith in Chriſt without the deeds of the law, it may be looked upon as a point of great prudence in him, that he concealed his name, and that inſtead of laying the weight of his doctrine, as he uſually did in other epiſtles, upon his apoſtolic authority, he began this, and all along carried on his deſign in it, upon the foot of the authority of the Old Teſtament-ſcriptures, which theſe Hebrews univerſally owned to be of divine inſpiration: and, as the poſtſcript avers, it ſeems to have been ſent by Timothy.

CHAP. I.

1 Chriſt in theſe laſt times coming to us from the Father,
4 is preferred before angels, both in perſon and office.

GOD, who at ſundry times, and in divers manners, ſpake in time paſt unto the fathers by the prophets,

2 Hath in theſe laſt days ſpoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom alſo he made the worlds;

3 Who being the brightneſs of his glory, and the expreſs image of his perſon, and upholding all things by the word of his power, when he had by himſelf purged our ſins, ſat down on the right hand of the Majeſty on high:

4 Being made ſo much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they.

5 For unto which of the angels ſaid he at any time, Thou art my Son, This day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Father, and he ſhall be to me a Son?

6 And again, when he bringeth in the firſt begotten into the world, he ſaith, And let all the angels of God worſhip him.

7 And of the angels he ſaith, Who maketh his angels ſpirits, and his miniſters a flame of fire.

8 But unto the Son he ſaith, Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever; a ſceptre of righteouſneſs is the ſceptre of thy kingdom.

9 Thou haſt loved righteouſneſs, and hated iniquity;

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

3 When he had by himſelf purged our ſins, &c.) As the apoſtle had ſhewn in the two preceding verſes, that Chriſt is more excellent than all the prophets that went before him; ſo he here ſuggeſts his tranſcendant excellency above all the Levitical prieſts, which is the grand argument of this epiſtle, while the prophetic and kingly offices are here and there touched in the proceſs of it; and ſo he ſpeaks of Chriſt's purging our ſins, which is to be underſtood in a ſacrificial ſenſe, as in Lev. xvi. 30. with reſpect to his taking away the guilt of ſin by his expiating blood, whereby "the conſcience is purged from dead works to ſerve the living God," in oppoſition to the blood of bulls and of goats that was ſufficient for this purpoſe, and, "only ſanctified to the purifying of the fleſh." Chap. ix. 13, 14.

4 Being made ſo much better than the angels, &c.) The apoſtle having begun with conſidering the perſon of Chriſt, both in his divine and office-characters, to ſhew his preference to the antient prophets and prieſts, ver. 1—3. He keeps up the view of both thoſe characters, in comparing Chriſt with the angels, to ſhew how far he alſo excels them. Accordingly ſome of the following quotations, to prove his ſuperiority to the angels, relate immediately to his divine nature, and others to his mediatorial office, which is founded upon it, and could not be diſcharged, and rendered effectual without it; and all together, in one or the other, and unitedly in both thoſe conſiderations of him, are an uncontrolable and illuſtrious evidence of the ſuperlative dignity of the perſon of Chriſt above the moſt exalted angels. And it was highly proper to demonſtrate his pre-eminence above them; becauſe the Jews inſiſted on, and boaſted of the excellency of their law, as it was delivered by the miniſtration of angels, according to what is ſaid about it, chap. ii. 2. compared with Deut. xxxiii. 2. Pſ. lxviii. 17.

therefore God, even thy God, hath anointed thee with the oil of gladneſs above thy fellows.

10 And, thou, Lord, in the beginning haſt laid the foundation of the earth: and the heavens are the works of thine hands.

11 They ſhall periſh; but thou remaineſt; and they all ſhall wax old as doth a garment;

12 And as a veſture ſhalt thou fold them up, and they ſhall be changed: but thou art the ſame, and thy years ſhall not fail.

13 But to which of the angels ſaid he at any time, Sit on my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footſtool?

14 Are they not all miniſtering-ſpirits, ſent forth to miniſter for them who ſhall be heirs of ſalvation?

CHAP II.

1 We ought to be obedient to Chriſt Jeſus, 5 becauſe he vouchſafed to take our nature upon him, 14 as it was neceſſary.

THEREFORE we ought to give the more earneſt heed to the things which we have heard, leſt at any time we ſhould let them ſlip.

2 For if the word ſpoken by angels was ſtedfaſt, and every tranſgreſſion and diſobedience received a juſt recompence of reward;

3 How ſhall we eſcape if we neglect ſo great ſalvation, which at the firſt began to be ſpoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him;

4 God alſo bearing them witneſs, both with ſigns and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, according to his own will?

5 For unto the angels hath he not put in ſubjection the world to come, whereof we ſpeak.

6 But one in a certain place teſtified, ſaying, What is man that thou art mindful of him? or the ſon of man that thou viſiteſt him?

7 Thou madeſt him a little lower than the angels, thou crownedſt him with glory and honour, and didſt ſet him over the works of thy hands;

8 Thou haſt put all things in ſubjection under his feet. For in that he put all in ſubjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. But now we ſee not yet all things put under him.

9 But we ſee Jeſus, who was made a little lower than the angels, for the ſuffering of death, crowned with glory and honour: that he by the grace of God ſhould taſte death for every man.

10 For it became him, for whom are all things, and by whom are all things, in bringing many ſons unto glory, to make the captain of their ſalvation perfect through ſufferings.

11 For both he that ſanctifieth, and they who are ſanctified, are all of one. For which cauſe he is not aſhamed to call them brethren, 12 Saying, I will declare thy name unto my brethren, in the midſt of the church will I ſing praiſe unto thee.

13 And again, I will put my truſt in him. And again, Behold, I, and the children which God hath given me.

Acts vii. 53. and Gal. iii. 19. and though, Chriſt was the Jehovah that delivered the law by the diſpoſition of angels, which gave a divine authority to it; yet the goſpel appears to be ſtill more glorious, and the neglect of it is ſpoken of as to be ſtill more dreaded, chap. ii. 2, 3. becauſe God ſpoke it to us, not by the miniſtry of angels as he did the law, but immediately in and by the miniſtry of his own incarnate Son: for the ſtreſs of the argument lyes, not in any difference as to the divine authority of the original author of one and the other, which is the ſame, whether it were God the Father, or God the Son, that delivered the law at mount Sinai by the miniſtration of angels; but it lyes in the vaſtly ſuperior excellency of the Son as the immediately miniſtring perſon by whom the goſpel is ſpoken to us.

7 Who maketh his angels ſpirits, &c.) It is plain that Pſ. civ. 4. from whence this quotation is made, ſpeaks as it is here rendered of, and not to the angels; and though the word in the Greek moſt commonly ſignifies to; yet it is ſometimes uſed for of or concerning, as it might be rendered in Mark xii. 12. and Rom. x. 21. and as ſpirits ſignify alſo winds, it ſeems moſt natural to ſuppoſe, that the angels in the firſt clauſe, are compared to the winds, as they are in the next to a flame of fire; and ſince the apoſtle deſigned to ſhow the preference of Chriſt to the angels in their miniſtration of the law, chap. ii. 2, 3. perhaps here may be ſome reference to their agency in forming the terrible thunders, lightnings, and tempeſt at Mount Sinai, which are ſpoken of in Exod. xix. 16. and Heb. xii. 18.

11 They ſhall periſh but thou remaineſt, &c.) Both the earth and the heavens, and all the parts of this viſible creation, firm and durable as ſome of them now appear to be, are of a corruptible nature, and in their ſeaſon ſhall certainly paſs away, and be totally diſſolved, as to their preſent uſe and form: (Mat. v. 18. and 2 Pet. iii. 7, 10—13.) But thou, O immortal Son of God! always haſt, ſtill haſt, and wilt have an abiding and unchangeable exiſtence.—Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou haſt formed the earth and the world, even from everlaſting to everlaſting thou art God, as is ſaid of the great Jehovah of Iſrael: (Pſ. xc. 2.) and as we daily ſee that all the creatures of this lower world grow old and gradually decay; ſo the earth and the heavens, with all the viſible things contained in them, ſhall wear out, and, at length, become unfit to anſwer their preſent deſign, like an old rotten garment.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

3 Which at the firſt began to be ſpoken of by the Lord, &c.) 'Tis with great propriety that the apoſtle ſays, "which at the firſt began to be ſpoken by the Lord;" for though Chriſt opened the goſpel-diſpenſation in his perſonal miniſtry, he did not preach the whole of it; becauſe ſeveral things pertaining to it were to be accompliſhed by his death, reſurrection and aſcenſion to heaven, and were not proper to be fully revealed; nor could they be ſpoken of as actually ſubſiſting, nor be well received, till he went to the Father, and ſhed down his Spirit from on high: accordingly he ſaid to his diſciples, John xvi. 11, 12. "I have yet many things to ſay unto you, but ye cannot bear them now; howbeit, when the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you unto all truth."

9 Should taſte death for every man.) Taſting death, is an Hebraiſm for dying: but the death of Chriſt was not after he was crowned with glory and honour, much leſs was he crowned, that he might taſte death, as the order of theſe words may ſeem to intimate; for the ſcripture every where ſpeaks of his death as preceding his exaltation. And therefore it is moſt conſonant to the truth, and to the apoſtle's deſign, to underſtand, with Mr. Pierce, that here is ſuch an eliſis or ſyllepſis, as is to be met with both in profane and ſacred writers, and is a figure of ſpeech that ſupplies the ſenſe, tho' not exactly according to the ſtructure of the words; and ſo it may ſtand thus, "Jeſus was crowned with glory and honour, that, by the grace of God having taſted death, he might ſave every man." But that learned writer (notwithſtanding his notion of univerſal redemption) further obſerves, that every man for whom Chriſt taſted death, cannot be here meant of all mankind; but that the nature of the argument, and the ſcope of the context manifeſtly carry it under a limitation to all thoſe who were before called the heirs of ſalvation, chap. i. 14. and are all along, after the verſe before us, called, "the many ſons who were to be brought to glory, the ſanctified, Chriſt's brethren, and the church; and we may add, the children which God had given him, ver. 10—14. It alſo might be deſigned to ſhow that this favour was not intended to be confined to the Jews; but to be extended likewiſe to the Gentiles.

10 The Captain of their ſalvation perfect through ſufferings.) This properly ſignifies the Leader, and is rendered the Prince and the Author, (Acts iii. 15. and v. 31. and Heb. xii. 2.) which are the only places beſides in the New Teſtament, were this term is uſed; and in all theſe places it is applied to Chriſt: and this Captain of ſalvation being made perfect, according to different acceptations of the word, which is ſometimes rendered to perfect, chap. vii. 19. and ix. 9.) and at others to conſecrate, (chap. vii. 28.) may relate to his being both completely fitted for, and conſecrated to that part of his office which he was to carry on in heaven, and for the fulfilling of which he was crowned with the glory and honour mentioned in the preceding verſe.

14 ¶ Foraſmuch

14 ¶ Forasmuch then as the children are partakers of flesh and blood, he also himself likewise took part of the same; that through death he might destroy him that had the power of death, that is the devil;

15 And deliver them who through fear of death were all their life-time subject to bondage.

16 For verily he took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the seed of Abraham.

17 Wherefore in all things it behoved him to be made like unto his brethren; that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for the sins of the people.

18 For in that he himself hath suffered, being tempted, he is able to succour them that are tempted.

CHAP. III.

1 Christ is more worthy than Moses. 7 Therefore if we believe not in him, we shall be more worthy of punishment than hard-hearted Israel.

WHEREFORE, holy brethren, partakers of the heavenly calling, consider the apostle and high priest of our profession, Christ Jesus:

2 Who was faithful to him that appointed him, as also Moses was faithful in all his house.

3 For this man was counted worthy of more glory than Moses, inasmuch as he who hath builded the house hath more honour than the house.

4 For every house is builded by some man: but he that built all things is God.

5 And Moses verily was faithful in all his house as a servant, for a testimony of those things which were to be spoken after;

6 But Christ, as a son over his own house: whose house are we, if we hold fast the confidence, and the rejoicing of the hope firm unto the end.

7 ¶ Wherefore as the Holy Ghost saith, To-day, if ye will hear his voice,

8 Harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, in the day of temptation in the wilderness:

9 When your fathers tempted me, proved me, and saw my works forty years.

10 Wherefore I was grieved with that generation, and said, They do alway err in their heart; and they have not known my ways.

11 So I sware in my wrath, They shall not enter into my rest.

12 Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God.

13 But exhort one another daily, while it is called, To-day; lest any of you be hardened through the deceitfulness of sin.

14 For we are made partakers of Christ, if we hold the beginning of our confidence stedfast unto the end;

15 While it is said, To-day if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts, as in the provocation.

16 For some when they had heard, did provoke; howbeit not all that came out of Egypt by Moses.

17 But with whom was he grieved forty years? was it not with them that had sinned, whose carcases fell in the wilderness?

18 And to whom sware he that they should not enter into his rest, but to them that believed not?

19 So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.

CHAP. IV.

1 The rest of Christians is attained by faith. 12 The power of God's word. 14 By our high priest Jesus the Son of God, subject to infirmities, but not to sin, 16 we must and may go boldly to the throne of grace.

LET us therefore fear, lest a promise being left us of entering into his rest, any of you should seem to come short of it.

2 For unto us was the gospel preached, as well as unto them: but the word preached did not profit them, not being mixed with faith in them that heard it.

3 For we which have believed do enter into rest, as he said, As I have sworn in my wrath if they shall enter into my rest: although the works were finished from the foundation of the world.

4 For he spake in a certain place of the seventh day

---

12 In the midst of the church will I sing praise unto thee.) If singing praises is to be taken literally, our Lord did this with his disciples, the only gospel-church that he had then upon earth, a little before his death, when they sung an hymn at the close of the institution and celebration of the eucharist. (Matt. xxvi. 30.) But if we take it in a laxer sense, for setting forth the praises of God's name, this Christ has done, still does, and will continue to do through all generations in the church, by his word and spirit, in its various ministrations and ordinances of divine worship.

Commentary on Chap. III.

2 Who was faithful to him that appointed him, &c.) Here the apostle, comparing Christ with Moses, attends most immediately to his prophetic office, as the apostle of our profession, (ver. 1.) and afterwards proceeds to discourse particularly and at large, on his priesthood, chap. iv. 14. and in several following chapters.

4 But he that built all things is God.) This signifies "he that prepared, furnished, and set in order," as well as "he that built;" and is never used to express God's work of creating; nor would it at all suit the apostle's argument to understand him, as speaking of the creation of all things, universally. But this word is often used to signify God's preparing such things as relate to the church and his worship: thus in Matt. xi. 10. Mark i. 2. Luke i. 17. and vii. 27. it is used for preparing or making ready the way of the Lord: and Heb. ix. 2, 6. for making the tabernacle and ordering things relating to it, and it is used for Noah's preparing an ark, Heb. xi. 7. and 1 Pet. iii. 20. which are all the places besides where it occurs in the New Testament: and therefore when the apostle says, "He that builds all things is God," it is most natural to consider it with reference only to all those things that were the subject of the foregoing discourse, relating to the church under the figure of a house.

11 Take heed, brethren, &c.) Here the apostle pursues his exhortation which he was entering upon, ver. 7; and to prepare the way for the better enforcement of it, mentioned the case of the disobedient Israelites in the intermediate verses, which are to be considered as a parenthesis; and so this verse stands in connection with the wherefore in ver. 7. but is now brought in with the greater advantage in his arguing from God's dispensations toward that unbelieving people, to his proceedings with the professors of Christ under the gospel state.

16 For some, when they had heard, did provoke.) Nothing can be more like the spirit of the apostle Paul, than the almost inimitable prudence with which he prevents offence to the Jews, and all appearance of harshness, in representing so awful a case of their fathers: he speaks of only some, though it were in a manner the whole body of the Israelites, that provoked: and throws in this further mitigation, "howbeit not all," though there were only two exceptions, as to those that were twenty years old and upwards, when they came out of Egypt, see Numb. xiv. 29, 30.

19 So we see that they could not enter in because of unbelief.) Upon the whole then, we plainly see, and should observe and consider it to humble and caution us, and to engage our constant dependance on divine grace for keeping us close to Christ, that they could not set one foot on the holy land, in order to their enjoying it; because of their unbelief, which was the root and spring of all their other provocations, and forfeited all right and claim to the promise of entering into that rest, and so excluded them from it.

Commentary on Chap. IV.

3 For we which have believed do enter into rest, &c.) The great design of the apostle in this and the following verses, down to the 10th, is to prove that there is a promise of rest peculiar to the gospel state, and to obviate an objection, as though what he had alledged and insisted on, chap. iii. 7—19. from Ps. xcv. 11. to enforce his on this wise, And God did rest the seventh day from all his works.

5 And in this place again, If they shall enter into my rest.

6 Seeing therefore it remaineth that some must enter therein, and they to whom it was first preached entered not in because of unbelief:

7 Again, he limited a certain day, saying in David, To-day, after so long a time; as it is said, To-day, if ye will hear his voice, harden not your hearts.

8 For if Jesus had given them rest, then would he not afterward have spoken of another day.

9 There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God.

10 For he that is entered into his rest, he also hath ceased from his own works, as God did from his.

11 Let us labour therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief.

12 ¶ For the word of God is quick and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the dividing asunder of soul and spirit, and of the joints and marrow, and is a discerner of the thoughts and intents of the heart.

13 Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight: but all things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him with whom we have to do.

14 Seeing then that we have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, let us hold fast our profession.

15 For we have not an high priest which cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities, but was in all points tempted, like as we are, yet without sin.

16 ¶ Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace, that we may obtain mercy and find grace to help in time of need.

CHAP. V.

1 The authority and honour of our Saviour's priesthood.
11 Negligence in the knowledge thereof reproved.

FOR every high priest taken from among men, is ordained for men, in things pertaining to God, that he may offer both gifts and sacrifices for sins:

2 Who can have compassion on the ignorant, and on them that are out of the way; for that he himself, also is compassed with infirmity:

3 And by reason hereof he ought as for the people, so also for himself, to offer for sins.

4 And no man taketh this honour unto himself, but he that is called of God, as was Aaron:

5 So also Christ glorified not himself, to be made an high priest: but he that said unto him, Thou art my Son, to-day have I begotten thee.

6 As he saith also in another place, Thou art a priest for ever, after the order of Melchisedec.

7 Who in the days of his flesh, when he had offered up prayers and supplications with strong crying and tears, unto him that was able to save him from death, and was heard in that he feared;

8 Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience; exhortation to the Hebrews, lest they should fall short of it, did not affect them: because God's rest spoken of there, or in any other part of the Old Testament, related only to the rest of the land of Canaan and the rest of the seventh-day sabbath, (ver. 4.) which were now no longer matter of promise, they having been already actually enjoyed. The apostle therefore shews in these verses, that it may be collected, even from what is said in that psalm itself, that there is, in reality, a promise of another rest of God, beside those: and so supports and strengthens his argument for taking heed, lest they should fall short of this most excellent rest. It is no easy matter to set the several steps of his reasoning on this head in a clear and obvious light, but it will be a great help to our understanding it, if we consider that he speaks of three sorts of God's rest; one which commenced upon the finishing of the work of creation, ver. 3, 4. another, which was afterward proposed to Israel in the wilderness, as to be enjoyed in the land of Canaan, ver. 5. and a third, which, after both those rests, was to be enjoyed in the gospel-state and heavenly world, ver. 6—11. and by comparing what the scripture says of all these rests, it appears that there is still a better rest that remains for true believers, than either of the two first before-mentioned; and that is an eternal rest in heaven, inclusive of the spiritual and holy rest which they have in Christ by faith here, as the beginning and earnest, and as issuing in the possession of glory hereafter.

11 Lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief.) The apostle here returns to his exhortation, ver. 1. to take heed, lest any of them should fall short of the promised rest through unbelief: and does this now with greater advantage, in consideration of the proof he had given in the intermediate verses of the certain and superior excellence of that rest, which belongs to the gospel, above what was enjoyed in the land of Canaan.

13 Neither is there any creature that is not manifest in his sight.) This undoubtedly relates, not to the written word, but either to God or Christ; for his sight is a personal character, as appears from the expression itself, and from what follows in immediate connection with it: and it seems that we are to understand it, as meant more directly of Christ, than of God the Father, though not exclusive of him: for it was not God himself, but the word of God, that was the subject all along spoken of in the preceding verse, as working in such a lively, powerful, and piercing manner: and here, in confirmation of it, and in close and natural connection with it, he who is there called the word of God, is represented as omniscient and judge of all, and therefore undoubtedly capable of exerting all those operations, either in a way of judgment or mercy: and the last clause of this verse seems to direct our thoughts to him as it is he with whom we have most immediately to do, for being cast or acquitted in judgment; since the Father judgeth no man immediately and personally, but hath committed all judment to the Son: or, as the word here rendered have to do, signifies also an account, as it is translated in many places, particularly Mat. xii. 36. and xviii. 23. Luke xvi. 2. Rom. xiv. 12. Phil. iv. 17. Heb. xiii. 17. and 1 Pet. iv. 5. and at other times it signifies speech or discourse, and is so rendered John viii. 43. Acts xx. 7. and 1 Cor. ii. 1, 4. and in almost numberless other places: so the passages before us might be translated, "to whom we must give an account," as the great Judge of all; or concerning whom we speak.

All things are naked and opened unto the eyes of him, &c.) Several critics have observed, that the words here rendered naked and opened, allude to the sacrifices under the law, whose carcases were slay'd, and hung up naked, to be seen without their skin, and were afterwards laid on their backs, cut open, and cleaved asunder thro' the neck and back bone, and so every thing, within and without, was exposed to open view, to be examined with the greatest exactness, for discovering whether there were any blemish or defect in it, or not.

14 We have a great high priest, that is passed into the heavens, &c.) This properly signifies passed through the heavens, and manifestly alludes to the high priest's entering through the second vail into the holy of holies, with the blood of the sacrifices, on the great day of atonement once a year, an account of which we have at large, Lev. xvi. and which was typical of our great High-Priest's more glorious entrance, once for all, through the visible heavens, with the virtue of his own blood, into the most holy place, even into the immediate presence of God in the heaven of heavens, as is evidently represented in this epistle, and particularly chap. ix. 7—12.

16 Let us therefore come boldly unto the throne of grace that we may obtain mercy, &c.) God's exercising mercy and grace in Christ may be considered as his being seated on a throne, because he therein appears with majesty, royalty, and glory; and on a throne of grace, because grace erected it, and reigns there, and dispenses all blessings from thence, in a way of mere unmerited favour, to the praise of his own glory; and it is a throne of grace founded on the "mediation of Christ, as he is set forth to be a propitiation, thro' "faith in his blood," Rom. iii. 25 and appears there as a righteous advocate for us, in the virtue of his propitiation, 1 John ii. 1, 2.

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

2 One who can have compassion on the ignorant, &c.) Every legal high priest is, or ought to be one, who can reasonably bear with, and tenderly pity and condescend to, the frailties and weaknesses of the people for whom he officiates, that he may offer sacrifices for

by

by the things which he ſuffered:

9 And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal ſalvation unto all them that obey him;

10 Called of God an high prieſt after the order of Melchiſedec.

11 ¶ Of whom we have many things to ſay, and hard to be uttered; ſeeing ye are dull of hearing.

12 For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the firſt principles of the oracles of God: and are become ſuch as have need of milk, and not of ſtrong meat.

13 For every one that uſeth milk, is unſkilful in the word of righteouſneſs: for he is a babe.

14 But ſtrong meat belongeth to them that are of full age, even thoſe who by reaſon of uſe have their ſenſes exerciſed to diſcern both good and evil.

CHAP. VI.

1 He exhorteth not to fall back from the faith, 11 but to be ſtedfaſt, 12 diligent and patient to wait upon God, 13 becauſe God is moſt ſure in his promiſe.

THEREFORE leaving the principles of the doctrine of Chriſt, let us go on unto perfection, not laying again the foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith towards God,

2 Of the doctrine of baptiſms, and of laying on of hands, and of reſurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment.

3 And this will we do, if God permit.

4 For it is impoſſible for thoſe who were once enlightened, and have taſted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Ghoſt,

5 And have taſted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come,

6 If they ſhall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance: ſeeing they crucify to themſelves the Son of God afreſh, and put him to an open ſhame.

7 For the earth which drinketh in the rain that cometh oft upon it, and bringeth forth herbs meet for them by whom it is dreſſed, receiveth bleſſing from God.

8 But that which beareth thorns and briers is rejected, and is nigh unto curſing; whoſe end is to be burned.

9 But beloved, we are perſuaded better things of you, and things that accompany ſalvation, though we thus ſpeak.

10 For God is not unrighteous, to forget your work and labour of love, which ye have ſhewed towards his name, in that ye have miniſtered to the ſaints, and do miniſter.

11 ¶ And we deſire that every one of you do ſhew the ſame diligence to the full aſſurance of hope unto the end;

12 ¶ That ye be not ſlothful, but followers of them, who through faith and patience inherit the promiſes.

13 ¶ For when God made promiſe to Abraham, becauſe he could ſwear by no greater, he ſware by himſelf,

14 Saying, Surely bleſſing I will bleſs thee, and multiplying I will multiply thee.

15 And ſo after he had patiently endured, he obtained the promiſe.

their ſins of ignorance, and may ſympathize with, and not be incenſed againſt them, on account of their errors of various kinds, whereby they ſtrayed from the way of God's commandments into the ways of ſin, and from the way of ſafety and relief into the way of miſery and danger; and ſo are out of the way of truth and holineſs comfort, and happineſs: he is qualified for exerciſing all compaſſion, toward them; becauſe even he himſelf, as a man and a ſinner, is alſo attended with the like moral, as well as natural infirmities that they labour under. And the forbearance and compaſſion of Jeſus, our great High Prieſt, towards ignorant ſouls and ſinners that are gone aſtray, like loſt ſheep, is incomparably more excellent and effectual; becauſe himſelf has been ſurrounded with all natural human weakneſſes, temptations, and afflictions, though without ſin. (Chap. iv. 15.)

8 Though he were a Son, yet learned he obedience, &c.) This paſſage ſtands in a beautiful oppoſition to ver. 5. There, conſidering Chriſt as man, his prieſtly office is ſpoken of as an honour conferred upon him; but here, conſidering him as the Son of God, it is rather ſpoken of as a condeſcenſion in him to engage in it, and go through the ſervices and ſufferings he was called to thereby.

11 Of whom we have many things to ſay, &c.) The apoſtle defers his deſigned diſcourſe about Melchiſedec as a type of Chriſt to chap. vii. that he might take an occaſion from this hint, to deal cloſely with the Hebrews in a needful and important digreſſion in the remaining verſes of this chapter, and to the end of the ſixth, about their ſtupidity and inattention, and conſequently their ſmall proficiency in the knowledge of ſuch things as they might reaſonably have been expected to have attained to in a greater degree than they had, conſidering the length of their ſtanding in Chriſtianity, and the light which was caſt by the goſpel on Jewiſh ordinances.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

2 Of eternal judgment.) Though the judgment itſelf will be diſpatched in a certain limit of time, it may be called eternal judgment with reſpect to its being irreverſibly deciſive without appeal, and to its eternal effects, as Chriſt is ſaid to have obtained eternal redemption for us, though the price of it was paid at once, when he appeared to put away ſin by the ſacrifice of himſelf, (chap ix. 12, 26.)

4 For it is impoſſible for thoſe who were once enlightened, &c.) Some ſuppoſe that as the word here rendered enlightened, was often uſed by the ancients with relation to baptiſm, the apoſtle means them that had been baptiſed. But it does not appear that this word was ever uſed in that myſtical ſenſe, until the ſecond or third century by Juſtin Martyr, and Clemens Alexandrinus, nor do we find any ſuch ſignification of it in all the New Teſtament, where it conſtantly relates to the light or knowledge whereby the mind is enlightened, and particularly in that parallel place, where the apoſtle ſpeaks of theſe Hebrews having been illuminated, as a term of the ſame import with their having received the knowledge of the truth, (chap. x. 26, 32.)

10 For God is not unrighteous, &c.) Unrighteous ſometimes ſignifies unfaithful, and is uſed in oppoſition to faithful, Luke xvi. 10. and unrighteouſneſs ſtands oppoſed to truth, Rom. ii. 8. and this is the ſenſe in which it ſeems to be moſt immediately intended here, with reference to the faithfulneſs of God in fulfilling his new-covenant promiſes: and yet he may be ſaid to be therein juſt to the merit of his Son too, as the promiſed bleſſings are the purchaſe of his blood, Rom. iii. 25, 26.

12 That ye be not ſlothful, &c.) By them, who through faith and patience inherit the promiſes, is generally underſtood to be meant the patriarchs of old, that inherit eternal life: but as it is ſaid of them, chap. xi. 13. Theſe all died in faith, not having received the promiſes, others have thought that the Gentiles, who had already believed, and were partakers of the promiſes are here intended. However that paſſage may be eaſily underſtood in a light, very conſiſtent with a ſuppoſition, that the patriarchs are here referred to: for though they did not actually receive the accompliſhment of the promiſes of the Meſſiah, and the bleſſings of the goſpel-ſtate upon earth, which are there referred to, they did receive the promiſes of the eternal inheritance in heaven, which ſeem to be here moſt immediately intended, as the upſhot of all the promiſes of the covenant of grace: and therefore if the apoſtle had any view to the believing Gentiles, there is no need to conſider it as excluſive of the believing patriarchs: and inheriting the promiſes, ſignifies actually poſſeſſing the things promiſed; for though faith was neceſſary to the Gentiles inheriting the promiſed bleſſings of the goſpel-ſtate, as the bleſſing of Abraham came upon them through Jeſus Chriſt, and they received the promiſe of the Spirit through faith, (Gal. iii. 14.) yet Chriſtian patience muſt be ſuppoſed rather to follow after their poſſeſſion of theſe, than to go before it: accordingly both faith and patience are uſually ſpoken of in ſcripture, as preceding, and as the means of perſons arriving at the heavenly inheritance, as in chap. x. 36, 37, 38. and xii. 1, 2. 2 Theſſ. iii. 5. James i. 3, 4, 12. and v. 8. and 1 Pet. v. 9. and in our context, ver. 15. it is ſaid that after Abraham had patiently endured, he obtained the promiſe.

16 For men verily swear by the greater: and an oath for confirmation is to them an end of all strife.

17 Wherein God willing more abundantly to shew unto the heirs of promise the immutability of his counsel, confirmed it by an oath:

18 That by two immutable things, in which it was impossible for God to lie, we might have a strong consolation, who have fled for refuge, to lay hold upon the hope set before us:

19 Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and stedfast, and which entereth into that within the vail;

20 Whither the forerunner is for us entered, even Jesus, made an high priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

CHAP. VII.

1 Christ Jesus is a priest after the order of Melchisedec, 11 and so far more excellent, than the priests of Aaron's order.

FOR this Melchisedec, king of Salem, priest of the most high God, who met Abraham returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him;

2 To whom also Abraham gave a tenth part of all: first being by interpretation king of righteousness, and after that also King of Salem, which is, King of peace;

3 Without father, without mother, without descent, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life; but made like unto the Son of God, abideth a priest continually.

4 Now consider how great this man was, unto whom even the patriarch Abraham gave the tenth of the spoils.

5 And verily they that are of the sons of Levi, who receive the office of the priesthood, have a commandment to take tithes of the people according to the law, that is, of their brethren, though they come out of the loins of Abraham:

6 But he whose descent is not counted from them, received tithes of Abraham, and blessed him that had the promises.

7 And without all contradiction, the less is blessed of the better.

8 And here men that die receive tithes; but there he receiveth them, of whom it is witnessed that he liveth.

9 And as I may so say, Levi also, who receiveth tithes, payed tithes in Abraham.

10 For he was yet in the loins of his father, when Melchisedec met him.

11 ¶ If therefore perfection were by the Levitical priesthood, (for under it the people received the law) what further need was there that another priest should rise after the order of Melchisedec, and not be called after the order of Aaron?

12 For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law.

13 For he of whom these things are spoken, pertaineth to another tribe, of which no man gave attendance at the altar.

14 For it is evident that our Lord sprang out of Judah; of which tribe Moses spake nothing concerning priesthood.

15 And it is yet far more evident: for that after the similitude of Melchisedec there ariseth another priest, 16 Who is made, not after the law of a carnal commandment, but after the power of an endless life.

17 For he testifieth, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec.

18 For there is verily a disannulling of the commandment going before, for the weakness and unprofitableness thereof.

19 For the law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did; by the which we draw nigh unto God.

20 And inasmuch as not without an oath he was made priest:

21 (For those priests were made without an oath; but this with an oath, by him that said unto him, The Lord sware, and will not repent, Thou art a priest for ever after the order of Melchisedec:)

22 By so much was Jesus made a surety of a better testament.

23 And they truly were many priests, because they were not suffered to continue by reason of death:

24 But this man, because he continueth ever, hath an unchangeable priesthood.

25 Wherefore he is able also to save them to the uttermost that come unto God by him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VII.

1—8. For this Melchisedec, king of Salem, &c.) What necessity had Paul for drawing any such consequence from the narration of Moses, as that Melchisedec was an eternal priest, and a type of the Messiah, when he had the words of Ps. cx. 4. to insist on, as he is expressly doing in this epistle to the Hebrews? In these words, the eternity of the priesthood of Melchisedec, and of Christ, is expressly declared; the apostle did not draw the eternity of Melchisedec, nor represent him as a type of the Messiah, from Jewish tradition, but shews it from the scripture. And Christians ought to be satisfied with the authority of the apostle, pointing out Melchisedec as the Son of God, appearing in human likeness, prefiguring his eternal priesthood, by saying, that Jesus, of whom it is witnessed in the gospel that he liveth, is the same person who received tithes of Abraham. And indeed, according to the apostle's account, there is no room in the order of Melchisedec for any other priest, or intercessor with God by sacrifice, but the Son of God alone, who shewed himself to Abraham in the similitude, and who shews himself to us by the gospel in the reality of that similitude, in the truth of that likeness and figure. For, 1. Melchisedec abideth a priest continually; and, continuing ever, hath a priesthood that passeth not from one to another. 2. He intercedes continually by that sacrifice of himself, which he once offered, and never needeth to repeat. 3. His intercession by that sacrifice saveth to the uttermost, and nothing can be done beyond that. 4. There is no room for any to interpose betwixt the Most High, and him who is the Son of the Highest, nor betwixt him and them that come to God only by him, who are all members of his body, and are all in him, without distinction, a royal priesthood. 5. The influence of his priesthood extends to the whole possession of the Most High: and as there is no room in heaven or earth for any other, God's whole family, in heaven and earth, comes to God only by the Priest of the Most High God, possessor of heaven and earth.

16. But after the power of an endless life.) Though Christ died in his human nature, that was because he was a sacrifice, as well as a priest; and his offering up himself as a sacrifice was an act of his priesthood; and so he officiated as a priest in his very dying; and consequently did not die out of his office, for others to suppose him to be the Levitical priests did, since his priesthood suffered no interruption by his dying; and as in divine nature it was impossible that he should die, so according to its powerful life, he continued (risen from the dead) in his sacerdotal office, and he resumed his human life, that he might fulfil the remainder of his priesthood in ever living to make intercession for them that come unto God by him, ver. 25.

22. By so much was Jesus made a surety, &c.) A surety or sponsor is on that draws nigh, undertakes or promises, and is bound for another, either to do or pay that for him which he cannot or will not do or pay for himself; it is one who engages for another, that the obligations which he is under shall be one way or another answered. Such a surety is Christ, not for God to his people, as some would have it; for God needs no surety for him to secure the performance of his promises to us; nor do we need any one from him, merely for the confirmation of our faith in them, since his own unchangeable veracity, as manifested in his word and oath, are an absolute security, and the highest evidence of it, and of his performing them as had been declared, ch. vi. 13.—19. And in the nature of things, a surety ought to be a person of more credit and ability than he is for whom he engages, or at least ought to be

26 For such an high priest became us, who is holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, and made higher than the heavens;

27 Who needeth not daily, as those high priests, to offer up sacrifice, first for his own sins, and then for the people's: for this he did once, when he offered up himself.

28 For the law maketh men high priests which have infirmity; but the word of the oath, which was since the law, maketh the Son, who is consecrated for evermore.

CHAP. VIII.

1 By Christ's eternal priesthood the Levitical priesthood is abolished: 7 and the temporal covenant, by the eternal covenant.

NOW of the things which we have spoken, this is the sum: We have such an high priest, who is set on the right hand of the throne of the Majesty in the heavens;

2 A minister of the sanctuary, and of the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, and not man.

3 For every high priest is ordained to offer gifts and sacrifices: wherefore it is of necessity that this man have somewhat also to offer.

4 For if he were on earth, he should not be a priest, seeing that there are priests that offer gifts according to the law:

5 Who serve unto the example and shadow of heavenly things, as Moses was admonished of God, when he was about to make the tabernacle. For, See, saith he, that thou make all things according to the pattern shewed to thee in the mount.

6 But now hath he obtained a more excellent ministry, by how much also he is the mediator of a better covenant, which was established upon better promises.

7 ¶ For if that first covenant had been faultless, then should no place have been sought for the second.

8 For finding fault with them, he saith, Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, when I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah:

9 Not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers, in the day when I took them by the hand to lead them out of the land of Egypt; because they continued not in my covenant, and I regarded them not, saith the Lord.

10 For this is the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my laws into their mind, and write them in their hearts: and I will be to them a God, and they shall be to me a people,

11 And they shall not teach every man his neighbour, and every man his brother, saying, Know the Lord: for all shall know me, from the least to the greatest.

12 For I will be merciful to their unrighteousness, and their sins and their iniquities will I remember no more.

13 In that he saith, A new covenant, he hath made the first old. Now that which decayeth and waxeth old, is ready to vanish away.

CHAP. IX.

1 The rites and bloody sacrifices of the law, 11 far inferior to the blood and sacrifice of Christ.

THEN verily the first covenant had also ordinances of divine service, and a worldly sanctuary.

---

one that is provided to secure against some defect or failure of fidelity or capacity that possibly may be found in him for whom he is a surety; neither of which can be said of God without blasphemy. And if Christ were only in a lax sense, a surety, in a way of witness for God; this is by no means a proper suretyship; nor is it any thing different in its nature and kind from what was done by the prophets, evangelists, and apostles, in the testimony they have given under divine inspiration to him. But "Christ is a surety for us to God:" we needed that he should be so, as we are sinful creatures, and insolvent of what is required by the law, as a covenant of works, which was broke for want of a surety to engage for our keeping it; and without a surety, the new covenant would be in danger of being broken on our part, as that with Adam was. And as the apostle's discourse in this context is professedly all along about the priesthood of Christ, his being a surety relates to the execution of his priestly office, which, like that of the priests under the law, was for the people to God, and not for God to the people: and though the covenant of grace, considered as a testament, was confirmed by the death of Christ, and all its blessings were purchased by it; and though the covenant was made, with a reference to his death, as the procuring cause of all its benefits, in the virtue of which they should be brought home and applied to us, through faith in him; yet his death did not procure the covenant itself, which was made long before, with a proviso of the death of Christ, as the grand condition of its taking effect: but the covenant itself is merely the effect of the infinite wisdom and grace of God in the eternal counsels of his will; and its dispensations to us is founded upon the covenant-transactions before all worlds between the Father and Son, about the manner and means of accomplishing its great design, as might be most honourable to all God's perfections in bringing many sons to glory. Accordingly, Christ as the surety of the covenant undertook to satisfy divine justice for all their transgressions, to redeem them from the curse of the law, and deserved wrath and misery, slavery and ruin, and to purchase for them all the blessings of grace and glory, (chap. ix. 15.) and he further engaged to furnish them with all those supplies of his Spirit and grace, through the merit of his blood, as should be necessary to renew and sanctify them, and bring them to faith and repentance, and enable them to fulfil the duties of the covenant, that should be incumbent upon them, to prevent their violating its sacred bonds, and defeating their interest in it, by wilful disobedience and utter apostacy, through the power of in-dwelling corruptions, and surrounding temptations, by which they would certainly miscarry, were they left to themselves.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VIII.

3 Every high priest is ordained to offer gifts, &c.) The true key of the apostle's argument in this and the two following verses, is, that in allusion to the office of the high priest under the law, who was to kill and offer the sacrifices on the great day of atonement, before he entered, and carried their blood into the holy place within the vail, as was expressly ordered, (Lev. xvi. 5—15.) Christ offered the sacrifice of himself in his death, before he entered into heaven with his own blood, to present the virtue of it before the throne of grace, and, as it were, to sprinkle it on the throne, (which was typified by the mercy-seat,) for rendering it effectual unto all the great and blessed purposes for which it had been shed, and offered in a sacrificial way on the cross: for this was a necessary part of the service, which belonged to the offering, in order to its fully answering its end, and seems to be here principally intended, rather than the offering of the atoning sacrifice itself on the brazen altar, which was finished by the high priest before he entered with its blood into the sanctuary, as Christ's also was on the cross, when through the eternal Spirit he offered himself without spot to God, before he entered into heaven: and therefore it would have been inconsistent with the nature of Christ's priesthood for him to have continued on earth, as the apostle argues in the next verse; because the sanctuary, in which his ministry as a high priest was to be finished, according to the typical meaning of the holy of holies, is heaven itself. This sets the whole discourse on this head in a much clearer, easier, and more harmonious light, than could ever be gathered from the numerous perplexed accounts that have been given of it.

8 I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, &c.) That "the true Israel of God," of what nation soever, are to be included under these characters, or descriptions of Israel and Judah, appears; because the persons here intended are those to whom God absolutely promised, that he would actually and efficaciously extend his renewing and pardoning grace, vers. 10, 11, 12. which cannot be said of the whole body of Israel after the flesh, much less of every one of them; but holds good as to all the spiritual Israel, whether Jews or Gentiles, and to none but them.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IX.

1 And a worldly sanctuary.) This building was of an oblong square figure of thirty cubits, or (reckoning each cubit to be a foot

2 For there was a tabernacle made, the firſt, wherein was the candleſtick, and the table, and the ſhew-bread; which is called the Sanctuary.

3 And after the ſecond veil, the tabernacle, which is called the holieſt of all:

4 Which had the golden cenſor, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was the golden pot that had manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant:

5 And over it the cherubims of glory ſhadowing the mercy-ſeat; of which we cannot now ſpeak particularly.

6 Now when theſe things were thus ordained, the prieſts went always into the firſt tabernacle, accompliſhing the ſervice of God.

7 But into the ſecond went the high prieſt alone once every year, not without blood, which he offered for himſelf, and for the errors of the people.

8 The Holy Ghoſt this ſignifying, that the way into the holieſt of all was not yet made manifeſt, while as the firſt tabernacle was yet ſtanding:

9 Which was a figure for the time then preſent, in which were offered both gifts and ſacrifices that could not make him that did the ſervice perfect, as pertaining to the conſcience;

10 Which ſtood only in meats and drinks, and divers waſhings, and carnal ordinances, impoſed on them until the time of reformation.

11 But Chriſt being come an high prieſt of good things to come, by a greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made with hands, that is to ſay, not of this building:

12 Neither by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own blood he entered in once into the holy place, having obtained eternal redemption for us.

13 For if the blood of bulls and of goats, and the aſhes of an heifer ſprinkling the unclean, ſanctifieth to the purifying of the fleſh:

14 How much more ſhall the blood of Chriſt, who through the eternal Spirit offered himſelf without ſpot to God, purge your conſcience from dead works to ſerve the living God?

15 And for this cauſe he is the Mediator of the new teſtament, that by means of death, for the redemption of the tranſgreſſions that were under the firſt teſtament, they which are called might receive the promiſe of eternal inheritance.

16 For where a teſtament is, there muſt alſo of neceſſity be the death of the teſtator.

17 For a teſtament is of force after men are dead: otherwiſe it is of no ſtrength at all whilſt the teſtator liveth.

18 Whereupon neither the firſt teſtament was dedicated without blood;

19 For when Moſes had ſpoken every precept to all the people according to the law, he took the blood of calves and of goats, with water, and ſcarlet wool, and hyſſop, and ſprinkled both the book and all the people,

20 Saying, This is the blood of the teſtament which God hath enjoined unto you.

21 Moreover, he ſprinkled likewiſe with blood, both the tabernacle, and all the veſſels of the miniſtry.

22 And almoſt all things are by the law purged with blood: and without ſhedding of blood is no remiſſion.

23 It was therefore neceſſary that the patterns of things in the heavens ſhould be purified with theſe; but the heavenly things themſelves with better ſacrifices than theſe.

24 For Chriſt is not entered into the holy places made with hands, which are the figures of the true; but into heaven itſelf, now to appear in the preſence of God for us:

25 Nor yet that he ſhould offer himſelf often, as the high prieſt entereth into the holy place every year, with blood of others;

26 For then muſt he often have ſuffered ſince the foundation of the world: but now once in the end of the world hath he appeared to put away ſin by the ſacrifice of himſelf.

27 And as it is appointed unto men once to die, but after this the judgment:

28 So Chriſt was once offered to bear the ſins of many: and unto them that look for him ſhall he appear the ſecond time without ſin unto ſalvation.

and a half) forty-five feet in length, and ten cubits, or fifteen feet in breadth, and the ſame in height. But it is thought by many, that theſe cubits were two or three inches longer than ours.

The firſt wherein was a candleſtick, &c.) The weight of this candleſtick was a talent of beaten gold all of a piece; out of its ſhaft or ſtank proceeded ſix branches, three on each ſide, and a ſeventh in the middle; on the top of every one of them was a lamp, into all of which was put pure oil of olives, with a wick or piece of cotton for burning; and they were trimmed and recruited, by the prieſt in waiting, every morning and evening. See Exod. xxv. 31—39. and xxvii. 20.

And the table, &c.) This table was made of ſhittim wood, which ſome ſuppoſe to have been mahogany; becauſe no tree was ſo likely as this, to afford ſuch vaſt boards of ten cubits long, and a cubit and a half in breadth, as were cut out of this wood for the tabernacle, (Ex. xxxvi. 20, 21.) and abundance of mahogany trees are ſaid to grow not far from thoſe parts. The table we are ſpeaking of, was two cubits, or three feet in length, and one cubit, or a foot and a half in breadth, and a cubit and a half, or two feet three inches in height, and was covered over with pure gold, which had a ſort of bgee, or an edge of a riſing golden border, round about the top, ſomething like our tea-boards, and ſtood on four feet. (Ex. xxv. 23—26.)—The ſhew bread, which was probably ſo called, becauſe it ſtood continually, as it were, before the face of the Lord in the holy place, was made of the fineſt wheat into loaves or cakes, each of which was to contain two tenth deals, which made about three wine pints of flower; twelve of which loaves, according to the number of the tribes of Iſrael, were placed upon the table into two rows, or ſets in order, ſix one upon another, in each row; and freſh loaves were ſet there every ſabbath day, when the prieſt took the old ones away, of which, by the law, none but Aaron and his ſons were to eat. (Lev. xxiv. 5—9. compared with Mat. xii.

5 And over it the cherubims of glory, &c.) Of what particular form theſe Cherubims were is very uncertain; but we are told that they were made of fine gold, and that there were two of them, whoſe wings were ſtretched upwards over all the mercy ſeat, they being placed at each end of it, with their faces looking one toward the other, and downward toward the mercy-ſeat. Ex. xxv. 18—20. And they appear to have been deſigned to repreſent the holy angels who are Chriſt's attendants, and God's miniſters to do his will; and who, in a beautiful allufion to the poſture of theſe figures, are ſaid to pry and ſearch, and, like perſons ſtooping down to look into the myſteries of redemption by Jeſus Chriſt, 1 Pet. i. 12.

22 Almoſt all things are by the law purged with blood, &c.) Every thing that might abide the fire was indeed to paſs through that for cleanſing, as to be purified with the water of ſeparation, Numb. xxxi. 23. and both the clothes and bodies of thoſe who led away the ſcape-goat, and who burnt the ſin-offerings, were to be waſhed with water; and ſo was the fleſh of thoſe who had touched ſuch things as were ceremonially unclean. (Lev. xvi. 26—28. and xxii. 6.) But as there was no moral defilement in any of thoſe things, ſo the apoſtle, not reckoning them to his purpoſe, paſſes them over and ſays, with a tacit exception of ſuch like things, that almoſt "all things were by the law purged with blood."

27 It is appointed unto men once to die, &c.) Though all men in general muſt die, and come to judgment, according to the penal ſentence; yet as there was an exemption from dying by the ſpecial favour of God on Chriſt's account, in the caſe of Enoch and Elias; ſo there will be of thoſe that ſhall be alive on earth at

CHAP. X.

1 The weakness of the law sacrifices. 10 The sacrifice of Christ's body effectual.

FOR the law, having a shadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things, can never with those sacrifices which they offered year by year continually, make the comers thereunto perfect:

2 For then would they not have ceased to be offered? because that the worshippers once purged, should have had no more conscience of sins.

3 But in those sacrifices there is a remembrance again made of sins every year.

4 For it is not possible that the blood of bulls and of goats should take away sins.

5 Wherefore, when he cometh into the world, he saith, Sacrifice and offering thou wouldest not, but a body hast thou prepared me:

6 In burnt-offerings and sacrifices for sin thou hast had no pleasure:

7 Then said I, Lo, I come (in the volume of the book it is written of me) to do thy will, O God.

8 Above, when he said, Sacrifice and offering, and burnt-offerings, and offering for sin, thou wouldest not, neither hadst pleasure therein; (which are offered by the law;)

9 Then said he, Lo, I come to do thy will, O God. He taketh away the first, that he may establish the second.

10 ¶ By the which will we are sanctified, through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all.

11 And every priest standeth daily ministering, and offering oftentimes the same sacrifices, which can never take away sins:

12 But this man, after he had offered one sacrifice for sins, for ever sat down on the right hand of God;

13 From henceforth expecting till his enemies be made his footstool.

14 For by one offering he hath perfected for ever them that are sanctified.

15 Whereof the Holy Ghost also is a witness to us: for after that he had said before,

16 This is the covenant that I will make with them after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my laws into their hearts, and in their minds will I write them;

17 And their sins and iniquities will I remember no more.

18 Now where remission of these is, there is no more offering for sin.

19 Having therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus,

20 By a new and living way which he hath consecrated for us, through the vail, that is to say, his flesh;

21 And having an high priest over the house of God;

22 Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water.

23 Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; (for he is faithful that promised;)

24 And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works:

25 Not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching.

26 For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins,

27 But a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries.

28 He that despised Moses' law died without mercy under two or three witnesses:

29 Of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the Son of God, and hath counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified, an unholy thing, and hath done despite unto the Spirit of grace?

30 For we know him that hath said, Vengeance belongeth unto me, I will recompense, saith the Lord. And again, The Lord shall judge his people.

Christ's second coming, 1 Thes. iv. 17. And though in the common course believers must die, and all of them must appear in judgment, as well as others; yet the sting of death, and the rigour of proceeding against them, and the condemning sentence that shall be passed upon others, will be taken off from them, through the merit of Christ, who will appear, as the judge of all to their salvation.

COMMENTARY ON CHAP. X.

5 But a body hast thou prepared me.) The words in the Hebrew of Ps. xl. 6, from whence this passage is quoted, are, "Mine ears hast thou bored." Various have been the conjectures of the sacred to reconcile the difference between these words, and the apostle's expression, "A body hast thou prepared me," which agrees with the translation that the Seventy have given of them. But what, upon the whole, appears to be the most natural and easy way of accounting for this difference, is, that our author designed to give the sense of this clause, as he also does of some following passages, rather than to recite the words of the Seventy. It being questionable whether that translation has not been altered in some places from the New Testament, and it being unlikely that the apostle should ever quote it, especially to the Hebrews, and where it is wrong. Accordingly some think that there is an allusion to the boring of a servant's ear through with an awl, who was to serve his master for ever. (Exod. xxi. 5, 6.) But others, observing that the Hebrew word there used is different from that in Ps. xl. 6. understand it of God's fitting Christ with a body, of which the ear is, by a synecdoche, put for the whole, because it is by the ear that men hear and listen to him, whom they are to obey: in allusion to which Christ says, "The Lord God hath opened mine ear, and I was not rebellious," &c. Isa. l. 5. and, by a like synecdoche, the ear may be put for the whole of Christ's human nature, soul and body, which he came to offer as a sacrifice for sin, and is called his offering himself. See Isa. liii. 10. Mark xiv. 34. Eph. v. 2. and Heb. ix. 14.

7 In the volume of the book it is written of me, &c.) The volume of the book has been greatly criticised upon by the learned; and as the books of the ancients were commonly rolls of parchment, from whence they were called volumes, some have thought that the volume of the roll is a tautology without sense: but as the word rendered a volume, signifies also the head, it might be, perhaps, better rendered the head of the book; and so may refer either to the first and principle article in the roll of eternity, or book of life, which contained Christ's engagement to the Father; or to the first promise of the seed of the woman to bruise the serpent's head, which stands at the head or beginning of the first volume or book of scripture, Gen. iii. 15. or may refer to the former part of the Old Testament, which speaks of sacrifices in their typical reference to the sacrifice of Christ.

19 To enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, &c.) The apostle having finished the doctrinal part of his epistle, relating to the superior excellence of the person, priesthood, and sacrifice of Christ, proceeds in this and the following verses to the end of the epistle to a practical improvement of the whole, which he here introduces by way of inference from the foregoing discourse, from which he here draws his argument for it.

26 For if we sin wilfully, &c.) The sin here intended, as appears from all the preceding and following context, is wilful, resolute, contemptuous, and utter apostacy from the profession of Christ and his gospel: and therefore though we ought to be always upon our strictest guard against every known sin, and to be deeply humbled before God whenever we fall into it; yet this text is not to be understood of every sin that has been committed under the power of temptation, against light and conviction, as some tender spirited Christians are often apt to apply it to their own great discouragement and terror, almost to utter despair.

28 Died without mercy, &c.) The person here described seems to have come very near to, if not to have been guilty of the unpar-

31 It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God.

32 But call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of afflictions;

33 Partly, whilſt ye were made a gazing-ſtock both by reproaches and afflictions; and partly, whilſt ye became companions of them that were ſo uſed.

34 For ye had compaſſion of me in my bonds, and took joyfully the ſpoiling of your goods, knowing in yourſelves that ye have in heaven a better and an enduring ſubſtance.

35 Caſt not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompenſe of reward.

36 For ye have need of patience; that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promiſe.

37 For yet a little while, and he that ſhall come will come, and will not tarry.

38 Now the juſt ſhall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my ſoul ſhall have no pleaſure in him.

39 But we are not of them who draw back unto perdition; but of them that believe to the ſaving of the ſoul.

CHAP. XI.

1 What faith is. 6 Without faith we cannot pleaſe God.

NOW faith is the ſubſtance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not ſeen.

2 For by it the elders obtained a good report.

3 Through faith we underſtand that the worlds were framed by the word of God, ſo that things which are ſeen were not made of things which do appear.

4 By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent ſacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witneſs that he was righteous, God teſtifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead yet ſpeaketh.

5 By faith Enoch was tranſlated that he ſhould not ſee death: and was not found becauſe God had tranſlated him; for before his tranſlation he had this teſtimony, that he pleaſed God.

6 ¶ But without faith it is impoſſible to pleaſe him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently ſeek him.

7 ¶ By faith Noah being warned of God of things not ſeen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the ſaving of his houſe; by the which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteouſneſs which is by faith.

8 By faith Abraham, when he was called to go out into a place which he ſhould after receive for an inheritance, obeyed; and he went out, not knowing whither he went.

9 By faith he ſojourned in the land of promiſe, as in a ſtrange country, dwelling in tabernacles with Iſaac and Jacob, the heirs with him of the ſame promiſe:

10 For he looked for a city which hath foundations, whoſe builder and maker is God.

11 Through faith alſo Sara herſelf received ſtrength to conceive ſeed, and was delivered of a child when ſhe was paſt age, becauſe ſhe judged him faithful who had promiſed.

12 Therefore ſprang there even of one, and him as good as dead, ſo many as the ſtars of the ſky in multitude, and as the ſand which is by the ſea-ſhore innumerable.

13 Theſe all died in faith, not having received the promiſes, but having ſeen them afar off, and were perſuaded of them, and embraced them, and confeſſed that they were ſtrangers and pilgrims on the earth.

14 For they that ſay ſuch things declare plainly that they ſeek a country.

15 And truly, if they had been mindful of that country from whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to have returned.

16 But now they deſire a better country, that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not aſhamed to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city.

17 By faith Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Iſaac: and he that had received the promiſes offered up his only begotten ſon, donable ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt himſelf, which our Lord ſpeaks of, Mat. xii. 31, 32. only there may be this difference, that the apoſtate had "received the knowledge of the truth," (ver. 26.) which they, whom our Lord ſpoke of never did.

34 For ye had compaſſion of me in my bonds, &c.) Here ſeems to be a reference to the apoſtle Paul's ſufferings and bonds, which were notorious, and extremely great; and in which the Jewiſh believers tenderly ſympathized with him, as appears from Acts xx. 37, 38. and xxi. 4, 11, 12, 13.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XI.

4 Abel offered unto God, &c.) There was ſome token, by which Cain knew that Abel's offering was accepted, and his own rejected; and it was moſt probably by God's ſending fire from heaven to conſume Abel's ſacrifice, as he afterwards often did in various other inſtances, (Lev. ix. 24. 1 Kings xviii. 38. 1 Chron. xxi. 26. and 2 Chron. vii. 1.) to teſtify his acceptance of the offering, and that juſtice ſeized upon the ſacrifice, inſtead of the ſinner who offered it, and for whom it was offered.

7 Prepared an ark to the ſaving of his houſe, &c.] The ark was nearly of an oblong ſquare, with a flat bottom and ſloped roof, as might be beſt ſuited to float ſteadily on the ſurface of the water. It was a veſſel of three hundred cubits in length, fifty in breadth, and thirty in height; and conſiſted of three decks, or ſtories, capacious enough to hold all the living creatures, and ſufficient proviſions for them, that were ordered to go into this ark.

11 Sarah herſelf received ſtrength to conceive ſeed, &c.) When Sarah firſt heard the promiſe of the Lord, the Angel of the covenant, that ſhe ſhould have a ſon, ſhe, as well as Abraham, might probably take him to be only ſome ſtranger of the human race, who came with two others that way; it ſeems that ſhe did not ſee him, the door of the tent being between him and her when he ſpake theſe words; and as they contained a promiſe of what appeared to her an impoſſibility in her circumſtances, ſhe ſecretly laughed within herſelf, in a way of deriding it: but when the Lord reproved her for ſuch an incredulous manner of laughing, by which ſhe perceived that he, who knew what ſhe had done in ſecret, was more than a man; and when he backed his reproof with ſaying, "Is any thing too hard for the Lord? at the time appointed will I return unto thee according to the time of life, and Sarah ſhall have a ſon," then Sarah was afraid, as repenting of what ſhe had ſaid; and yet, in the fright, ſurpriſe, flutter, and hurry of her mind, denied it: but it ſeems that, upon the whole, and eſpecially after the further diſcovery which the Lord, who ſpoke to her had made of himſelf as the true Jehovah, in his converſation immediately afterward with Abraham, ſhe believed the promiſe, as given by him, who was able to make it good: and this is what our apoſtle refers to, without taking any notice of her preceding unbelief, which, together with her falſehood, was mercifully pardoned for the ſake of that promiſed ſeed, the Meſſiah, who proceeded from the loins of Iſaac, the child ſhe afterwards conceived and brought forth.

17 Abraham, when he was tried, offered up Iſaac, &c.) Though Abraham was prevented executing his deſign, in offering up Iſaac; yet he fully intended it, ſet about it, and would undoubtedly have done it, in obedience to the divine command, had he not been reſtrained at the critical juncture by a voice from heaven; and his proceeding ſo far, as he did in the integrity of his heart, was accepted in the divine conſtruction, as if he had actually ſlain him, as appears from the reaſon that is given of the prohibition in the next words; for "now I know that thou feareſt God, ſeeing thou haſt not with-held thy ſon, thine only ſon from me," Gen. xxii. 9—12. The enemies of divine revelation have made hideous outcries againſt this command of God, and Abraham's obedience to it. But though it would have been indeed a murderous act in

18 Of whom it was said, That in Isaac shall thy seed be called:

19 Accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead; from whence also he received him in a figure.

20 By faith Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau concerning things to come.

21 By faith, Jacob, when he was a dying, blessed both the sons of Joseph; and worshipped, leaning upon the top of his staff.

22 By faith Joseph, when he died, made mention of the departing of the children of Israel; and gave commandment concerning his bones.

23 By faith Moses, when he was born, was hid three months of his parents, because they saw he was a proper child; and they were not afraid of the king's commandment.

24 By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter;

25 Choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season;

26 Esteeming the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures in Egypt: for he had respect unto the recompence of the reward.

27 By faith he forsook Egypt, not fearing the wrath of the king: for he endured, as seeing him who is invisible.

28 Through faith he kept the passover, and the sprinkling of blood, lest he that destroyed the firstborn should touch them.

29 By faith they passed through the Red sea as by dry land: which the Egyptians assaying to do were drowned.

30 By faith the walls of Jericho fell down, after they were compassed about seven days.

31 By faith the harlot Rahab perished not with them that believed not, when she had received the spies with peace.

32 And what shall I more say? the time would fail me to tell of Gideon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthah; of David also, and Samuel, and of the prophets:

33 Who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions,

34 Quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens:

35 Women received their dead raised to life again: and others were tortured, not accepting deliverance; that they might obtain a better resurrection:

36 And others had trial of cruel mockings and scourgings, yea, moreover of bonds and imprisonment:

37 They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, were tempted, were slain with the sword: they wandered about in sheep-skins, and goat-skins; being destitute, afflicted, tormented;

38 (Of whom the world was not worthy:) they wandered in deserts, and in mountains, and in dens and caves of the earth.

39 And these all, having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise:

40 God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect.

Abraham to sacrifice his son, unless he had received a positive command from God for it; and though, without this divine warrant, neither his piety toward God, nor his natural affection, especially to such a son, would have suffered him deliberately to design and go about it; yet as he was sure that God had commanded it, and as God as an absolute and uncontrollable right to order the taking away of any man's life by what means or instruments he pleases, by the knife or the sword, as well as by the pestilence and other diseases, what Abraham did, and was about to do, was every way both justifiable and commendable, as it was a mere act of the highest and most self-denying obedience to God's plain command. And this can never be drawn into a precedent, for any one, that has no such plain and express command from God, to take away the innocent life of another, any more than a private person can be warranted to kill another, without the authority of the civil magistrate, who has a right to order his executioner to put criminals to death.

23 By faith Moses, when he was born, &c.) At the time of Moses's birth, Pharaoh's cruel edict for killing all the male children that should be born to the Hebrews, was in full force, and was, doubtless, executed, as far as possible, with the utmost watchfulness and severity: yet as no subtility or power of man can prevail against the counsel of the Lord, whose kingdom rules over all; so he took care that the blood-thirsty design should not be brought to pass in cutting off Moses: and it is evident that afterwards, by the over-ruling providence of God, this commandment of the king was some way or other relaxed, or defeated; for otherwise the Israelites could not have so prodigiously increased, as they did, from the time of the birth of Moses to the time of his being sent to bring them out of Egypt; he being then eighty years old, as we are informed, Ex. vii. 7.

27 By faith he forsook Egypt, &c.) This relates not to his first flight from Pharaoh, when, upon his having slain the Egyptian, he feared that Pharaoh having heard of it would slay him, (Ex. ii. 14, 15.) but to his second departure from Pharaoh, after he was sent to deliver the children of Israel out of their bondage, Ex. vii. 2.

29 By faith they passed through the Red sea, &c.) This was called the Red sea, not from any redness of its waters or sand, as some imagine; but it took that name from its washing the borders of Esau's country, who was called Edom, which signifies red.

31 By faith the harlot Rahab perished not, &c.) Here it may be proper to observe, that the officious lie, which Rahab the harlot told for preserving the spies, Jos. ii. 4—7. was the effect, not of her faith, but of her sinful dread of the king's wrath. This lie of her's was by no means justifiable in any consistency with the eternal law of truth, and the confidence that ought to be maintained between man and man; but it was no more to our apostle's purpose to take any notice of this, in a discourse about the excellent and wonderful effects of faith, than it would have been to mention the prevarication and falsehood that were used for imposing upon Isaac, to procure his blessing for Jacob instead of Esau, or than to have mentioned sinful infirmities, that were mixed with the faith of other persons, who stand in this list. And though, as Rahab was afterwards incorporated with the church of Israel, and married to, and by that means became herself one of the ancestors of the Messiah, Mat. i. 5. we may well suppose, that then, at least, she repented, and believed in him for the pardon of this and all her other sins, and for justification to eternal life. Yet it appears that her faith here spoken of, and proved to be sincere by her care of the spies, related not to her spiritual and eternal salvation; but only to the temporal safety of herself and family, as she really believed, according to the report she had heard, that the "Jehovah of Israel was the God of heaven above, and in the earth beneath, and had given them that land." Josh. ii. 9—13.

37 They were stoned, they were sawn asunder, &c.) In this manner Jewish tradition (according to the Babylonish and Jerusalem Talmud) says, the prophet Isaiah was put to death by the order of King Manasseh, who was a wicked and inhuman, as well as an idolatrous prince, as appears from 2 Kings xx. 1, 5, 6, 16. And Jerom on Is. lvii. 2. speaks of it as "a most certain tradition, that Isaiah was sawn asunder with a wooden saw." Justin Martyr also, in his dialogue with Trypho, taxes the Jews with having expunged a passage out of the Old Testament, "relating to the death of Isaiah, whom they cut asunder with a wooden saw." And therefore this is the instance of that kind of death which the apostle is most generally thought to refer to.

CHAP. XII.

1 An exhortation to conſtant faith, patience, and godlineſs. 22 A commendation of the new teſtament above the old.

WHEREFORE ſeeing we alſo are compaſſed about with ſo great a cloud of witneſſes, let us lay aſide every weight, and the ſin which doth ſo eaſily beſet us, and let us run with patience the race that is ſet before us,

2 Looking unto Jeſus the author and finiſher of our faith; who for the joy that was ſet before him endured the croſs, deſpiſing the ſhame, and is ſet down at the right hand of the throne of God.

3 For conſider him that endured ſuch contradiction of ſinners againſt himſelf, leſt ye be wearied and faint in your minds.

4 Ye have not yet reſiſted unto blood, ſtriving againſt ſin.

5 And ye have forgotten the exhortation which ſpeaketh unto you as unto children, My ſon, deſpiſe not thou the chaſtening of the Lord, nor faint when thou art rebuked of him:

6 For whom the Lord loveth he chaſteneth, and ſcourgeth every ſon whom he receiveth.

7 If ye endure chaſtening, God dealeth with you as with ſons; for what ſon is he whom the father chaſteneth not?

8 But if ye be without chaſtiſement, whereof all are partakers, then are ye baſtards, and not ſons.

9 Furthermore, we have had fathers of our fleſh which corrected us, and we gave them reverence: ſhall we not much rather be in ſubjection unto the Father of ſpirits, and live?

10 For they verily for a few days chaſtened us after their own pleaſure; but he for our profit, that we might be partakers of his holineſs.

11 Now no chaſtening for the preſent ſeemeth to be joyous, but grievous: nevertheleſs afterward it yieldeth the peaceable fruit of righteouſneſs unto them which are exerciſed thereby.

12 Wherefore lift up the hands which hang down, and the feeble knees;

13 And make ſtraight paths for your feet, leſt that which is lame be turned out of the way; but let it rather be healed.

14 Follow peace with all men, and holineſs, without which no man ſhall ſee the Lord:

15 Looking diligently, leſt any man fail of the grace of God; leſt any root of bitterneſs ſpringing up, trouble you, and thereby many be defiled;

16 Leſt there be any fornicator, or profane perſon, as Eſau, who for one morſel of meat ſold his birthright.

17 For ye know how that afterward, when he would have inherited the bleſſing, he was rejected: for he found no place of repentance, though he ſought it carefully with tears.

18 For ye are not come unto the mount that might be touched, and that burned with fire, nor unto blackneſs, and darkneſs, and tempeſt,

19 And the ſound of a trumpet, and the voice of words; which voice they that heard intreated that the word ſhould not be ſpoken to them any more:

20 For they could not endure that which was commanded, And if ſo much as a beaſt touch the mountain, it ſhall be ſtoned, or thruſt through with a dart:

21 And ſo terrible was the ſight, that Moſes ſaid, I exceedingly fear and quake:

22 But ye are come to mount Sion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jeruſalem, and to an innumerable company of angels,

23 To the general aſſembly and church of the firſtborn, which are written in heaven, and to God the judge of all, and to the ſpirits of juſt men made perfect,

24 And to Jeſus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of ſprinkling, that ſpeaketh better things than that of Abel.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XII.

1 Let us run with patience the race, &c.) Here, and in the remainder of this verſe, is an evident alluſion to the cuſtom of thoſe days, in which, among other exerciſes, races were wont to be run; and they that were engaged therein, took care to have as little weight to carry as poſſible, and to put off all ſuch clothes, as by their weight, length, or otherwiſe, might incommode or hinder them in their courſe. It is notorious that theſe ſorts of public exerciſes were very frequent in the Grecian and Roman games, which the Hebrews could ſcarce be ignorant of; and, in imitation of theſe, Herod Agrippa had, before the writing of this epiſtle, built a theatre and amphitheatre at Jeruſalem, and inſtituted public games to be celebrated with great magnificence, in honour of Claudius Cæſar, who advanced him to the kingdom of Judea.

16 Leſt there be any fornicator, &c.) A fornicator may ſignify any perſon that is guilty of unlawful embraces, whether in a ſingle or married ſtate. Accordingly this word is often tranſlated whoremongers, incluſive of adulterers, Epheſ. v. 5. 1 Tim. i. 10. Rev. xxi. 8. and xxii. 15. and fornication is ſometimes uſed in a like wide extent. This is a ſin againſt our neighbour, as well as againſt ourſelves; and ſo is a tranſgreſſion of the ſecond table of the law: and prophaneſs is a ſin committed immediately againſt God and religion; and ſo is a breach of the firſt table of the law.—But it is matter of diſpute among interpreters, whether Eſau was guilty of fornication or not; ſome of which conſider the reference here made to him, only as an inſtance of a prophane perſon: and what is ſaid of him, in the cloſe of the verſe, ſeems to favour this thought, as that only relates to his ſelling his birthright, which contained or had annexed to it ſeveral valuable privileges, ſome of a temporal, and others of a ſpiritual nature. The temporal privileges were dominion over the younger brethren, and a double portion of the paternal inheritance, as appears from Gen. xlix. 3. Deut. xxi. 17. and 1 Chron. v. 1, 2. Accordingly, when Iſaac had given the birthright to Jacob, he ſaid to Eſau, "I have made him thy lord, and all his brethren I have given to him for ſervants; and with corn and wine have I ſuſtained him," Gen. xxvii. 37. And as to ſpiritual privileges, though there are different opinions about them,—and we may not be able to pronounce with certainty what they were; yet it is reaſonable to ſuppoſe that there were ſome of this nature; becauſe the firſt born carried a typical repreſentation of Chriſt, who is called "the firſt-born among many brethren," Rom. viii. 29. and the inheritance of eternal life is ſpoken of as the privilege of the firſt-born in our context, ver. 23. And unleſs ſome privileges of a ſpiritual nature pertained to the birthright, it ſeems not to be very obvious why Eſau ſhould be called a profane perſon, on account of his ſelling it; nor how this influence would have come up to the apoſtle's deſign in cautioning the Hebrews againſt a contempt of the goſpel, and of its ſpiritual privileges and obligations: for a profane perſon is one who treats ſacred things with irreligious contempt, and is ranked among the moſt flagitious and ungodly ſinners, 1 Tim. i. 9.

21 I exceedingly fear and quake.) Moſes's ſaying, I exceedingly fear and quake, is not to be found in the hiſtory of God's promulgation of the law at Mount Sinai, nor in any other part of the Old Teſtament: but it was, probably, a well-known and received tradition among the Jews, and, perhaps, recorded in ſome of their writings than extant, like the names of Jannes and Jambres, two famous magicians of Egypt, which the apoſtle ſpeaks of, 2 Tim. iii. 8. and therefore he might with good propriety mention this to the Hebrews, who were well ſatisfied in one or other of theſe ways, about the truth of the fact; and it is highly probable that Moſes expreſſed theſe words to God, when, as we are told, Ex. xix. 18, 19. "Mount Sinai was altogether on a ſmoke, becauſe the Lord deſcended upon it in fire; and the ſmoke thereof aſcended as the ſmoke of a furnace, and the whole mountain quaked greatly; and when the voice of the trumpet ſounded long, and waxed louder and louder, Moſes ſpake, and God anſwered him by a voice."

25 See that ye refuſe not him that ſpeaketh. For if they eſcaped not who refuſed him that ſpake on earth, much more ſhall not we eſcape, if we turn away from him that ſpeaketh from heaven:

26 Whoſe voice then ſhook the earth: but now he hath promiſed, ſaying, Yet once more I ſhake not the earth only, but alſo heaven.

27 And this word, Yet once more, ſignifieth the removing of thoſe things that are ſhaken, as of things that are made, that thoſe things which cannot be ſhaken may remain.

28 Wherefore we receiving a kingdom which cannot be moved, let us have grace, whereby we may ſerve God acceptably with reverence and godly fear:

29 For our God is a conſuming fire.

CHAP. XIII.

1 Divers admonitions, as to charity, 4 to honeſt life, 5 to avoid covetouſneſs, 7 to regard God's preachers, 9 to take heed of ſtrange doctrines, 10 to confeſs Chriſt, &c.

LET brotherly love continue.

2 Be not forgetful to entertain ſtrangers: for thereby ſome have entertained angels unawares.

3 Remember them that are in bonds, as bound with them; and them which ſuffer adverſity, as being yourſelves alſo in the body.

4 ¶ Marriage is honourable in all, and the bed undefiled: but whoremongers and adulterers God will judge.

5 ¶ Let your converſation be without covetouſneſs; and be content with ſuch things as ye have: for he hath ſaid, I will never leave thee, nor forſake thee.

6 So that we may boldly ſay, The Lord is my helper, and I will not fear what man ſhall do unto me.

7 Remember them which have the rule over you, who have ſpoken unto you the word of God: whoſe faith follow, conſidering the end of their converſation:

8 Jeſus Chriſt, the ſame yeſterday, and to-day, and for ever.

9 Be not carried about with divers and ſtrange doctrines. For it is a good thing that the heart be eſtabliſhed with grace; not with meats, which have not profited them that have been occupied therein.

10 We have an altar, whereof they have no right to eat which ſerve the tabernacle.

11 For the bodies of thoſe beaſts, whoſe blood is brought into the ſanctuary by the high prieſt for ſin, are burnt without the camp.

12 Wherefore Jeſus alſo, that he might ſanctify the people with his own blood, ſuffered without the gate.

13 Let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach.

14 For here have we no continuing city, but we ſeek one to come.

15 By him therefore let us offer the ſacrifice of praiſe to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name.

16 But to do good and to communicate forget not: for with ſuch ſacrifices God is well pleaſed.

17 Obey them that have the rule over you, and ſubmit yourſelves: for they watch for your ſouls, as they that muſt give account, that they may do it with joy, and not with grief: for that is unprofitable for you.

18 Pray for us: for we truſt we have a good conſcience, in all things willing to live honeſtly.

19 But I beſeech you the rather to do this, that I may be reſtored to you the ſooner.

20 Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jeſus, that great ſhepherd of the ſheep, through the blood of the everlaſting covenant,

21 Make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well-pleaſing in his ſight, through Jeſus Chriſt; to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

22 And I beſeech you, brethren, ſuffer the word of exhortation: for I have written a letter unto you in few words.

23 Know ye that our brother Timothy is ſet at liberty; with whom, if he come ſhortly, I will ſee you.

24 Salute all them that have the rule over you, and all the ſaints. They of Italy ſalute you.

25 Grace be with you all. Amen.

26 Once more I ſhake not the earth only, but alſo heaven.) His promiſe of ſhaking not the earth only, but alſo heaven, manifeſtly relates to the great alterations that ſhould be made by the firſt, and not the ſecond coming of Chriſt: for in the prophecy, Hag. ii. 6. he ſaid he would do it in a little while; and the alterations which enſued upon Chriſt's appearing in the fleſh, and not thoſe which will be made at the day of judgment, ſuited the deſign of the apoſtle's argument, which was to ſhew the ſuperior excellency of the goſpel-ſtate, in oppoſition to the Moſaic diſpenſation. And the earth might be ſaid at this time to be ſhaken, as there were great commotions in the earth at the birth of Chriſt, and by the miracles he wrought, and the earthquake that attended his reſurrection. The heavens alſo were ſhaken, when the extraordinary ſtar appeared to the wiſe men of the Eaſt, and a multitude of the heavenly hoſt celebrated the praiſes of his birth; and when the heavens were opened, and the Holy Ghoſt deſcended upon him, and God the Father declared, with an audible voice from heaven, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed;" and when the ſun was darkened at his death, and the like.—But the expreſſions quoted by the apoſtle, may rather be taken in a metaphorical ſenſe, relating to the diſſolution of the church and ſtate of the Jews: for the overthrowings of nations and kingdoms, is in prophetic language repreſented by, ſhaking the earth and heavens, as in Hag. ii. 21, 22. Iſ. xiii. 13. and Joel iii. 15. And the ſhaking of the earth and heavens, here intended, carries our thoughts back to the mount Sinai-diſpenſation, and the goſpel church ſtate, which had been ſet in oppoſition one to the other in the foregoing verſes, (18—24) and ſo we are naturally led to underſtand by it, the "removing of thoſe things that are ſhaken, as of things that are made, That the things which cannot be ſhaken may remain; and are called a kingdom which cannot be ſhaken," ver. 27, 28.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIII.

2 Be not forgetful to entertain ſtrangers, &c.) Though it is indeed common humanity to ſhew kindneſs to neceſſitous ſtrangers, whether they be truly religious or not, and was enjoined by the law to Iſrael, Deut. x. 19. as hoſpitality in general alſo is by the apoſtle, Rom. xii. 13. and Gal. vi. 10. and the very Heathens practiſed it in the generous and compaſſionate entertainment they gave to Paul and the ſhipwrecked company, who were entire ſtrangers to them, Acts xxviii. 2—7. Yet as this exhortation ſtands among thoſe that relate to the benevolent carriage of Chriſtians one toward another, as ſuch, according to their various circumſtances, it is to be conſidered, as one branch of brotherly love, which was to be ſhewn in entertaining ſtrangers of that character.

4 Marriage is honourable in all, &c.) There were, it ſeems, in thoſe days, ſome that condemned matrimony as an impure and unlawful ſtate, inconſiſtent with the ſtrict chaſtity that is neceſſary to the perfection of religion; while others accounted ſimple fornication to be no ſin; and the apoſtle foreſaw, by the ſpirit of prophecy, that ſuch like pernicious notions would be propagated in the apoſtacy of after ages. In oppoſition therefore to both theſe errors, he recommends a married ſtate, as not only lawful, but honourable, provided its ends be purſued with fidelity, and a becoming chaſtity of mind, to the preventing of fornication and adultery.

14 Here have we no continuing city, &c.) Here ſeems to be an allufion to the city of Jeruſalem, which, though it was a city of habitation that Iſrael ſought after, while they were journeying in the wilderneſs, and which God led them to by a right way, Pſalm cvii. 7. yet that city itſelf was now to be ſoon deſtroyed, together with the whole frame of its civil, as well as religious privileges; and ſo was a fit emblem of the fleeting, uncertain, and tranſitory ſtate of this world, and of all things in it.

THE

GENERAL EPISTLE OF

J A M E S.

THE ARGUMENT.

This epiſtle is commonly ſuppoſed to have been wrote by that apoſtle James who was the ſon of Alpheus, and ſtiled James the leſs, and the brother of our Lord. And it is called a general epiſtle, probably, becauſe it was wrote, not to any particular perſon, or church, but to profeſſing Chriſtians at large, though not excluſive of the unbelievers, of the twelve tribes of Iſrael, whereſoever they were diſperſed through ſeveral countries, as appears from chap. v. 1—6, and ſome other places; and therefore the inſcription is not to Chriſtians under any diſtinguiſhing character of them; but only to the twelve tribes in general; nor is the ſalutation in the uſual ſtrain of grace and peace, or the like, but only of greeting; nor is any benediction added at the cloſe. The time this epiſtle was wrote is thought to have been about the year of our Lord 60, when the deſtruction of Jeruſalem was approaching, in the year 72; and its chief deſign was to remonſtrate againſt the corruption of manners, which had ſpread among that people; many of which ſeemed to be greatly addicted to pride, contention, and worldly-mindedneſs, and had perverted the goſpel-doctrine of juſtification alone by faith in Chriſt, which ſome of them had turned into licentiouſneſs in practice, if not alſo in principle, directly contrary to its holy nature and deſign, and utterly inconſiſtent with a ſaving intereſt in its bleſſings, as alſo to remind them of the deſolation that was coming upon them, and to comfort the faithful among them under all the ſufferings which they at preſent did, or in a little time might, undergo from Jewiſh infidels for the ſake of Chriſt, but which would ſoon have an end.

CHAP. I.

1 We muſt rejoice under the croſs, 5 aſk wiſdom of God, 19 hear the word, and do thereafter. 27 What true religion is.

JAMES, a ſervant of God and of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, to the twelve tribes which are ſcattered abroad, greeting.

2 My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations;

3 Knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience.

4 But let patience have her perfect work, that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing.

5 If any of you lack wiſdom, let him aſk of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it ſhall be given him.

6 But let him aſk in faith, nothing wavering: for he that wavereth is like a wave of the ſea driven with the wind, and toſſed.

7 For let not that man think that he ſhall receive any thing of the Lord.

8 A double-minded man is unſtable in all his ways.

9 Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted;

10 But the rich, in that he is made low: becauſe as the flower of the graſs he ſhall paſs away.

11 For the ſun is no ſooner riſen with a burning heat, but it withereth the graſs, and the flower thereof falleth, and the grace of the faſhion of it periſheth: ſo alſo ſhall the rich man fade away in his ways.

12 Bleſſed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he ſhall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promiſed to them that love him.

13 Let no man ſay, when he is tempted, I am tempted of God: for God cannot be tempted with evil, neither tempteth he any man:

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

13 God cannot be tempted with evil, &c.) The evil here ſpoken of is undoubtedly moral evil, or the evil of ſin, as it is determinately explained in the two next verſes. But the evil of affliction or puniſhment is quite a different thing, with reſpect to which God ſays, I make peace and create evil; and ſhall there be evil in the city, and the Lord has not done it? Iſa. xlv. 7. Amos iii. 6. and 14 But every man is tempted, when he is drawn away of his own luſt, and enticed.

15 Then, when luſt hath conceived, it bringeth forth ſin; and ſin, when it is finiſhed, bringeth forth death.

16 Do not err, my beloved brethren.

17 Every good gift and every perfect gift is from above, and cometh down from the Father of lights, with whom is no variableneſs, neither ſhadow of turning.

18 Of his own will begat he us with the word of truth, that we ſhould be a kind of firſt-fruits of his creatures.

19 Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be ſwift to hear, ſlow to ſpeak, ſlow to wrath:

20 For the wrath of man worketh not the righteouſneſs of God.

21 Therefore, lay apart all filthineſs, and ſuperfluity of naughtineſs, and receive with meekneſs the ingrafted word, which is able to ſave your ſouls:

22 But be ye doers of the word, and not hearers only, deceiving your own ſelves.

23 For if any be a hearer of the word, and not a doer, he is like unto a man beholding his natural face in a glaſs:

24 For he beholdeth himſelf, and goeth his way, and ſtraightway forgetteth what manner of man he was.

25 But whoſo looketh into the perfect law of liberty, and continueth therein, he being not a forgetful hearer, but a doer of the work, this man ſhall be bleſſed in his deed.

26 If any man among you ſeem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain.

27 Pure religion, and undefiled, before God and the Father, is this, To viſit the fatherleſs and widows in their affliction, and to keep himſelf unſpotted from the world.

CHAP. II.

1 We muſt not regard the rich, and deſpiſe the poor, 14 Faith without works 17 is dead.

MY brethren, have not the faith of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Lord of glory, with reſpect of perſons.

2 For if there come unto your aſſembly a man with a gold ring, in goodly apparel, and there come in alſo a poor man in vile raiment;

3 And ye have reſpect to him that weareth the gay clothing, and ſay unto him, Sit thou here in a good place; and ſay to the poor, Stand thou there, or ſit here under my footſtool:

4 Are ye not then partial in yourſelves, and are become judges of evil thoughts?

5 Hearken, my beloved brethren, Hath not God choſen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promiſed to them that love him?

6 But ye have deſpiſed the poor. Do not rich men oppreſs you, and draw you before the judgment-ſeats?

7 Do not they blaſpheme that worthy name by the which ye are called?

8 If ye fulfil the royal law according to the ſcripture, Thou ſhalt love thy neighbour as thyſelf, ye do well:

9 But if ye have reſpect to perſons, ye commit ſin, and are convinced of the law as tranſgreſſors.

10 For whoſoever ſhall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all.

11 For he that ſaid, Do not commit adultery; ſaid alſo, Do not kill. Now, if thou commit no adultery, yet if thou kill, thou art become a tranſgreſſor of the law.

12 So ſpeak ye, and ſo do, as they that ſhall be judged by the law of liberty.

13 For he ſhall have judgment without mercy that hath ſhewed no mercy; and mercy rejoiceth againſt judgment.

14 What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man ſay he hath faith, and have not works? can faith ſave him?

15 If a brother or ſiſter be naked, and deſtitute of daily food,

16 And one of you ſay unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled; notwithſtanding ye give them not thoſe things which are needful to the body, what doth it profit?

17 Even ſo faith, if it hath not works, is dead, being alone.

18 Yea, a man may ſay, Thou haſt faith, and I have works: ſhew me thy faith without thy works, and I will ſhew thee my faith by my works.

19 Thou believeſt that there is one God; thou doeſt well: the devils alſo believe, and tremble.

20 But wilt thou know, O vain man! that faith without works is dead?

21 Was not Abraham our father juſtified by works, when he had offered Iſaac his ſon upon the altar?

yet as he inflicts even this ſort of evil, only on account of ſin, which has deſerved it; we in the moral view may be ſaid to be the cauſe of it, rather than God who delights in mercy; and counts judgments his ſtrange work; and ſaid of Iſrael, that they had fallen by their iniquity, and deſtroyed themſelves.

17 With whom is no variableneſs, &c.) This ſeems to allude to the parallaxes or changes of the ſun, which appear different in the Eaſt, in its meridian height, and in the Weſt. And neither ſhadow of turning ſeems to allude to departures of the ſun from us between the tropicks, that caſt different ſhades. But there is no variation in the nature or will of God, who is always the ſame, and whoſe diſpenſations, how various ſoever, are all according to the counſel of his own will. Eph. i. 11. and there is no inconſiſtency in this with thoſe paſſages, that ſpeak of his repenting of any good, or evil, which he by his word, or providence, or both, ſeemed to have intended to perform: for they relate, not to any alteration in the mind or decree of God himſelf, but only in his external methods of procedure, when they are ſuch as men uſe to make upon any change in their own purpoſes: but as God infallibly foreknew all events from eternity, he always invariably determined to alter his various diſpenſations, as he knew the circumſtances of things would make it fit for him ſo to do. To ſuppoſe the contrary would argue a moſt unſufferable ſelf-ſubverſive imperfection in the Almighty, infinitely wiſe and bleſſed God, and in the certainty and ſtedfaſtneſs of his views and deſigns, as the great governor of the world.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

1 The Lord of glory, with reſpect of perſons.) With reſpect of perſons it is not to be underſtood as deſigned to diſcountenance paying civil reſpect in a decent manner to perſons of ſuperior rank and ſtation, which would be to contradict the apoſtle Paul's order, Rom. xiii. 7. to render honour to whom honour is due, by virtue of their civil character: but it rather relates to partial reſpects being ſhewn in civil and eccleſiaſtical proceedings, merely on account of one perſon's being richer and finer dreſſed than another: for in the next verſe the apoſtle ſpeaks of one and the other's coming into the aſſembly or ſynagogue, which was uſed for civil and eccleſiaſtical judicature as well as for religious worſhip: and then he goes on, (ver. 3—9.) to ſpeak of ſitting at the footſtool, in alluſion to the the cuſtom of placing perſons of lower rank there in their judicatories; and ſpeaks of judges and judgment-ſeats and of perſons acting partially, as tranſgreſſors of the law, which ſeems to refer to the law about impartial judgment, without reſpect to the rich or poor, Lev. xix. 15. and Deut. i. 17. and ſo this is no way inconſiſtent with that becoming deference to perſons of ſuperior rank and character, which our bleſſed Lord recommends in common converſation and behaviour, Luke xiv. 8—10.

21 Was not Abraham our father, juſtified by works, &c.) It is evident, that Abraham's being juſtified by works could not relate to the juſtification of his perſon before God; becauſe in that ſenſe 22 Seest thou how faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect?

23 And the scripture was fulfilled, which saith, Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness: and he was called, The Friend of God.

24 Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only.

25 Likewise also, was not Rahab the harlot justified by works, when she had received the messengers, and had sent them out another way?

26 For as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead also.

CHAP. III.

1 We are not rashly or arrogantly to reprove others, 5 but rather to bridle the tongue. 13 The truly wise be mild and peaceable, without envy and strife.

MY brethren, be not many masters, knowing that we shall receive the greater condemnation.

2 For in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body.

3 Behold, we put bits in the horses mouths, that they may obey us; and we turn about their whole body.

4 Behold also the ships, which, though, they be so great, and are driven of fierce winds, yet are they turned about with a very small helm whithersoever the governor listeth.

5 Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth!

6 And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity: so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire of hell.

7 For every kind of beasts, and of birds, and of serpents, and things in the sea, is tamed, and hath been tamed, of mankind:

8 But the tongue can no man tame; it is an unruly evil, full of deadly poison.

9 Therewith bless we God, even the Father; and therewith curse we men, which are made after the similitude of God.

10 Out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing. My brethren, these things ought not so to be.

11 Doth a fountain send forth at the same place sweet water and bitter?

12 Can the fig-tree, my brethren, bear olive-berries? either a vine, figs? so can no fountain both yield salt water and fresh.

13 Who is a wise man and endued with knowledge among you? let him shew, out of a good conversation, his works with meekness of wisdom.

14 But if ye have bitter envying and strife in your hearts, glory not, and lye not against the truth.

15 This wisdom descendeth not from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish.

16 For where envying and strife is, there is confusion, and every evil work.

17 But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy.

18 And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace of them that make peace.

---

he was justified long before upon his first believing, even before he was circumcised, Rom. iv. 10, 11. nor could it relate to what some call the secondary justification; for this, according to them, depended upon his finally preserving in good works, whereas the works here specified were performed several years before his death. Nor can the other instance of Rahab's being justified by works (ver. 25) relate to her own personal justification, with regard to her spiritual state: for there is not the least appearance, that this faith of her's was for justification to eternal life; or that it had any reference to Christ, or to the types, prophecies, or promises of him, who was the object to be believed in for a spiritual and eternal salvation: and her works were only the fruit of that faith which she had relating to temporal salvation, and so proved that she really did believe that the Lord had given Israel the land in which she dwelt, and that he is God in Heaven above and in earth below; and this faith operated so strongly in her, as to put her upon making terms for her own and family's safety from the destruction, that was coming upon Jericho, (see Josh. ii. 8—13.) and the author to the Hebrews takes no notice of her justification, but only says, with a reference to the destruction of that city, by faith the harlot Rahab perished, not with them that believed not, when she had received the spies with peace, but there was nothing of justifying faith in all this. These observations seem to lead us to an easier solution, than we have met with, of the difficulties that have been raised about reconciling this and the following verses, which spake of a man's being justified by works, and not by faith only, with the apostle Paul's doctrine of justification alone by faith without works, which he so much insisted on, Rom. iii. 28. and iv. 1—6. and Gal. ii. 16. and in several other places; for it appears by the instances which the apostle James here argues upon, that, except in the case of Abraham, it is not, so much at least, about justification by Christ, through faith in him, as about the justification of the truth and sincerity of faith in God and in his promises; which he shews to be dead, and altogether unprofitable; unless it be proved to be genuine by its practical influence upon the heart and life to all holy obedience; and so he speaks of justifying a man's faith, or his character, as a sincere believer, to free him from the charge of hypocrisy; and not of the justification of his person, to acquit him from a charge of guilt, and from law condemnation, as to his state before God, which the apostle Paul so often affirms to be by faith without works. There is therefore no real contradiction between these two apostle's; since it is a quite different sort of faith and of justification, which they respectively speak of, and that with a view to different sorts of persons. The apostle James, to confute licentious solidians, shews that all notions and professions, even of faith in God, without good works to justify its sincerity, are vain; and the apostle Paul, to confute those self-justiciaries that were for depending on there own works, as the ground of their acceptance with God to eternal life, shews that justification in his sight is only by faith in Christ and his righteousness, without any mixture of works, as ingredients into it, though it be not by such a faith in him, as is not productive of good works, they being inseparable from all saving faith of the operation of God.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

3 Behold we put bits in the horses mouths, &c.) To illustrate the benefit of a due government of the tongue, observe how we deal with the horses we ride upon. We do not let them run at random, but bridle them with bits in their mouths, to check and restrain their mettlesome sallies, and direct their course that they may move according to our pleasure; and by this means we turn their whole bodies to the right or the left, and into one and another road, just as we think proper.

13 Who is a wise man, endued with knowledge, &c.) Who is there then among you, that would approve himself to be wise toward God, and for himself and others; prudent in his conduct; and endued with the true knowledge of God, of Christ, and of himself; and with a spiritual discerning of the absurdity and self-contradiction of these things? Let it be his great care and concern, that, by an honourable deportment in the church and in the world, he may evidently practise all manner of good works, in the whole course of his conversation, with a meek and humble spirit, which proceeds from, and discovers the truest wisdom.

CHAP. IV.

1 Against covetousness, 4 intemperance, 5 pride, 11 detraction, and rash judgment.

FROM whence come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members?

2 Ye lust, and have not: ye kill, and desire to have, and cannot obtain: ye fight and war, yet ye have not, because ye ask not.

3 Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may consume it upon your lusts.

4 ¶ Ye adulterers and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world, is the enemy of God.

5 ¶ Do ye think that the scripture saith in vain, The spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth to envy.

6 But he giveth more grace. Wherefore he saith, God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace unto the humble.

7 Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you.

8 Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded.

9 Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heaviness.

10 Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up.

11 ¶ Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law: but if thou judge the law, thou art not a doer of the law, but a judge.

12 There is one law-giver, who is able to save, and to destroy. Who art thou that judgest another?

13 Go to now, ye that say, To-day or to-morrow we will go into such a city, and continue there a year, and buy and sell, and get gain:

14 Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow. For what is your life? it is even a vapour that appeareth for a little time, and then vanisheth away.

15 For that ye ought to say, If the Lord will, we shall live, and do this, or that.

16 But now ye rejoice in your boastings. All such rejoicing is evil.

17 Therefore to him that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin.

CHAP. V.

1 Of wicked rich men. 7 Of patience. 12 To forbear swearing. 13 To pray in adversity, and sing in prosperity.

GO to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you.

2 Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten.

3 Your gold and silver is cankered; and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together for the last days.

4 Behold, the hire of the labourers who have reaped down your fields, which is of you kept back by fraud, crieth: and the cries of them which have reaped are entered into the ears of the Lord of Sabaoth.

5 Ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and been wanton; ye have nourished your hearts as in a day of slaughter.

6 Ye have condemned and killed the just: and he doth not resist you.

7 ¶ Be patient therefore, brethren, unto the coming of the Lord. Behold the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it until he receive the early and latter rain.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

1 From whence come wars and fightings among you? &c.) Some have thought that the apostle here refers to the seditions, tumults and wars that raged about this time among the Jews in their quarrels one with another, and rebellions against the Romans to throw off their yoke, and obtain to themselves that temporal dominion, which they vainly imagined they had a divine right to; and that some Jewish Christians joined therein from their carnal notions of the Messiah, as though he were to set up a temporal kingdom among his disciples, and make them Lords of the universe.—But as the national wars were in Judea, and are supposed to have been after the time of writing this epistle, we may rather understand the apostle to speak of contentions and quarrels in general, which on various occasions prevailed among the Jewish professors of Christianity; and, alas! have sadly broke out among other professors of it, all along, in public and private life, to this very day.

5, 6. The spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth to envy, &c.) Translators have not noticed here, that the apostle, when he cites this text, first gives his sense of the words, and then sets them down after his explication. And commentators have vexed themselves in vain to find the scripture, which saith, "The spirit that dwelleth in us lusteth to envy, but he giveth more grace." But if we take the apostle here to be first giving us the meaning of the scripture, and then the words, the passage will be very easy and plain. Now, according to his interpretation of Prov. iii. 34. Jehovah, who blessed the habitation of the just, ver. 33. and scorneth the scorners, or resisteth the proud, is the spirit that dwelleth in Christians. Jehovah is the name used in that passage of the Proverbs, for which the Greek version hath both God, and, after its usual manner, Lord. The apostle has it, God; which is his only difference from the LXX. in Prov. iii. 34. Thus the spirit that dwells in Christians, is called God by the apostle, and that as the word answers to the name Jehovah in the Hebrew text; for he expressly applies what is there said of Jehovah, to the spirit who dwelleth in us; and we know this is the Holy Ghost, whom the Son of God promised to send to his disciples as another Comforter; of whom he said, John xiv. 16, 17. "I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, and he shall abide with you for ever; the Spirit of truth, whom the world cannot receive, because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him: but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and shall be in you." Agreeably to this, the apostle Paul says to the Corinthian church, 1 Cor. iii. 16. "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" Of this Spirit dwelling in the church, the apostle Peter said to Ananias, Acts v. 3, 4. "Why hath Satan filled thine heart to lie to the Holy Ghost?—Thou hast not lied unto men, but unto God. And the apostle John speaks of him, when he says, 1 John iv. 4.—"Greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world." And this is the Holy Ghost, the person who said to the prophets and teachers in the church at Antioch, Acts xiii. 2. "Separate me Barnabas and Saul to the work whereunto I have called them." This All-knowing and Almighty Person, is not the Father, who sends him to us in the Son's name; nor is he the Son, who sends him to us from the Father, as another Comforter: but he is the same one Jehovah with them; Jehovah, whose curse is in the house of the wicked, who blesseth the habitation of the just, who scorneth the scorners, or resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

1 Weep and howl for your miseries, &c.) The apostle in this and the following verses apparently points at the days of sore destruction, that were then soon to come upon the Jewish nation, not only in Judea, but afterward with wider extent through distant countries, by the ravages of the Romans, in the way of God's righteous judgments, for their obstinate infidelity and other iniquities. But as that was an awful specimen of divine wrath, which should be poured out upon them in the world to come, we may, with good propriety, carry the view forward to the final vengeance that will be executed upon all impenitent sinners at the great day.

8 Be ye alſo patient; ſtabliſh your hearts: for the coming of the Lord draweth nigh.

9 Grudge not one againſt another, brethren, leſt ye be condemned: behold, the judge ſtandeth before the door.

10 Take, my brethren, the prophets, who have ſpoken in the name of the Lord, for an example of ſuffering affliction, and of patience.

11 Behold, we count them happy which endure. Ye have heard of the patience of Job, and have ſeen the end of the Lord; that the Lord is very pitiful and of tender mercy.

12 ¶ But above all things, my brethren, ſwear not, neither by heaven, neither by the earth, neither by any other oath; but let your yea be yea, and your nay nay; leſt ye fall into condemnation.

13 ¶ Is any among you afflicted? let him pray. Is any merry? let him ſing pſalms.

14 Is any ſick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil, in the name of the Lord:

15 And the prayer of faith ſhall ſave the ſick, and the Lord ſhall raiſe him up; and if he have committed ſins, they ſhall be forgiven him.

16 Confeſs your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed. The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much.

17 Elias was a man ſubject to like paſſions as we are, and he prayed earneſtly that it might not rain: and it rained not on the earth by the ſpace of three years and ſix months.

18 And he prayed again, and the heaven gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit.

19 Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him;

20 Let him know, that he which converteth the ſinner from the error of his way, ſhall ſave a ſoul from death, and ſhall hide a multitude of ſins.

12 But above all things, my brethren, ſwear not, &c.) The Jews of this age were notoriouſly guilty of profane ſwearing, though not always by explicitly mentioning the name of God, yet by one or other of his creatures, which they did not reckon to be binding upon them; but which our Lord told them was, in effect, ſwearing by the God himſelf who made them, and it ſeems to be with a ſpecial reference to theſe ſorts of oaths, as well as to all prophane ſwearing in common converſation, that Chriſt there, and our apoſtle here, ſo earneſtly remonſtrates againſt them. But this is no argument againſt taking a ſolemn oath before a magiſtrate, or in a court of judicature, on important occaſions; provided it be only by the name of God, according to his command. See Deut. vi. 13. and xx. 20. and Iſa. lxv. 16.

THE FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL OF PETER.

THE ARGUMENT.

The epiſtles of St. Peter are addreſſed to the Jewiſh converts, who were ſcattered through Pontus, Galatia, &c. not only upon the perſecution raiſed at Jeruſalem, but upon former diſperſions of the Jews into thoſe places, on ſeveral other occaſions.

The firſt of theſe epiſtles is principally deſigned to comfort and ſupport them under thoſe fiery trials and manifold temptations they were then ſubject to; and to direct and inſtruct them how to behave in the ſeveral ſtates and relations, both of the civil and the Chriſtian life; that they might not be engaged in thoſe rebellions againſt Cæſar and his officers, then fomenting among the Jews; and that they might be able to ſtop the mouths of thoſe who ſpoke againſt them as evil doers.

CHAP. I.

1 He bleſſeth God for his manifold ſpiritual graces; 10 ſheweth that the ſalvation in Chriſt is no news, but a thing propheſied of old; and exhorteth them to a godly converſation.

PETER, an apoſtle of Jeſus Chriſt, to the ſtrangers ſcattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Aſia, and Bithynia,

2 Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through ſanctification of the Spirit unto obedience, and ſprinkling of the blood of Jeſus Chriſt: Grace unto you and peace be multiplied.

3 Bleſſed be the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, which according to his abundant mercy hath begotten us again unto a lively hope by the reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt from the dead,

4 To an inheritance incorruptible and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reſerved in heaven for you,

5 Who are kept by the power of God through faith unto ſalvation ready to be revealed in the laſt time.

6 Wherein ye greatly rejoice, though now for a ſeaſon (if need be) ye are in heavineſs through manifold temptations:

7 That the trial of your faith being much more precious than of gold that periſheth, though it be tried with fire, might be found unto praiſe and honour and glory at the appearing of Jeſus Chriſt;

8 Whom having not ſeen ye love; in whom, though now ye ſee him not, yet believing, ye rejoice with joy unſpeakable, and full of glory:

9 Receiving the end of your faith, even the ſalvation of your ſouls.

10 ¶ Of which ſalvation the prophets have enquired and ſearched diligently, who propheſied of the grace that ſhould come unto you:

11 Searching what, or what manner of time the Spirit of Chriſt which was in them did ſignify, when it teſtified before-hand the ſufferings of Chriſt, and the glory that ſhould follow.

12 Unto whom it was revealed, that not unto themſelves, but unto us they did miniſter the things which

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1 To the ſtrangers ſcattered throughout Pontus, Galatia, &c.) All theſe countries, as the beſt geographers think, lay in what was called the leſſer Aſia, which was contained in, and ſpoken of by way of diſtinction from the large continent that bore the name of Aſia, in the three grand diviſions in the then known world, America having been diſcovered in latter ages; and therefore the Aſia here meant and diſtinguiſhed from Pontus, Galatia, &c, muſt be that which was ſometimes called the Roman proconſular Aſia, and at others, Aſia proper. And the ſtrangers ſcattered abroad throughout theſe provinces ſeem to be meant of thoſe of the tribes of Iſrael that did not return from the captivity to their own land, but ſojourned in thoſe countries, rather than of thoſe that were diſperſed by the perſecution ſpoken of in Acts viii. 1. For theſe were ſcattered only throughout Judea and Samaria, though, afterwards ſome of them travelled as far as Phenice, and Cyprus, and Antioch, preaching the word to none but unto the Jews only, Acts xi. 19. But all theſe countries were far diſtant from thoſe into which theſe ſtrangers are ſaid to have been ſcattered, are now reported unto you by them that have preached the goſpel unto you, with the Holy Ghoſt ſent down from heaven, which things the angels deſire to look into.

13 ¶ Wherefore gird up the loins of your mind, be ſober, and hope to the end, for the grace that is to be brought unto you, at the revelation of Jeſus Chriſt.

14 As obedient children, not faſhioning yourſelves according to the former luſts in your ignorance:

15 But as he which hath called you is holy, ſo be ye holy in all manner of converſation:

16 Becauſe it is written, Be ye holy; for I am holy.

17 And if ye call on the Father, who without reſpect of perſons judgeth according to every man's work, paſs the time of your ſojourning here in fear:

18 Foraſmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things, as ſilver and gold, from your vain converſation received by tradition from your fathers:

19 But with the precious blood of Chriſt, as of a lamb without blemiſh and without ſpot:

20 Who verily was fore-ordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifeſt in theſe laſt times for you:

21 Who by him do believe in God that raiſed him up from the dead, and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God.

22 Seeing ye have purified your ſouls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren; ſee that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently:

23 Being born again, not of corruptible ſeed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth for ever.

24 For all fleſh is as graſs, and all the glory of man as the flower of graſs. The graſs withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away:

25 But the word of the Lord endureth for ever. And this is the word which by the goſpel is preached unto you.

CHAP II.

1 He beſeecheth them to abſtain from luſts, 13 to be obedient.

WHEREFORE laying aſide all malice and all guile and hypocriſies and envies and all evil-ſpeakings,

2 As new-born babes deſire the ſincere milk of the word, that ye may grow thereby;

3 If ſo be ye have taſted that the Lord is gracious.

4 To whom coming as unto a living ſtone, diſallowed indeed of men, but choſen of God, and precious.

5 Ye alſo, as lively ſtones, are built up a ſpiritual houſe, an holy prieſthood, to offer up ſpiritual ſacrifices, acceptable to God by Jeſus Chriſt.

6 Wherefore alſo it is contained in the ſcripture, Behold, I lay in Sion, a chief corner-ſtone, elect, precious: and he that believeth on him ſhall not be confounded.

7 Unto you therefore which believe he is precious; but unto them which be diſobedient, the ſtone which the builders diſallowed, the ſame is made the head of the corner,

8 And a ſtone of ſtumbling, and a rock of offence, even to them which ſtumble at the word, being diſobedient: whereunto alſo they were appointed.

9 But ye are a choſen generation, a royal prieſthood, an holy nation, a peculiar people; that ye ſhould ſhew forth the praiſes of him who hath called you out of darkneſs into his marvellous light:

10 Which in time paſt were not a people, but are now the people of God: which had not obtained mercy, but now have obtained mercy.

11 Dearly beloved, I beſeech you as ſtrangers and pilgrims, abſtain from fleſhly luſts, which war againſt the ſoul;

12 Having your converſation honeſt among the Gentiles: that whereas they ſpeak againſt you as evil-doers, they may by your good works which they ſhall behold, glorify God in the day of viſitation.

13 ¶ Submit yourſelves to every ordinance of man for the Lord's ſake: whether it be to the king, as ſupreme:

14 Or unto governors, as unto them that are ſent by him for the puniſhment of evil-doers, and for the praiſe of them that do well.

15 For ſo is the will of God, that with well-doing ye may put to ſilence the ignorance of fooliſh men:

16 As free, and not uſing your liberty for a cloke of maliciouſneſs, but as the ſervants of God.

17 Honour all men: Love the brotherhood. Fear God: Honour the king.

18 Servants, be ſubject to your maſters with all fear; not only to the good and gentle, but alſo to the froward.

19 For this is thank-worthy, if a man for conſcience toward God endure grief, ſuffering wrongfully.

20 For what glory is it, if, when ye be buffeted for your faults, ye ſhall take it patiently; but if when ye do well, and ſuffer for it, ye take it patiently, this is acceptable with God.

21 For even hereunto were ye called: becauſe Chriſt alſo ſuffered for us, leaving us an example that ye ſhould follow his ſteps:

22 Who did no ſin, neither was guile found in his mouth:

23 Who when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he ſuffered, he threatened not; but committed himſelf to him that judgeth righteouſly:

24 Who his own ſelf bare our ſins in his own body on the tree: that we being dead to ſin ſhould live unto 20 Before the foundation of the world, &c.) Who was moſt certainly intended to be the only true propitiatory ſacrifice, long before thoſe legal ſhadows of him were inſtituted; yea, who was originally appointed of God hereunto in his eternal decree, before the foundation of the earth was laid; but it was in the fulneſs of time, that he was ſent into our nature and world, (Gal. iv. 4.) and ſo was manifeſted in the fleſh, to redeem them that were under the law; and in theſe concluding days of the Jewiſh age, and in the beginning of this laſt diſpenſation of God's grace to the church, he was clearly made known, and demonſtrated to be the great and only Redeemer of loſt ſinners, which he really is, and is now openly declared to be for your eternal ſalvation.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

4 To whom coming, as unto a living ſtone, &c.) A living ſtone in the literal ſenſe may be thought an inconſiſtent idea. But as this and ſeveral other expreſſions in the following verſe are evidently metaphorical, and deſigned to ſignify Chriſt as a ſpiritual foundation, and his members as the building erected upon it, in alluſion and preference to the temple at Jeruſalem, which the Jews looked upon as their higheſt glory; there is a ſtriking beauty, vigour and emphaſis in the language, and no more impropriety in Chriſt's being ſpoken of as a living ſtone, than as living bread, and a living way, (John vi. 51. and Heb. x. 20.) To ſhew his excellence above all other bread, or ways. And the apoſtle Peter's ſpeaking of him under the metaphor of a living ſtone, ſhews that he did not account himſelf, but Chriſt only; to be the Foundation Stone of the church.

23 Who when he was reviled, reviled not again, &c.) Who when he was ſhamefully reproached, as a blaſphemer, an impoſtor, and one poſſeſſed of a diabolical ſpirit, and was contemptuouſly ſpit upon, and derided under the mock-title of a king, never returned the leaſt opprobrious language upon his inſolent and impious adverſaries: when he ſuffered the utmoſt indignities and barbarities in righteouſneſs;

righteousness: by whose stripes ye were healed.

25 For ye were as sheep going astray: but are now returned unto the shepherd and bishop of your souls.

CHAP. III.

1 He teacheth the duty of wives, and husbands; 8 exhorting all men to unity and love, 14 and to suffer persecution. 19 The benefit of Christ toward the old world.

LIKEWISE, ye wives, be in subjection to your own husbands; that if any obey not the word, they also may without the word be won by the conversation of the wives,

2 While they behold your chaste conversation coupled with fear;

3 Whose adorning let it not be that outward adornings of plaiting the hair, and of wearing of gold, or of putting on of apparel:

4 But let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price.

5 For after this manner in the old time the holy women also who trusted in God adorned themselves, being in subjection unto their own husbands;

6 Even as Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him lord: whose daughters ye are as long as ye do well, and are not afraid with any amazement.

7 Likewise, ye husbands, dwell with them according to knowledge, giving honour unto the wife as unto the weaker vessel, and as being heirs together of the grace of life; that your prayers be not hindered.

8 ¶ Finally, be ye all of one mind, having compassion one of another; love as brethren, be pitiful, be courteous:

9 Not rendering evil for evil, or railing for railing: but contrariwise, blessing; knowing that ye are thereunto called, that ye should inherit a blessing.

10 For he that will love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile:

11 Let him eschew evil, and do good; let him seek peace, and ensue it.

12 For the eyes of the Lord are over the righteous, and his ears are open unto their prayers: but the face of the Lord is against them that do evil.

13 And who is he that will harm you, if ye be followers of that which is good?

14 ¶ But and if ye suffer for righteousness' sake, happy are ye: and be not afraid of their terror, neither be troubled;

15 But sanctify the Lord God in your hearts: and be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and fear:

16 Having a good conscience; that whereas they speak evil of you as of evil doers, they may be ashamed that falsely accuse your good conversation in Christ.

17 For it is better if the will of God be so, that ye suffer for well-doing than for evil-doing.

18 For Christ also hath once suffered for sins, the just for the unjust that he might bring us to God, being put to death in the flesh, but quickened by the spirit:

19 ¶ By which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison:

20 Which sometimes were disobedient, when once the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is eight souls, were saved by water.

21 The like figure whereunto, even baptism doth also now save us (not the putting away of the filth of the flesh, but the answer of a good conscience toward God) by the resurrection of Jesus Christ:

22 Who is gone into heaven, and is on the right hand of God; angels and authorities and powers being made subject unto him.

CHAP. IV.

1 He exhorteth them to cease from sin by the example of Christ, and the consideration of the general end that now approacheth; 12 and comforteth them against persecution.

FORASMUCH then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind: for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin:

2 That he no longer should live the rest of his time in the flesh to the lusts of men, but to the will of God.

3 For the time past of our life may suffice us to have wrought the will of the Gentiles, when we walked in lasciviousness, lusts, excess of wine, revellings, banquetings, and abominable idolatries:

4 Wherein they think it strange that ye run not with them to the same excess of riot, speaking evil of you:

5 Who shall give account to him that is ready to judge the quick and the dead:

6 For, for this cause was the gospel preached also to them that are dead, that they might be judged according to men in the flesh, but live according to God in the spirit.

7 But the end of all things is at hand: be ye therefore sober, and watch unto prayer.

8 And above all things have fervent charity among yourselves: for charity shall cover the multitude of sins.

the judgment-hall, and at his death, he never discovered the least impatience, nor threatened to avenge himself, as he justly might, and easily could, upon his persecutors; but meekly and calmly referred himself and his cause to his heavenly Father; trusting in him to give righteous judgment between himself and his crucifiers; and at the same time praying, that, instead of avenging their wickedness in murdering him, he would graciously forgive them, thro' his atoning blood: See Isa. liii. 7. and Luke xxiii. 34.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

8 Finally, be ye all of one mind, &c.) As to the duties which equally concern you all in every situation of life, as believers in Christ, labour to cultivate a mutual agreement in the great doctrines and duties of the gospel, and a harmonious temper, feelingly sympathizing one with another in all afflictions; maintain and exercise an affectionate brotherly spirit in disposition, thought, word and deed towards each other, as becomes children of the same heavenly Father; shew the tenderest bowels of compassion to those that labour under weaknesses, infirmities, or troubles of any kind, whether spiritual or temporal; and let all your carriage, one towards another, and towards all men, be affable, friendly and engaging, to recommend religion to all around you, by shewing what a sweet influence it has upon your hearts and behaviour.

19 He went and preached unto the spirits in prison.) Noah may well be supposed to have preached, among other things, the righteousness of faith in the Messiah for justification; since the ark, which he was preparing for the safety of himself and family, was a significant type of salvation by Jesus Christ; and Noah is called a preacher of righteousness, 2 Pet. ii. 5. and is said to have been an heir of the righteousness of faith, Heb. xi. 7.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

8 Have fervent charity among yourselves, &c.) Let it be your governing concern to cultivate a warm, brotherly and cordial affection one towards another, Rom. xii. 9, 10. especially in perilous days, as being influenced to it by the superlative love of God

9 Use hospitality one to another without grudging.
10 As every man hath received the gift, even so minister the same one to another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God.
11 If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God; if any man minister, let him do it as of the ability which God giveth: that God in all things may be glorified through Jesus Christ: to whom be praise and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.
12 Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you:
13 But rejoice, in as much as ye are partakers of Christ's sufferings; that when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy.
14 If ye be reproached for the name of Christ, happy are ye: for the spirit of glory and of God resteth upon you. On their part he is evil spoken of, but on your part he is glorified.
15 But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evil-doer, or as a busy-body in other men's matters.
16 Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf.
17 For the time is come that judgment must begin at the house of God: and if it first begin at us; what shall the end be of them that obey not the gospel of God?
18 And if the righteous scarcely be saved, where shall the ungodly and the sinner appear?
19 Wherefore let them that suffer according to the will of God, commit the keeping of their souls to him in well-doing, as unto a faithful Creator.

CHAP. V.

1 He exhorteth the elders to feed their flocks, 5 the younger to obey, 1 all to be sober and watchful, 9 and to resist the devil.

THE elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed:
2 Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind;
3 Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock.
4 And when the chief shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away.
5 ¶ Likewise, ye younger, submit yourselves unto the elder: yea, all of you be subject one to another, and be clothed with humility. For God resisteth the proud, and giveth grace to the humble.
6 Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time:
7 Casting all your care upon him: for he careth for you.
8 ¶ Be sober, be vigilant: because your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour:
9 Whom resist stedfast in the faith, knowing that the same afflictions are accomplished in your brethren that are in the world.
10 But the God of all grace who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Christ Jesus, after that ye have suffered a while, make you perfect, stablish, strengthen, settle you.
11 To him be glory and dominion for ever and ever. Amen.
12 By Silvanus, a faithful brother unto you (as I suppose) I have written briefly, exhorting and testifying that this is the true grace of God wherein ye stand.
13 The church that is at Babylon, elected together with you, saluteth you; and so doth Marcus my son.
14 Greet ye one another with a kiss of charity. Peace be with you all that are in Christ Jesus. Amen.

in Christ to you: for as he, in the greatness of his love, has freely forgiven and covered all your trespasses, that none of them may be brought into judgement against you; Eph. iv. 32. so a sincere and ardent love in you towards one another for Christ's sake, and in obedience to his command, will inspire you with a forgiving temper toward your brethren, and hide their numerous failings from your own resentment, that ye may kindly overlook, and be careful to conceal them from, instead of exposing them to others.—1 Cor. xiii. 4—7.

18 And if the righteous scarcely be saved, &c.) The salvation, here spoken of, seems from the whole current of the context to be mostly at least, of a temporal nature: for the principal design of this chapter is to prepare and fortify believers against the severest sufferings for Christ, and the dreadful calamities that were coming upon the Jewish church and state at the conflagration of Jerusalem, which it is supposed was then within about six or seven years at hand; and, in allusion to which, the calamities of those days are called fiery trials, and the end of all things is said to be at hand, ver. vii. 12. But if we make it refer to a spiritual and eternal salvation, it is to be understood only of the extreme difficulties, troubles, sufferings and apparent dangers, through which the righteous were to pass in their way to heaven, and not of any real hazard, as to the event, with respect to the purpose promise and power of God for accomplishing it.

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

2 Feed the flock of God which is among you, &c.) These elders were to exercise the office of bishops over the flock; which shews that, though they were only ordinary pastors, they were the Christian bishops of the apostolic age, to fulfil all the duties of that office, which is one and the same in those that are spoken of as pastors or elders, who are to feed and govern the flock, which is called God's heritage ver. 3. as distinguished from pastors; and these officers are at other times described as elders, that are to behave with gravity and prudence, like aged and experienced men; and at others, as bishops, that are to take the oversight of the church: and so all these are only different denominations, taken from such like considerations of the same office, to set out the nature and extent of their charge.

THE

THE SECOND EPISTLE GENERAL OF PETER.

THE ARGUMENT.

St. Peter, in this second epistle, prosecutes the same subject he had begun in the first, in order to prevent the apostacy of the Jewish converts from the faith, on account of any persecutions they might be liable to. 1 He likewise guards them against the corrupt principles of the Gnostics, and of those who scoffed at the promise of Christ's coming, as an event which would never be verified.

CHAP. I.

5. He exhorteth them by faith and good works to make their calling sure: 12 as knowing that his death is at hand: 16 and warneth them to be constant in the faith of Christ, who is the true Son of God.

SIMON Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained like precious faith with us through the righteousness of God and our Saviour Jesus Christ:

2 Grace and peace be multiplied unto you, through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord,

3 According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue;

4 Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust.

5 ¶ And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge;

6 And to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness;

7 And to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity.

8 For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ.

9 But he that lacketh these things is blind, and cannot see afar off, and hath forgotten that he was purged from his old sins.

10 Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall:

11 For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ.

12 ¶ Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you always in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth.

13 Yea, I think it meet, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance;

14 Knowing that shortly I must put off this my tabernacle, even as our Lord Jesus Christ hath shewed me.

15 Moreover, I will endeavour that ye may be able after my decease to have these things always in remembrance.

16 ¶ For we have not followed cunningly devised

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

10 Give diligence to make your calling and election sure, &c.) The scripture usually speaks of election and calling in their proper order, as the first was from eternity, and the other is in time; one the cause, and the other the fruit or effect, according to the account given of them in Rom. viii. 29, 30. Eph. i. 3—7. and 2 Thes. ii. 13, 14. But here the apostle inverts the order, and puts our calling first, because his immediate design in this passage was not so much to discourse of the things themselves, as of our knowledge of them, and assurance concerning our own interest in them; and this knowledge can be obtained only in this order, by ascending from the effect to the cause; from our calling to election; and proving this by that: for the election of one or another particular person is an intire secret in the heart of God, till it breaks forth, and is made known by its effects. And therefore it is a vain, fruitless, unwarrantable and preposterous attempt, for any persons to puzzle themselves about their own election, before they are effectually called, or have evidence in themselves that they are so. But if their effectual calling be clearly made out, they may certainly conclude from thence that they were elected; since all, and none but the elect are so called: for otherwise their being called could not be a sure proof, that they were elected, which is the very point in the apostle's view.

fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but were eye-witnesses of his majesty.

17 For he received from God the Father honour and glory, when there came such a voice to him from the excellent glory, This is my beloved son, in whom I am well pleased.

18 And this voice which came from heaven we heard, when we were with him in the holy mount.

19 We have also a more sure word of prophecy; whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place, until the day dawn, and the day-star arise in your hearts:

20 Knowing this first, that no prophecy of the scripture is of any private interpretation.

21 For the prophecy came not in old time by the will of man: but holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Ghost.

CHAP. II.

1 He foretelleth of false teachers, 10 describeth profane seducers.

BUT there were false prophets also among the people, even as there shall be false teachers among you, who privily shall bring in damnable heresies, even denying the Lord that bought them, and bring upon themselves swift destruction.

2 And many shall follow their pernicious ways; by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of.

3 And through covetousness shall they with feigned words make merchandise of you: whose judgment now of a long time lingereth not, and their damnation slumbereth not,

4 For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness, to be reserved unto judgment;

5 And spared not the old world, but saved Noah the eighth person, a preacher of righteousness, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly;

6 And turning the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, condemned them with an overthrow, making them an ensample unto those that after should live ungodly.

7 And delivered just Lot, vexed with the filthy conversation of the wicked:

8 (For that righteous man dwelling among them, in seeing and hearing, vexed his righteous soul from day to day with their unlawful deeds:)

9 The Lord knoweth how to deliver the godly out of temptations, and to reserve the unjust unto the day of judgment to be punished:

10 ¶ But chiefly them that walk after the flesh in the lust of uncleanness, and despise government. Presumptuous are they, self-willed, they are not afraid to speak evil of dignities:

11 Whereas angels, which are greater in power and might, bring not railing accusation against them before the Lord,

12 But these as natural brute beasts, made to be taken and destroyed, speak evil of the things that they understand not, and shall utterly perish in their own corruption:

13 And shall receive the reward of unrighteousness, as they that count it pleasure to riot in the day-time; spots they are and blemishes, sporting themselves with their own deceivings while they feast with you:

14 Having eyes full of adultery, and that cannot cease from sin; beguiling unstable souls: an heart they have exercised with covetous practices; cursed children,

15 Which have forsaken the right way, and are gone astray, following the way of Balaam the son of Bosor, who loved the wages of unrighteousness;

16 But was rebuked for his iniquity: the dumb ass speaking with man's voice forbad the madness of the prophet.

17 These are wells without water, clouds that are carried with a tempest: to whom the mist of darkness is reserved for ever.

18 For when they speak great swelling words of vanity, they allure through the lusts of the flesh, through much wantonness, those that were clean escaped from them who live in error.

19 While they promise them liberty, they themselves are the servants of corruption: for of whom a man is overcome, of the same is he brought in bondage.

20 For if after they have escaped the pollutions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, they are again entangled therein and overcome, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning.

21 For it had been better for them not to have known the way of righteousness, than, after they have known it, to turn from the holy commandment delivered unto them.

22 But it is happened unto them according to the true proverb, The dog is turned to his own vomit again; and, The sow that was washed, to her wallowing in the mire.

---

19 We have also a more sure word of prophecy, &c.) This is not to be understood, as though the word of prophecy were in itself more certain than the glorious attestation which was given to Christ from heaven in the sight and hearing of the apostles; or as though this, as far as it went and was reported by the apostles, were not to be as fully credited as that. But it was a more certain and indisputable proof of Christ's second appearing with power and great glory, than could be gathered from what passed in the mount, according to the ingenious and judicious sense, in which Dr. Sherlock, late bishop of London, has taken it, in his discourse on prophecy, page 20—22. where he observes, that the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ is the only point here in question: and so it is, as though the apostle should say, it is a great presumption that Christ shall come in glory, that we have already seen him glorified; and it is a further evidence of his power to deliver his servants, since God has openly declared him to be his well-beloved Son. But to assure us that he will indeed so come, and so use his power, we have a more sure word of prophecy, i. e. we have the very word of God, (speaking by his prophets) to whom all futurity is known, to assure us of the certainty of this future event.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

5 But saved Noah the eighth person, &c.) Noah was the tenth from Adam, as appears by the genealogy in Luke iii. 36—38. and therefore the eighth person cannot mean the eighth from him, but the eighth of them, or the head of the eight, that were saved in the ark, which were his wife, and his three sons and their wives, together with himself, for whose sake they were preserved, Gen. vi. 8—10. compared with chap. vii. 7. And therefore the apostle might particularly mention him as the eighth.

16 But was rebuked for his iniquity, &c.) Though Balaam had once and again said, that he could not go beyond the word of the Lord, and was constrained to refuse Balak's offer; yet it appears from the whole history of him in Numbers, (see chap. xxii. xxiii.) that his covetous heart was so set upon the offered bribe, as to make him earnestly desirous, and exceeding restless in attempts, to get a dispensation of God's express command that he should not go with Balak's messengers to curse Israel: and he certainly would have cursed them, had not God invincibly over-ruled his mind, and restrained him from it, contrary to his own inclination: and when he could not carry his point, he gave such wicked counsel, as was the means of drawing Israel into a provoking trespass against the Lord, which brought a dreadful plague upon them, as appears from Numb. xxvi. 16. and Rev. ii, 14.

CHAP. III.

1 The certainty of Christ's coming to judgment. 10 The manner how the world shall be destroyed. 11 An exhortation to godliness.

THIS second epistle, beloved, I now write unto you; in both which I stir up your pure minds by way of remembrance:

2 That ye may be mindful of the words which were spoken before by the holy prophets, and of the commandment of us the apostles of the Lord and Saviour:

3 Knowing this first, that there shall come in the last days scoffers, walking after their own lusts,

4 And saying, Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation.

5 For this they willingly are ignorant of, that by the word of God, the heavens were of old, and the earth standing out of the water, and in the water.

6 Whereby the world that then was, being overflowed with water, perished.

7 But the heavens and the earth which are now, by the same word are kept in store, reserved unto fire against the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men.

8 But beloved, be not ignorant of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day.

9 The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some men count slackness; but is long-suffering to us-ward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance.

10 ¶ But the day of the Lord will come as a thief in the night, in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat, the earth also, and the works that are therein shall be burned up.

11 ¶ Seeing then that all these things shall be dissolved, what manner of persons ought ye to be in all holy conversation and godliness;

12 Looking for and hasting unto the coming of the day of God, wherein the heavens being on fire shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt with fervent heat?

13 Nevertheless we, according to his promise, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteousness.

14 Wherefore, beloved, seeing that ye look for such things, be diligent that ye may be found of him in peace, without spot and blameless.

15 And account that the long-suffering of our Lord is salvation; even as our beloved brother Paul also, according to the wisdom given unto him, hath written unto you;

16 As also in all his epistles speaking in them of these things; in which are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable, wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction.

17 Ye therefore, beloved, seeing ye know these things before, beware lest ye also, being led away with the error of the wicked, fall from your own stedfastness.

18 But grow in grace, and in the knowledge of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ: to him be glory both now and for ever. Amen.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

9 Not willing that any should perish, &c.) As the persons here meant by all, are such as the apostle ranked himself with, and are all along in this chapter, distinguished from scoffers and ungodly men, ver. 3—7. God's not willing that any should perish, &c. seems to refer to those who are often called beloved in the context, and particularly in the preceding verse, which may naturally include, at least, their being beloved of God, as it is expressed Rom. i. 7. and who had been spoken of as having obtained like precious faith at the beginning of this epistle, chap. i. 1. and stiled elect, according to the foreknowledge of God the Father. 1 epistle i. 2. And as it cannot reasonably be thought that the long suffering of God was designed for the salvation of those scoffers and ungodly men, who are reserved for destruction, together with the heavens and the earth, against the day of judgment, ver. 7. so his long-suffering to us-ward may best be understood as relating to the elect, inclusive of those of them that were still to be called in their successive generations, who, as one body, or one sort of people, may be spoken of by the apostle in the first person plural as the whole church, inclusive of those that shall be alive at the second coming of Christ; are in 1 Thes. iv. 15—17. Accordingly, the design of God in his long-suffering toward them is, that none of them should perish, but that all of them should come to repentance in their proper season.

13 Look for new heavens and a new earth, &c.) New heavens and a new earth, in the stile of the prophet Isaiah are, strong figures to represent the glorious change, that should be made in the affairs of the church under the gospel dispensation, with an ultimate reference to the much more glorious state of things that we look for, as to be introduced at the last day: and, possibly, new heavens and a new earth, of a more refined and excellent nature than the present, may in a literal sense be created, out of the dissolved materials, to be the habitation of the saints for ever. But, whatever the meaning be, they are to succeed the dissolution of the present frame of the heavens and the earth by fire, and the day of judgment, ver. 10—13. and therefore seem to have no relation to the thousand years of Christ's glorious reign on earth, which is to precede these great events.

16 They that are unlearned and unstable wrest, &c.) They that are unlearned don't here mean illiterate persons, according to our common use of that word; but it is to be understood of those that are strangers to all true principles of religion, or fluctuating in their notions about it, through the corruptions of their own hearts, and so some things in the apostle Paul's writings were hard for them to understand, because they could not relish them, as well as that there were others of too spiritual and sublime a nature for their injudicious and carnal minds to take in, or indeed for any finite mind fully to comprehend. But this is no argument either against the perspicuity of scripture, especially in things that are necessary to salvation, or against the common people's reading them; for though the apostle says, that some things in Paul's epistles, he does not say the epistles themselves, or that many, much less all of them, are hard to be understood, but gives an honourable testimony to him and his epistles, as his beloved brother, who had wrote them according to the wisdom that God had given him; and it is supposed that these unlearned persons did read them, or at least heard them read, which he does not blame them for, but only for their making a bad use of them, as many do of the best and most necessary things in the world, by perverting them to their own destruction.

FIRST EPISTLE GENERAL OF

J O H N.

THE ARGUMENT.

This firſt epiſtle of John, the apoſtle and evangeliſt, which was anciently entitled To the Parthians, has always been received by the church as genuine. Though no inſcription nor direction is to it, yet it appears, by the beginning of Chapter II. to be a catholic or general epiſtle, addreſſed not to one, but many chriſtians. It is probable he wrote it towards the end of his life, and a little before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem; becauſe he ſpeaks of the laſt hour, as now at hand, which is generally underſtood to be the laſt times of the Jewiſh ſtate; and becauſe of the many antichriſts and falſe prophets which were then amongſt them; ſuch as Chriſt had foretold, Matth. xxiv. 24. were immediately to precede that deſtruction. This epiſtle, for matter and ſtyle, is much like the ſame apoſtle's goſpel.

CHAP. I.

He deſcribeth the perſon of Chriſt, in whom we have eternal life by a communion with God: to which we muſt adjoin holineſs.

THAT which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have ſeen with our eyes, which we have looked upon, and our hands have handled of the word of life;

2 (For the life was manifeſted, and we have ſeen it, and bear witneſs, and ſhew unto you that eternal life which was with the Father, and was manifeſted unto us:)

3 That which we have ſeen and heard, declare we unto you, that ye alſo may have fellowſhip with us: and truly our fellowſhip is with the Father, and with his Son Jeſus Chriſt.

4 And theſe things write we unto you, that our joy may be full.

5 ¶ This then is the meſſage which we have heard of him, and declare unto you, That God is light, and in him is no darkneſs at all.

6 If we ſay that we have fellowſhip with him, and walk in darkneſs, we lie, and do not the truth.

7 But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowſhip one with another, and the blood of Jeſus Chriſt his Son cleanſeth us from all ſin.

8 If we ſay that we have no ſin, we deceive ourſelves, and the truth is not in us.

9 If we confeſs our ſins, he is faithful and juſt to forgive us our ſins, and to cleanſe us from all unrighteouſneſs.

10 If we ſay that we have not ſinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us.

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1 That which was from the beginning, &c.) Though from the beginning, and in the beginning as we have it John i. 1. are ſomewhat different expreſſions, yet as Chriſt is here ſtiled in the next verſe eternal Life, it is natural to take in his eternal exiſtence, correſpondent to this apoſtle's aſſertion of it, John i, 1. and ye have have known him that is from the beginning, chap. ii. 13, 14. whether applied to the Father or Son, evidently relates to his eternal exiſtence; and our apoſtle ſpeaks of names that were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world, Rev. xvii. 8. which means from eternity; accordingly we may take that which was from the beginning to relate to the eternal deity of Chriſt, rather than to the beginning of the goſpel diſpenſation, though it may bear the laſt of theſe ſenſes in ſome other parts of this epiſtle.

8 If we ſay that we have no Sin, we deceive ourſelves, &c.) As ſin came into the world with us, and can't be utterly extirpated till we die out of it, if any of us, who pretend to be cleanſed by the blood of Chriſt, are ſo ignorant, proud and vain, as to imagine that, in this preſent ſtate of weakneſs and mortality by reaſon of ſin, we are ſo thoroughly cleanſed from it, as to have no remainders of its workings in us, we certainly deceive our own ſouls; and neither the truth of God's word, which abundantly declares the contrary, nor any true light of knowledge, grace or holineſs is found in us.

CHAP. II.

1 Comfort againſt ſins of infirmity. 3 To know God, is to keep his commandments. 18 To beware of ſeducers. 20 From whoſe deceits the godly are ſafely preſerved by faith and holineſs of life.

MY little children, theſe things write I unto you, that ye ſin not. And if any man ſin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the righteous:

2 And he is the propitiation for our ſins: and not for ours only, but alſo for the ſins of the whole world.

3 ¶ And hereby we do know that we know him, if we keep his commandments.

4 He that ſaith, I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him.

5 But whoſo keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected. Hereby know we that we are in him.

6 He that ſaith he abideth in him, ought himſelf alſo ſo to walk even as he walked.

7 Brethren, I write no new commandment unto you, but an old commandment which ye had from the beginning. The old commandment is the word which ye have heard from the beginning.

8 Again, a new commandment I write unto you: which thing is true in him and in you: becauſe the darkneſs is paſt, and the true light now ſhineth.

9 He that ſaith he is in the light, and hateth his brother, is in darkneſs even until now.

10 He that loveth his brother abideth in the light, and there is none occaſion of ſtumbling in him.

11 But he that hateth his brother is in darkneſs, and walketh in darkneſs, and knoweth not whither he goeth, becauſe that darkneſs hath blinded his eyes.

12 I write unto you, little children, becauſe your ſins are forgiven you for his name's ſake.

13 I write unto you, fathers, becauſe ye have known him that is from the beginning. I write unto you, young men, becauſe ye have overcome the wicked one. I write unto you little children, becauſe ye have known the Father.

14 I have written unto you, fathers, becauſe ye have known him that is from the beginning. I have written unto you, young men, becauſe ye are ſtrong, and the word of God abideth in you, and ye have overcome the wicked one.

15 Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him.

16 For all that is in the world, the luſt of the fleſh, and the luſt of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world.

17 And the world paſſeth away, and the luſt thereof: but he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever.

18 ¶ Little children, it is the laſt time: and as ye have heard that antichriſt ſhall come, even now are there many antichriſts; whereby we know that it is the laſt time.

19 They went out from us, but they were not of us: for if they had been of us, they would no doubt have continued with us: but they went out, that they might be made manifeſt that they were not all of us.

20 ¶ But ye have an unction from the Holy One, and ye know all things.

21 I have not written unto you becauſe ye know not the truth: but becauſe ye know it, and that no lie is of the truth.

22 Who is a liar but he that denieth that Jeſus is the Chriſt? He is antichriſt that denieth the Father and the Son.

23 Whoſoever denieth the Son, the ſame hath not the Father: (but) he that acknowledgeth the Son, hath the Father alſo.

24 Let that therefore abide in you, which ye have heard from the beginning. If that which ye have heard from the beginning ſhall remain in you, ye alſo ſhall continue in the Son and in the Father.

25 And this is the promiſe that he hath promiſed us, even eternal life.

26 Theſe things have I written unto you concerning them that ſeduce you:

27 But the anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any man teach you; but as the ſame anointing teacheth you of all things, and is truth, and is no lie, and even as it hath taught you, ye ſhall abide in him.

28 And now, little children, abide in him; that when he ſhall appear, we may have confidence, and not be aſhamed before him at his coming.

29 If ye know that he is righteous, ye know that every one that doeth righteouſneſs is born of him.

CHAP. III.

1 He declareth the ſingular love of God towards us in making us his ſons: 3 we therefore ought obediently to keep his commandments, 11 as alſo brotherly to love one another.

BEHOLD what manner of love the Father hath beſtowed upon us, that we ſhould be called the

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

1 My little children, theſe things write I unto you, &c.) My little children is an appellation by which our apoſtle often addreſſes the whole body of theſe Chriſtians, and ſo it is moſtly to be underſtood, not as a term of diſtinction of younger and weaker, from older and ſtronger believers, as in ver. 12, 13, but as a term of tenderneſs and endearment, as our bleſſed Lord himſelf uſed it to his diſciples, John xiii. 33; and perhaps many whom the apoſtle wrote to were converted by his miniſtry, which engaged his moſt affectionate love to them; and as he was by this time an old man, it was the more decent, and befitting his age, to ſpeak to all believers under this title.

23 Whoſoever denieth the Son, the ſame hath not the Father, &c.) The laſt part of this verſe, which ſtands in different characters, is wanting in moſt Greek copies, but is ſupplied from ſome others of good credit, and from ſeveral verſions; and is reaſonably ſuppoſed to have been dropt through careleſſneſs where it is left out, rather than foiſtered into the text by a wickedly deſigning interpolation.

27 Ye need not that any man teach you, &c.) This cannot be ſaid with a deſign of excluding the uſe of the miniſterial inſtruction; for the apoſtle was at this very time giving it to them, but it either relates to their having no need to be taught the fundamental doctrines of the goſpel, which they were already well acquainted with; or rather, to their having no need to be taught any doctrines of Chriſtian religion by theſe falſe pretenders to it, who induſtriouſly ſet themſelves to pervert it.

29 If ye know that he is righteous, &c.) This is the hope we have concerning you now; and ſince as we truſt, ye have right thoughts of Chriſt, as the righteous and holy one, who loves righteouſneſs and hates iniquity, Pſ. xlv. 7. and is the author of all righteouſneſs in others, wherever it is found; ye may from thence aſſuredly conclude with an application to yourſelves, that every one, who, like him, is a lover and practiſer of thoſe things that are right and holy, in imitation of him, and from a principle of faith in, and love to him, is partaker of a divine nature, by his regenerating Spirit, and ſo is by the new birth, as well as by gracious adoption, a child of God, and heir of eternal glory. Rom. viii. 14—17.

ſons of God. Therefore the world knoweth us not, becauſe it knew him not.

2 Beloved, now are we the ſons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we ſhall be: but we know that when he ſhall appear, we ſhall be like him; for we ſhall ſee him as he is.

3 ¶ And every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himſelf, even as he is pure.

4 Whoſoever committeth ſin tranſgreſſeth alſo the law: for ſin is the tranſgreſſion of the law.

5 And ye know that he was manifeſted to take away our ſins: and in him is no ſin.

6 Whoſoever abideth in him, ſinneth not: whoſoever ſinneth hath not ſeen him, neither known him.

7 Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteouſneſs is righteous, even as he is righteous.

8 He that committeth ſin is of the devil: for the devil ſinneth from the beginning. For this purpoſe the Son of God was manifeſted, that he might deſtroy the works of the devil.

9 Whoſoever is born of God doth not commit ſin; for his ſeed remaineth in him: and he cannot ſin, becauſe he is born of God.

10 In this the children of God are manifeſt, and the children of the devil: whoſoever doth not righteouſneſs is not of God, neither he that loveth not his brother.

11 ¶ For this is the meſſage that ye heard from the beginning, That we ſhould love one another.

12 Not as Cain, who was of that wicked one, and ſlew his brother. And wherefore ſlew he him? becauſe his own works were evil and his brother's righteous.

13 Marvel not, my brethren, if the world hate you.

14 We know that we have paſſed from death unto life, becauſe we love the brethren; he that loveth not his brother abideth in death.

15 Whoſoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him.

16 Hereby perceive we the love of God, becauſe he laid down his life for us: and we ought to lay down our lives for the brethren.

17 But whoſo hath this world's good, and ſeeth his brother have need, and ſhutteth up his bowels of compaſſion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?

18 My little children, let us not love in word, neither in tongue: but in deed and in truth.

19 And hereby we know that we are of the truth, and ſhall aſſure our hearts before him.

20 For if our heart condemn us, God is greater than our heart and knoweth all things.

21 Beloved, if our heart condemn us not, then have we confidence towards God.

22 And whatſoever we aſk, we receive of him, becauſe we keep his commandments, and do thoſe things that are pleaſing in his ſight.

23 And this is his commandment, That we ſhould believe on the name of his Son Jeſus Chriſt, and love one another, as he gave us commandment.

24 And he that keepeth his commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him, and hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us.

CHAP. IV.

1 He warneth them not to believe all teachers; 7 exhorteth to brotherly love.

BELOVED, believe not every ſpirit, but try the ſpirits whether they are of God: becauſe many falſe prophets are gone out into the world.

2 Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: Every ſpirit that confeſſeth that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh, is of God.

3 And every Spirit that confeſſeth not that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh, is not of God; and this is that ſpirit of antichriſt, whereof ye have heard that it ſhould come, and even now already is it in the world.

4 Ye are of God, little children, and have overcome them; becauſe greater is he that is in you, than he that is in the world.

5 They are of the world: therefore ſpeak they of the world, and the world heareth them.

6 We are of God: he that knoweth God heareth us; he that is not of God, heareth not us; hereby know we the ſpirit of truth, and the ſpirit of error.

7 ¶ Beloved, let us love one another; for love is of God; and every one that loveth is born of God.

8 He that loveth not, knoweth not God; for God is love.

9 In this was manifeſted the love of God toward us, becauſe that God ſent his only begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him.

10 Herein is love, not that we loved God, but that he loved us, and ſent his Son to be the propitiation for our ſins.

11 Beloved, if God ſo loved us, we ought alſo to love one another.

12 No man hath ſeen God at any time. If we love one another, God dwelleth in us, and his love is perfected in us.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

6 Whoſoever abideth in him, ſinneth not, &c.) From hence it plainly follows, that whoever abides in him by vital and influential union and communion with him, as all true believers do, like branches in the vine, John xv. 5. doth not deliberately, habitually, preſumptuouſly and willingly ſin: he that ſinneth at this rate, has never had any realizing view by faith of him, nor any experimental and ſaving acquaintance or communion with him.

20 For if our heart condemn us, &c.) For if our conſciences, which are the candle of the Lord ſearching all the inward parts of the belly, Prov. xx. 27. witneſs againſt, accuſe and condemn us for deſigned or allowed hypocriſy in our profeſſions of love, and of adherence to the truth of the goſpel, it is very awful to conſider as we ought, that the heart-ſearching God is an infinitely higher, more impartial, and critical judge of the true ſtate of our caſe, and is greater in purity and holineſs, as well as in power to condemn all iniquity, than our own hearts can be; and it is moſt dreadful of all to be diſapproved of him, whoſe judgment muſt and will ſtand for ever, and who has a perfectly comprehenſive knowledge of all things, even of the moſt ſecret thoughts and intents of the heart. 1 Kings viii. 39 and Rev. ii. 23. And therefore he not only confirms the ſentence which conſcience juſtly paſſes in his name, but ſees and condemns many things in us, that eſcape our own obſervation.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

3 And every ſpirit that confeſſeth not, &c.) Every pretender to preach by the inſpiration of the Spirit, that do not believe and own, but denies that Jeſus Chriſt is the only true Meſſiah, who as the eternal Son of God has aſſumed a real human body, as well as reaſonable ſoul, and taken upon him the form of a ſervant, and become obedient unto death (Phil. ii. 7, 8.) for the redemption of his people, ſuch an one is neither ſent nor approved of God, nor enlightened by his Spirit, nor born of him; and the ſpirit by which he is governed, is that very ſpirit of oppoſition to Chriſt and his goſpel, concerning which ye have heard from our Lord and his apoſtles, that it would riſe and ſhew itſelf in the laſt days; and it has now actually begun to appear and work in the world among the impoſtors of this day.

12 No man hath ſeen God at any time, &c.) God himſelf is an inviſible ſpirit, whom no man has ſeen, or can ſee with bodily 13 Hereby know we that we dwell in him, and he in us, becauſe he hath given us of his Spirit.

14 And we have ſeen and do teſtify that the Father ſent the Son to be the Saviour of the world.

15 Whoſoever ſhall confeſs that Jeſus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him, and he in God.

16 And we have known and believed the love that God hath to us. God is love: and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him.

17 Herein is our love made perfect, that we may have boldneſs in the day of judgment: becauſe as he is, ſo are we in this world.

18 There is no fear in love; but perfect love caſteth out fear: becauſe fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love.

19 We love him becauſe he firſt loved us.

20 If a man ſay, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath ſeen, how can he love God whom he hath not ſeen.

21 And this commandment have we from him, That he who loveth God, love his brother alſo.

CHAP. V.

1 He that loveth God, loveth his children, and keepeth his commandments; 3 which to the faithful are light and not grievous. 9 Jeſus is the Son of God, able to ſave us, 14 and to hear our prayers, which we make for ourſelves and for others.

WHOSOEVER believeth that Jeſus is the Chriſt, is born of God: and every one that loveth him that begat, loveth him alſo that is begotten of him.

2 By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep his commandments.

3 ¶ For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments: and his commandments are not grievous.

4 For whatſoever is born of God overcometh the world: and this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith.

5 Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jeſus is the Son of God?

6 This is he that came by water and blood, even Jeſus Chriſt: not by water only, but by water and blood. And it is the Spirit that beareth witneſs, becauſe the Spirit is truth.

7 For there are three that bear record in heaven; the Father, the Word, and the Holy Ghoſt: and theſe three are one.

8 And there are three that bear witneſs in earth; the Spirit and the water, and the blood: and theſe three agree in one.

9 ¶ If we receive the witneſs of men, the witneſs of God is greater: for this is the witneſs of God which he hath teſtified of his Son.

10 He that believeth on the Son of God, hath the witneſs in himſelf: he that believeth not God, hath made him a liar, becauſe he believeth not the record that God gave of his Son.

11 And this is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life: and this life is in his Son.

12 He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life.

13 Theſe things have I written unto you that believe on the name of the Son of God; that ye may know that ye have eternal life, and that ye may believe on the name of the Son of God.

14 ¶ And this is the confidence that we have in him, that if we aſk any thing according to his will, he heareth us.

15 And if we know that he hear us, whatſoever we aſk, we know that we have the petitions that we deſired of him.

16 If any man ſee his brother ſin a ſin which is not unto death, he ſhall aſk, and he ſhall give him life for them that ſin not unto death. There is a ſin unto death: I do not ſay that he ſhall pray for it.

17 All unrighteouſneſs is ſin: and there is a ſin not unto death.

18 We know that whoſoever is born of God ſinneth not; but he that is begotten of God keepeth himſelf, and that wicked one toucheth him not.

19 And we know that we are of God, and the whole world lieth in wickedneſs.

20 And we know that the Son of God is come, and hath given us an underſtanding, that we may know him that is true; and we are in him that is true, even in his Son Jeſus Chriſt. This is the true God and eternal life.

21 Little children, keep yourſelves from idols. Amen.

eyes, (1 Tim. vi. 16.) to move his affection to him; but the objects of his love, who bear his holy image, are viſible, daily ſeen and converſed with, that we might be induced to teſtify our love to him, by ſhewing it for his ſake to them, ſee ver. 20. If therefore we love one another, as children of his own likeneſs, that is a proof of our love to him, and it hereby appears that he dwells in us by his Spirit to produce this love; and both his love to us as hereby manifeſted itſelf, and attained its end and deſign to a good degree in us; and our love to him is hereby brought to its true form, and exerciſed with eminence, and is proved to be ſincere in us.

20 If a man ſay, I love God, &c.) This love to God is ſo inſeparably connected with love to his children, that if any one pretends to ſay, I love God, and at the ſame time bears an uncharitable, irreconcileable and malicious temper toward his Chriſtian brother, he acts inconſiſtently with, and gives the lie to his own profeſſion, and to all that the holy ſcriptures ſay about ſincere love to God, which includes a love to all that bear his image and belong to him: for whoever he be that has not a cordial affection to his brother in the faith and fellowſhip of the goſpel, whom he hath ſeen with his bodily eyes, in whom he may alſo ſee viſible traces of the image of God, and who is an object daily preſented to his ſenſes, to raiſe his eſteem of him, and move his compaſſion and kindneſs to him, as occaſion require; how is it likely, or even poſſible, that he ſhould heartily love God, who is inviſible to mortal eyes, and makes no impreſſion of himſelf upon the external ſenſes, to affect the heart and engage its love to him, which can never be ſincere without a conſcientious reſpect to all his commandments? (ſee chap. v. 3.)

Commentary on Chap. V.

7 For there are three that bear record in heaven, &c.) For there are three divine perſons, the habitation of whoſe glory is in heaven, that bear their united teſtimony to the incarnate Saviour from thence. The firſt is God the Father, who ſaid of Chriſt at his baptiſm and transfiguration, Mat. iii. 17. and xvii. 5. this is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleaſed; and Rom. i. 4. declared him to be the Son of God with power, by the reſurrection from the dead: the ſecond is the eternal uncreated Word himſelf, who ever was God with the father, and ſaid, I and my Father are one, (John x. 30.) and often aſſerted his office, as well as divine character in the plaineſt terms, and appealed for the truth of it to the miracles which he wrought by his own power, and particularly to his raiſing himſelf from the dead: (John ii. 19.) the third of theſe heavenly witneſſes is the Holy Spirit, who gave abundant atteſtations to our bleſſed Lord, as the only Saviour, by his viſible deſcent upon him at his baptiſm, (Luke iii. 22.) and by his coming from the exalted Meſſiah in heaven to bear witneſs to him, and to ſpread his name, kingdom and glory in the world. And theſe three heavenly witneſſes, though perſonally diſtinct in a manner that infinitely tranſcends all our ideas, are eſſentially one divine being, one thing or one God, in diſtinction from, and in oppoſition to all nominal or pretended deities, which by nature are no gods. Col. iv. 8.

SECOND EPISTLE OF

J O H N.

THE ARGUMENT.

That John the apoſtle, and diſciple of our Saviour, who wrote the firſt, penned alſo this ſecond epiſtle, ſeems evident from the exact agreement of ſeveral paſſages of this with the former epiſtle, even word for word. It is directed to the elect lady: by which ſome underſtand a lady named Electa; others ſome lady of dignity and diſtinction, and others again, an elect or choſen church, and that ſome Jewiſh church, metaphorically ſtyled lady. Whoever ſhe be, the apoſtle congratulates her, becauſe her children led a Chriſtian life. He cautions her likewiſe to beware of impoſtors, who denied that Chriſt was come in the fleſh.

1 He exhorteth a matron to perſevere in Chriſtian faith.

THE elder unto the elect lady, and her children whom I love in the truth; and not I only, but alſo all they that have known the truth;

2 For the truth's ſake which dwelleth in us, and ſhall be with us for ever:

3 Grace be with you, mercy, and peace from God the Father, and from the Lord Jeſus Chriſt the Son of the Father, in truth and love.

4 I rejoiced greatly that I found of thy children walking in truth, as we have received a commandment from the Father.

5 And now I beſeech thee, lady, not as though I wrote a new commandment unto thee, but that which we had from the beginning, That we love another.

6 And this is love that we walk after his commandments. This is the commandment, That as ye have heard from the beginning ye ſhould walk in it.

7 For many deceivers are entered into the world, who confeſs not that Jeſus Chriſt is come in the fleſh. This is a deceiver and an antichriſt.

8 ¶ Look to yourſelves, that we loſe not thoſe things which we have wrought, but that we receive a full reward.

9 Whoſoever tranſgreſſeth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Chriſt, hath not God; he that abideth in the doctrine of Chriſt, he hath both the Father and the Son.

10 ¶ If there come any unto you and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your houſe, neither bid him God ſpeed.

11 For he that biddeth him God ſpeed, is partaker of his evil deeds.

12 Having many things to write unto you, I would not write with paper and ink: but I truſt to come unto you, and ſpeak face to face that our joy may be full.

13 The children of thy elect ſiſter greet thee. Amen.

COMMENTARY on II. John.

10 Neither bid him God ſpeed.) To bid one God ſpeed was a friendly ſalutation among the antients; and the forbidding this to be uſed to ſuch as propagate fundamental errors, contrary to the doctrine of Chriſt, is generally thought to allude to the Jews forbidding to have familiar correſpondence with excommunicated perſons, who were to be treated like Heathen men and Publicans, as our Lord alſo directed the proceedings of his church, Matth. xviii. 17. againſt obſtinate offenders, with whom the apoſtle Paul ſays they were not to eat. 1 Cor. v. 9—11. And the ſtory is well known which Euſebius relates from Irenæus, in his eccleſiaſtical hiſtory, where he ſays, "The apoſtle John going into the bath at Epheſus to waſh himſelf, and ſeeing Cerinthus there, a notorious heretic, leaped out of the bath unwaſhed, ſaying, that he feared leſt the bath ſhould fall down, when Cerinthus, the enemy of truth, was in it; and Polycarp one of John's diſciples, meeting at a certain time with Marcian, who ſaid to him, acknowledge me, he anſwered, I know thee to be the firſt-born of Satan." So greatly were the apoſtles and their diſciples afraid of countenancing and freely converſing with any that had groſsly adulterated the truth, even as Paul ſays, a heretic, after the firſt and ſecond admonition, reject. Titus iii. 10.

THIRD EPISTLE OF

J O H N.

THE ARGUMENT.

In this epiſtle to Gaius, the apoſtle expreſſes his concern for his proſperity, his joy in the honourable character he maintained for Chriſtian candour, hoſpitality, and zeal; he cautions him againſt the turbulent practices of Diotrephes, and, recommending Demetrius to his friendſhip, refers what he had further to ſay to a perſonal interview.

1 He commendeth Gaius for his piety, 5 and hoſpitality, 7 to true preachers.

THE elder unto the well-beloved Gaius, whom I love in the truth.

2 Beloved, I wiſh above all things that thou mayeſt proſper and be in health, even as thy ſoul proſpereth.

3 For I rejoiced greatly when the brethren came, and teſtified of the truth that is in thee, even as thou walkeſt in the truth.

4 I have no greater joy than to hear that my children walk in truth.

5 ¶ Beloved, thou doeſt faithfully whatſoever thou doeſt to the brethren, and to ſtrangers;

6 Which have borne witneſs of thy charity before the church: whom if thou bring forward on their journey after a godly ſort, thou ſhalt do well:

7 Becauſe that for his name's ſake they went forth, taking nothing of the Gentiles.

8 We therefore ought to receive ſuch, that we might be fellow-helpers to the truth.

9 I wrote unto the church; but Diotrephes who loveth to have the pre-eminence among them, receiveth us not.

10 Wherefore, if I come, I will remember his deeds which he doeth, prating againſt us with malicious words; and not content therewith, neither doth he himſelf receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would, and caſteth them out of the church.

11 Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God: but he that doeth evil hath not ſeen God.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, and of the truth itſelf: yea, and we alſo bear record; and ye know that our record is true.

13 I had many things to write, but I will not with ink and pen write unto thee:

14 But I truſt I ſhall ſhortly ſee thee, and we ſhall ſpeak face to face. Peace be to thee. Our friends ſalute thee. Greet the friends by name.

COMMENTARY on III. JOHN.

2 That thou mayſt proſper and be in health, &c.) It is probable that Gaius was of a ſickly conſtitution, and met with loſſes, or entanglements in ſecular affairs, through perſecutions for the ſake of Chriſt, which were a reſtraint upon ſome more eminent degrees of publick ſervices, that he might otherwiſe have gone into. This therefore was the beſt wiſh that the apoſtle could make for Gaius. But to wiſh that proſperity of ſoul may be the meaſure of proſperity in health and worldly affairs to the greateſt part of mankind, would be to imprecate a curſe inſtead of deſiring a bleſſing upon them.

12 Demetrius hath good report of all men, &c.) What Demetrius this was, or whether he were a miniſter, or private member, or officer of the church, is unknown to us; though it was well known, and he was honourably ſpoken of, in thoſe days: and, by the apoſtle's character of him he appears to have been an exemplary Chriſtian, particularly for hoſpitality; and on that, as well as on other accounts, a pattern of good works worthy of imitation.

THE

GENERAL EPISTLE OF

J U D E.

THE ARGUMENT.

The apoſtle Jude, the author of this epiſtle, ſtiles himſelf the brother of James, (ver. 1.) and was called the ſon of Alpheus and Mary, and own brother to James the leſs, (Luke vi. 16. and Mark xv. 40.) to diſtinguiſh him from Judas Iſcariot, who infamouſly betrayed his Lord, accordingly our apoſtle is called Judas, not Iſcariot. John xiv. 22.

His principal deſign in writing this epiſtle was to caution and fortify the Jewiſh converts, perhaps, as Dr. Lightfoot thinks, thoſe eſpecially of Judea, againſt being drawn into apoſtacy by means of the falſe teachers that had aroſe, and were very buſy among them, to ſubvert the foundation of Chriſtianity. And as the argument of this is much the ſame with, eſpecially the ſecond chapter of the ſecond epiſtle of Peter, it is generally thought to have been wrote about the ſame time, three or four years before the deſtruction of Jeruſalem; and great aſſiſtance may be gathered for underſtanding one of them by comparing it with the other.

1 He exhorteth them to be conſtant in the faith. 4 Falſe teachers are crept in.

JUDE, the ſervant of Jeſus Chriſt, and brother of James, to them that are ſanctified by God the Father, and preſerved in Jeſus Chriſt, and called:

2 Mercy unto you, and peace, and love be multiplied.

3 Beloved, when I gave all diligence to write unto you of the common ſalvation, it was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye ſhould earneſtly contend for the faith that was once delivered unto the ſaints.

4 ¶ For there are certain men crept in unawares, who were before of old ordained to this condemnation; ungodly men, turning the grace of our God into laſciviouſneſs, and denying the only Lord God, and our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

5 I will therefore put you in remembrance, though ye once knew this, how that the Lord having ſaved the people out of the land of Egypt, afterward deſtroyed them that believed not.

6 And the angels which kept not their firſt eſtate, but left their own habitation, he hath reſerved in everlaſting chains under darkneſs unto the judgment of the great day.

7 Even as Sodom and Gomorrah, and the cities about them in like manner giving themſelves over to fornication, and going after ſtrange fleſh, are ſet forth for an example, ſuffering the vengeance of eternal fire.

8 Likewiſe alſo theſe filthy dreamers defile the fleſh, deſpiſe dominion, and ſpeak evil of dignities.

9 Yet Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil he diſputed about the body of Moſes, durſt not bring againſt him a railing accuſation, but ſaid, The Lord rebuke thee.

10 But theſe ſpeak evil of thoſe things which they know not: but what they know naturally, as brute beaſts, in thoſe things they corrupt themſelves.

11 Woe unto them, for they have gone in the way

COMMENTARY ON JUDE.

9 Michael the archangel, when contending with the devil, &c.) Some by Michael underſtand Chriſt himſelf, and others, the moſt eminent of all the holy angels. And Dr. Lightfoot tells us, that "among the Talmudicks there ſeems to be ſomething like the relicts of the ſtory here referred to, viz. of Michael, and the angel of death diſputing or diſcourſing about fetching away the ſoul of Moſes." But this is a different thing from diſputing about the body of Moſes. However Dr. Whitby ſays in his note on this verſe, "that there was an altercation betwixt Michael the archangel, and Samael the prince of the devils, about the body of Moſes, we learn from the traditions of the Jews." On this ſuppoſition, the apoſtle's arof Cain, and ran greedily after the error of Balaam for reward, and periſhed in the gainſaying of Core.

12 Theſe are ſpots in your feaſts of charity, when they feaſt with you, feeding themſelves without fear: clouds they are without water, carried about of winds: trees whoſe fruit withereth, without fruit, twice dead, plucked up by the roots:

13 Raging waves of the ſea, foaming out their own ſhame: wandering ſtars, to whom is reſerved the blackneſs of darkneſs for ever.

14 And Enoch alſo, the ſeventh from Adam, propheſied of theſe, ſaying, Behold the Lord cometh with ten thouſands of his ſaints,

15 To execute judgment upon all, and to convince all that are ungodly among them of all their ungodly deeds which they have ungodly committed, and of all their hard ſpeeches which ungodly ſinners have ſpoken againſt him.

16 Theſe are murmurers, complainers, walking after their own luſts; and their mouth ſpeaketh great ſwelling words, having men's perſons in admiration becauſe of advantage.

17 But, beloved, remember ye the words which were ſpoken before of the apoſtles of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt;

18 How that they told you there ſhould be mockers in the laſt time, who ſhould walk after their own ungodly luſts.

19 Theſe be they who ſeparate themſelves, ſenſual, having not the Spirit.

20 But ye, beloved, building up yourſelves on your moſt holy faith, praying in the Holy Ghoſt.

21 Keep yourſelves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt unto eternal life.

22 And of ſome have compaſſion, making a difference:

23 And others ſave with fear, pulling them out of the fire: hating even the garment ſpotted by the fleſh.

24 Now unto him that is able to keep you from falling, and to preſent you faultleſs before the preſence of his glory with exceeding joy,

25 To the only wiſe God our Saviour, be glory and majeſty, dominion and power, both now and ever. Amen.

guing from ſome known and allowed tradition among them, had its weight in his dealing with them: and poſſibly, he might know by divine revelation, that this was a real fact, and not an idle ſtory, like many others of their traditions. The ſame may be obſerved with reſpect to what he ſays, ver. 14. about Enoch's prophecy. Upon the whole, yet, for want of a better, we incline to this literal interpretation, as more natural and leſs forced, than any other that has been offered on this difficult paſſage; among which, the moſt probable of them ſeems to be that, which takes the body of Moſes in a figurative ſenſe, to ſignify the body or ſyſtem of Moſes's law. But ſtill we are at as much uncertainty about there having been ever any ſuch diſpute between Michael and the devil about the law, as about the body of Moſes.

24 Unto him that is able to keep you from falling, &c.) It ſeems that the divine perſon, here moſt immediately intended, is our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who is principally ſpoken of all along in the preceding context, and is often ſtiled, by way of eminence, The Saviour, and God our Saviour, as in Eph. v. 23. Phil. iii. 20. Tit. ii. 13. and 2 Pet. i. 1. and is here called the only wiſe God, ver. 25, not to the excluſion of the Father and Spirit, but only of all idols. And as his preſenting us faultleſs before the preſence of his glory manifeſtly relates to the time of his glorious appearing to judgment, for executing a dreadful ſentence on the ungodly, and ſhewing mercy to believers unto eternal life; ver. 14, 15, 21. ſo this exactly agrees with the work that is peculiarly aſcribed to him, as the Saviour of the body, and head of the church, Eph. v. 23—27.

THE

THE REVELATION OF ST. JOHN THE DIVINE.

THE ARGUMENT.

The Apocalypſe or Revelation conſiſts of twenty-two chapters. The three firſt are an inſtruction to the biſhops of the ſeven churches of Aſia Minor; namely, Epheſus, Smyrna, Pergamus, Thyatira, Sardis, Philadelphia, and Laodicea. The fifteen following chapters contain the perſecutions which the church was to ſuffer from the Jews, Heretics, and the Roman emperors; particularly Dioclefian, Maximian, Herculius, Severus, Maxentius, Maximinus, Licinius, and Julian the apoſtate. Next, St. John propheciés of the vengeance of God, which he will exerciſe againſt thoſe perſecutors, againſt the Roman empire, and the city of Rome, which he deſcribes under the name of Babylon, the great whore, ſeated upon ſeven hills. In the laſt place, the xix, xx, xxi, xxii, chapters, deſcribe the triumph of the church over its enemies, the marriage of the Lamb and the final happineſs of the church triumphant.

" It is, a part of this prophecy, that it ſhould not be underſtood before the laſt age of the world. The folly of interpreters has been to foretel times and things by this prophecy, as if God deſigned to make them prophets. By this raſhneſs they have not only expoſed themſelves, but brought the prophecy alſo into contempt. The deſign of God was quite otherwiſe. He gave this and the prophecies of the Old Teſtament, not to gratify men's curioſities, by enabling them to foreknow things; but that after they were fulfilled, they might be interpreted by the event; and his own providence, not the interpreters, be thereby manifeſted to the world.—There is already ſo much of the prophecy fulfilled, that as many as will take pains in this ſtudy, may ſee ſufficient inſtances of God's providence. Amonſt the interpreters of the laſt age, there is ſcarce one of note, who has not made ſome diſcovery worth knowing. And thence we may gather that God is about opening theſe myſteries.

" The Apocalypſe of John is written in the ſame ſtyle and language with the prophecies of Daniel; and hath the ſame relation to them, which they have to one another. So that all of them together make but one conſiſtent prophecy;" pointing out the various revolutions that ſhould happen both to the church and ſtate, and at length the final deſtruction and downfal of the Roman empire.

CHAP. I.

4 John writeth his Revelation to the ſeven churches of Aſia, ſignified by the ſeven golden candleſticks. 7 The coming of Chriſt.

THE Revelation of Jeſus Chriſt, which God gave unto him, to ſhew unto his ſervants things which muſt ſhortly come to paſs; and he ſent and ſignified it by his angel unto his ſervant John:

COMMENTARY on Chap. I.

1. The revelation of Jeſus Chriſt which God gave unto him, &c.) As Chriſt ſuſtained the character of a prophet in human nature, God the Father is ſpoken of with great propriety, according to the divine oeconomy, as giving this relation to him, that, in the execution of his office, he might communicate it by his angel to John: but his underſtanding being infinite, as God, he, in that conſideration of him, had no need of ſuch a revelation; and he, who ſent his angel to ſhew theſe things, is ſtiled the Lord God of the waſhed us from our ſins in his own blood,

7 ¶ Behold, he cometh with clouds; and every eye ſhall ſee him, and they alſo which pierced him; and all kindreds of the earth ſhall wail becauſe of him. Even ſo, Amen.

8 I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the ending, ſaith the Lord, which is, and which was, and which is to come, the Almighty.

9 I John who alſo am your brother, and companion in tribulation and in the kingdom and patience of Jeſus Chriſt, was in the iſle that is called Patmos, for the word of God, and for the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt.

10 I was in the ſpirit on the Lord's day; and heard behind me a great voice as of a trumpet,

11 Saying, I am Alpha and Omega, the firſt and the laſt; and, What thou ſeeſt write in a book, and ſend it unto the ſeven churches which are in Aſia; unto Epheſus, and unto Smyrna, and unto Pergamos, and unto Thyatira, and unto Sardis, and unto Philadelphia, and unto Laodicea.

12 And I turned to ſee the voice that ſpake with me; and being turned, I ſaw ſeven golden candleſticks;

13 And in the midſt of the ſeven candleſticks, one like unto the Son of man clothed with a garment down to the foot, and girt about the paps with a golden girdle.

14 His head and his hairs were white like wool, as white as ſnow; and his eyes were as a flame of fire:

15 And his feet like unto fine braſs, as if they burned in a furnace; and his voice as the ſound of many waters.

16 And he had in his right hand ſeven ſtars: and out of his mouth went a ſharp two-edged ſword: and his countenance was as the ſun ſhineth in his ſtrength.

17 And when I ſaw him, I fell at his feet as dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, ſaying unto me, Fear not; I am the firſt and the laſt.

18 I am he that liveth and was dead: and behold, I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hell, and of death.

19 Write the things which thou haſt ſeen, and the things which are, and the things which ſhall be hereafter.

20 The myſtery of the ſeven ſtars which thou ſaweſt in my right hand, and the ſeven golden candleſticks. The ſeven ſtars are the angels of the ſeven churches; and the ſeven candleſticks which thou ſaweſt are the ſeven churches.

CHAP. II.

1 What is commanded to be written to the angels, (that is the miniſters) of the churches of 1 Epheſus, 8 Smyrna, 12 Pergamos, 18 Thyatira: and what is commended or found wanting in them.

UNTO the angel of the church of Epheſus write; Theſe things ſaith he that holdeth the ſeven ſtars in his right hand, who walketh in the midſt of the ſeven golden candleſticks;

2 I know thy works and thy labour, and thy patience, and how thou canſt not bear them which are evil: and thou haſt tried them which ſay they are apoſtles, and are not, and haſt found them liars:

3 And haſt borne, and haſt patience, and for my name's ſake haſt laboured, and haſt not fainted.

4 Nevertheleſs, I have ſomewhat againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt left thy firſt love.

5 Remember therefore from whence thou art fallen, and repent, and do the firſt works: or elſe I will come unto thee quickly, and will remove thy candleſtick out of his place, except thou repent.

6 But this thou haſt, that thou hateſt the deeds of the Nicolaitans, which I alſo hate.

7 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches: To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midſt of the paradiſe of God.

8 ¶ And unto the angel of the church in Smyrna write; Theſe things ſaith the firſt and the laſt, which was dead, and is alive.

9 I know thy works, and tribulation, and poverty, (but thou art rich) and I know the blaſphemy of them which ſay they are Jews, and are not, but are the ſynagogue of Satan.

holy prophets, (chap. xxii. 6) which is a magnificent deſcription of the only true God, and ſeems to be meant of the ſame divine perſon, who there ſays a little afterwards, (ver. 16.) I Jeſus have ſent mine angel to teſtify theſe things, and theſe things are here called, The revelation of Jeſus Chriſt.

7 Behold, he cometh with clouds, &c.) Obſerve, for your encouragement, the happy iſſue of all the following prophecies, to put an end to the afflicted ſtate of the church, and compleat their ſalvation, and to power confuſion upon all their enemies, the Lord Jeſus will quickly appear with awful Majeſty to judge the world at his ſecond coming, which will be like the God who makes the clouds his chariot, (Pſ. civ. 3,) in illuſtrious clouds of heaven, with power and great glory, amidſt ſurrounding angels, according to his own, and antient predictions. (Dan. vii. 13, and Matth. xxiv. 30, 31.) And that appearance in human nature will be ſo open and viſible, and ſo attempered by the clouds to mitigate the brighteſt rays of his divine glory, and accommodate them to corporal ſight, that all mankind ſhall ſee him with their bodily eyes; and they particularly, that joined in his crucifixion, (Zech. xii. 10.) and never afterwards looked by faith to him, with penitent ſorrow, for the remiſſion of their ſins, ſhall behold him with terror and anguiſh of heart for having deſpiſed and rejected him: and not only the tribes of Iſrael, but all perſecuting powers, and people of all nations of the earth that remain in impenitence and unbelief, ſhall bitterly lament their miſerable caſe, becauſe of his coming to call them to a ſtrict and ſevere account for all that they have ſaid and done againſt him. Even ſo it certainly ſhall be; and all who now by faith look for it, and ſhall then be joyful ſpectators of it, cannot but conſent to, and approve of it, as righteous, ſaying, with ſolemn applauſe, Amen.

COMMENTARY on Chap. II.

1—7 Unto the angel of the church of Epheſus, &c.) In the beginning of this book of prophecy, according to the opinion of ſome of the learned, we have a general and typical repreſentation of the ſtate of Chriſtianity in the world, from the beginning of Chriſt's kingdom, to his ſecond coming, in the ſeven churches of Aſia. There is no queſtion that there were ſuch churches, and ſuch things in them as the Lord obſerves in his meſſages to them. But, beſides the uſe of what is ſaid to theſe churches as they then ſtood, if we look upon this part of the book as of a-piece with the reſt, we muſt find in them the things that John had ſeen, the things that were when he wrote, and the things that ſhould be hereafter. And ſo in the Epheſian church we have a repreſentation of the churches of Chriſt, and the profeſſion of his name in them, which were planted by the apoſtles; for theſe churches had to do with falſe apoſtles, and then with falſe ſcriptures, and tried them; yet ſoon decayed in that fervent charity that the apoſtle obſerves, and highly commends in his epiſtles to the Theſſalonians, which are among the firſt of his epiſtles; and this decay of love iſſued at length in the undoing of that church-order that Chriſt ſettled by his apoſtles. What our Lord ſays in the concluſion of the epiſtle to this church, and of the epiſtles to all the reſt, imports, that there is a myſtery or a parable in the epiſtle, and that it has a farther meaning than appears at firſt, or that the things ſpoken of are ſignificative of other things. For as, in the concluſion of the parables that our Lord ſpoke, he uſed to ſay, He that hath ears to hear, let him hear; ſo it is ſaid here, He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith to the churches,—the ſpirit of prophecy.

10 Fear none of thoſe things which thou ſhalt ſuffer. Behold, the devil ſhall caſt ſome of you into priſon, that ye may be tried; and ye ſhall have tribulation ten days. Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

11 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches; He that overcometh ſhall not be hurt of the ſecond death.

12 ¶ And to the angel of the church in Pergamos write; Theſe things ſaith he which hath the ſharp ſword with two edges;

13 I know thy works, and where thou dwelleſt, even where Satan's ſeat is: and thou holdeſt faſt my name, and haſt not denied my faith, even in thoſe days wherein Antipas was my faithful martyr, who was ſlain among you where Satan dwelleth.

14 But I have a few things againſt thee, becauſe thou haſt there them that hold the doctrine of Balaam, who taught Balak to caſt a ſtumbling-block before the the children of Iſrael, to eat things ſacrificed unto idols, and to commit fornication.

15 So haſt thou alſo them that hold the doctrine of the Nicolaitans, which things I hate.

16 Repent; or elſe I will come unto thee quickly, and will fight againſt them with the ſword of my mouth.

17 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches; To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the hidden manna, and will give him a white ſtone, and in the ſtone a new name written, which no man knoweth, ſaving he that receiveth it.

18 ¶ And unto the angel of the church in Thyatira write; Theſe things ſaith the Son of God, who hath his eyes like unto a flame of fire, and his feet are like fine braſs:

19 I know thy works, and charity, and ſervice, and faith, and thy patience, and thy works: and the laſt to be more than the firſt.

20 Notwithſtanding I have a few things againſt thee, becauſe thou ſuffereſt that woman Jezebel, which calleth herſelf a propheteſs, to teach and to ſeduce my ſervants to commit fornication, and to eat things ſacrificed unto idols.

21 And I gave her ſpace to repent of her fornication; and ſhe repented not.

22 Behold, I will caſt her into a bed, and them that commit adultery with her into great tribulation, except they repent of their deeds.

23 And I will kill her children with death; and all the churches ſhall know that I am he which ſearcheth the reins and hearts: and I will give unto every one of you according to your works.

24 But unto you I ſay, and unto the reſt in Thyatira, as many as have not this doctrine, and which have not known the depths of Satan, as they ſpeak; I will put upon you none other burden.

25 But that which ye have already, hold faſt till I come.

26 And he that overcometh, and keepeth my works unto the end, to him will I give power over the nations:

27 And he ſhall rule them with a rod of iron, as the veſſels of a potter they ſhall be broken to ſhivers: even as I received of my Father.

28 And I will give him the morning ſtar.

29 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

CHAP. III.

1 The angel of the church of Sardis is reproved, 7 of Philadelphia approved, 14 of Laodicea rebuked, 20 Chriſt ſtandeth at the door and knocketh.

AND unto the angel of the church in Sardis write; Theſe things ſaith he that hath the ſeven ſpirits of God, and the ſeven ſtars: I know thy works, that thou haſt a name, that thou liveſt, and art dead.

2 Be watchful and ſtrengthen the things which remain, that are ready to die; for I have not found thy works perfect before God.

3 Remember therefore how thou haſt received and heard, and hold faſt, and repent. If therefore thou ſhalt not watch, I will come on thee as a thief, and thou ſhalt not know what hour I will come upon thee.

4 Thou haſt a few names even in Sardis, which have not defiled their garments: and they ſhall walk with me in white; for they are worthy.

5 He that overcometh, the ſame ſhall be clothed in white raiment; and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confeſs his name before my Father, and before his angels.

6 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

7 ¶ And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia write; Theſe things ſaith he that is holy, he that is true, he that hath the key of David, he that openeth, and no man ſhutteth; and ſhutteth, and no man

8—11 And unto the angel of the church in Smyrna, &c.) In the church in Smyrna we have a repreſentation of the ſtate and condition of the diſciples of Chriſt, in the churches under the perſecutions of the Heathen emperors, till Conſtantine's time, eſpecially the ten years perſecution of Dioclefian, Ye ſhall have tribulation ten days; and they were tried with blaſphemous heretics, and many that called themſelves Chriſtians, and were not.

12—17 And to the angel of the church in Pergamos, &c.) In the church in Pergamos, under the figure of Balaam teaching the king of Moab to caſt a ſtumbling-block before Iſrael, to mingle them with the people, and lead them to falſe worſhip and idolatry, and of the Nicolaitans compared to him, we have a repreſentation of a miniſtry graſping at worldly honour and riches, conſpiring with the Roman emperor to mingle the people of Chriſt with his people in communion; which iſſued at length in defiling of the outer court of the Lord's houſe with the idolatry of the Gentiles, they being thus once brought into the outer court of his houſe. And then perſecution began, when they came to have the ſword or ſecular power at their command. And they that withſtood the mingling of the ſeed of Iſrael with ſtrangers, which iſſued in the learning of their way, ſuffered grievouſly. And though perſecution took place at firſt under the ſpecious pretence of defending Chriſt's name againſt the Arians, yet it fell heavieſt at length on them that held the truth, according to Matth. xiii. 29.

18—24 And unto the angel of the church of Thyatira, &c.) In this epiſtle to the church in Thyatira, we may ſee the great whore repreſented by Jezebel; and the abominable doctrine and worſhip of the ſociety called the Roman church, typified by the doctrine and deeds of the Nicolaitans. The diſciples of Chriſt that lived under the full prevalency of that ſtate of things, had burden enough; and it was much if they held faſt what they had, as the ſeven thouſand hidden people in Jezebel's days, that did not bow the knee to Baal.

COMMENTARY on Chap. III.

1—6 And unto the angel of the church in Sardis, &c.) In this epiſtle to the church in Sardis, we have a repreſentation of the ſtate of Chriſtianity in the national churches ſeparated from the Roman church after the reformation, or after the man of ſin began to be conſumed with the Spirit of the Lord's mouth. They have a name that they live; they have received and heard; they have a few names which have not defiled their garments; and theſe are the ſufferers for the truth of the word of God, and the profeſſion thereof as far as they know it. But though theſe ſocieties have a name to live, they are declared to be dead; and they have but a remnant of the things of Chriſtianity, which is ready to die away for the want of the reſt; and through the negligence of obſerving all the things required in the word of God, and the not doing what he requires, becauſe required by him, they ſatisfy themſelves with receivopeneth:

8 I know thy works: behold, I have ſet before thee an open door, and no man can ſhut it: for thou haſt a little ſtrength, and haſt kept my word, and haſt not denied my name.

9 Behold, I will make them of the ſynagogue of Satan, which ſay they are Jews, and are not, but do lie; behold, I will make them to come and worſhip before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee.

10 Becauſe thou haſt kept the word of my patience, I alſo will keep thee from the hour of temptation which ſhall come upon all the world, to try them that dwell upon the earth.

11 Behold, I come quickly: hold that faſt which thou haſt, that no man take thy crown.

12 Him that overcometh will I make a pillar in the temple of my God, and he ſhall go no more out: and I will write upon him the name of my God, and the name of the city of my God, which is new Jeruſalem, which cometh down out of heaven from my God: and I will write upon him my new name.

13 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

14 ¶ And unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans write; Theſe things ſaith the Amen, the faithful and true witneſs, the beginning of the creation of God;

15 I know thy works, that thou art neither cold nor hot: I would thou wert cold or hot.

16 So then becauſe thou art luke-warm, and neither cold nor hot, I will ſpue thee out of my mouth:

17 Becauſe thou ſayeſt, I am rich and increaſed with goods, and have need of nothing: and knoweſt not that thou art wretched, and miſerable, and poor, and blind, and naked.

18 I counſel thee to buy of me gold tried in the fire, that thou mayeſt be rich: and white raiment that thou mayeſt be clothed, and that the ſhame of thy nakedneſs do not appear: and anoint thine eyes with eye-ſalve, that thou mayeſt ſee.

19 As many as I love, I rebuke and chaſten: be zealous therefore, and repent.

20 ¶ Behold, I ſtand at the door and knock. If any man hear my voice, and open the door, I will come in to him, and will ſup with him, and he with me.

21 To him that overcometh will I grant to ſit with me in my throne, even as I alſo overcame, and am ſet down with my Father in his throne.

22 He that hath an ear, let him hear what the Spirit ſaith unto the churches.

CHAP. IV.

1 John ſeeth the throne of God. 4 The four and twenty elders. 6 The four beaſts full of eyes.

AFTER this I looked, and behold, a door was opened in heaven: and the firſt voice which I heard was as it were of a trumpet talking with me; which ſaid, Come up hither, and I will ſhew thee things which muſt be hereafter.

2 And immediately I was in the ſpirit: and behold, a throne was ſet in heaven, and one ſat on the throne.

3 And he that ſat was to look upon like a jaſper and a ſardine ſtone: and there was a rainbow round about the throne in ſight like unto an emerald.

4 ¶ And round about the throne were four and twenty ſeats: and upon the ſeats I ſaw four and twenty elders ſitting, clothed in white raiment: and they had on their heads crowns of gold.

5 And out of the throne proceeded lightnings and thunderings and voices. And there were ſeven lamps of fire burning before the throne, which are the ſeven Spirits of God.

6 ¶ And before the throne there was a ſea of glaſs like unto cryſtal. And in the midſt of the throne and round about the throne was four beaſts full of eyes before and behind.

7 And the firſt beaſt was like a lion, and the ſecond beaſt like a calf, and the third beaſt had a face as a man, and the fourth beaſt was like a flying eagle.

8 And the four beaſts had each of them ſix wings about him: and they were full of eyes within: and they reſt not day and night, ſaying, Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty, which was, and is, and is to come.

9 And when thoſe beaſts give glory and honour and thanks to him that ſat on the throne, who liveth for ever and ever.

10 The four and twenty elders fall down before him that ſat on the throne, and worſhip him that liveth for ever and ever, and caſt their crowns before the throne, ſaying, ing and hearing; and if they repent not, he threatens to come upon them as a thief, in a way they would not expect.

7 And to the angel of the church in Philadelphia, &c.] In this epiſtle to the church in Philadelphia, we have a repreſentation of the condition of Chriſt's people under the revival of the ancient church-order inſtituted by Jeſus Chriſt, and gathered together in churches after the example of the firſt churches recorded in the New Teſtament, and ſo delivered from their ſcattered condition and their bondage under Antichriſt. There ſeems to be a myſtery in the name Philadelphia, which ſignifieth brotherly-love, and points out the revival of the ancient brotherly-love, by the decay of which the falling away from the primitive church-order took place. The titles that Chriſt takes to himſelf, carry an inſinuation of their ſtate. He that is holy: Their holy profeſſion, and contention for the holineſs of the Chriſtian profeſſion, however diſagreeable to the world, is agreeable to him the high prieſt of that profeſſion. He that is true: while they have his word alone for their rule in oppoſition to the word of man, and have all their dependence upon it, and are reckoned deceivers and deluded in following it, they have abundant ground for the courſe they take; for he is true.

14 And unto the angel of the church of the Laodiceans, &c.] In this epiſtle to the church of the Laodiceans, we have a repreſentation of the condition of the profeſſors of Chriſt's name in the churches near the time of his ſecond coming, and when he is juſt about to appear. And therefore, as it was ſaid to Philadelphia, Behold, I come quickly; ſo it is ſaid to the Laodiceans, Behold, I ſtand at the door and knock. And what is ſaid to the Laodiceans in the reproof the Lord gives them, agrees excellently with the parable of the ten virgins going out to meet the bridegroom, and falling aſleep before he comes, ſo that his coming is a ſurpriſe upon them, Matth. xxv. and with that ſaying of our Lord, When the Son of Man cometh, ſhall he find faith on the earth? Luke xviii. 8.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IV.

10, 11 The four and twenty elders fall down before him, &c.] The four and twenty elders, the repreſentatives of the church, joining in cheerful concert with their miniſters who led the ſong, (ver. 9.) bowed down in low proſtration, and with humble adoration, before their Maker, who was repreſented as ſitting on the throne, and paid their ſolemn homage in worſhipping him who only has immortality, without beginning of days or end of years; and, taking off their glorious crowns from their heads, they lay them down at the foot of the throne, as deeply ſenſible of their own utter unworthineſs to wear ſuch royal honours in his preſence, and of their receiving and holding them merely by his free favour: in humble acknowledgement of which they ſaid, Thou, O Lord, and thou alone, art infinitely worthy, that the moſt exalted deſcriptions of glory, and honour, and power ſhould be paid to thee: for thou art the great Creator of all things in heaven and earth; and it is by thy ſovereign effective will and pleaſure, and for thine own glory, who haſt made all things for thyſelf, (Prov. xvi. 4.) that they ſtill

11 Thou art worthy, O Lord to receive glory and honour and power for thou haſt created all things, and for thy pleaſure they are and were created.

CHAP. V.

1 The book ſealed with ſeven ſeals; 9 which only the Lamb that was ſlain is worthy to open. 12 Therefore the elders praiſe him.

AND I ſaw in the right hand of him that ſat upon the throne a book written within and on the backſide, ſealed with ſeven ſeals.

2 And I ſaw a ſtrong angel proclaiming with a loud voice, who is worthy to open the book, and to looſe the ſeals thereof?

3 And no man in heaven, nor in earth, neither under the earth, was able to open the book, neither to look thereon.

4 And I wept much becauſe no man was found worthy to open and to read the book, neither to look thereon.

5 And one of the elders ſaith unto me, Weep not: Behold, the lion of the tribe of Juda, the root of David hath prevailed to open the book, and to looſe the ſeven ſeals thereof.

6 And I beheld, and lo, in the midſt of the throne, and of the four beaſts, and in the midſt of the elders ſtood a Lamb as it had been ſlain, having ſeven horns, and ſeven eyes, which are the ſeven Spirits of God ſent forth into all the earth.

7 And he came and took the book out of the right hand of him that ſat upon the throne.

8 And when he had taken the book the four beaſts and four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having every one of them harps, and golden vials full of odours, which are the prayers of ſaints.

9 ¶ And they ſung a new ſong, ſaying, Thou art worthy to take the book, and to open the ſeals thereof: for thou waſt ſlain, and haſt redeemed us to God by thy blood out of every kindred and tongue and people and nation:

10 And haſt made us unto our God kings and prieſts; and we ſhall reign on the earth.

11 And I beheld, and I heard the voice of many angels round about the throne, and the beaſts, and the elders; and the number of them was ten thouſand times ten thouſand, and thouſands of thouſands;

12 ¶ Saying with a loud voice, Worthy is the Lamb that was ſlain to receive power, and riches, and wiſdom, and ſtrength, and honour, and glory, and bleſſing.

13 And every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and ſuch as are in the ſea, and all that are in them, heard I, ſaying, Bleſſing and honour and glory and power be unto him that ſitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever.

14 And the four beaſts ſaid, Amen. And the four and twenty elders fell down, and worſhipped him that liveth for ever and ever.

CHAP. VI.

The opening of the ſeals in order, and what followed thereupon: containing a prophecy to the end of the world.

AND I ſaw when the Lamb opened one of the ſeals, and I heard, as it were the noiſe of thunder, one of the four beaſts ſaying, Come and ſee.

2 And I ſaw, and behold, a white horſe: and he that ſat on him had a bow; and a crown was given unto him: and he went forth conquering and to conquer.

3 And when he had opened the ſecond ſeal, I heard the ſecond beaſt ſay, Come and ſee.

4 And there went out another horſe that was red: and power was given to him that ſat thereon to take peace from the earth, and that they ſhould kill one another: and there was given unto him a great ſword.

5 And when he had opened the third ſeal, I heard the third beaſt ſay, Come and ſee: and I beheld, and

COMMENTARY on Chap. V.

1 And on the back ſide, ſealed with ſeven ſeals.) This book was ſealed with ſeven ſeals, and part of it was opened, and could be read when each ſeal was opened. A book in the modern form does not give us an idea of this, but we muſt conceive of it as a roll, conſiſting of ſeven ſheets of paper, or ſkins of parchment, one of which was rolled up and ſealed, and then another rolled upon that, and ſealed, and ſo on, till the ſeven were all rolled on to one roll, and each of them ſealed with its diſtinct ſeal; ſo that when one ſeal was broken, one of the ſkins would be open, and its contents expoſed to view. Accordingly we find a ſucceſſion of events declared at the opening of each ſeal. It was alſo written on the back ſide; ſo that there was ſome part of the prophecy of this book which could be read before the ſeals were opened. What this was we may ſee by the ſong of the redeemed company, on the Lamb's taking the book, and before he opened any of its ſeals, ver. 9, 10. "They ſung a new ſong, ſaying, Thou art worthy—we ſhall reign on the earth." This is the only future thing that they expreſs their expectation of in their ſong; and this was plainly declared in Daniel, and ſo, as it were written on the back ſide of the roll. Daniel ſays, this ſhall be the reſult of all, when Antichriſt is deſtroyed, "The kingdom, and dominion, and the greatneſs of the kingdom under the whole heaven, ſhall be given to the people of the ſaints of the Moſt High.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VI.

1 When the Lamb opened one of the ſeals, &c.) The ſucceſſive ſtates of the Chriſtian profeſſion, from the firſt ſetting up of the Chriſtian church, to the conſummation of all things; and the ſucceſſive ſtates of its oppoſite, the Antichriſtian profeſſion, from the revelation of the man of ſin, to his deſtruction at Chriſt's coming, are revealed in the order in which the ſeals are opened. The ſeventh ſeal, indeed, contains much more than all the former ſix, and is divided into ſeven parts, by the ſeven trumpets; the laſt of which is again divided into ſeven parts, by the vials. The firſt ſix ſeals relate to the times while yet the civil magiſtracy, being in the hands of heathens, with-held the man of ſin from coming with all power. And each ſeal, as well as each trumpet and vial, incloſes ſome remarkable change in the ſtate and courſe of things relative to the viſible profeſſion of Chriſtianity in the world. The firſt ſeal begins with the ſetting up of Chriſt's kingdom in the world, by the goſpel, immediately after his exaltation; in which he appears as a conqueror crowned with glory and honour. Probably this deſcription of the captain of ſalvation has reference to what is ſaid of Joſeph; "The archers have ſorely grieved him, and ſhot at him, and hated him. But his bow abode in ſtrength, and the arms of his hands were made ſtrong by the hands of the mighty God of Jacob:" Nor does it ſeem unlikely that Joſeph's ſufferings and advancement ſhould be a type of the ſufferings of Chriſt, and his following glory.

3, 4 And when he had opened the ſecond ſeal, &c.) The ſecond ſeal being opened, preſents a deſcription of the breach of peace, among them who had joined together againſt the Lord and his Chriſt, viz. the Jews and Romans; and the terrible overthrow of the Jews by their diviſions among themſelves, and by the Roman armies. Power was given unto him that ſat on the horſe to take peace from the earth, &c.) This was predicted by Daniel, chap. ix. ver. 26. "After threeſcore and two weeks ſhall Meſſiah be cut off, but not for himſelf; and the people of the prince that ſhall come, (i. e. the Roman people, of whom he had juſt before prophecied) ſhall deſtroy the city and the ſanctuary.

5, 6 And when he had opened the third ſeal, &c.) The third ſeal deſcribes a famine of the word of the Lord, and men making merchandiſe of it. This is deſcribed by Amos, "Behold the days lo,

lo, a black horſe: and he that ſat on him had a pair of balances in his hand.

6 And I heard a voice in the midſt of the four beaſts ſay, A meaſure of wheat for a penny, and three meaſures of barley for a penny: and ſee thou hurt not the oil and the wine.

7 And when he had opened the fourth ſeal, I heard the voice of the fourth beaſt ſay, Come, and ſee.

8 And I looked, and behold a pale horſe: and his name that ſat on him was Death, and Hell followed with him. And power was given unto them over the fourth part of the earth, to kill with ſword and with hunger and with death and with the beaſts of the earth.

9 And when he had opened the fifth ſeal, I ſaw under the altar the ſouls of them that were ſlain for the word of God, and for the teſtimony which they held.

10 And they cried with a loud voice, ſaying, How long, O Lord, holy and true, doſt thou not judge and avenge our blood on them that dwell on the earth?

11 And white robes were given unto every one of them, and it was ſaid unto them, that they ſhould reſt yet for a little ſeaſon, until their fellow-ſervants alſo, and their brethren, that ſhould be killed as they were, ſhould be fulfilled.

12 And I beheld, when he had opened the ſixth ſeal, and lo, there was a great earthquake: and the ſun became black as ſackcloth of hair, and the moon became as blood.

13 And the ſtars of heaven fell unto the earth, even as a fig-tree caſteth her untimely figs, when ſhe is ſhaken of a mighty wind.

14 And the heaven departed as a ſcroll, when it is rolled together: and every mountain and iſland were moved out of their places.

15 And the kings of the earth, and the great men, and the rich men, and the chief captains, and the mighty men, and every bond-man and every free-man hid themſelves in the dens and in the rocks of the mountains:

16 And ſaid to the mountains and rocks, Fall on us, and hide us from the face of him that ſitteth on the throne, and from the wrath of the Lamb:

17 For the great day of his wrath is come: and who ſhall be able to ſtand?

CHAP. VII.

3 An angel ſealeth the ſervants of God in their foreheads. 4 The number of them; of the tribes of Iſrael a certain number.

AND after theſe things I ſaw four angels ſtanding on the four corners of the earth, holding the four winds of the earth, that the winds ſhould not blow on the earth, nor on the ſea, nor on any tree.

2 And I ſaw another angel aſcending from the eaſt, having the ſeal of the living God: and he cried with a loud voice to the four angels, to whom it was given to hurt the earth, and the ſea,

3 ¶ Saying, Hurt not the earth, neither the ſea, nor the trees, till we have ſealed the ſervants of our God in their foreheads.

4 ¶ And I heard the number of them which were ſealed: and there were ſealed an hundred and forty and four thouſand of all the tribes of the children of Iſrael.

5 Of the tribe of Judah were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Reuben were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Gad were ſealed twelve thouſand.

6 Of the tribe of Aſer were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Nephthalim were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Manaſſes were ſealed twelve thouſand.

7 Of the tribe of Simeon were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Levi were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Iſſachar were ſealed twelve thouſand.

8 Of the tribe of Zebulun were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Joſeph were ſealed twelve thouſand. Of the tribe of Benjamin were ſealed thouſand.

9 After this I beheld, and lo, a great multitude which no man could number, of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues, ſtood before the throne, and before the Lamb, clothed with white robes, and palms in their hands;

10 And cried with a loud voice, ſaying, Salvation to our God which ſitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb.

11 And all the angels ſtood round about the throne, and about the elders, and the four beaſts, and fell before the throne on their faces, and worſhipped God, come, ſaith the Lord, that I will ſend a famine in the land, not a famine of bread, nor a thirſt for water, but of hearing the word of the Lord."

7, 8 And when he had opened the fourth ſeal, &c.) The fourth ſeal deſcribes apoſtacy from the Chriſtian faith, which is ſpiritual death; for it is ſuch a death as that hell follows after it. To this death men were brought, 1ſt, By the ſword, i. e. by perſecution from the civil magiſtrate; which is one cauſe of apoſtacy. It may refer to the perſecution by Decius, about the middle of the third century. 2. With hunger, through the ſcarcity of the word of God, and its fruits, and the making merchandiſe of it; which began under the foregoing ſeal; when the teachers made the word of God void by tradition, and many followed their pernicious ways.

9, 10, 11 And when he had opened the fifth ſeal, &c.) The fifth ſeal, relates to the laſt perſecution that the church ſuffered from the heathen emperors, under Dioclefian; which was alſo the moſt violent and laſting. That cry of the ſouls of them that were ſlain for the word of God, How long doſt thou not judge and avenge our blood, imports that theſe ſufferings had begun long before, and were now come to a height. It is the manner of this prophecy to mark things, when they are come to a degree of maturity, and not at their beginnings.

12—17 And I beheld, when he had opened the ſixth ſeal, &c.) The ſixth ſeal predicts the bringing down and deſtroying of heatheniſm in the empire; which is in anſwer to the cry of the ſouls under the altar, for vengeance on them that had ſhed their blood; and is a type and aſſurance of the final vengeance on all perſecutors, at the day of judgment. This fall of the heathen religion, and perſecuting power in the empire, is repreſented by an earthquake; as it made a great change on the face or ſtate of things. This is the ſignification of an earthquake, throughout this book of the Revelation.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VII.

1 I ſaw four angels ſtanding on the four corners of the earth, &c.) The pride, fleſhly wiſdom, and ſpiritual merchandiſe of the leaders and teachers in the Chriſtian church, made them very ready to accommodate its ſtate and doctrine to the will of any who were able to cauſe their profeſſion to be attended with eaſe and honour. So that the Chriſtian doctrine, as it was by this time new modelled, was ſo far from being as Chriſt and his apoſtles taught it, a doctrine of ſelf denial and patient ſuffering, that it was become well ſuited to promote the gratification of thoſe very deſires, which real Chriſtianity led the firſt Chriſtians to deny: and a man might now be a good Chriſtian, and advance his own honour, eaſe, or intereſt thereby, according to what we have ſhewn to be the univerſal bias of mankind. The great evil that was coming on the church is introduced by four angels, holding the four winds, that they ſhould not blow on the earth, nor on the ſea, nor on any tree. The influences of the ſpirit of God, giving ſpiritual life and fruitfulneſs, are compared to the influences of the wind in nature, Ezek. xxxvii. 9—14. In theſe gifts he is ſovereign, John iii. 8. "As the wind

12 Saying, Amen: bleſſing and glory, and wiſdom, and thankſgiving, and honour, and power, and might be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen.

13 And one of the elders anſwered, ſaying unto me, What are theſe which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they?

14 And I ſaid unto him, Sir, thou knoweſt. And he ſaid to me, Theſe are they which came out of great tribulation, and have waſhed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb.

15 Therefore are they before the throne of God, and ſerve him day and night in his temple: and he that ſitteth on the throne ſhall dwell among them.

16 They ſhall hunger no more, neither thirſt any more: neither ſhall the ſun light on them, nor any heat.

17 For the Lamb which is in the midſt of the throne ſhall feed them, and ſhall lead them unto living fountains of waters: and God ſhall wipe away all tears from their eyes.

CHAP. VIII.

1 At the opening of the ſeventh ſeal, 2 ſeven angels had ſeven trumpets given them: 3 another angel putteth incenſe to the prayers of the ſaints on the golden altar.

AND when he had opened the ſeventh ſeal, there was ſilence in heaven about the ſpace of half an hour.

2 ¶ And I ſaw the ſeven angels which ſtood before God: and to them were given ſeven trumpets.

3 ¶ And another angel came and ſtood at the altar, having a golden cenſer: and there was given unto him much incenſe, that he ſhould offer it with the prayers of all ſaints upon the golden altar which was before the throne.

4 And the ſmoke of the incenſe, which came with the prayers of the ſaints aſcended up before God out of the angel's hand.

5 And the angel took the cenſer and filled it with the fire of the altar, and caſt it into the earth: and there were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and an earthquake.

6 And the ſeven angels which had the ſeven trumpets prepared themſelves to ſound.

7 The firſt angel ſounded, and there followed hail and fire mingled with blood, and they were caſt upon the earth: and the third part of trees was burned up, and all green graſs was burned up.

8 And the ſecond angel ſounded, and as it were a great mountain burning with fire was caſt into the ſea; and the third part of the ſea became blood;

9 And the third part of the creatures which were in the ſea, and had life, died; and the third part of the ſhips were deſtroyed.

10 And the third angel ſounded, and there fell a great ſtar from heaven, burning as it were a lamp, and it fell upon the third part of the rivers, and upon the fountains of waters;

11 And the name of the ſtar is called Wormwood: and the third part of the waters became wormwood: and many men died of the waters, becauſe they were made bitter.

---

bloweth where it liſteth, ſo is every one that is born of the ſpirit." As the earth, and trees are barren, where the wind doth not blow freely upon them, ſo is Chriſtianity without the agency of the Holy Ghoſt; for all the fruits of righteouſneſs, wherewith Chriſtians are filled, are, in ſcripture, called fruits of the ſpirit. And as commerce is ſtagnated, if no wind blows on the ſea, ſo, without the ſpirit of the truth, there can be no communion of ſaints; for it is the fellowſhip of the ſpirit. The imperial power that had till this time ſupported heatheniſm, being now transferred to the ſide of Chriſtianity, did certainly cauſe it to be attended with eaſe and honour; and among ſuch as could follow the prevailing faſhion, left little room for ſelf denial and patient ſuffering, ſo, little uſe for the divine ſupports, that attend the ſuffering ſhame for Chriſt's name. But we may be very clear to ſay, for reaſons already given, that this was not the religion of Jeſus, but rather the predicted, ſtrong deluſion, that they ſhould believe a lie; that they all might be damned, who believed not the truth, but had pleaſure in unrighteouſneſs." Againſt this it is that the ſervants of God are ſealed.

COMMENTARY on Chap. VIII.

1 And when he had opened the ſeventh ſeal, &c.) At the acceſſion of Conſtantine, which happened anno 312, the church was at reſt from perſecution; and while the clergy were doubtful what effect his new dignity would have upon him, they were all ear, in ſilence: but when they ſaw him determined to maintain the church, and exalt the clergy, ſilence gave way to clamour, and every wiſh was vocal.

5 There were voices, and thunderings, and lightnings, and an earthquake, &c.) This earthquake that comes with the opening of the ſeventh ſeal ſeems to be that notable change on the Chriſtian profeſſion, and on the Roman empire, when that empire got on the form of Chriſtianity, in place of the religion that it had before. No earthquake can alter the face of a country where it happens to ſo great a degree as this change muſt have altered the appearance of the Chriſtian profeſſion, when the lately perſecuted clergy were now ſuddenly made dignitaries and raiſed to a level with the nobleſs of the empire. But however they might rejoice in this, it is here deſcribed as an effect of the divine wrath, on them that received not the love of the truth. This change was gradually brought to its utmoſt perfection by the firſt five trumpets in the following gradations.

7 The firſt angel ſounded, and there followed hail, &c.) The firſt trumpet brings the wrath of God, repreſented often in ſcripture by hail, and here may ſignify God ſending them ſtrong deluſions that they ſhould believe a lie. The lie they believed was, that they could "ſerve God and Mammon;" or that the Chriſtian religion was a broad way, wherein the whole Roman empire might walk, as it had done in the heathen religion before. And fire, which ſignifies contention, here means the contention that was about the words which ſhould be the public authoriſed profeſſion of Chriſtianity in the empire. And this fire was mingled with blood, as this contention produced the firſt Chriſtian perſecution and bloodſhed. As this reſpects the time of Conſtantine, in whoſe days they firſt began to do violence to one another, in Chriſt's name, we may be aſſured, by this fact, that they had then departed from the ſpirit and doctrine of him, "who came not to deſtroy mens lives but to ſave them." Thus began the great evil againſt which the ſervants of God were ſealed, Chap. vii. 1. and which made the Chriſtian profeſſion appear like a blaſted tree, or a withered field, compared to its former appearance; of whoſe verdure it was propheſied, "They ſhall ſpring up as among the graſs, as willows by the water courſes."

8 And the ſecond angel ſounded, &c.) The ſecond trumpet brings that hurt on the ſea which could not come upon it till the ſervants of God were firſt ſealed, chap. vii. 1, 3. Waters in this book, ſignify peoples, multitudes, nations, and tongues. And the gathering together of waters, is ſea. The ſea, then is the multitude of profeſſors of Chriſtianity, that were gathered together in the Roman empire. A mountain, in prophetic language, is a kingdom: the empire of Babylon is called the deſtroying mountain, and threatened to be made a burnt mountain. A mountain burning with fire, is a kingdom full of contention. Such was the condition of the Roman empire, when it was thrown, as it were, into the boſom of the church. So that this trumpet brings hurt to the then very populous profeſſion of Chriſtianity, by the power of the Roman empire being thrown into it, fired, as it then was, with contentions about which party of Chriſtian leaders ſhould be greateſt, and dictate creeds and rites to the reſt.

10 And the third angel ſounded, &c.) The third trumpet brings hurt to the rivers and fountains of water, like the hurt which the preceeding trumpet brought to the ſea. This, according to the foregoing explanation of waters, reſpects the more remote provinces and nations, which now, for the moſt part, became ſuch Chriſtians as thoſe were near the ſeat and center of power and honour, and were accordingly, though not ſo ſoon, in like manner corrupted.

12 And the fourth angel ſounded, and the third part of the ſun was ſmitten, and the third part of the moon, and the third part of the ſtars: ſo as the third part of them was darkened, and the day ſhone not for a third part of it, and the night likewiſe.

13 And I beheld, and heard an angel flying through the midſt of heaven, ſaying with a loud voice, Woe, woe, woe to the inhabitants of the earth, by reaſon of the other voices of the trumpet of the three angels which are yet to ſound.

CHAP. IX.

1 At the ſounding of the fifth angel, a ſtar falleth from heaven, to whom is given the key of the bottomleſs pit. 2 He openeth the pit, and there come forth locuſts like ſcorpions. 12 The firſt woe paſt. 13 The ſixth trumpet ſoundeth. 14 Four angels are let looſe that were bound.

AND the fifth angel ſounded, and I ſaw a ſtar fall from heaven unto the earth: and to him was given the key of the bottomleſs pit.

2 ¶ And he opened the bottomleſs pit: and there aroſe a ſmoke out of the pit, as the ſmoke of a great furnace: and the ſun and the air were darkened by reaſon of the ſmoke of the pit.

3 And there came out of the ſmoke locuſts upon the earth; and unto them was given power, as the ſcorpions of the earth have power.

4 And it was commanded them that they ſhould not hurt the graſs of the earth, neither any green thing, neither any tree; but only thoſe men which have not the ſeal of God in their foreheads.

5 And to them it was given that they ſhould not kill them, but that they ſhould be tormented five months: and their torment was as the torment of a ſcorpion, when he ſtriketh a man.

6 And in thoſe days ſhall men ſeek death, and ſhall not find it; and ſhall deſire to die, and death ſhall flee from them.

7 And the ſhapes of the locuſts were like unto horſes prepared unto battle; and on their heads were as it were crowns like gold, and their faces were as the faces of men.

8 And they had hair as the hair of women, and their teeth were as the teeth of lions.

9 And they had breaſt-plates, as it were breaſt-plates of iron; and the ſound of their wings was as the ſound of chariots of many horſes running to battle.

10 And they had tails like unto ſcorpions, and there were ſtings in their tails: and their power was to hurt men five months.

11 And they had a king over them, which is the angel of the bottomleſs pit, whoſe name in the Hebrew tongue is Abaddon, but in the Greek tongue hath his name Apollyon.

12 ¶ One woe is paſt; and behold, there come two woes more hereafter.

13 ¶ And the ſixth angel ſounded, and I heard a voice from the four horns of the golden altar which is before God,

14 ¶ Saying to the ſixth angel which had the trumpet, Looſe the four angels which are bound in the great river Euphrates.

15 And the four angels were looſed, which were prepared for an hour and a day and a month and a year, for to ſlay the third part of men.

16 And the number of the army of the horſemen were two hundred thouſand thouſand: and I heard the number of them.

17 And thus I ſaw the horſes in the viſion, and them that ſat on them, having breaſt-plates of fire and of jacinth and brimſtone; and the heads of the horſes were as the heads of lions: and out of their mouths iſſued fire and ſmoke and brimſtone.

18 By theſe three was the third part of men killed,

12 And the fourth angel ſounded, &c.) The fourth trumpet introduces the weakening of the imperial power in its head, and in its ſeveral ſubordinations, repreſented by the heavenly luminaries, which were made to rule the day and night in the material ſyſtem. The conſequence of the power and influence aſſumed by the clergy, as repreſented under the former trumpets, was the breaking of the government of the empire and weakening the power of the emperors at the head of it, (which was quite taken away by the next trumpet) and conſequently of all that had dominion in it under that head; yet the government of the empire was not fully deſtroyed, for, to this day ſomething of it remains in the ſeveral nations within the bounds of it. Therefore 'tis ſaid, "The third part of the ſun was ſmitten," &c. Theſe four trumpets reach from the acceſſion of Conſtantine, anno 312, to the depoſition of Auguſtulus in 476: with which event, and the diviſion of the empire into ten kingdoms, the next trumpet commences.

COMMENTARY on Chap. IX.

1 And I ſaw a ſtar fall from heaven unto the earth, &c.) This ſtar falling from heaven, ſignifies an elder or biſhop quitting the proper courſe of his office in the church, to interfere in civil government. This can be no other but the biſhop of Rome, who had a capital and leading part to act in the matter now to be declared. His ſeat being in the imperial city, and the extraordinary power that many ſucceſſive emperors had conferred upon him, together with the pre-eminence he had long claimed over all other biſhops, gave him univerſal influence, long before the latter part of the fifth century; to which the things we are now to ſpeak of belong. So long before as 372, Valentinian enacted a law, empowering the biſhop of Rome to examine and judge other biſhops. As this fifth trumpet relates to the time when the Roman empire was broken, by the invaſions of the Goths and other barbarous nations, and the emperor Auguſtulus depoſed in 476, we may therefore be aſſured, that the woe that comes with this trumpet is the kingdom of Antichriſt coming with all power: for we are expreſsly told that the ten kings who divided the empire among them receive their power as kings at one hour, or at the ſame time, with the beaſt. It ſeems ſtrange indeed, that theſe barbarians, who were not more oppoſite to each other in their ſecular purſuits, than in their religious ſentiments, ſome being heathens, others Arians, and ſome Orthodox, ſhould all agree to advance the clergy, and the biſhop of Rome at the head of them, to ſuch, not only uncontrouled, but all controuling power. Yet ſo the fact really was; and it is aſcribed to God, as a remarkable event in his ſovereign providence, "who put in their hearts to fulfil his will, and to agree, and give their kingdom to the beaſt, till the words of God ſhould be fulfilled."

5 And to them it was given that they ſhould not kill them, &c.) The true ſubjects of the clergy's kingdom are ſuch as have a form of godlineſs, denying the power of it, and on theſe, this woe puts out its whole power. And yet it does not kill them, i. e. does not ſuffer them wholly to abandon the Chriſtian name, and extinguiſh all the form of the Chriſtian profeſſion in them; but by means of what remains of it, torments them, keeping them as it were between life and death, in ſuch pain as one is that is ſtung by a ſcorpion. This power acting upon the conſciences of men, together with the ſecular power, wherewith it is accompanied, is that which torments the ſubjects of the Antichriſtian kingdom, and holds them in unavoidable ſubjection. This is the ſource of all the riches wherewith the clergy have been enriched, even a ſuperſtitious fear, keeping the people in the moſt abject dependance on their ſpiritual guides. The hiſtory of Britain ſhews that it has had its full ſhare of this plague.

13 And the ſixth angel ſounded, &c.) The ſixth trumpet is the ſecond woe, of the three of which we had warning, chap. viii. 13. and ſeems, manifeſtly to be ſome plague on Antichriſt's kingdom, or the Chriſtian world, who are charged with not repenting of their murders and idolatries, &c. As the time of this woe is five months, or 150 years, after the coming of the preceding, we have to look into hiſtory for ſome remarkable event that will anſwer to this deſcription, and that happened before the middle of the ſeventh century. We find that Mahomet made his firſt appearance in the year 612, in the reign of the emperor Heraclius; and that he, in a few years, over-run and ſubjugated a vaſt extent of country, in the

by the fire, and by the smoke, and by the brimstone, which issued out of their mouths.

19 For their power is in their mouth, and in their tails: for their tails were like unto serpents, and had heads, and with them they do hurt.

20 And the rest of the men which were not killed by these plagues, yet repented not of the works of their hands, that they should not worship devils, and idols of gold, and silver, and brass, and stone, and of wood, which neither can see, nor hear, nor walk:

21 Neither repented they of their murders, nor of their sorceries, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts.

CHAP. X.

1 A strong angel appeareth with a book open in his hand. 9 John commanded to eat the book.

AND I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, clothed with a cloud: and a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was as it were the sun, and his feet as pillars of fire:

2 And he had in his hand a little book open: and he set his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot on the earth,

3 And cried with a loud voice, as when a lion roareth: and when he had cried, seven thunders uttered their voices.

4 And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write: and I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Seal up those things which the seven thunders uttered, and write them not.

5 And the angel which I saw stand upon the sea and upon the earth, lifted up his hand to heaven,

6 And sware by him that liveth for ever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that therein are, and the earth, and the things that therein are, and the sea, and the things which are therein, that there should be time no longer:

7 But in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets.

8 And the voice which I heard from heaven, spake unto me again, and said, Go and take the little book which is open in the hand of the angel which standeth upon the sea and upon the earth.

9 ¶ And I went unto the angel, and said unto him, Give me the little book. And he said unto me, Take it, and eat it up; and it shall make thy belly bitter, but it shall be in thy mouth sweet as honey.

10 And I took the little book out of the angel's hand, and ate it up: and it was in my mouth sweet as honey: and as soon as I had eaten it my belly was bitter.

11 And he said unto me, Thou must prophesy again before many peoples, and nations, and tongues, and kings.

CHAP. XI.

3 The two witnesses prophesy. 7 The beast shall kill them. 8 They lie unburied.

AND there was given me a reed like unto a rod: and the angel stood, saying, Rise and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and them that worship therein.

2 But the court which is without the temple leave out, and measure it not: for it is given unto the Gentiles: and the holy city shall they tread under foot forty and two months.

3 ¶ And I will give power unto my two witnesses, and they shall prophesy a thousand two hundred and threescore days clothed in sackcloth.

east and southern parts of the empire, both in Africa, and in Asia, to the river Euphrates. Prideaux says, "Mahomet, from very mean beginnings, rose to that height as to make one of the greatest revolutions that ever happened in the world, which immediately gave birth to an empire which, in eighty years time, extended its dominion over more kingdoms and countries than ever the Romans could do in 800." Now as this empire was set up with the most formidable warlike force, as it consisted greatly of countries that had been called Christian, viz. Syria, Persia, Egypt, and other countries, and as the conqueror forced the conquered to renounce the Christian profession, we may very safely conclude that this is the woe whereby the third part of men were killed, i. e. divested of the Christian name, which under the foregoing woe they were not suffered to renounce. If we add the five months, or 150 years, allotted to the preceding trumpet, to the time of the deposition of Augustulus in 476, we are brought to 626; which was some years after the first appearance of Mahomet.

COMMENTARY on Chap. X.

1 And I saw another mighty angel come down from heaven, &c.) This chapter is a continuation of the events of the sixth trumpet, which ends with the translation of the scriptures into the languages of the nations; by which the consumption of the Man of Sin is begun; with which coincide the resurrection of the witnesses, and the falling of the tenth part of the city, chap. xi. 13.

2 He had in his hand a little book open.) This little book is the apostolic writings, which, however they had been neglected, were preserved by the hand of him who worketh all things according to the council of his own will. It was open, intimating that it should be again understood, as we see, ver. 11. He stood on the sea and on the earth, as Lord of both, and able to rule both the raging of the seas and the tumults of the people.

10 And I took the little book out of the angel's hand, &c.) As this event closes the matters of the sixth trumpet, and introduces the consumption of the Man of Sin, which is caused by this little book, it brings us to the latter end of the fifteenth century, when the scriptures were again brought forth to the view of the nations and peoples, that were worshipping the beast and his image. The beginning of this great blessing seems to be, at least in this country, in the translation of the New Testament, by Wickliff, which was so early as 1380: but this came into but few hands, as the art of printing was not yet invented, and the vigilance of the clergy made it unsafe to possess it. To bring this to maturity, there was a most remarkable providence in the taking of Constantinople by the Turks, which happened in 1453. By means of this, the Greeks who fled from thence into Italy, and the western parts, brought the knowledge of the tongues, wherein the gospel was written, into these parts; and the translations of the scriptures commenced from thence. The invention of the art of printing, about that time, was a notable providence, and contributed much to the spreading of the scriptures among the nations. Accordingly, a Latin Bible was printed in 1462; one, in English, in 1474; another, in Hebrew and Greek, in 1488; and another, in Spanish, about the same time; and doubtless in other languages. By means of these, the apostles again travelled through the nations, in their writings, and prophesied again before many peoples, &c. which answered the same end as the gift of tongues did, before the scriptures were committed to writing.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XI.

3 And I will give power unto my two witnesses, &c.) The old testament and the new, are these two witnesses, who testify against the profanation of the Lord's house, and all the evils by which the profession of Christ's name is so far removed from the divine pattern. In this state of prevailing corruption they prophesy in sackcloth; being base and disregarded, they appear as in garments of mourners, or captives. However degenerate the church was, yet they would not wholly give up the scriptures of the old and new testament, although they rendered them of none effect to themselves. Nor were they ever permitted to corrupt them, although their testimony tormented them that dwelt on the earth. This preservation of the scriptures from corruption, in its conveyance through such abominable hands, is spoken of as the Lord's work; the Lord gave unto these his witnesses that they might pro-

4 Theſe are the two olive-trees, and the two candleſticks ſtanding before the God of the earth.

5 And if any man will hurt them, fire proceedeth out of their mouth, and devoureth their enemies: and if any man will hurt them he muſt in this manner be killed.

6 ¶ Theſe have power to ſhut heaven, that it rain not in the days of their prophecy: and have power over waters to turn them to blood, and to ſmite the earth with all plagues as often as they will.

7 And when they ſhall have finiſhed their teſtimony, the beaſt that aſcendeth out of the bottomleſs pit ſhall make war againſt them, and ſhall overcome them, and kill them.

8 ¶ And their dead bodies ſhall lie in the ſtreet of the great city, which ſpiritually is called Sodom and Egypt, where alſo our Lord was crucified.

9 And they of the people, and kindreds, and tongues, and nations, ſhall ſee their dead bodies three days and an half, and ſhall not ſuffer their dead bodies to be put in graves.

10 And they that dwell upon the earth ſhall rejoice over them, and make merry, and ſhall ſend gifts one to another: becauſe theſe two prophets tormented them that dwelt on the earth.

11 And after three days and an half the ſpirit of life from God entered into them, and they ſtood upon their feet, and great fear fell upon them which ſaw them.

12 And they heard a great voice from heaven ſaying unto them, Come up hither. And they aſcended up to heaven in a cloud; and their enemies beheld them.

13 And the ſame hour was there a great earthquake, and the tenth part of the city fell, and in the earthquake, were ſlain of men ſeven thouſand: and the remnant were affrighted, and gave glory to the God of heaven.

14 ¶ The ſecond woe is paſt; and behold, the third woe cometh quickly.

15 And the ſeventh angel ſounded; and there were great voices in heaven, ſaying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord, and of his Chriſt, and he ſhall reign for ever and ever.

16 And the four and twenty elders which ſat before God on their ſeats, fell upon their faces, and worſhipped God,

17 Saying, We give thee thanks, O Lord God Almighty, which art, and waſt, and art to come, becauſe thou haſt taken to thee thy great power, and haſt reigned.

18 And the nations were angry, and thy wrath is come, and the time of the dead, that they ſhould be judged, and that thou ſhouldeſt give reward unto thy ſervants the prophets, and to the ſaints, and them that fear thy name, ſmall and great; and ſhouldeſt deſtroy them which deſtroy the earth.

19 And the temple of God was opened in heaven, and there was ſeen in his temple the ark of his teſtament: and there were lightnings, and voices, and thunderings, and an earthquake, and great hail.

CHAP. XII.

1 A woman clothed with the ſun travaileth. 4 The great red dragon ſtandeth before her, ready to devour her child.

AND there appeared a great wonder in heaven; a woman clothed with the ſun, and the moon under her feet, and upon her head a crown of twelve ſtars:

2 And ſhe being with child, cried, travailing in birth, and pained to be delivered.

3 And there appeared another wonder in heaven, and behold, a great red dragon, having ſeven heads and ten horns, and ſeven crowns upon his heads.

4 And his tail drew the third part of the ſtars of heaven, and did caſt them to the earth. And the dragon ſtood before the woman which was ready to be delivered, for to devour her child as ſoon as it was born.

5 And ſhe brought forth a man-child, who was to rule all nations with a rod of iron: and her child was caught up unto God, and to his throne.

phecy the whole time of the beaſt's reign, though in the moſt neglected and abject appearance. And now that they are come forth out of theſe hands, teſtifying ſo fully againſt all their abominations, we may ſay the viler the company were that had the keeping them, ſo much the more evidence we have that they have not been permitted to alter them. Even thus the Jews kept the old teſtament, and ſtill adhere to it, while it condemns them.

7 Shall overcome them, and kill them.) The moſt remarkable public act, like killing the witneſſes, is this, in Dupin's words: "The council of Baſil made a degree in the 30th ſeſſion, which was held on the 22d of December, 1437, touching communion in both kinds; by which they declared, That believers who communicate are believed by divine right to communicate in both kinds; but that it is the buſineſs of the church to determine in what manner the communion ought to be adminiſtred." This claiming a right for the church to determine, and, accordingly, the church determining point blank againſt the expreſs words of ſcripure, on which the Bohemians founded their claim, and this, in a general council, looks very like to the killing of the witneſſes. Eſpecially as it was by this very deciſion, that they defended themſelves from being tormented with the expreſs words of God's witneſſes, and at the ſame time reconciled ſome of the contending parties; as Herod and Pontius Pilate were reconciled, when Chriſt was delivered to be crucified. If this act of the council of Baſil, in 1437, was the public execution of the witneſſes, deduct from it 1260; for the days of their prophecy, and the beginning was in 173, and they are ſaid, v. 11, to lie expoſed three days and a half, which, after the prophetic manner, is three years and a half, we ſhould look for ſome conſiderable event which may give us ſome idea of their being revived, about the year 1441: but at this diſtance of time, it may ſeem too nice to aſcertain the preciſe year of any thing that is not a public act upon record. It is notorious that the year 1440 or 1441 gave birth to the art of printing, by which the tranſlations of the ſcriptures, into moſt of the languages of Europe, were abundantly ſpread before the end of this century. We know not whether our readers will think this curious art of importance enough, to the ſpreading of the ſcriptures, and putting them out of the reach of their enemies, to have the time of its diſcovery ſo preciſely marked in ſacred prophecy; but this muſt be granted, that no conceivable event could have done it more effectually.

15 And the ſeventh angel ſounded, &c.) None of the events of the ſeventh trumpet are told till we come to the pouring out of the vials, in Chap 16. All that intervenes, is a continuation of the parentheſis, which begins, with reſpect to the thread of the prophecy, at the 11th Chapter, which is a ſurvey of the ſtate of the church, and of the ſcriptures, to the end of the ſixth trumpet. The twelfth chapter deſcribes the church from its firſt ſetting up to the time of the reformation, and includes a ſhort hiſtory of Satan's enmity againſt it. Chap. 13. deſcribes the Antichriſtian church in its nature, origin, extent, and courſe of actions. Chap. 14. repreſents the company of them that were ſealed, engaged in the joyful worſhip of the general aſſembly and church of the firſt-born, and triumphing in the proſpect of the judgment of the great whore. Chap. 15. introduces the ſeven angels having the ſeven laſt plagues, which are the gradations by which the Man of Sin is to be conſumed, in the proſpect of which thoſe who have gotten the victory, celebrate the divine juſtice and truth.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XII.

1 There appedred a great wonder in heaven, &c.) The true church is repreſented by a woman, as the falſe church is by a great whore. She is here repreſented as in heaven, according to the ſaying (Gal. iv. 16.) of the apoſtle, "Jeruſalem which is above, is free, and is the mother of all" God's children, even as Eve, to whom this deſcription alludes, was the mother of all living. The account of the dreſs of this woman, is a contraſt to the dreſs of (Chap. xvii. 4.) the great whore, who ſitteth on many waters; whoſe adorning of gold, and precious ſtones, and pearls, is obtained by the kings of the earth committing fornication with her.

6 And the woman fled into the wilderneſs, where ſhe hath a place prepared of God, that they ſhould feed her there a thouſand two hundred and threeſcore days.

7 And there was war in heaven: Michael and his angels fought againſt the dragon, and the dragon fought and his angels,

8 And prevailed not; neither was their place found any more in heaven.

9 And the great dragon was caſt out, that old ſerpent, called the Devil, and Satan, which deceiveth the whole world: he was caſt out into the earth, and his angels were caſt out with him.

10 And I heard a loud voice ſaying in heaven, Now is come ſalvation and ſtrength, and the kingdom of our God, and the power of his Chriſt: for the accuſer of our brethren is caſt down, which accuſed them before our God day and night.

11 And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb, and by the word of their teſtimony; and they loved not their lives unto the death.

12 Therefore rejoice, ye heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe to the inhabiters of the earth and of the ſea! for the devil is come down unto you, having great wrath, becauſe he knoweth that he hath but a ſhort time.

13 And when the dragon ſaw that he was caſt unto the earth, he perſecuted the woman which brought forth the man-child.

14 And to the woman were given two wings of a great eagle, that ſhe might fly into the wilderneſs, into her place, where ſhe is nouriſhed for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the ſerpent.

15 And the ſerpent caſt out of his mouth water as a flood after the woman, that he might cauſe her to be carried away of the flood.

16 And the earth helped the woman, and the earth opened her mouth, and ſwallowed up the flood which the dragon caſt out of his mouth.

17 And the dragon was wroth with the woman, and went to make war with the remnant of her ſeed, which keep the commandments of God, and have the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt.

CHAP. XIII.

1 A beaſt riſeth out of the ſea with ſeven heads. 11 Another beaſt cometh up out of the earth.

AND I ſtood upon the ſand of the ſea, and ſaw a beaſt riſe up out of the ſea, having ſeven heads and ten horns, and upon his horns ten crowns, and upon his heads the name of blaſphemy.

2 And the beaſt which I ſaw was like unto a leopard, and his feet were as the feet of a bear, and his mouth as the mouth of a lion: and the dragon gave him his power, and his ſeat, and great authority.

3 And I ſaw one of his heads as it were wounded to death; and his deadly wound was healed: and all the world wondered after the beaſt.

4 And they worſhipped the dragon which gave power unto the beaſt: and they worſhipped the beaſt, ſaying, Who is like unto the beaſt? who is able to make war with him?

5 And there was given unto him a mouth ſpeaking great things, and blaſphemies: and power was given unto him to continue forty and two months.

6 And he opened his mouth in blaſphemy againſt God, to blaſpheme his name, and his tabernacle, and them that dwell in heaven.

7 And it was given unto him to make war with the ſaints, and to overcome them: and power was given him over all kindreds, and tongues, and nations.

8 And all that dwell upon the earth ſhall worſhip him, whoſe names are not written in the book of life of the Lamb ſlain from the foundation of the world.

9 If any man have an ear, let him hear.

10 He that leadeth into captivity, ſhall go into captivity: he that killeth with the ſword, muſt be killed with the ſword. Here is the patience and faith of the ſaints.

11 ¶ And I beheld another beaſt coming up out of the earth: and he had two horns like a lamb, and he ſpake as a dragon.

12 And he exerciſeth all the power of the firſt beaſt before him, and cauſeth the earth and them which dwell therein to worſhip the firſt beaſt, whoſe deadly wound was healed.

13 And he doeth great wonders, ſo that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the ſight of men.

14 And deceiveth them that dwell on the earth, by the means of thoſe miracles which he had power to do in the ſight of the beaſt; ſaying to them that dwell on the earth, That they ſhould make an image to the beaſt which had the wound by a ſword, and did live.

15 And he had power to give life unto the image of the beaſt, that the image of the beaſt ſhould both ſpeak and cauſe that as many as would not worſhip the image of the beaſt ſhould be killed.

16 And he cauſed all, both ſmall and great, rich and poor, free and bond, to receive a mark in their right hand, or in their foreheads;

17 And that no man might buy or ſell, ſave he that

2 She, being with child, cried, travailing in birth, &c.) This hard labour of the church reſpects the ſufferings and death of Chriſt; and the birth of the man child, his reſurrection, as the firſt begotten from the dead, the firſt-born among many brethren.

13 When the dragon ſaw he was caſt unto the earth, &c.) And the conſequence of this was her ſecond flight into the wilderneſs, v. 14. This took place in conſequence of Satan being caſt down from his firſt ſtation, wherein he fought againſt the church; ſo that deliverance was an introduction to this evil to Chriſt's members on the earth. In this repreſentation of the woman's flying into the wilderneſs from the face of the ſerpent, there may be an alluſion to the church of Iſrael in the paſt howling wilderneſs, whom the Lord ſays he "bare as on eagles wings; who were ſuſtained there in a miraculous manner by divine power.

15 The ſerpent caſt out of his mouth water as a flood, &c.) As this ſuppoſes the church to be in ſome ſort viſible, though in the wilderneſs, it ſeems peculiarly applicable to that early appearance which the Bohemians made in the fifteenth century, (which was ſpoken of before) and the extreme rage and cruelty of the clergy, which was exerciſed upon them; which alſo we take to be the time of killing the witneſſes. To this flood from the mouth of the dragon, belongs alſo all that malice and violence which the clergy exerciſed, in the oppoſition they made to the knowledge of the ſcriptures, when they began to be brought forth into the languages of the nations.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XIII.

3 And all the world wondered after the beaſt.) The univerſality of the clergy's influence can hardly be accounted for, conſidering the implacable diſagreement among all theſe nations in every other reſpect, but by this, that God had ſaid he would ſend them ſtrong deluſions, &c. We may hear again what Moſheim ſays on this: "The opprobrious ſtains that were now in the character of the clergy would never have been endured, had not the greateſt part of mankind been ſunk in ſuperſtition and ignorance, and all in general formed their ideas of the rights and liberties of Chriſtian miniſters," from the model exhibited by the ſacerdotal orders among the Hebrews, Greeks, and Romans, during the law of Moſes, and the darkneſs of paganiſm. The barbarous nations alſo, thoſe fierce and warlike Germans who, after the defeat of the Romans, divided among them the weſtern empire, bore, with the utmoſt patience and moderation, both the dominion and vices of the biſhops and prieſts, becauſe, upon their converſion to Chriſtianity, they became naturally ſubject to their juriſdiction; and ſtill more, becauſe they looked upon the miniſters of Chriſt as inveſted with the ſame rights and privileges which diſtinguiſhed the prieſts of their fictitious deities."

had had the mark, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name.

18 Here is wisdom. Let him that hath understanding count the number of the beast: for it is the number of a man; and his number is Six hundred threescore and six.

CHAP. XIV.

1 The Lamb standeth on mount Sion. 6 An angel preacheth the gospel.

AND I looked, and lo, a Lamb stood on the mount Sion, and with him an hundred forty and four thousand, having his Father's name written in their foreheads.

2 And I heard a voice from heaven as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of a great thunder: and I heard the voice of harpers harping with their harps:

3 And they sung as it were a new song before the throne, and before the four beasts, and the elders: and no man could learn that song but the hundred and forty and four thousand, which were redeemed from the earth.

4 These are they which were not defiled with women; for they are virgins. These are they which follow the Lamb whithersoever he goeth. These were redeemed from among men, being the first-fruits unto God and to the Lamb.

5 And in their mouth was found no guile: for they are without fault before the throne of God.

6 ¶ And I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, having the everlasting gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth, and to every nation, and kindred, and tongue, and people,

7 Saying with a loud voice, Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of his judgment is come: and worship him that made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and the fountains of waters.

8 And there followed another angel, saying, Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city, because she made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication.

9 And the third angel followed them, saying with a loud voice, If any man worship the beast and his image, and receive his mark in his forehead, or in his hand,

10 The same shall drink of the wine of the wrath of God, which is poured out without mixture into the cup of his indignation; and he shall be tormented with fire and brimstone in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb:

11 And the smoke of their torment ascendeth up for ever and ever: and they have no rest day nor night, who worship the beast and his image, and whosoever receiveth the mark of his name.

12 Here is the patience of the saints: here are they that keep the commandments of God, and the faith of Jesus.

13 And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labours; and their works do follow them.

14 And I looked, and, behold, a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sat, like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle.

15 And another angel came out of the temple, crying with a loud voice to him that sat on the cloud, Thrust in thy sickle, and reap: for the time is come for thee to reap; for the harvest of the earth is ripe.

16 And he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle on the earth; and the earth was reaped.

17 And another angel came out of the temple which is in heaven, he also having a sharp sickle.

18 And another angel came out from the altar, which had power over fire; and cried with a loud cry to him that had the sharp sickle, saying, Thrust in thy sharp sickle, and gather the clusters of the vine of the earth; for her grapes are fully ripe.

19 And the angel thrust in his sickle into the earth, and gathered the vine of the earth, and cast it into the great wine-press of the wrath of God.

20 And the wine-press was trodden without the city; and blood came out of the wine-press even unto the horse-bridles, by the space of a thousand and six hundred furlongs.

CHAP. XV.

1 The seven angels with the seven last plagues. 7 The seven vials full of the wrath of God.

AND I saw another sign in heaven, great and marvellous, seven angels having the seven last plagues; for in them is filled up the wrath of God.

---

4 And they worshipped the dragon, &c.) Dr. Mosheim, who was far from intending to slander the times of Constantine and his successors, gives this account: "In this (fourth) century it was introduced as a maxim, that errors in religion, when maintained and adhered to, after proper admonition, were punishable with civil penalties and corporal tortures." On this maxim the court of inquisition, for the detection and punishment of heretical pravity, was set up in the thirteenth century; whose inhuman butcheries need not be told here. This diabolical rage of the clergy fell on all that stood in the way of their authority, or of their lusts; so that authors have computed millions of victims to their vengeance.

Commentary on Chap. XIV.

1 A Lamb stood on the Mount Sion, &c.) This chapter begins with a vision of them who were sealed, Chap. vii. and so secured from destruction before Antichrist was revealed. These are excepted in the account given of the universal worship of the beast, (Chap. xiii. 8.) because their "names were written from the foundation of the world, in the slain Lamb's book of life."

6 I saw another angel fly in the midst of heaven, &c.) This universal republication of the gospel, answers to the time of the printing of the translations of the scriptures; which took place very extensively in the sixteenth century. When Luther and Zuingle, in contending against indulgences, were obliged, in the issue of their contention, to have recourse to the holy scripture, and content for it as the only rule of Christianity; and their adversaries, not daring to deny their divine inspiration, had no other plausible argument against them but the authority of the church, which yet could have no authority, unless the scriptures gave it them; this turned the eyes of people to the scriptures: and the Romish church perceiving this, set themselves by all means to put a stop to the publication of the gospel, or to the spreading of the knowledge of the scriptures among the nations. But this was the decreed mean of the consumption of Antichrist; so it is immediately followed with a proclamation, Babylon is fallen.

16 And he that sat on the cloud, &c.) The execution of divine vengeance was represented of old under the figure of treading the devoted objects in a wine press; (See Lam. i. 15.) therefore the head of the true church, who here appeared on a white cloud, in the manner as his disciples saw him ascend into heaven, is said, (Chap. xix. 15.) to tread the wine press of the fierceness and wrath of Almighty God. The deluge of blood here described intimates the extreme vengeance; and its extent, 1600 furlongs, may lead us to think of the state of Rome, as the chief seat and source of Antichristian abominations; whose extent, from the city of Rome to the furthermost mouth of the river Po, and the marshes of Ravenna, is 1600 Italian miles, which is 1600 furlongs. As the bishop of Rome seems to have been thought worthy to represent the whole body of the Antichristian clergy; so may the temporal jurisdiction of the church represent all the nations in which Antichrist reigns.

2 And I ſaw as it were a ſea of glaſs mingled with fire; and them that had gotten the victory over the beaſt, and over his image, and over his mark, and over the number of his name, ſtand on the ſea of glaſs, having the harps of God.

3 And they ſing the ſong of Moſes, the ſervant of God, and the ſong of the Lamb, ſaying, Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty: juſt and true are thy ways, thou King of ſaints.

4 Who ſhall not fear thee, O Lord, and glorify thy name? for thou only art holy: for all nations ſhall come and worſhip before thee; for thy judgments are made manifeſt.

5 And after that I looked, and, behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the teſtimony in heaven was opened:

6 And the ſeven angels came out of the temple, having the ſeven plagues, clothed in pure and white linen, and having their breaſts girded with golden girdles.

7 ¶ And one of the four beaſts gave unto the ſeven angels ſeven golden vials, full of the wrath of God, who liveth for ever and ever.

8 And the temple was filled with ſmoke from the glory of God, and from his power; and no man was able to enter into the temple till the ſeven plagues of the ſeven angels were fulfilled.

CHAP. XVI.

1 The angels pour out their vials full of wrath. 6 The plagues that follow.

AND I heard a great voice out of the temple, ſaying to the ſeven angels, Go your ways, and pour out the vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.

2 And the firſt went, and poured out his vial upon the earth; and there fell a noiſome and a grievous ſore upon the men which had the mark of the beaſt, and upon them which worſhipped his image.

3 And the ſecond angel poured out his vial upon the ſea; and it became as the blood of a dead man: and every living ſoul died in the ſea.

4 And the third angel poured out his vial upon the rivers and fountains of waters; and they became blood.

5 And I heard the angel of the waters ſay, Thou art righteous, O Lord, which art, and waſt, and ſhalt be, becauſe thou haſt judged thus:

6 ¶ For they have ſhed the blood of ſaints and prophets, and thou haſt given them blood to drink: for they are worthy.

7 And I heard another out of the altar ſay, Even ſo, Lord God Almighty, true and righteous are thy judgments.

8 And the fourth angel poured out his vial upon the ſun: and power was given unto him to ſcorch men with fire.

9 And men were ſcorched with great heat, and blaſphemed the name of God, which hath power over theſe plagues; and they repented not to give him glory.

10 And the fifth angel poured out his vial upon the ſeat of the beaſt; and his kingdom was full of darkneſs; and they gnawed their tongues for pain,

11 And blaſphemed the God of heaven, becauſe of their pains and their ſores, and repented not of their deeds.

12 And the ſixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates; and the water thereof was

COMMENTARY on Chap. XV.

2 Them that had gotten the victory over the beaſt, &c.) Are thoſe of whom the ſouls under the altar were told, when it was Chap. vi. 11. "ſaid unto them that they ſhould reſt yet for a little ſeaſon, until their fellow ſervants alſo, and their brethren that ſhould be killed as they were, ſhould be fulfilled."

5 The temple of the tabernacle of the teſtimony in heaven was opened, &c.) The tabernacle of the teſtimony, as diſtinguiſhed from its temple, muſt mean the moſt holy place, where the teſtimony was depoſited. The temple of this tabernacle was the holy place, where the prieſt offered the daily ſacrifice: this being opened may intimate the ſame thing as the reſtoration of the daily ſacrifice, which had been taken away; or the reſtoration of the viſible church and its worſhip. This was certainly to take place in the time of the vials, as we are told the objects of the ſerpent's wrath are Chap. xii. 7. "the remnant of the woman's ſeed, keeping the commandments of God, and having the teſtimony of Jeſus Chriſt."

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVI.

1 Pour out the vials of the wrath of God upon the earth.) Here we reaſſume the thread of the prophecy from Chap. xi. 15. where the ſeventh trumpet is ſaid to be blown. The laſt thing in the order of time that has been mentioned, under the former trumpet, is the republication of the ſcriptures in the languages of the nations: this was the appointed mean of the conſumption of the man of ſin; and the vials are ſo many effects of this republication; as the fall of Babylon is, as we have ſeen declared in Chap. xiv. to be the iſſue of the everlaſting goſpel being preached to the nations. As the redeemed ſing the ſong of Moſes, ſo we may obſerve the vengeance on Babylon, that comes by the vials, is repreſented by the plagues on Pharaoh and his people, when the Lord was about to deliver his people from their bondage. In the firſt vial there is the plague of the boil; in the ſecond, the waters turned to blood; in the fifth the plague of darkneſs; and in the ſeventh, hail. For the ſame reaſon, (i. e. becauſe Antichriſt is to the Chriſtian church what Pharaoh was to Iſrael) the witneſſes are ſaid to be killed and expoſed in the great city which ſpiritually is called Egypt.

2 The firſt went and poured out his vial upon the earth, &c.) As the firſt trumpet introduced perſecution for the eſtabliſhment of catholic uniformity, ſo the firſt vial introduced the breach of that uniformity; making the men that worſhip the beaſt nauſeous to one another, as men are who have putrifying ulcers about them. The Antichriſtian body and conſtitution was ſound, till the Lord, in his wonderful providence, brought the ſcriptures again into the hands of the common people. The Lord's word is the ſpirit of his mouth: from the time when this began to blow on the Man of Sin, he began to languiſh; and the firſt degree of his conſumption was, when ſome of the powers of Europe, minding their own intereſt, ſtood up in defence of the publication of the ſcriptures, againſt the church of Rome; and when theſe kings, who had given their power and ſtrength to the beaſt, began to break the uniformity which they had exerted themſelves to eſtabliſh.

3 And the ſecond angel poured out his vial upon the ſea, &c.) That is, the great gathering together of the people in the Catholic church, makes their communion like the blood of a dead man; it ſtopped the circulation of that which is the very life of the body of Antichriſt. This is the reverſe of the ſecond trumpet, which whatever hurt it did to the profeſſion of real Chriſtianity, yet it brought the riches and grandeur of the Roman empire into the church; which is the life of the Antichriſtian body: but the ſecond vial ſtops the circulation of that life.

4 The third angel poured out his vial upon the rivers, &c.) The third vial extends the effects of the ſecond vial, to the particular nations and provinces where national uniformity was attempted, inſtead of the ancient catholic uniformity. This, although it could never be accompliſhed, cauſed much miſchief and bloodſhed.

8 The fourth angel poured out his vial upon the ſun, &c.) Not to extinguiſh, but increaſe its heat, and the miſery of the Antichriſtian world. The ſun of the Antichriſtian world, in oppoſition to the light of the kingdom of heaven, or the authority of Chriſt in his word, is, the wiſdom of eccleſiaſtical polity, aſſuming rule over the conſciences of men. The diviſions about forms of religion produced by the three foregoing vials augmented the force of this ſun; for theſe ſharpened mens wit to diſpute on all the parts of religion, and every thing that pertained to it, till men came to be overheated in all the diſputes that the wiſdom of words could be exerciſed in about religion.

10 The fifth angel poured out his vial upon the ſeat of the beaſt, &c.) As the fifth trumpet raiſed Antichriſt to his throne, fixed his throne with permanent ſtability, and filled his kingdom with the ſplendour of earthly glory; this fifth vial being poured on his throne, greatly dried up, that the way of the kings of the east might be prepared.

13 And I saw three unclean spirits like frogs come out of the mouth of the dragon, and out of the mouth of the beast, and out of the mouth of the false prophet.

14 For they are the spirits of devils, working miracles, which go forth unto the kings of the earth, and of the whole world, to gather them to the battle of that great day of God Almighty.

15 Behold, I come as a thief. Blessed is he that watcheth, and keepeth his garments, lest he walk naked, and they see his shame.

16 And he gathered them together into a place called in the Hebrew tongue Armageddon.

17 And the seventh angel poured out his vial into the air: and there came a great voice out of the temple of heaven, from the throne, saying, It is done.

18 And there were voices, and thunders, and lightnings; and there was a great earthquake, such as was not since men were upon the earth, so mighty an earthquake, and so great.

19 And the great city was divided into three parts, and the cities of the nations fell: and great Babylon came in remembrance before God, to give unto her the cup of the wine of the fierceness of his wrath.

20 And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found.

21 And there fell upon men a great hail out of heaven, every stone about the weight of a talent: and men blasphemed God because of the plague of the hail: for the plague thereof was exceeding great.

CHAP. XVII.

3, 4 A woman arrayed in purple and scarlet sitteth upon the beast. 9 The interpretation of the seven heads.

AND there came one of the seven angels, which had the seven vials, and talked with me, saying unto me, Come hither; I will shew unto thee the judgment of the great whore that sitteth upon many waters:

2 With whom the kings of the earth have committed fornication, and the inhabiters of the earth have been made drunk with the wine of her fornication.

3 So he carried me away in the spirit into the wilderness: and I saw a woman sit upon a scarlet-coloured beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns.

4 And the woman was arrayed in purple and scarlet-colour, and decked with gold, and precious stones, and pearls, having a golden cup in her hand, full of abominations and filthiness of her fornication.

5 And upon her forehead was a name written, MYSTERY, BABYLON THE GREAT, THE MOTHER OF HARLOTS AND ABOMINATIONS OF THE EARTH.

6 And I saw the woman drunken with the blood of the saints, and with the blood of the martyrs of Jesus: and when I saw her I wondered with great admiration.

7 And the angel said unto me, Wherefore didst thou marvel? I will tell thee the mystery of the woman, and of the beast that carrieth her, which hath the seven heads and ten horns.

8 The beast that thou sawest was, and is not; and shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and go into perdition: and they that dwell on the earth shall wonder, (whose names were not written in the book of life from the foundation of the world,) when they behold the beast that was, and is not, and yet is.

9 ¶ And here is the mind which hath wisdom. The seven heads are seven mountains, on which the woman sitteth.

10 And there are seven kings: five are fallen, and impairs its stability, and fills his kingdom with darkness; as it brings a great diminution of the honour, power, and riches of the clergy, with an almost total loss of their authority over the consciences of men.

12 The sixth angel poured out his vial upon the great river Euphrates, &c.) This vial, and the next with which the mystery of God shall be finished, relate to future things; and it has been very justly observed, that the prophecies were not given to make us prophets, but to shew, that "known unto God are all his works from the beginning:" and also, that we may have some general idea of important future events, sufficient to keep up our attention to that holy providence which only can both fulfil and explain the prophecies. Such a general observation is all that we must attempt, respecting these two vials. By comparing the sixth vial with the sixth trumpet, in the reverse of its effects, (as we have seen that the vials bring down what the trumpets set up) we must suppose it to relate to the Mahomedan powers, who were set up under the sixth trumpet, and probably will be brought down under the sixth vial; and this may be the drying up of the water of the great river Euphrates. This drying up of Euphrates is said to be, that the way of the kings of the east may be prepared. It is certain that Cyrus, that king of the east, was a type of Christ, in his subduing Babylon, delivering the captive Jews, and rebuilding of God's temple; for which see Isaiah xliv. 28. and chap. xlv. And it is as certain, that this great deliverance of God's people was brought about by his turning the waters of Euphrates out of their channel, and so drying it, that he might prepare his way to enter by it into that city, whose impregnable walls made every other entrance impossible. It is also evident that this deliverance of Israel was a type of the deliverance which Christ shall bring to his people from MYSTERY, BABYLON; so that what shall very soon happen to the Mahomedan powers, shall some way serve to prepare his way. But how it shall do this, the event must shew.

17 The seventh angel poured out his vial into the air, &c.) This vial brings that great event that was promised to come in the days of the voice of the seventh angel; it finishes the mystery of God; and it gives the last and the destructive stroke to Babylon, on whom it pours out all the divine wrath.

18 And there was a great earthquake, &c.) We have often observed that an earthquake in this prophecy uniformly signifies a great change on the face of things. There are four earthquakes mentioned in this book. The first is Chap. vi. 12. representing the great change in the empire, when heathenism was demolished, and a Christian came to be at the head of the empire. The second is, Chap. viii. 5. at the opening of the seventh seal; and represents the change on the profession of Christianity; which, instead of its former disgrace and persecution, now began to be attended with ease and honour, prosperity and grandeur, which produced the Man of Sin. The third is, Chap. xi. 13. at the revival of the witnesses, at the end of the sixth trumpet; and denotes the change in the state of Antichrist's affairs at the reformation. The fourth earthquake is this we are now speaking of, which is such as was not since men were upon earth, so mighty an earthquake and so great, for it is "the day of the Lord's vengeance, and the year of recompences for the controversy of Zion."

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVII.

1 I will shew unto thee the judgment of the great whore, &c.) This chapter, as an introduction to a more full account of the great events of the seventh vial, is an explanation of some of the capital characters in the foregoing prophecy. As the assistance of this chapter has been taken all along, and the characters applied according to it, the less needs to be said about it here. The judgment of the great whore is, what she shall be judged for, and what her punishment shall be. She is called the whore, because not content with the protection and provision that Jesus Christ bestows on his church, she betakes herself to the kings of the earth, is defended and provided for by them, and shews herself openly abroad in the ornaments they have bestowed upon her: And she boasts herself of many children that appear manifestly not to have been begotten by the power of Jesus Christ, or with the word of truth.

one is, and the other is not yet come; and when he cometh he muſt continue a ſhort ſpace.

11 And the beaſt that was, and is not, even he is the eighth, and is of the ſeven, and goeth into perdition.

12 And the ten horns which thou ſaweſt are ten kings, which have received no kingdom as yet; but receive power as kings one hour with the beaſt.

13 Theſe have one mind, and ſhall give their power and ſtrength unto the beaſt.

14 Theſe ſhall make war with the Lamb, and the Lamb ſhall overcome them: for he is Lord of lords, and King of kings; and they that are with him are called, and choſen, and faithful.

15 And he ſaith unto me, The waters which thou ſaweſt, where the whore ſitteth, are peoples, and multitudes, and nations, and tongues.

16 And the ten horns which thou ſaweſt upon the beaſt, theſe ſhall hate the whore, and ſhall make her deſolate and naked, and ſhall eat her fleſh, and burn her with fire.

17 For God hath put in their hearts to fulfil his will, and to agree, and give their kingdom unto the beaſt, until the words of God ſhall be fulfilled.

18 And the woman which thou ſaweſt is that great city, which reigneth over the kings of the earth.

CHAP. XVIII.

1 Babylon is fallen, 4 the people of God commanded to go out of her, 9 the kings of the earth lament over her.

AND after theſe things I ſaw another angel come down from heaven, having great power; and the earth was lightened with his glory.

2 And he cried mightily with a ſtrong voice, ſaying, Babylon the great is fallen, is fallen, and is become the habitation of devils, and the hold of every foul ſpirit, and a cage of every unclean and hateful bird.

3 For all nations have drunk of the wine of the wrath of her fornication, and the kings of the earth have committed fornication with her, and the merchants of the earth are waxed rich through the abundance of her delicacies.

4 ¶ And I heard another voice from heaven, ſaying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her ſins, and that ye receive not of her plagues:

5 For her ſins have reached unto heaven, and God hath remembered her iniquities.

6 Reward her even as ſhe rewarded you, and double unto her double, according to her works: in the cup which ſhe hath filled, fill to her double.

7 How much ſhe hath glorified herſelf, and lived deliciouſly, ſo much torment and ſorrow give her: for ſhe ſaith in her heart, I ſit a queen, and am no widow, and ſhall ſee no ſorrow.

8 Therefore ſhall her plagues come in one day, death, and mourning, and famine: and ſhe ſhall be utterly burnt with fire: for ſtrong is the Lord God who judgeth her.

9 ¶ And the kings of the earth, who have committed fornication and lived deliciouſly with her, ſhall bewail her, and lament for her, when they ſhall ſee the ſmoke of her burning,

10 Standing afar off for fear of her torment, ſaying, Alas, alas! that great city Babylon, that mighty city! for in one hour is thy judgment come.

11 And the merchants of the earth ſhall weep and mourn over her; for no man buyeth their merchandiſe any more:

12 The merchandiſe of gold, and ſilver, and precious ſtones, and of pearls, and fine linen, and purple, and ſilk, and ſcarlet, and all thyine-wood, and all manner veſſels of ivory, and all manner veſſels of moſt precious wood, and of braſs, and iron, and marble,

13 And cinnamon, and odours, and ointments, and frankincenſe, and wine, and oil, and fine flour, and wheat, and beaſts, and ſheep, and horſes, and chariots, and ſlaves, and ſouls of men.

14 And the fruits that thy ſoul luſted after are departed from thee, and all things which were dainty and goodly are departed from thee, and thou ſhalt find them no more at all.

15 The merchants of theſe things, which were made rich by her, ſhall ſtand afar off, for the fear of her torment, weeping and wailing,

16 And ſaying, Alas, alas! that great city, that was clothed in fine linen, and purple, and ſcarlet, and decked with gold, and precious ſtones, and pearls!

17 For in one hour ſo great riches is come to nought. And every ſhip-maſter, and all the company in ſhips, and ſailors, and as many as trade by ſea, ſtood afar off,

18 And cried, when they ſaw the ſmoke of her burning, ſaying, What city is like unto this great city!

19 And they caſt duſt on their heads, and cried, weeping and wailing, ſaying, Alas, alas! that great city, wherein were made rich all that had ſhips in the ſea by reaſon of her coſtlineſs! for in one hour is ſhe made deſolate.

20 Rejoice over her, thou heaven, and ye holy apoſtles and prophets; for God hath avenged you on her.

21 And a mighty angel took up a ſtone like a great millſtone, and caſt it into the ſea, ſaying, Thus with 18 And the woman which thou ſaweſt, &c.) If the whore ſat as queen by the power of the kings of the earth that committed fornication with her, then according to the meaſure of their diſguſt againſt her, and of their withdrawing their power from her, ſhe muſt be deſolate and naked, and her fleſh eaten by them, and burnt in the fire. The times in which we live explain this, v. 16. fully. For whereas before the reformation Chap. xviii. 7. "ſhe glorified herſelf, and lived deliciouſly, ſaying in her heart, I ſit a queen, and am no widow, and ſhall ſee no ſorrow:" In that event ſhe began to know the loſs of children, and widowhood, in ſome degree; which has been gradually increaſing, in the kings of the earth reaſſuming their juſt power, which the clergy had uſurped and abuſed, and by confiſcating the riches which the church had accumulated by oppreſſion and fraud: and we have, even now, juſt reaſon to uſe the triumphant language of Iſrael over Babylon, and ſay, Iſa. xiv. 12—23. "How art thou fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, ſon of the morning! how art thou cut down to the ground, which didſt weaken the nations! For thou haſt ſaid in thy heart, I will aſcend into heaven, I will exalt my throne above the ſtars of God: I will ſit alſo upon the mount of the congregation, in the ſides of the north, i. e. in God's temple, &c. &c.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XVIII.

1 I ſaw another angel come down from heaven, &c.) This chapter deſcribes the actual accompliſhment of all the promiſes to avenge the blood of the ſaints, and of all the threatnings of deſtruction on them that deſtroyed the earth. As ſoon as the everlaſting goſpel began to be preached afreſh, the proclamation followed, "Babylon is fallen, is fallen, that great city; becauſe ſhe made all nations drink of the wine of the wrath of her fornication." But this was then proclaimed, only as an anticipation of the certain effect of the goſpel. Here the proclamation is reaſſumed in its proper place, being actually accompliſhed by the brightneſs of the coming of the Son of God. This deſcription of the deſtruction of Babylon, is taken chiefly from the Old Teſtament prophecies of the fall of that celebrated empire, under which God's people were held in bondage. The references in the margin of the bibles will lead ſuch as chooſe to conſider it to the parallel expreſſions in the Old Teſtament.

violence

violence ſhall that great city Babylon be thrown down, and found no more at all.

22 And the voice of harpers, and muſicians, and of pipers, and trumpeters, ſhall be heard no more at all in thee; and no craftſman, of whatſoever craft he be, ſhall be found any more in thee; and the ſound of a millſtone ſhall be heard no more at all in thee;

23 And the light of a candle ſhall ſhine no more at all in thee; and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride ſhall be heard no more at all in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy ſorceries were all nations deceived.

24 And in her was found the blood of prophets, and of ſaints, and of all that were ſlain upon the earth.

CHAP. XIX.

1 God is praiſed. 7 The marriage of the Lamb. 10 The angel will not be worſhipped.

AND after theſe things I heard a great voice of much people in heaven, ſaying, Alleluia; Salvation, and glory, and honour, and power, unto the Lord our God:

2 For true and righteous are his judgments; for he hath judged the great whore, which did corrupt the earth with her fornication, and hath avenged the blood of his ſervants at her hand.

3 And again they ſaid, Alleluia. And her ſmoke roſe up for ever and ever.

4 And the four and twenty elders, and the four beaſts, fell down and worſhipped God that ſat on the throne, ſaying, Amen; Alleluia.

5 And a voice came out of the throne, ſaying, Praiſe our God all ye his ſervants, and ye that fear him, both ſmall and great.

6 And I heard as it were the voice of a great multitude, and as the voice of many waters, and as the voice of mighty thunderings, ſaying, Alleluia: for the Lord God omnipotent reigneth.

7 ¶ Let us be glad and rejoice, and give honour to him: for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herſelf ready.

8 And to her was granted that ſhe ſhould be arrayed in fine linen, clean and white: for the fine linen is the righteouſneſs of ſaints.

9 And he ſaith unto me, Write, Bleſſed are they which are called unto the marriage-ſupper of the Lamb. And he ſaith unto me, Theſe are the true ſayings of God.

10 ¶ And I fell at his feet to worſhip him. And he ſaid unto me, See thou do it not; I am thy fellow-ſervant, and of thy brethren that have the teſtimony of Jeſus. Worſhip God: for the teſtimony of Jeſus is the ſpirit of prophecy.

11 And I ſaw heaven opened, and behold, a white horſe; and he that ſat upon him was called Faithful and true; and in righteouſneſs he doth judge and make war.

12 His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written that no man knew but he himſelf:

13 And he was clothed with a veſture dipped in blood; and his name is called, The Word of God.

14 And the armies which were in heaven followed him upon white horſes, clothed in fine linen, white and clean.

15 And out of his mouth goeth a ſharp ſword, that with it he ſhould ſmite the nations; and he ſhall rule them with a rod of iron: and he treadeth the winepreſs of the fierceneſs and wrath of Almighty God.

16 And he hath on his veſture and on his thigh a name written, KING OF KINGS, AND LORD OF LORDS.

17 And I ſaw an angel ſtanding in the ſun; and he cried with a loud voice, ſaying to all the fowls that fly in the midſt of heaven, Come and gather yourſelves together unto the ſupper of the great God;

18 That ye may eat the fleſh of kings, and the fleſh of captains, and the fleſh of mighty men, and the fleſh of horſes, and of them that ſit on them, and the fleſh of all men, both free and bond, both ſmall and great.

19 And I ſaw the beaſt, and the kings of the earth, and their armies, gathered together to make war againſt him that ſat on the horſe, and againſt his army.

20 And the beaſt was taken, and with him the falſe prophet that wrought miracles before him, with which he deceived them that had received the mark of the beaſt, and them that worſhipped his image. Theſe both were caſt alive into a lake of fire burning with brimſtone.

21 And the remnant were ſlain with the ſword of him that ſat upon the horſe, which ſword proceeded out of his mouth: and all the fowls were filled with their fleſh.

CHAP. XX.

2 Satan bound for a thouſand years. 5 The firſt reſurrection. 6 They be bleſſed that have part therein. 7 Satan let looſe again. 8 Gog and Magog. 10 The devil caſt into the lake of fire and brimſtone. 12 The laſt and general reſurrection.

Commentary on Chap. XIX.

7 Let us be glad and rejoice, &c.) After a triumphant exultation over the great whore, or Antichriſtian church, the marriage of the Lamb is proclaimed; in which, in oppoſition to the claim of the apoſtate church, who pretended to be the ſpouſe of Chriſt, the true church is introduced as the bride, the Lamb's wife, owned and adorned by him. Paul, when ſpeaking of the marriage union, ſays, it (Epheſ. v. 25.) repreſents the union "of Chriſt and his church, whom he loved, and gave himſelf for it, that he might ſanctify and cleanſe it with the waſhing of water, by the word; that he might preſent to himſelf a glorious church, not having ſpot or wrinkle, or any ſuch thing; but that it ſhould be holy and without blemiſh." This is the church which appeared like a woman cloathed with the ſun, and, in its firſt ſetting up, which fled into the wilderneſs, and was hidden there for the time of Antichriſt's reign; which, when it again became viſible, was the object of the ſerpent's enmity, and had no grandeur about it but the keeping of the commandments of God, and the faith of Jeſus. Now ſhe again appears prepared as a bride adorned for her huſband. Her dreſs is a grant or gift to her, even of that righteouſneſs in which every ſaint is cloathed, repreſented by the fine linen in which the prieſts of old were to enter the holieſt of all. This marriage, and the feaſt that attends it, repreſent the changing of the vile bodies of the ſaints at the firſt reſurrection, and faſhioning them like unto Chriſt's glorious body. Thoſe who are alive and remain on the earth till the coming of the Lord, ſhall be changed into the ſame condition with thoſe who are raiſed in glory, with ſpiritual bodies. This is the expected time of "the manifeſtation of the ſons of God," and therefore—"Bleſſed are they which are called to the marriage ſupper of the Lamb."

20 Theſe both were caſt alive into a lake of fire, &c.) This alludes to the vengeance on Sodom and Gomorrah, who are ſet forth for an example, ſuffering the vengeance of eternal fire," Ver. 21. The remnant were ſlain with the ſword of him that ſat upon the horſe, which ſword proceeded out of his mouth. The remnant are the adherents of the beaſt and falſe prophet, even all the Antichriſtian party that ſhall be found alive at the coming of Chriſt. The ſword that proceedeth out of his mouth is his almighty word, John xii. 48. for "the word which he hath ſpoken the ſame ſhall judge us at the laſt day."

AND I ſaw an angel come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomleſs pit, and a great chain in his hand.

2 ¶ And he laid hold on the dragon, that old ſerpent, which is the devil and Satan, and bound him a thouſand years,

3 And caſt him into the bottomleſs pit, and ſhut him up, and ſet a ſeal upon him, that he ſhould deceive the nations no more till the thouſand years ſhould be fulfilled: and after that he muſt be looſed a little ſeaſon.

4 And I ſaw thrones, and they ſat upon them, and judgment was given unto them: and I ſaw the ſouls of them that were beheaded for the witneſs of Jeſus and for the word of God, and which had not worſhipped the beaſt, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads, or in their hands; and they lived and reigned with Chriſt a thouſand years.

5 ¶ But the reſt of the dead lived not again until the thouſand years were finiſhed. This is the firſt reſurrection.

6 Bleſſed and holy is he that hath part in the firſt reſurrection: on ſuch the ſecond death hath no power, but they ſhall be prieſts of God and of Chriſt, and ſhall reign with him a thouſand years.

7 And when the thouſand years are expired, Satan ſhall be looſed out of his priſon.

8 And ſhall go out to deceive the nations which are in the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog, to gather them together to battle: the number of whom is as the ſand of the ſea.

9 And they went up on the breadth of the earth, and compaſſed the camp of the ſaints about, and the beloved city: and fire came down from God out of heaven, and devoured them.

10 And the devil that deceived them was caſt into the lake of fire and brimſtone, where the beaſt and the falſe prophet are, and ſhall be tormented for ever and ever.

11 And I ſaw a great white throne, and him that ſat on it, from whoſe face the earth and the heaven fled away; and there was found no place for them.

12 ¶ And I ſaw the dead, ſmall and great, ſtand before God; and the books were opened: and another book was opened, which is the book of life: and the dead were judged out of thoſe things which were written in the books according to their works.

13 And the ſea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works.

14 And death and hell were caſt into the lake of fire. This is the ſecond death.

15 And whoſoever was not found written in the book of life was caſt into the lake of fire.

CHAP. XXI.

1 A new heaven and a new earth. 10 The heavenly Jeruſalem, with a full deſcription thereof. 23 She needeth no ſun, the glory of God is her light. 24 The kings of the earth bring their riches unto here.

AND I ſaw a new heaven and a new earth: for the firſt heaven and the firſt earth were paſſed away; and there was no more ſea.

2 And I John ſaw the holy city, New Jeruſalem, coming down from God out of heaven, prepared as a bride adorned for her huſband.

3 And I heard a great voice out of heaven, ſaying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they ſhall be his people, and God himſelf ſhall be with them, and be their God.

4 And God ſhall wipe away all tears from their eyes; and there ſhall be no more death, neither ſorrow, nor crying, neither ſhall there be any more pain: for the former things are paſſed away.

5 And he that ſat upon the throne, ſaid, Behold, I make all things new. And he ſaid unto me, Write: for theſe words are true and faithful.

6 And he ſaid unto me, It is done. I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end. I will give unto him that is athirſt of the fountain of the water of life freely.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XX.

I ſaw an angel come down from heaven, &c.) The conqueror who hath obtained the victory over the beaſt, and the falſe prophet, and has impriſoned thoſe leaders, and ſlain their army, here appears as (Chap. i. 18.) "having the key of David, and having in ſubjection the world to come." Having again "ſpoiled principalities and powers" he appears, ver. 2, 3, to bind Satan and caſt him into priſon, where he is ſecured that he can deceive the nations no more till the thouſand years in which he will reign with his ſaints on earth, are fulfilled. ver. 4. At this time the dead that died in the Lord ſhall be raiſed and judged, and being found followers of the Lamb whitherſoever he went, ſhall live and reign with him on the earth a thouſand years. All that believe the ſcriptures muſt, in ſome ſenſe or other, acknowledge a reign of the ſaints with Chriſt on the earth for a thouſand years, becauſe the ſcriptures expreſsly declare it ſhall be ſo. Nor is any thing more evident concerning the ſentiments of the church, in the next age after the apoſtles, than that this was the univerſal expectation of all that were reckoned to hold the Chriſtian faith.

4 And they lived and reigned with Chriſt a thouſand years.) The reſurrection at which this reign commences cannot be that which is figuratively called a being raiſed from death in treſpaſſes and ſins; becauſe it is the reſurrection of thoſe who were ſlain for the word of God, and had not received the mark of the beaſt. Nor is it the reſurrection meerly of the martyrs, for it is the ſong of the whole company of the redeemed, chap. v. 9, 10. "we ſhall reign on the earth," and it is the time of rewarding the ſaints—"ſmall and great." Nor can it be any notable revival of the cauſe for which Martyr's ſuffered, to be expected before the coming of Chriſt to raiſe the juſt: for the ſecond death, ver. 6. hath no power over any that partake in this reſurrection: whereas any revival or glorious ſtate of the church, that is ſuppoſed before the reſurrection, at Chriſt's ſecond appearing, will ſtill include hypocrites, over whom the ſecond death will have power: but when this reign commences, Matt. xiii. 41. "he will ſend forth his angels, and they ſhall gather out of his kingdom all ſcandals, and them which do iniquity." And when the beloved city, the holy Jeruſalem, (which is now above where Chriſt is) ſhall deſcend out of heaven from God, having the glory of God, and the nations of them that are ſaved ſhall walk in the light of it, then, there ſhall in no wiſe enter into it any thing that defileth, but they that are written in the Lamb's book of life. Thus they are all, bleſſed and holy that have part in the firſt reſurrection, and who ſtand in their lot in that kingdom reigning with Chriſt, as royal prieſts, a thouſand years, before the reſt of the dead live again.

COMMENTARY on Chap. XXI.

4 And God ſhall wipe away all tears from their eyes, &c.) In this ſtate of heavenly bliſs, God, by his immediate preſence, will not only relieve their ſorrows, but entirely remove them, that they may never have the leaſt occaſion to weep, or ever ſhed a tear, as formerly, on any account whatſoever; and there ſhall be no mortality or liableneſs to death, as there was while they lived in the lower world; nor ſhall there be any thing of a grievous nature to afflict them; nor any outcry by reaſon of oppreſſion, frights, or fears; nor ſhall there be any more pain or ſickneſs of body, or anguiſh of ſpirit, which they were ſubject to while they dwelt in mortal fleſh: for all defective and uncomfortable things, and ſin, the root and cauſe of them all, are in that glorious ſtate abſolutely and eternally baniſhed to the remoteſt diſtance from them: they are all over and gone, never to return, that nothing may ever interrupt or abate their conſummate happineſs; which is more than can be ſaid of any condition on this ſide heaven.

7 He that overcometh ſhall inherit all things: and I will be his God, and he ſhall be my ſon.

8 But the fearful, and unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and whoremongers, and ſorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars ſhall have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimſtone: which is the ſecond death.

9 And there came unto me one of the ſeven angels which had the ſeven vials full of the ſeven laſt plagues, and talked with me, ſaying, Come hither, I will ſhew thee the bride, the Lamb's wife.

10 ¶ And he carried me away in the ſpirit to a great and high mountain, and ſhewed me that great city, the holy Jeruſalem, deſcending out of heaven from God.

11 Having the glory of God: and her light was like unto a ſtone moſt precious, even like a jaſper-ſtone, clear as cryſtal;

12 And had a wall great and high, and had twelve gates, and at the gates twelve angels, and names written thereon, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the children of Iſrael.

13 On the eaſt, three gates; on the north, three gates; on the ſouth, three gates; and on the weſt, three gates,

14 And the wall of the city had twelve foundations, and in them the names of the twelve Apoſtles of the Lamb.

15 And he that talked with me had a golden reed to meaſure the city, and the gates thereof, and the wall thereof.

16 And the city lieth four ſquare, and the length is as large as the breadth. And he meaſured the city with the reed twelve thouſand furlongs. The length and the breadth and the height of it are equal.

17 And he meaſured the wall thereof, an hundred and forty and four cubits, according to the meaſure of a man, that is, of the angel.

18 And the building of the wall of it was of jaſper: and the city was pure gold, like unto clear glaſs.

19 And the foundations of the wall of the city were garniſhed with all manner of precious ſtones. The firſt foundation was jaſper; the ſecond, ſapphire; the third, a chalcedony; the fourth, an emerald;

20 The fifth, ſardonyx; the ſixth, ſardius; the ſeventh, a chryſolite; the eight, a beryl; the ninth, a topaz; the tenth, a chryſopraſus; the eleventh, a jacinth; the twelfth, an amethyſt.

21 And the twelve gates were twelve pearls; every ſeveral gate was of one pearl: and the ſtreet of the city was pure gold, as it were tranſparent glaſs.

22 And I ſaw no temple therein: for the Lord God Almighty, and the Lamb, are the temple of it.

23 And the city had no need of the ſun, neither of the moon, to ſhine in it: for the glory of God did lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof.

24 And the nations of them which are ſaved ſhall walk in the light of it: and the kings of the earth do bring their glory and honour into it.

25 And the gates of it ſhall not be ſhut at all by day: for there ſhall be no night there.

26 And they ſhall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it.

27 And there ſhall in no wiſe enter into it any thing that defileth, neither whatſoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lye: but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life.

CHAP. XXII.

1 The river of the water of life. 2 The tree of life. 18 Nothing may be added to the word of God.

AND he ſhewed me a pure river of water of life, clear as cryſtal, proceeding out of the throne of God and of the Lamb.

2 ¶ In the midſt of the ſtreet of it, and on either ſide of the river, was there the tree of life, which bare twelve manner of fruits, and yielded her fruit every month: and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

3 And there ſhall be no more curſe: but the throne of God and of the Lamb ſhall be in it; and his ſervants ſhall ſerve him.

4 And they ſhall ſee his face; and his name ſhall be in their foreheads.

5 And there ſhall be no night there: and they need no candle, neither light of the ſun; for the Lord God giveth them light: and they ſhall reign for ever and ever.

6 And he ſaid unto me, Theſe ſayings are faithful and true: and the Lord God of the holy prophets ſent his angel, to ſhew unto his ſervants the things which muſt ſhortly be done,

7 Behold, I come quickly: bleſſed is he that keepeth the ſayings of the prophecy of this book.

8 And I John ſaw theſe things, and heard them. And, when I had heard and ſeen, I fell down to worſhip before the feet of the angel which ſhewed me theſe things.

9 Then ſaith he unto me, See thou do it not: for I am thy fellow-ſervant, and of thy brethren the prophets, and of them which keep the ſayings of this book. Worſhip God.

10 And he ſaith unto me, Seal not the ſayings of the prophecy of this book: for the time is at hand.

11 He that is unjuſt, let him be unjuſt ſtill: and he which is filthy, let him be filthy ſtill: and he that is righteous, let him be righteous ſtill: and he that is holy, let him be holy ſtill.

12 And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work ſhall be.

13 I am Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end, the firſt and the laſt.

14 Bleſſed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city.

Commentary on Chap. XXII.

1 He ſhewed me a pure river of water of life, &c.) This chapter deſcribes the eternal happy ſtate of the church, in the enjoyment of the new heavens and new earth. (2 Pet. iii. 13.) "We, according to his promiſe, look for new heavens and a new earth, wherein dwelleth righteouſneſs." If we indulge imagination about the mode of things when this promiſe is fulfilled, we may ſoon ſay more about it than the bible has taught us; and in the multitude of words there will not want ſin. But caution about this ſhould not hinder our attention to what the ſcriptures have ſaid about it. The following obſervations ſeem to be founded on the ſcripture account of this matter. 1. This new creation ſucceeds the thouſand years reign, and alſo the day of judgment and perdition of ungodly men, and completes "the times of reſtitution of all things." 2. The man Chriſt Jeſus, who is the firſt begotten from the dead, is in his reſurrection the beginning of this new creation of God, and he is head of it. 3. The old creation, wherein ſin dwelt, is under miſery and a curſe; but this new creation, wherein dwelleth righteouſneſs, hath no more curſe. 4. All the creatures ſhall be delivered from the bondage of corruption, and in their own way partake of the glorious liberty of the ſons of God; for the whole creation will be changed as a garment, (Pſalm cii. 26.) and ſuited to the glorified body of Jeſus Chriſt, and the bodies of his brethren; as the firſt creation was ſuited to the body of the firſt Adam: and then the creature will reſt from the bondage into which

15 For without are dogs, and ſorcerers, and whoremongers, and murderers and idolaters, and whoſoever loveth and maketh a lie.

16 I Jeſus have ſent mine angel to teſtify unto you theſe things in the churches. I am the root and the off-ſpring of David, and the bright and morning ſtar.

17 And the Spirit and the bride ſay, Come. And let him that heareth ſay, Come. And let him that is athirſt come. And whoſoever will, let him take the water of life freely.

18 ¶ For I teſtify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man ſhall add unto theſe things, God ſhall add unto him the plagues that are written in this book:

19 And if any man ſhall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God ſhall take away his part out of the book of life, and out of the holy city, and from the things which are written in this book.

20 He which teſtifieth theſe things ſaith, Surely I come quickly. Amen. Even ſo, come, Lord Jeſus.

21 The grace of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt be with you all. Amen.

it was brought by ſin. Thus "every knee ſhall bow to Chriſt, as (Phil. ii. 10.) well of things on earth as things in heaven; (Rev. v. 13.) and every creature which is in heaven, and on the earth, and under the earth, and ſuch as are in the ſea, ſhall ſay, (each in its own way,) Bleſſing, and honour, and glory, and power, be unto him that ſitteth upon the throne, and unto the Lamb for ever and ever."

	XVI.	Upon the fifteenth of the ſecond month (our June the 4th, being Thurſday) the Iſraelites came to the wilderneſs of Zin, which lieth between Elym and Sinai, where, for want of food, they murmur againſt God and their leaders. About the even-tide God ſends them quails, and the next morning rains upon them manna from heaven; and upon that kind of bread they lived afterward by the ſpace of forty years, even till they came to the borders of the land of promiſe. An omer of it is preſerved for a memorial.
	Ex. XVII. 1.	At Rephidim, which was the eleventh place of their encamping, the people murmur for want of water: Moſes gives them water, by ſtriking the hard rock in Horeb with his rod.
	8, 9, &c.	The Amalekites falling upon the rear of the Iſraelites, are diſcomfitted by Joſhua, whilſt Moſes holds up his hands to God in prayer.
	XX.	God publiſheth his law, contained in the ten commandments, with a terrible voice from mount Sinai.
	XXIV.	Moſes and Aaron, Nadab and Abihu, and 70 men of the elders of Iſrael, go up into the mount, and there behold the glory of God: the reſt, returning, Moſes, with his ſervant Joſhua, abides there ſtill, and waits ſix days, and upon the ſeventh day God ſpeaks unto him, and there he continues 40 days and 40 nights, (reckoning thoſe ſix days which he waited for the appearance of the Lord,) eating no meat all that while, nor drinking water, (Deut. ix. 9.) where he receives God's command touching the frame of the tabernacle, the prieſt's garments, their conſecration, ſacrifices, and other things

	XXXI. 18.	At the end of 40 days God gives Moſes the two tables of the law in ſtone, made by God's own hand, and written with his own finger; bidding him withal quickly to get him down, for that the people had already made to themſelves a molten calf to worſhip. Moſes, by down from the mount, and seeing the people keeping a festival in honour of their idol in the camp, he breaks the tables of the law at the foot of the mount, for which the Jews keep a solemn fast unto this day.

	20, 28.	Moses, having burnt and defaced the idol, puts 3000 of the idolaters to death by the hands of the Levites.
	XXXIV.	God commands Moses to frame new tables of stone, and to bring them with him into the mount: Moses brings them the next morning; and whilst he stands in the cleft of a rock, God passeth by, and sheweth him a glimpse of his glory.
	10.	God renews his covenant with his people, and upon certain conditions gives them his laws again.
1490	Ex. XL	The tabernacle is set up, and anointed with holy oil; Aaron and his sons are consecrated for the priesthood.
	Lev. X.	Nadab and Abihu, for offering strange fire, are struck dead in the place by fire from heaven.
	Numb. VII.	The princes of the tribes present their offerings toward the dedication of the tabernacle. God speaketh to Moses from the mercy-seat.
	IX.	The second passover is instituted.
	X. 29. Ex. XVIII.	Jethro, who is also called Hobab, brings his daughter Zipporah, with her two sons Gershom and Eliezer, which were left with him, to his son-in-law Moses; and, having congratulated his and the whole people of Israel's deliverance out of bondage, he openly declares his faith and devotion toward the true God.
	Num. XI.	Moses complains to God of the over great burden of his government; God, to ease him of his charge, gives him for assistance, the court of seventy elders.
	31.	The people lust for flesh. God gives them quails in wrath, and sends withal a most grievous plague among them.
	XII.	God rebukes the sedition of Miriam and Aaron, and maintaineth Moses his right.
	XIII.	From the wilderness of Paran, near Kadeshbarnea, twelve men are sent (among whom are Caleb and Joshua) to discover the land of Canaan. Returning they bring with them the branch of a vine, with a cluster of grapes upon it: ten of the twelve so sent speak ill of the country, declare it barren, and magnify the cities for their strength, and the giantly stature of the inhabitants.
1489	Deu. I. 46.	In this place, viz. Kadesh-barnea, the Israelites continue many days; but that in some places they continued many years appeareth, for that in the space of thirty-seven years, there are but seventeen encampings mentioned.

	Numbers XXXIII.	To their long continuance in Kadesh, and the encampings from thence, all that we find delivered in the xvth and four next ensuing chapters of Numbers seems to refer, as how Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, for raising a mutiny against Moses and Aaron, were swallowed alive into the earth, and 250 of their associates, and how the people, murmuring against Moses and Aaron for the calamity which had befallen their brethren, were destroyed by God, to the number of 14700 men; and how twelve rods being brought by twelve princes, and laid in the sanctuary, Aaron's rod only budded, and brought forth almonds, and was laid up before the ark, for a memorial to those who should afterwards be given to rebellion.

	XX.	In these thirty-seven years the Israelites, by seventeen encampings, having compassed the hill-country of Seir and Edom, they come to the wilderness of Zin, in the first month of the fortieth year after their departure out of Egypt.
1452	1.	Here Miriam, the sister of Moses and Aaron, dieth.
	2.	The people again, for want of water, murmur against Moses and Aaron, whom when God had commanded to call water out of the rock only by speaking to it, Moses, being moved in his mind, through impatience and diffidence of the thing, speaks something, whatever it was, unadvisedly with his lips, and strikes the rock twice
	12.	with Aaron's rod, and thereby draws water from it; but for transgressing God's command, they are both debarred from entering into the land of Canaan.
	23, 28.	In the fifth month of this year Aaron dieth at Mosera, on the top of mount Hor, aged 123 years, leaving his son Eleazar, his successor in the high priesthood.
	XXI. 5, 9. John III.	The people murmuring are plagued with fiery serpents, whereof many die; upon their repentance, God commands that a brazen serpent be made, and lifted up upon a pole, that as many as look on it may live.
	14.
	Numbers XXI.	About the latter end of this year, all those who at Kadesh-barnea mutined against God being wholly extinct and dead, the Israelites pass over Zered, and come to the borders of Moab at Ar, and at length they arrive at Bamoth, a valley in the country of the Moabites, and pitch at mount Pisgah.

Before Christ.		The Fourth Age of the World.
1451		God tranſlates out of the place where he died into a valley of the land of Moab, over againſt Beth-peor, and there burieth it, nor doth any man know the place where he laid it unto this day. The Iſraelites mourn for him thirty days.
		Here ends the Pentateuch, or five books of Moſes, containing the hiſtory of 2552 years and an half, from the beginning of the world; and the book of Joſhua begins with the forty-firſt year after the departure of the children of Iſrael out of Egypt.
	Joſh. III.	Upon the tenth day of the firſt month (April 30.) to wit the ſame day that the Paſchal lamb was to be choſen out of the flock, the Iſraelites under the conduct of Joſhua, a type of Jeſus Chriſt, go up out of the river Jordan into the promiſed land of Canaan, a type of a more heavenly country. They paſs through the river on dry ground, the waters being for that preſent divided; for a memorial
	IV.	of which miraculous paſſage, Joſhua ſets up twelve ſtones in the very channel of Jordan, and taking twelve other ſtones out of the midſt thereof, ſets them up at Gilgal, the place where they next encamp.
	V.	The day following Joſhua renews the uſe of circumciſion, which had been omitted forty years.
	10.	Upon the fourteenth day of the ſame month, in the evening, the Iſraelites celebrate their firſt paſſover in the land of Canaan.
	11, 12.	Next day after the paſſover manna ceaſeth.
	13.	Our Lord Jeſus, Cap'tain of his Father's hoſt, appears to Joſhua, the typical Jeſus, before Jericho, with a drawn ſword in his hand, and promiſeth there to defend his people.
	VI.	Jericho, the ark of the Lord having been carried round about it, is taken the ſeventh day, the walls thereof falling down at the ſound of the prieſts' trumpets; all the inhabitants are put to the ſword, except Rahab and her family.
	VII.	The Iſraelites beſiege Ai, and are ſmitten by their enemies, God having abandoned them for ſacrilege committed by Achan. Achan's ſin being diſcovered by the caſting of lots, and himſelf found guilty, he is ſtoned to death, and, together with his children and
	VIII.	cattle, burnt with fire. God being pacified hereby, Ai is taken by ambuſhment, and utterly deſtroyed.

Before Christ.		The Fourth Age of the World.
	IX.	The kings of Canaan combine againſt Iſrael; only the Gibeonites craftily find a way to ſave their own lives, by making a league with them; but are afterwards deputed to the ſervile offices of the houſe of God.
1450	Exodus XXIII. 10, 11.	From the autumn of this year, wherein, after the failing of manna they began to till the ground, the riſe of the Sabbatical years is to be taken.
1445	Joſh. XIII.	Joſhua now grown old, is commanded by God to divide all the land on the weſt of Jordan among the nine tribes remaining, and the other half-tribe of Manaſſeh. The Lord and his ſacrifices are the inheritance of Levi.
	XI.	The reſt of the kings, with whom Joſhua had waged war for ſix years, reſolve to ſet upon him with united forces; but Joſhua comes upon them unawares, ſlays them, and poſſeſſeth their countries.
	XIV. 21.	Joſhua now roots out thoſe giants the Anakims, with their cities,
	XV.	out of the hill-countries, out of Hebron, Debir, and Anab, and, generally, out of all the mountains of Judah and all Iſrael. And having gotten the whole land into his hands, he divides it among the children of Iſrael, according to their tribes; and the land reſted from war.
1444		The firſt Sabbatical year, or year of reſt; from hence the year of jubilee, or every fifty years ſpace, is to be reckoned.
	XVIII.	The tabernacle is ſet up at Shiloh, (thought to be the ſame with Salem,) where it continued 328 years.
	XXII.	The Reubenites, Gadites, and the half-tribe of Manaſſeh, with a bleſſing, are ſent home to their poſſeſſions on the other ſide of Jordan.
1443	XXIII. XXIV.	Joſhua gathers together all Iſrael, exhorts them to obedience, briefly recites God's benefits to them, reneweth the covenant between them and God, and dieth 110 years old.
1405	Judges III. 9, 10.	Othniel the ſon of Kenaz, and ſon-in-law to Caleb, ſtirred up by God as a judge and avenger of his people, defeats Cuſhan, and delivers the Iſraelites out of bondage, and the land reſteth forty years, after the firſt reſt which Joſhua procured for them.
1343	12.	Othniel dying, the Iſraelites fall again to ſin againſt God, and are given over into the hands of Eglon, king of Moab, who, joining with the Ammonites and the Amalekites, overthrows the Iſraelites, and takes Jericho; and this ſecond oppreſſion continueth 18 years.

Ehud,

Before Christ.		The fourth Age of the World.
	Judges III.	Ehud, the ſon of Gera, is raiſed up by God to be an avenger of his people; for feigning a meſſage to Eglon, he runs him into the belly with his dagger; then, getting away, he gathers all Iſrael into a body on mount Ephraim, and ſlays 10000 of the moſt valiant men of Moab; and the land reſteth forty years, after the former reſt obtained by Othniel.
1325	15, 30.
	81.	After him Shamgar the ſon of Anath ſlayeth 600 Philiſtines with an ox-goad, and he alſo avengeth Iſrael.
1305	IV. 1, 2, 3.	The Iſraelites after the death of Ehud, returning to their old ſin, are given up by God into the hands of Jabin, king of Canaan; and this thraldom of theirs continueth 20 years.
1285	4.	Deborah, the wife of Lapidoth, a propheteſs, who at this time judgeth Iſrael in mount Ephraim, and Barak of the tribe of Naphtali, being made captain of the hoſt of Iſrael, in ſight of Megiddo, overcome Siſera, captain of Jabin's army, whom Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite afterwards kills in her own tent. For a memorial of which victory, Deborah compoſeth a ſong; and the land reſteth forty years after the former reſt obtained by Ehud.
	V. 31.
1252	VI.	The Iſraelites ſinning again are delivered into the hands of the Midianites; which fourth thraldom laſteth ſeven years. Hereupon the cry unto God for help, and are reproved by a prophet.—Then Gideon the ſon of Joaſh, of Manaſſeh, is by an angel from God ſent to deliver them. He firſt overturns the altar of Baal, and burns his grove, and is called Jerubbaal. He, out of 32000 men which came unto him, chuſeth only (God ſo commanding) 300; but with them he puts to flight all the hoſt of the Midianites, whom the Ephraimites afterwards purſue, and ſlay their princes, Oreb and Zeeb. Gideon, having pacified the Ephraimites, who complain that they were not called to battle at firſt, paſſeth the river Jordan, and defeats the remainder of the Midianitiſh army; he chaſtiſeth alſo the men of Succoth and Penuel, who had refuſed him victuals in his journey; and ſlays the two kings of the Midianites, Zebah and Zalmunna.
1245
	VII.
	VIII.
1236	VIII. 33.	Gideon dies, and the Iſraelites relapſing into idolatry, worſhip Baal-berith as their God.
	IX. 1, 2, &c.	Abimelech, Gideon's ſon by his concubine, purpoſing to get to himſelf the kingdom refuſed by his father, ſlays ſeventy of his brothers all upon one ſtone: and having by the help of the Shechemites, got to be made king, Gideon's youngeſt ſon Jotham, who only had eſcaped Abimelech's fury, from the top of mount Gerizim expoſtulates with them the wrong which they had done to his father's houſe: and by way of parable foretels their ruin. After this he flies, and dwells quietly in Beer.
1233	Judges IX. 22.	Abimelech having reigned three years over Iſrael, Gaal a Shechemite conſpires againſt him; which being diſcovered to him by Zebul, he utterly deſtroyeth the city of Shechem, and puts all the inhabitants to the ſword, and burneth the temple of their god Berith with fire: from thence he goes and layeth ſiege to Thebez, where he is knocked on the head with a piece of a millſtone caſt upon him by a woman from the walls, and then killed outright by his armour-bearer.
	50.
	2 Sam. XI. 21.
1232	Jud. X. 1, 2.	Tola the ſon of Puah, after Abimelech, judgeth Iſrael twenty-three years.
1210	3.	Jair the Gileadite ſucceeds Tola, and judgeth Iſrael twenty-two years.
1206	8.	The Iſraelites forſaking again the true God, fall to worſhip the gods of ſeveral nations, and are given up into the hands of the Philiſtines and Ammonites; which fifth thraldom laſteth eighteen years. Upon their repentance, and abandoning their idols, at length they obtain mercy.
1188	15.
1187	XI.	Jephthah the Gileadite, being captain of the hoſt of Iſrael, ſubdues the Ammonites; before the battle he vows his daughter unawares to be offered in ſacrifice, and afterward performs it. He puts to the ſword 42000 Ephraimites, who had behaved themſelves inſolently againſt him, and judgeth Iſrael ſix years.
	XII. 6.
1182	8.	Ibzan the Beth-lehemite ſucceeds Jephthah, and judgeth Iſrael ſeven years.
1156	1 Sam. IV. 18.	Eli the high prieſt (in whom the high prieſthood was tranſlated from the family of Eleazar to Ithamar) ſucceeds Abdon and judgeth Iſrael forty years. The Iſraelites again provoke the Lord to anger, and he delivers them into the hand of the Philiſtines. This ſixth thraldom begins ſeven months after Eli's entering upon the government, and laſteth forty years, even till ſeven months after his death, death, when the ark was brought back again.

1155	24.	Samſon the Nazarite, as an angel had foretold, is born at Zorah.
1137	XIV. 4.	Whilſt Eli the high prieſt executeth the office of a judge in civil cauſes, under the Philiſtines, Samſon takes occaſion to quarrel with them, by marrying a woman of Timnath; for having on the day of his betrothing, propounded a riddle to the Philiſtines, and laid a wager, his wife tells them the meaning of it. Enraged hereat, he goes and ſlays thirty men of Aſkelon, and gives them the ſuits of raiment which he had ſtripped off their bodies, in performance of the wager which he had loſt, and returns home to his father.
1117	XVI.	Samſon is betrayed by Delilah his concubine, bereaved of the hair of his Nazariteſhip, and delivered to the Philiſtines, who put out his eyes, and bind him with chains of braſs. The Philiſtines gather together to offer ſacrifice to Dagon their god, and Samſon is brought to make them ſport; whoſe hair being grown, and his ſtrength in a great meaſure reſtored, he takes hold of the two chief pillars whereon the houſe ſtood, (wherein were the princes of the Philiſtines, and a great multitude of people,) and pulls down the houſe, killing more men at his death than he did in all his life-time. So he died, having judged Iſrael in the days of the Philiſtines twenty years.
1116	1 Sam. IV.	The Iſraelites take up arms againſt the Philiſtines, but with very ill ſucceſs, for they loſe 4000 men in one battle. Then they ſend for the ark of the covenant from Shiloh, and cauſe it to be brought into the camp. The Philiſtines, ſeeing now all lie at ſtake, encourage one another to behave themſelves like men that day, and ſo falling on they ſlay of the Iſraelites 30000 men. The ark of God is taken, and Hophni and Phinehas, prieſts, and ſons of Eli, are ſlain. Of all which, when tidings are brought to old Eli, frightened thereat, he falls from his chair, and breaks his neck in the 98th year of his age.
	V.	The Philiſtines having brought the ark into Aſhdod, ſet it in the houſe of Dagon their god. But when Dagon had been found two ſeveral times fallen grovelling before it, and broken in pieces, and the inhabitants of the place ſorely plagued, they remove it
	VI.	from thence to Gath, and from thence to Ekron. But the ſame

	VII.	into the ark. From hence it is carried to the houſe of Abinadab in Kirjath-jearim, who ſanctified his ſon Eleazar to keep it.
1096		After twenty years the Iſraelites, by Samuel's perſuaſion, ſolemnly repent at Mizpeh, and, upon their converſion, God by thunder from heaven delivers them from the in-
	13.	vaſion of the Philiſtines, who are ſubdued, the hand of the Lord being againſt them all the days of Samuel.
1095	VIII.	Samuel, being grown old, takes for his aſſiſtants in the government his ſons; by whoſe ill management
	Hoſ. XIII.	of affairs the Iſraelites require a

	XVI. 11.	God rejects Saul, and ſends Samuel to Beth-lehem, there to anoint David king, whom Saul ever after extremely perſecuteth.
1063	XVIII.	Yet Jonathan, Saul's ſon, loveth him, and oftentimes reſcueth him from Saul's cruelty.
	XXIV. XXVI.	David having Saul twice in his power, forbears to hurt him.
1060	XXVII.	David, fearing he may ſometime or other fall into the hands of Saul, flees to Gath, unto king Achiſh,
1056		carrying with him 600 men, and having obtained of him the town of Ziklag to dwell in, he continueth one year and four months in the land of the Philiſtines, from whence he invadeth the countries of the Geſhurites, the Gezrites, and Amalekites, and puts to the ſword all, both men and women, not leaving one alive to carry the news thereof to king Achiſh.

	XXXI.	The armies join battle, and the Iſraelites are defeated; the three ſons of Saul are ſlain, and he himſelf falls on his ſword.
	2 Sam. I.	Three days after an Amalekite brings Saul's crown and bracelet that was upon his arm, and preſents them to David, profeſſing that, finding him fallen upon his ſword, he had killed him outright, and taken the crown from off his head; whereupon David cauſeth him to be put to death for ſtretching forth his hand to ſlay the Lord's anointed, and lamenteth the death of Saul and Jonathan his ſon in a funeral ſong.

1044	2 Sam. VIII. 1 Chron. XVIII. Ge. XV. 18. Deut. XI. 24. 1 Kings IV.	The time which paſſeth from hence till the birth of Solomon is ſpent in wars; wherein David ſubdues the Philiſtines, Edomites, Amalekites, Moabites, Ammonites, and Syrians, and extends his kingdom to the utmoſt bound of that land which had been promiſed to the ſeed of Abraham, and never poſſeſſed by any of them, ſave only by David and his ſon Solomon.
1035	2 Sam. XI. 1 Chron. XX.	At the end of this year Joab, going with the army againſt the Ammonites, beſiegeth Rabbah the metropolis of Ammon, whilſt David takes his eaſe at Jeruſalem, and there commits adultery with Bath-ſheba the wife of Uriah the Hittite, who was then in the army, whom he alſo procures to be ſlain.
1034	2 Sam. XII.	The child ſo gotten in adultery is born. David is convicted by Nathan the prophet of his ſin, and he repents; in teſtimony whereof he compoſeth the 51ſt Pſalm. The child dieth.
1033	25.	Bath-ſheba becomes now David's wife, and beareth him a ſon, unto whom, as unto one who
	1 Chron. XXII. 9.	ſhould prove a man of peace, God gives the name of Solomon; and as to one beloved of the Lord, the name of Jedidiah.
1032	2 Sam. XIII. 1.	Amnon, David's eldeſt ſon, deflloureth his ſiſter Tamar.
1030	23.	Abſalom avengeth his ſiſter Tamar, and killeth his brother Amnon, for which thing he fleeth to Geſhur in Syria, where he continues three years with king Talmai, his grandfather by the mother's ſide.
1027	XIV.	After three years exile he returns to Jeruſalem, where he continues
1025		two years, before the king his father admits him into his preſence, and is reconciled to him.
1024	XV.	This rebel ſon, having got chariots and horſes, and a guard to attend him, inſinuates himſelf into the favour of the people, and ſteals away their hearts from his father David.
1123	7.	The next year following, under pretencce of a vow, he obtaineth leave to go to Hebron, where, by Ahithophel's counſel, he breaks out into open rebellion, and forceth his father to flee from Jeruſalem.

	XVIII.	Abſalom, having loſt 20000 men, fleeth, and a bough of an oak catching hold of him, he there hangs, and is run thro' by Joab.
1017		David tempted by Satan, commandeth Joab to number the people; God, offended thereat, ſends a prophet to put three plagues to his choice, viz. the famine, ſword, or peſtilence. David chooſeth to fall into the hands of a merciful God rather than into the hands of men. So God ſends a peſtilence; whereof 70000 men die in one day. The angel being about to deſtroy Jeruſalem, God bids him hold his hand, for he beholds David repenting in ſackcloth, and entreating him to ſpare the innocent people, and to turn his hand upon himſelf, and upon his father's houſe.
	1 Chron. XXI.
1016	1 Kings XIV. 21.	Rehoboam is born unto Solomon by Naamah an Ammonitiſh woman.
	II.	David, having given inſtructions to his ſon Solomon, dieth, after he had reigned in Hebron ſeven years and ſix months, and thirty-three years in Jeruſalem over all Iſrael.
1014	III. 1, 2.	Pharaoh king of Egypt gives his daughter in marriage to Solomon.
	2 Chron. VIII. 11.	The Lord appears to Solomon in a dream, and bids him aſk what he will, and it ſhall be given him.
	1 Kings III. 5.	Solomon aſketh wiſdom; God gives him wiſdom from above, and adds thereunto riches and honour. Of this divine wiſdom Solomon makes an eminent manifeſtation, in judging between two harlots.
		The Fifth Age.
1012	VI. 1. 2 Chron. III. 1.	SOLOMON layeth the foundation of the temple in the 480th year after the departure of the children of Iſrael out of Egypt.
1005	1 Kings VI. 38.	Solomon's temple finiſhed in the 11th year of his reign, having been ſeven years and an half in building.
1004	VIII. 2 Chron. V. VI, VII.	Solomon this year (being the ninth jubilee, and opening the fourth millenary of the world) with great magnificence celebrates the dedication of the temple; at which time God gives a viſible ſign of his favour.
975	1 Kings XI. 2 Chron. IX.	Solomon having, as it is with reaſon believed, forſaken his luſts and vanities, to which he had been too intemperately addicted, and written, as a teſtimony of his repentance, his book called The Preacher, dieth. He reigned 40 years.

975	25.	Jeroboam in the beginning of his reign, repairs Sechem, deſtroyed by Abimelech 258 years before, and there dwells; afterwards going over Jordan he builds Penuel, and
	XIV. 17. XII. 26.	at length makes Tirzah the ſeat of his kingdom. But fearing leſt his new ſubjects, by going to Jeruſalem to worſhip, may be induced to revolt from him, he deviſeth a new form of religion, ſetting up 2 golden calves, the one at Bethel, the other at Dan, for the ſeduced people to bow down unto.
974	2 Chron. XI. 17.	The prieſts and Levites, and other Iſraelites, who feared God, ſtick to Rehoboam, and maintain the kingdom of Judah three years; after which time Rehoboam falls to idolatry, and walketh no more in the ways of David and Solomon.
	1 Kings XII. 32. XIII. 2.	Jeroboam ſacrificing to his calf at Beth-el, a prophet is ſent unto him from God, who foretells the judgment which ſhould one day be executed upon that altar, and the prieſts, (viz. thoſe whom Jeroboam had made of the loweſt of the people) that ſerved at it.— Which prophecy then and there is confirmed by ſigns and wonders upon the king himſelf, and upon the altar.
958	1 Kings XV.	Abijam, the ſon of Rehoboam, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Judah, and reigns three years.
957	2 Chron. XIII.	He obtains a great victory over Jeroboam, killeth 500000 men in one battle, and taketh Beth-el.
955	1 Kings XV. 8.	Aſa, in the twentieth year of Jeroboam, ſucceeds his father Abijam, and reigns forty-one years.
954	25.	Nadab, in the ſecond year of Aſa, ſucceedeth his father Jeroboam in the kingdom of Iſrael, and reigneth not full two years.
953	27.	Nadab, at the ſiege of Gibbethon (a town of the Philiſtines) is ſlain by Baaſha, of the tribe of Iſſachar, in the third year of Aſa: and the ſame year, having made himſelf king over Iſrael, he utterly deſtroyeth the whole race of Jereboam, and reigneth twenty-four years. At this time lived the prophet Jehu, Hanani, and Azarias.
951	2 Chron.	Aſa deſtroyeth idolatry, and, enjoying

	XIV.	enjoying ten years of peace, ſtrengthens his kingdom with forts and a ſtanding army.
930	1 Kings XVI. 6.	Elah, the ſon of Baaſha, ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Iſrael.
929	8.	In the ſecond year of his reign, and the twenty-ſeventh of Aſa's, Zimri, one of his captains, conſpires againſt him, kills him, and reigneth in his ſtead. As ſoon as he ſits in the throne he deſtroyeth the whole family of Baaſha; but the army which then lay before Gibbethon make Omri their king, who preſently beſiegeth Tirzah, and taketh it; which Zimri ſeeing, he ſets on fire the king's palace, and periſheth in the flames.
	21.	The people of Iſrael are now divided into two factions, one follows Tibni the ſon of Ginath, and endeavours to make him king, the
925	22.	other adheres to Omri; but Tibni dying, Omri reigns alone, in the thirty-firſt year of Aſa.
924	1 Kings XVI. 23, 24.	Omri having reigned ſix years in Tirzah, removes the ſeat of his kingdom to Samaria, a place which he himſelf had built.
918	29.	Ahab ſucceeds his father in the kingdom of Iſrael, and reigneth twenty-two years in Samaria. He did evil in the ſight of the Lord above all that were before him.
914	XXII. 41. 2 Chron. XX. 31.	Jehoſhaphat ſucceedeth his father Aſa, in the fourth year of Ahab king of Iſrael, and reigneth twenty-five years in Jeruſalem.
912	XVI. 7.	Jehoſhaphat being ſettled in his kingdom, and having demoliſhed the high places and groves, in the third year of his reign he ſends Levites, with the princes, to inſtruct the people in the law. God in the mean time ſubdueth his enemies under him.
901	1 Kings XX.	Ben-hadad king of Syria, layeth ſiege to Samaria, who, by the direction of a prophet, is beaten off, and a vaſt number of the Syrians ſlain.
898	XXII. 51.	Ahab, in the ſeventeenth year of the reign of Jehoſhaphat, maketh his ſon Ahaziah his aſſociate in the government of his kingdom.
	2 Kings III. 1.	Jehoſhaphat alſo maketh Jehoram his ſon co-partner with him; whence it is, that Jehoram the ſon of Ahab, who ſucceeded his brother Ahaziah in the kingdom of Iſrael, in the eighteenth year of 896	2 Kings I. 1. III. 5.	Ahab being dead, the Moabites revolt from Iſrael, who had continued in ſubjection ever ſince king David's days.

	2 Samuel VIII. 2.	Ahaziah king of Iſrael dieth, having governed (partly by himſelf, and partly together with his father) two years.
	2 Kings III. 1.	Jehoram ſucceedeth his brother Ahaziah in the kingdom of Iſrael, in the latter end of the eighteenth year of Jehoſhaphat, and reigneth twelve years.
	II. 11.	Elijah is taken up to heaven in a fiery chariot.
889	2 Chron. XXI. 4, 5.	Jehoram now, by the death of his father, has the kingdom of Judah to himſelf, which he holds 4 years. He is no ſooner ſettled in his throne, but he puts all his brethren to the ſword, with many

	XI.	Jehu proceeds farther, and executes the divine vengeance upon the idolatrous houſe of Judah; he purſues Ahaziah, who fled toward Megiddo, and overtaking
	X.	him at Gur, cauſeth him to be killed in his chariot. Going alſo to Samaria, he meeteth with forty-two of Ahaziah's kinſmen, whom he cauſeth to be ſlain.
	XI. 2 Chron. XXII. 10.	Athaliah the daughter of Ahab, ſeeing her ſon Ahaziah dead, uſurps the kingdom, deſtroying thoſe that had right to the ſucceſſion; but Jehuſheba the daughter of king Jehoram, and wife to Jehoiada the high-prieſt, takes Jehoaſh, being then an infant, and ſon to her brother Ahaziah, and hides him in the temple, and ſo ſaves him from that maſſacre which was made of the reſt of the blood-royal.
878	2 Kings XI. 2 Chron. XXIII.	Jehoiada the high-prieſt brings out Jehoaſh, now ſeven years old, and anoints him king; cauſeth Athaliah to be ſlain, and reſtoreth the worſhip of the true God, deſtroying the houſe of Baal, and commanding the idolatrous prieſt Mattan to be killed before his altars. Jehoaſh now beginning his reign in the ſeventh year of Jehu, reigneth forty years in Jeruſalem.
857	2 Kings XII. 7.	Jehoaſh, in the twenty-third year of his reign giveth order for the repair of the temple, committing the charge thereof to Jehoiada the high-prieſt.
857	2 Kings XIII. 1.	Jehoahaz ſucceedeth his father Jehu in the kingdom of Iſrael, and reigneth ſeventeen years: during all which time Hazael king of

839	XIII.	Jehoahaz dieth, and Jehoaſh his ſon ſucceedeth in the kingdom of Iſrael. Not long after his father's funeral he viſits Eliſha the prophet, then lying ſick, and with many tears aſketh counſel of him; who promiſeth him victory over the Syrians. A dead man is brought to life, by being laid in Eliſha's grave.
836	XV. 1.	Jeroboam the ſecond is this year taken into the conſortſhip of the kingdom of Iſrael by his father Jehoaſh going to war againſt the Syrians. This is gathered from Azariah king of Judah's beginning his reign in the twenty-ſeventh year of this Jeroboam.
826	XIV. 2 Chron. XXV.	Amaziah king of Judah growing proud upon a victory obtained againſt the Edomites this fourteenth year of his reign, provoketh Jehoaſh king of Iſrael to battle. Jehoaſh overcomes him, and takes him priſoner, breaks down 400 cubits of the wall of Jeruſalem, and having ſpoiled the temple and the king's houſe of a vaſt treaſure, returns to Samaria.
825	2 Kings XIV. 23.	Jehoaſh dies fifteen years before Amaziah, and Jeroboam the ſecond, his ſon, reigneth in Samaria forty-one years.
810	XIV. 2 Chron. XXV.	Amaziah finding a conſpiracy againſt him at Jeruſalem, flies to Lachiſh, where he is murdered, after whom comes his ſon

773	XV. 8.	Zachariah the ſon of Jeroboam the fourth, and laſt of the race of Jehu, (as was foretold,) begins his reign over Iſrael in the thirty-eighth year of Azariah, or Uzziah, king of Judah, and reigned ſix months.
772	10.	Shallum the ſon of Jabeſh, at the end of ſix months, murders him in the ſight of the people, and reigns one month in the thirty-ninth year of Uzziah king of Judah. After Zachariah's death follow thoſe direful calamities foretold by Amos the prophet.
	Amos VII. 9.
	2 Kings XV. 14.	Menahem, the ſon of Gadi, going from Tirzah to Samaria, killeth Shallum, waſteth Tiphſah and the borders thereof; and becauſe the town would not open to him he takes it, and rips up all the women with child.
761	23.	Pekahiah ſucceeds his father Menahem in the fiftieth year of year of Uzziah king of Judah, and reigneth two years.
758	25, 27.	Pekah one of his captains, kills him in his own palace at Samaria, and reigneth twenty years.
	32.	Jotham ſucceedeth his father Uzziah in the kingdom of Judah at the age of twenty-five years, and reigneth ſixteen years in Jeruſalem.
	2 Chron. XXVII. 5.	Jotham ſubdues the Ammonites, and makes them tributary for three years. Under him and his

	2 Chron. XXIX, XXX, XXXI.	Ahaz in the kingdom of Judah, he deſtroyeth idolatry, and proſpers; he alſo celebrates a ſolemn paſſover, and reigeth twenty-nine years in Jeruſalem; his father had made him, in the laſt year of his reign, his aſſiſtant in the government.
725	2 Kings XVII. 4.	Hoſhea, king of Iſrael, having conſulted with So king of Egypt, refuſeth to pay tribute to Shalmaneſer; provoked hereby, and jealous of ſome farther deſign in that confederacy of Hoſhea with the king of Egypt, Shalmaneſer layeth ſiege to Samaria, and toward the latter end of the third year taketh it, and carrieth away the Iſraelites captive into his own country. This was the end of the kingdom of Iſrael when it had ſtood divided from the kingdom of Judah 254 years.
713	XVIII.	Sennacherib king of Aſſyria, coming up againſt Judah, beſiegeth their fenced cities, and takes many of them, but is pacified by a tribute.
	XX.	About this time Hezekiah falls ſick, and is told by Iſaiah that he ſhall die; but pouring out his tears and prayers unto God, he recovereth his health, and obtaineth a prolongation of his life and kingdom for fifteen years. For a ſign

Whereupon the prophet Iſaiah aſſures him that God will deliver him, and defend that city. The ſelf-ſame night an angel of the Lord ſlays 185000 men in the Aſſyrian army, and the next morning Sennacherib departeth, and returns to Nineveh; where not long after, whilſt he is worſhipping in the houſe of Niſroch his god, he is ſlain by his own ſons.
698	2 Kings XXI. 2 Chron. XXXIII.	Manaſſeh at twelve years of age ſucceedeth his father Hezekiah, and reigneth fifty-five years. He ſets up idolatry, and ſheddeth much innocent blood. Wherefore God delivers him up into the hands of the Aſſyrians, who in the twenty-ſecond year of his reign, carry him away captive to Babylon; but, upon his repentance, God reſtores him to his liberty and kingdom.

	2 Kings XXIV. 17.	Nebuchadnezzar before his departure from Jeruſalem, makes Mattaniah, Jehoiachin's father's brother, king, changing his name into Zedekiah.
	2 Chron. XXXVI.	Zedekiah beginneth his reign at twenty-one years of age, reigneth eleven years; he, by rebelling againſt Nebuchadnezzar, or rather by continuing in an open rebellion (as his fathers had done) againſt God, brought upon Jeruſalem, and the whole nation of the Jews, thoſe long-deſerved calamities which God had ſo often Zedekiah flees away by night, but being purſued is taken, and brought priſoner to Riblah, Nebuchadnezzar's head quarters; there, having firſt ſeen his children ſlaughtered before his eyes, he has afterwards thoſe eyes put out; and, being loaden with chains, is carried away captive to Babylon. About a month after the taking of the city, Nebuzar-adan captain of the guard, ſent by Nebuchadnezzar, makes his entry into it, ſets fire to the temple, the king's palace, and ſome noblemen's houſes, and ſo layeth the whole city in aſhes; the walls of Jeruſalem being razed to the ground, all that were left in the city, and thoſe that a little before had fallen to the Chaldeans, with what treaſure he can find, doth Nebuzar-adan carry with him into Babylon.

569 Babylon Empire.	Dan. IV. 29, 33.	NEbuchadnezzar, proud of his victories over Egypt, and his conqueſt of Judea, and other countries, and boaſting the magnificence of his buildings, falls diſtracted, and is driven from the ſociety of men.
562	Dan. IV. 34.	After ſeven years ſpent among the beaſts of the field, his underſtanding returning to him, he humbly acknowledgeth the power of God, and his goodneſs toward him; and is reſtored to his kingdom. A few days after he dies, having reigned about twenty months with his father, and forty-three years by himſelf.
	2 Kings XXV. 37. Jer. LII. 31.	Evil-merodach his ſon, ſucceeds him in the thirty-ſeventh year of the captivity of Jehoiachin or Jeconiah, who preſently gives order for the enlargement of Jehoiachin, and two days after changeth his priſon-clothes, ſets him above all the princes of his court, and cauſeth him to eat at his own table. Jehoiachin dies about two years after.
555	Dan. VII. 1.	Belſhazzar, having removed ſome perſons who had murdered his father Evil-merodach, and uſurped his throne, ſucceeds in the kingdom of Babylon. In the firſt year of this king's reign Daniel has the viſion of the four beaſts, ſignifying the four monarchies of the world, and of God delivering over all power and ſovereignty to the Son of man.

The ſame night Belſhazzar is ſlain, Babylon taken by Cyrus, and the empire tranſlated to the Medes and Perſians, as had been ſundry times foretold by the prophets.
		Cyrus having given the kingdom of Babylon to Darius the Mede, reſerving ſome palaces in the city for himſelf, he returns through Media into Perſia.
	VI. 6.	Daniel's greatneſs raiſing envy in ſome principal courtiers and officers, theſe contrive his ruin; but finding nothing in his management of affairs whereof to accuſe him, they reſolve to order matters ſo, that Daniel's piety toward God ſhall become an offence worthy of death. They move the king to make a decree, that for thirty days no petition ſhall be made to God or man, but to himſelf only. Which decree Daniel breaks, by making ſupplication to his God, and is, for doing ſo, caſt into a den of lions; but being found to have received no hurt there, Darius commands the conſpirators to be caſt into the ſame den, who are preſently devoured; and the king publiſheth a decree, that all perſons throughout his dominions ſhall reverence and fear the God of Daniel.
537	Dan. IX.	Toward the end of the firſt year of Darius the Mede, to be reckoned from the ſubverſion of the Babyloniſh empire, begins the ſeventieth year of the captivity of the Jews, which by Jeremiah's prophecy was to be the laſt year of their calamity. Upon conſideration of which time ſo neat at hand, Daniel pours out moſt fervent prayers to God for the remiſſion of his own ſins, and thoſe of his people: and for that promiſed deliverance out of their captivity. To whom the angel Gabriel brings an anſwer not only of this, but alſo of the ſpiritual deliverance of the church by the death of the Meſſiah; uttering that memorable prophecy of the ſeventy weeks.

At which time the ſeventy years of the Babyloniſh captivity being expired, (as was foretold by Iſaiah and Jeremiah, the former making mention of Cyrus by name,) he gives leave to all the Jews dwelling in all parts of his dominions to return into their own country, and commands them immediately to fall in hand with rebuilding of the temple.

535	III. 8, 13.	In the ſecond year after their return from Babylon, in the ſecond month, they appoint Levites to overſee the work of the houſe of God, the old men lamenting, who fifty-three years before had ſeen the old temple ſtanding, and the younger ſort rejoicing to ſee the new one going up.
534	IV. 5.	The Samaritans, by the means of certain courtiers about Cyrus, whom they had bribed for that purpoſe, diſturb the Jews in their work of the temple.
529	6.	In the beginning of the reign of Artaxerxes, (called in profane ſtory Cambyſes) the Samaritans, who whilſt Cyrus lived had ſecretly undermined the Jews, now openly frame a direct accuſation in writing againſt the inhabitants of Judah and Jeruſalem, who preſently forbids the Jews to proceed in the building.
520	V. 1.	In the ſecond year of king Darius Hyſtaſpes, (the ſame with Ahaſuerus) Zerubbabel and Jeſhua, incited by the prophets Haggai and Zechariah, ſet forward the building of the temple.
	Hag. II. 1, 9.	Haggai propheſieth, that the glory of the ſecond temple ſhall be greater than that of the former, not as being a more magnificent ſtructure, but in regard the bleſſed Meſſiah ſhall one day honour it with his preſence, and thence propagate peace to all nations.

510	Eſther III.	Haman an Agagite, of the race of the Amalekites, a great favourite of king Ahaſuerus, offended at Mordecai, becauſe he falls not down and adores him, as others do, reſolves to be avenged of the whole nation of the Jews, (which

415		Hitherto (ſaith Euſebius in his Chronicle to the thirty-ſecond year of Artaxerxes) the divine Scriptures of the Hebrews contain the annals of the time: but thoſe things which were done among them afterward we muſt deliver out of the books of the Maccabees and out of the writings of Joſephus who have delivered a general hiſtory of the Jewiſh affairs from thence down to the times of the Romans.
		That Malachi the laſt of the prophets, was cotemporary with Nehemiah, appears from hence, that he no where exhorts the people to the building of the temple,

277	Jos. Ant. I. 12. c. 2.	Ptolemeus Philadelphus, son of Ptolemeus Soter, being a great favourer of learning, builds a most magnificent library at Alexandria. Demetrius Phalereus, to whom he had committed the care of procuring all sorts of books, and out of all countries, persuades him to employ seventy-two Jews in translating the holy Scriptures out of the original Hebrew into the Greek tongue, which was done in the seventh year of his reign. The king also dismisseth many captive Jews, and dedicates many presents to the temple of God at Jerusalem.
177	2 Mac. III.	One Simon, a man of the tribe of Benjamin, governor of the temple, falling out with Onias the high-priest, goes to Apollonius the governor of Cælosyria, and informs him that there is a vast treasure in the temple.—Apollonius acquaints King Seleucus his master with it, who presently sends his treasurer Heliodorus to Jerusalem to bring this money away. Heliodorus entering the temple, is by angels struck down in the very place, and carried from thence half dead; but by the prayers of Onias he is soon after restored to health. Returning to Seleucus that sent him, he magnifies the holiness of the temple, and the power of God dwelling in it.

He endeavoureth also to abolish the worship of God, and forceth many Jews to forsake their religion. The Samaritans now disown their relation to the Jews, to whom, in prosperity, they pretended alliance, and consecrate the temple on mount Gerizzim to Jupiter.
167	1 Mac. VIII. 5.	Perseus having made war upon the Romans, is this year overcome by them, and the kingdom of the Macedonians ends, when from Caranus it had stood 626 years. Nevertheless the reliques of the Macedonian empire, while that of the Romans was rising, did yet survive in the Ptolemies of Egypt, and the kings of Syria.
167	1 Mac. I. 45.	King Antiochus, by a publick edict, commands all nations that are subject unto him to observe the same way of divine worship, and laying aside their peculiar customs, to profess the same religion with the Grecians; the punishment of death being threatened unto such as shall be disobedient; and he appoints overseers over every people and nation, who shall compel them hereunto. Of the Jews many choose rather to undergo the most cruel torments than to offer sacrifice unto idols; all which martyrdoms, with those glorious sufferings of the seven Maccabean brethren, are recorded in the two books of Maccabees.
	1 Mac. II. 2 Mac. VI. Joſ. Ant. l. 12. c. 8.	Matthias a priest, with his five sons slay those that are sent by king Antiochus to compel them to offer abominable sacrifices, and after betake themselves to the desert.—They are followed by many others, of whom a great number are stifled in their caves, because they would not defend themselves on the sabbath-day. Matthias abolished that superstition, and exhorts his sons to assert their privileges, and deliver their country from bondage.

Jonathan, ſuſpecting no treachery, comes only with 1000 men to Tryphon at Ptolemais; but, as ſoon as he is entered the city, Tryphon commands the gates to be ſhut. Jonathan is taken priſoner, and all his men put to the ſword.
	1 Mac. XIII. Joſ. Ant. l. 13. c. 10, 11.	The Jews hereupon make choice of Simon Maccabeus for their general in the place of his brother Jonathan. Tryphon leads an army againſt Simon. 	Mat. XXVI. Mark XIV. Luke XXII.	ON the firſt day of unleavened bread, when the paſſover of the Jews was to be ſlain, (April 2.) in the evening, Jeſus eateth the paſſover with his diſciples, and inſtitutes the Sacrament of his Body and Blood in Bread and Wine.
	John XIII.	Chriſt waſheth his diſciples' feet, and exhorteth them to humility and charity.
	XVIII.	In the ſelf-ſame night Chriſt is betrayed by Judas, mocked, buffeted, and ſpit upon, by the ſoldiers.
	Mat. XXVII. Mark XV. Luke XXIII. John XIX.	Next day he is condemned by Pilate, and crucified; the ſun, during the crucifixion, is darkened, and the vail of the temple rent in the midſt. Chriſt, praying for his enemies gives up the ghoſt. Joſeph of Arimathea begs the body, and lays it in a new ſepulchre.
	Pſ. XXII. Matth. XXVIII. Mark XVI. Luke XXIX. John XX.	On the third day, the next after the Jewiſh ſabbath, (April 5.) Chriſt riſeth from the dead, his reſurrection is declared by angels to the women that came to the ſepulchre. Chriſt firſt appeareth to Mary Magdalene, and afterwards to his diſciples, and dineth with them.
	Acts I. Mat. XXVIII.	Chriſt bringeth his apoſtles to mount Olivet; commandeth them to expect in Jeruſalem the ſending down of the Holy Ghoſt; ſends them to teach and baptize all nations, and bleſſes them; and, while they beheld, he is taken up, and a cloud receives him out of their ſight. After his aſſenſion the diſciples are warned by two angels to depart, and to ſet their minds upon his ſecond coming; they accordingly return, and, giving themſelves to prayer, chooſe Matthias to be an apoſtle in the place of Judas.
	Acts II.	On the day of Pentecoſt, (May 24.) the Holy Ghoſt deſcendeth on the apoſtles in the form of cloven tongues, like as of fire, and enableth them to ſpeak all languages. Peter the ſame day preacheth Chriſt and the reſurrection, and about 3000 believers are added to the church.
	III.	Peter, by faith in Chriſt's name, healeth a lame man.
	V. 1.	Ananias and his wife Sapphira, for their hypocriſy, are ſuddenly ſtruck dead.
	17.	The apoſtles are caſt into priſon by the high prieſt, but an angel ſets them at liberty, and bids them preach the goſpel to the people without fear; being taken teaching in the temple, they are brought before the council, where, by the advice of Gamaliel, a Phariſee and doctor of the law, they are delivered.
34	VI.	The number of believers increaſing at Jeruſalem, the apoſtles ordain ſeven deacons, who ſhould diſtribute the alms of the whole church to the widows, and poorer ſort of believers.
	VII.	Stephen, one of theſe deacons, having confounded ſome that diſputed with him, is by them falſely accuſed of blaſphemy, and brought before the council, where he reprehends their rebellion and murdering of Chriſt. Whereupon they caſt him out of the city, and ſtone him; he, in the mean time praying for them.
	VIII.	A great perſecution of the church at Jeruſalem follows after the death of the firſt martyr Stephen.
35	26.	An angel ſendeth Philip to teach and baptize the Ethiopian eunuch.
	Acts IX. 1.	Saul, a violent perſecutor of all that call on the name of Jeſus, and one who conſented to the death of Stephen, goes now toward Damaſcus, with commiſſion from the high prieſt and the council to apprehend all Chriſtians in thoſe parts, and to bring them bound to Jeruſalem; on the way he is miraculouſly converted by a voice from heaven, and three days after baptized by Ananias at Damaſcus, where he preacheth the goſpel of Chriſt with great boldneſs, to the aſtoniſhment of thoſe that knew upon what deſign he was ſent thither.
38	23. 2 Cor. XI. 32. Gal. I. 18.	Saul having preached the goſpel at Damaſcus a long time, the Jews lay wait to kill him, but he eſcapeth from thence, and comes to Jeruſalem; there he ſees Peter and James the brother of our Lord, and abides with them fifteen days. Here he ſpeaks boldly in the name of Jeſus, and diſputes with the Grecians, or rather Jews that uſed the Greek tongue.—Theſe alſo conſult how they may kill him.
	Acts XXII. 17.	While Saul prays in the temple he is in a trance, and the Lord appears unto him, and bids him to depart from Jeruſalem, becauſe they will not receive his teſtimony; adding, that he will ſend him to the Gentiles.
	IX. 30.	Saul, leaving Jeruſalem, goes

38 Roman Empire.	Acts IX. 32.	Peter viſits the churches of Judea, Galilee, Samaria, &c. At
	36.	Lydda he cureth Æneas of the palſy; and at Joppa reſtoreth Tabitha to life.
41	X.	At Ceſarea, Cornelius a centurion, by prayers and alms, finds favour in the ſight of God, and is commanded by an angel to ſend for Peter, now at Joppa. God by a viſion teacheth Peter not to deſpiſe the Gentiles; and being ſent for by Cornelius, goes and preacheth Chriſt to him, and a great company that were met at his houſe. While Peter preacheth the Holy Ghoſt falls upon them all; and immediately the apoſtle baptizeth them.
	XI.	Peter at his return to Jeruſalem is accuſed by thoſe of the circumciſion for converſing with the Gentiles; but he declares to them his viſion, and the whole matter concerning Cornelius, and they glorify God for granting to the Gentiles alſo repentance unto life.
44	XII.	About this time James the brother of John is beheaded by the command of Herod Agrippa. He alſo impriſoneth Peter, whom an angel delivers, upon the prayers of the church. This ſame Herod not long after, ſpeaking to the people at Ceſarea, ſome of them cry out, It is the voice of a god, and not of man; and immediately an angel of the Lord ſmites him, becauſe he gave not the glory to God, and he is eaten of worms and dieth.
45	XIII.	Barnabas and Saul ſet forward in their preaching of the goſpel. They plant the Chriſtian faith in Seleucia, Cyprus, and other places. At Paphos they preach the goſpel to Sergius Paulus, governor of that country. Elymas a ſorcerer withſtanding them, and endeavouring to turn away Sergius from the faith, is at Saul's rebuke ſtruck blind. From this time Saul is always called by his new name Paul; he preacheth at Antioch; the Gentiles believe, but the Jews gainſay and blaſpheme. Whereupon he and his aſſiſtants turn to the Gentiles, and come to Iconium.
46	XIV.	At Iconium, they are perſecuted, and ready to be ſtoned. From hence they flee to Lyſtra, and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia. At Lyſtra Paul healing a cripple, the multitude cry out, that the gods are come down, and call Barnabas, Jupiter, and Paul, Mercurius, and would have ſacrificed to them had not the apoſtles, with clothes rent, run in among them, and aſſured them that they were men like themſelves. Soon after there come Jews from Antioch and Iconium, who excite the people againſt them: Paul is by the furious multitude ſtoned, and drawn out of the city as dead; but whilſt the diſciples ſtand about him he riſeth up, and the next day departs with Barnabas to Derbe.

45 Roman Empire.	2 Cor. XII. 2.	In this year, perhaps at this very time, Paul was caught up into the third heaven, and heard unſpeakable words, fourteen years before he wrote his ſecond epiſtle to the Corinthians.
	2 Tim. I. 2, 5.	About this time Timothy, tho' a child, with his mother Eunice, and his grandmother Lois, embrace the Chriſtian faith preached by Paul.
53	Acts XV. 36.	Paul and Barnabas, thinking to viſit the churches together, fall at ſtrife, and part aſunder; Barnabas and Mark go into Cyprus, Paul and Silas into Syria and Cilicia.
	XVI.	Paul coming to Derbe, finds Timothy there, whom (becauſe his mother was a believing Jew; though his father a Gentile) he cauſeth to be circumciſed, and takes him along with him. He is by a viſion admoniſhed to go into Macedonia; coming to Philippi, the chief city of that part of Macedonia, he converts Lydia; caſteth out of a certain maid-ſervant a ſpirit of divination, whoſe maſters loſing a conſiderable gain thereby, bring Paul and Silas before the magiſtrates; theſe cauſe them to be whipped and impriſoned; but at midnight, Paul and Silas praying and ſinging pſalms, the doors of the priſon fly open, and their bonds are looſed: the jailor, ready to kill himſelf, is converted to the faith, and baptized the ſame night, with his whole family: Next day the magiſtrates come themſelves, and pray them to depart the city.
54	XVII.	From Philippi Paul takes his journey through Amphipolis and Apollonia, and comes to Theſſalonica, where he finds a ſynagogue of the Jews; there he preacheth three ſabbath-days; ſome believe, others perſecute him: Leaving Theſſalonica he comes to Berea, and ſoon after arrives at Athens, diſputes with the philoſophers, declares unto them that UNKNOWN GOD whom they had ignorantly worſhipped. He converts Dionyſius the Areopagite, and thence paſſeth to Corinth.
	XVIII.	Paul at Corinth meets with Aquila

55		Paul is accuſed by the Jews, and brought before Gallio proconſul of Achaia, who refuſeth to be judge in a conteſt about religion, and ſo drives them away from the judgment-ſeat.
56	18.	Paul departs from Corinth, and paſſeth to Epheſus, thence he ſets out toward Jeruſalem, that he may be at the feaſt; he lands at Ceſarea, goes down to Antioch, and comes into the regions of Galatia and Phrygia, confirming the diſciples in all thoſe places.
57	XIX.	Paul returns to Epheſus, diſputes daily in the ſchool of Tyrannus and continues preaching
58		there, and the parts thereabouts. He writes his epiſtle to the Galatians.
60		At Epheſus, Demetrius a ſilverſmith, jealous of his gain, raiſeth a tumult againſt Paul, which is appeaſed by the town-clerk.
	1 Cor. I. 11. XVI. 8.	About this time a ſchiſm ariſeth in the church of Corinth, which cauſeth Paul (now in or about Epheſus) to write his firſt epiſtle to the Corinthians.
	Acts XX. 2 Cor. VIII. 1, 2, 6, 19.	Paul departs from Epheſus, and comes into Macedonia, and gathers a contribution for the relief of the ſaints at Jeruſalem.
	1 Cor. XVI. 5.	The apoſtle having learned from Titus the ſucceſs of his firſt epiſtle, writes now his ſecond to the Corinthians. Out of Macedonia he goes into Greece, and comes to Corinth, where he writes his epiſtle to the Romans.
	Acts XX. 3, 4.	Paul purpoſing to go directly from thence into Syria, that he may carry the collections to Jeruſalem, the Jews lay wait for him; he underſtanding this, thinks it beſt to return into Macedonia the ſame way he came, and thence to paſs into Aſia.
	XXI.	Paul comes to Jeruſalem, is apprehended in the temple, and ſecured in the caſtle; he claimeth the privilege of a Roman, and eſcapeth ſcourging.
	XXII. XXIII.	Paul pleadeth his cauſe before Ananias the high prieſt. The chief captain underſtanding that above forty Jews had bound themſelves under a curſe neither to eat nor drink till they had killed him, ſends him to Felix the governor of the province, by whom he is impriſoned at Ceſarea.

62 Roman Empire.	XXIV.	Paul is accuſed before Felix by Tertullus the orator; Felix goes out of his office, and, to gratify the Jews, leaves Paul in priſon. Porcius Feſtus ſucceeds him in the government.
	XXV.	The Jews come to Ceſarea, and accuſe Paul before Feſtus. He anſwereth for himſelf, and appeals unto Ceſar. King Agrippa comes to Ceſarea, and Feſtus opens the whole matter to him.
	XXVI.	Paul makes his defence in the preſence of Agrippa, who thereby is almoſt perſuaded to be a Chriſtian, and the whole company pronounce him innocent.
63	XXVIII.	Paul comes to Rome, is a priſoner at large, and preacheth there two years.
		Here ends the Hiſtory of the Acts of the Apoſtles, written by St. Luke, St. Paul's beloved companion in his travels.
		St. Paul from Rome, writes his epiſtles,
		To the Philippians.
		To Philemon.
		To the Coloſſians.
		To the Epheſians.
65	Heb. XIII. 24.	About the latter end of this year, St. Paul is ſet at liberty, and a little before his departure out of Italy into Aſia, he writes his epiſtle to the Hebrews.
	Titus I. 5.	He preacheth the goſpel in the iſle of Crete, and leaves Titus there to ſet things in order, and ordains elders in every city.
66		St. Paul writes his epiſtles,
		To Timothy I.
		To Titus.
		To Timothy II.
		About this time the epiſtles of St. Peter, St. John and St. Jude, ſeems to be written.
	Euſeb. Hiſt. Ec. l. 2. c. 24.	St. Peter and St. Paul are ſaid to have ſuffered martyrdom at Rome toward the latter end of Nero's reign.
67	Luke XIX. 43, 44.	This year Jeruſalem, (according to Chriſt's prophecy) is beſieged, taken, ſacked, and burnt by Titus, 1100000 of Jews periſh, 97000 are taken priſoners, beſides an innumerable company that in other
70		places of Judea kill themſelves, or periſh thro' famine, baniſhment, and other miſeries.
96		St. John is baniſhed into the iſle of Patmos by Domitian, and there receives and writes his Revelation.
		After the death of Domitian, St. John returns to Epheſus, and, at the requeſt of the church, writes his goſpel.

AN HISTORICAL ACCOUNT

OF THE

ENGLISH TRANSLATIONS of the BIBLE.

HERE in England we find, by the manuſcript copies yet remaining, ſeveral attempts were made to tranſlate into the Engliſh then ſpoken, the Pſalter, the Hymns of the Church, and the reſt of the Holy Scriptures. One of the firſt of theſe ſeems to have been, Richard Rolle, an Hermit, of Hampole, in Yorkſhire, who died A. D. 1349. To this work is prefixed a Prologue, before which, in the imperfect Copy in the King's Library, is the following rubric: "Here begynneth the Prologe uppon the Sauter that Richard Harmyte of Hamſpole tranſlated into Englyſhe after the ſentence of doctours and reſonn." At the end of it, the author gives this account of his performance: "In this werke," ſays he, "I ſeke no ſtraung Ynglys, bot lighteſt and communeſt. I felogh the letter als-mekille as I may."

Towards the end of the fourteenth century, John Wicliff ſet about tranſlating the whole Bible into the Engliſh then ſpoken. This tranſlation he made from the Latin Bibles then in common uſe, or which were, at that time, uſually read in the church. The reaſon of which ſeems to have been, not that he thought the Latin the original, or of the ſame authority with the Hebrew and Greek text, but becauſe he did not underſtand thoſe languages well enough to tranſlate from them.

When the Art of Printing was diſcovered, it was not long before the Latin Bible was printed, viz. 1462, which was ſoon followed by other editions, whereby it was rendered more common than before. In 1488, the Old Teſtament was printed in Hebrew; and, in leſs than thirty years after, the New Teſtament was publiſhed at Baſil in the original Greek. In 1474 this Art was brought into England by William Caxton, a native, and a printing-preſs ſet up by him at Weſtminſter.

William Tyndal publiſhed a tranſlation of the New Teſtament from the original Greek into Engliſh, in 1526. He afterwards publiſhed a tranſlation of the firſt five books of Moſes; and in 1535, a tranſlation of the whole Bible was publiſhed in folio, dedicated to King Henry the 8th, and the dedication is thus ſubjoined: "Your Grace's humble ſubjecte and daylye oratour, Miles Coverdale." This Coverdale was a native of Yorkſhire, and afterward profeſſed of the houſe of Auſtin Friars, in Cambridge.

In 1537, another tranſlation of the Old and New Teſtament was publiſhed, ſaid to be "truelye and purelye tranſlated into Engliſh by Thomas Matthewe." In 1539, Cranmer's Bible was printed; and tranſlations of ſeveral parts were publiſhed about this time.

Biſhop Coverdale, Goodman, Gilby, Whitingham, Cole, John Knox, John Badleigh, and John Bullain, Engliſh refugees, ſettled at Geneva, publiſhed their tranſlation of the New Teſtament in 1557, at Geneva, and the whole Bible in 1560.

Queen Elizabeth dying March 24, 1602, was ſucceeded by James VI. of Scotland, as next heir to the crown, and of the Queen's nomination. Soon after his acceſſion to the throne of England, his Majeſty commiſſioned ſeveral learned perſons of both Univerſities, and other places, to meet, confer, and conſult together at ſuch places as were appointed them, ſo as that nothing ſhould paſs without a general conſent, in order to make a new and more correct tranſlation of the Bible. They were divided into ſix claſſes, and were to meet at Weſtminſter, Cambridge, and Oxford. This admirable tranſlation, which is now in daily uſe, was dedicated to the King, and the various editions of it are too numerous to be particularized.
